Four Demands Approved By Gallagher; Strike Called For Monday Still Planned

By PAUL B. SIMMS

Dr. Gallagher met with over 100 students Wednesday to discuss what action has been taken around the Five Demands and to reaffirm the Administration's position with respect to future action.

For nearly an hour, President Gallagher spoke of "his commitment" to equality and justice and tried to deal with dissatisfaction over Administrative action on the matter.

Prior to the meeting, Dr. Gallagher distributed a Memorandum to the Members of the Black and Puerto Rican Student Community in which he stated: "I want to reflect upon the length of time that has passed since the five demands of the Black and Puerto Rican Community were first presented to me, and realize that there has been little further talk on the matter, I am lead to believe that the lines of communication have been broken down and I would like at this point to speak with those members of the Community who share my feelings of concern about this."

"Since the year is fast drawing to a close, I want to restate and clarify my position in language which can be better understood. For this purpose, I would like to invite members of the Community to meet with me at 3:00 p.m. today, Wednesday, April 16, 1969 in the Aranow Auditorium at Finley Center."

As the meeting began, Dr. Gallagher stated, "I came here to tell it like it is. My aim is not to insult. I am committed to the whole thrust of these demands." He went on to say, "My own personal lifelong commitment to justice and equality is a matter of record . . . I've been shot at, I've paid heavy fines and I've lived on the wrong side of the Jim Crow line in the middle of Alabama with my wife and two small daughters. . . I have done as much as any living man to end racism in the church."

During the meeting, copies of the letter of resignation which Dr. Gallagher sent to the Board of Higher Education were distributed. Commenting on the letter, Gallagher said, "You have in your hands a letter where I put my whole career on the line."

ON THE DEMANDS

Addressing himself to the Five Demands, Dr. Gallagher began by saying that he expected Prof. Wilfred Cartey's report on the establishment of a Black and Puerto Rican Studies Program in a few weeks. Dr. Cartey, a Black professor of African Literature from Columbia, was hired to assist students in the development of such a program. As of several weeks ago, the proposed School for Black and Puerto Rican Studies would actually exist as a separate department within the School of Liberal Arts and Sciences which would not be able to confer a

Funds: City

City University Chancellor Albert Bowker Wednesday issued a statement criticizing Mayor Lindsay's streamlined budget, and reiterating that the University cannot exist under the conditions it presents. The 232 million dollar figure set by the city includes 17 million which is "not now available," and earmarks 13 million for collective bargaining of faculty wages, an apportionment not requested by CUNY.

Calling the city figures a "lopsided distortion of priority," the statement scored the entire budget, with special emphasis on the salary allocation. With the cuts proposed by the city, the university will actually have 202 million dollars as operating funds, when 208 million are required to even maintain the current functioning level.

The Chancellor's statement noted that in addition to the basic survival of the University, at stake are programs which address themselves directly to current city problems, such as hospital personnel training and Black and Puerto Rican studies.

degree upon its graduates. "If C.C.N.Y. is open in September, there will be a Black and Puerto Rican studies program here," said Gallagher.

On the second demand, that one dealing with a separate Black and Puerto Rican Freshman Orientation Program, Gallagher said, "Yes, you can develop any type of freshman orientation program you wish. If upperclassmen have developed a program and are willing to run it, it can be implemented in the fall."

Regarding the third demand, "Dean Young is ready to work with any SEEK students" who want to revise the present decision making structure.

It was on the fourth demand, dealing with a freshman class that is representative of the high school population, that Dr. Gallagher pointed to the budget cut in Albany. He explained during the question and answer period that although the 100 Scholars Program is being implemented this fall, (a program to admit the top 100 high school seniors from every high school into the City University system) his major concern is "quality: I want more than a quantity program."

On the first demand, Dr. Gallagher said, "I turned this matter over to the School of Education. Recently, they have decided to make Spanish mandatory for all entering education majors. Furthermore, they are working for Black and Puerto Rican History and Culture to be taught to these Ed majors. The Spanish requirement will be in effect this fall. The Black and Puerto Rican History and Culture probably will not be implemented this fall, but the committee within the School of Education is continuously working on this."

Dr. Gallagher finished his remarks on the Five Demands by saying, "Let me demand that you help me."

AND THE QUESTIONS!

Before accepting questions Gallagher announced that he had to attend a meeting of the CCNY Committee on Higher Education, presumably to discuss implementation of the program. One question raised by a girl student in the audience, "You say that communication is broken. You come to us now. Why didn't you come two weeks ago, before that communication gap?" Another question was asked did there exist specific numbers with regard to the fourth demand. Gallagher replied "No."

When confronted with the question of increased security service and new air-conditioning in Finley Student Center, but decreasing Black and Puerto Rican student enrollment, Dr. Gallagher said he was unaware of the new air-conditioning in Finley, but the increased Burns Guard Service was to depress the number of incidents on the campus. As the questioning on the matter continued, Dr. Gallagher finally stated that he had to attend his meeting and rushed out the door, closely followed by several students who had sincere desire to make him stay.

DESPITE BGG'S MOVE . . .

The Black and Puerto Rican student community has called for a general student strike on Monday to protest what it calls the "barrage of administrative bullshit" on the Five Demands. Charging that the administration has had more than enough time to act on the proposals, they see a strike as their only alternative. SDS voted on Wednesday to support the strike, and held a rally yesterday with another planned for today.

To the Five Demands, however, SDS has added three of their own; (1) open admission for all (especially Third World and Latin American) working class students, (2) Relevant education — schools of Third World and working class studies, and (3) taxation of the banks, corporations, and other large bond and stockholders instead of the working classes.

Chairmen Resign To Protest Cuts

By MONICA STOLL

Twenty-three of the college's 27 academic department chairmen submitted their resignations to the Board of Higher Education, claiming that they would not be able to fulfill their duties as chairmen "unless a budget adequate to the functioning and development of the City University is provided." No date has been set on the resignations, which were sent to the Board April 2.

If these resignations should be accepted, the faculty members will lose their position as department heads, but they will retain their tenure and continue to teach at the College. According to Prof. Julius Elias (Philosophy) who drafted the statement of resignation in collaboration with Prof. Edmond Volpe (English), this action is a symbolic way of "making it clear that we feel desperate." Prof. Elias also mentioned that at the moment "our resignations have the same status as the President's, they have been offered, but not accepted." Yet he is very sure that the chairmen are ready to carry out what is now simply a threat, "even though

Dr. Gallagher tried to persuade us not to do this." Both Prof. Elias and Prof. Volpe, along with many of their colleagues, feel that such measures had to be taken in order to dramatize the urgency of the problem and to bring it to the attention of the public.

The point has been raised that if the resignations be accepted, the positions of all the chairmen could be easily filled by having a new election in each department. Replying to this, Prof. Elias stated that he believed that the chairmen were backed by the members of the faculty in their decision and that therefore the faculty might simply refuse to elect a successor. Since, according to Prof. Volpe, the chairmen are the principal administrators in the college structure, their resignation would inevitably lead to administrative chaos.

In case of a budget increase, it would be up to each individual to decide whether it was "adequate" or not.

All of the names which appear under the statement sent to the press and to the Board of High-

FACULTY STATEMENT

Understanding fully the inadequacy of the proposed budget for CUNY in 1969-70 to fulfill the University's educational and social mission, and sharing President Buell G. Gallagher's recognition that the University cannot function under this budget, we, the undersigned chairmen of academic departments at the City College herewith tender our resignations as chairmen unless a budget adequate to the functioning and development of the City University is provided.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Ombudsman

April 11, 1969

Editor, Tech News:

The purpose of this letter is to inform those of you who may not know of the founding of a new institution at the school. This institution, begun earlier this semester, is the Office of Ombudsman. It is comprised of a Faculty Member, the Chief Ombudsman, and a Student Ombudsman. The Student Ombudsman was appointed by the Student Senate.

Since it is probable that at least a few students do not have a clear conception of the responsibilities of the Ombudsman, I quote key provisions that define his "areas of responsibility." These are:

a) Equity — to help individuals in specific cases to get just and equitable treatment;

b) Critical review — to help administrative functionaries (whether connected with Student Government or with officers of the faculty or the administration) to improve their processes and procedures, not only to correct a particular inequity or injustice but also to prevent its recurrence;

c) Recommendation and report — that is, on the basis of inquiry and experience to recommend such changes in procedure and practice as may seem to him to be appropriate, and to make final public report of his activities.

The regulations further provide that "the office of Ombudsman is not intended to replace the normal channels of administrative procedure. It is an exceptional procedure, to be used only when the normal channels do not adequately respond."

In exercise of his responsibilities, the Ombudsman is authorized to hear in confidence, investigate, and attempt to resolve individual complaints; be receptive to criticisms regarding the general functioning of college processes, make appropriate inquiries and, in confidence, make recommendations to the officers concerned; and, from time to time, make such report "as he deems wise" directly to the President.

Speaking generally, the responsibilities outlined above are those of the Office of Ombudsman, as distinct from those belonging to the Student Ombudsman. I make this distinction only because I wish to emphasize that the Student Ombudsman is specifically designated to help to resolve student complaints. This is not to indicate that his authority is less but rather that his area of interest is limited to students.

I, Leroy Richie, am your Student Ombudsman for this semester. My office is located in Room 120, Finley Student Center. My office hours are posted in Room 152, Finley; Room 108 Sheppard Hall and on the door of my office in Finley. Messages may also be left at any time of the day in Finley Center, Rooms 152 or 119.

I believe that the Office of Ombudsman can help to make the University more responsive to the students and I hope that you will utilize this office whenever the need to do so arises.

Sincerely yours,
Leroy C. Richie

Spanish Required

April 12, 1969

Editor, Tech News

For your information, at its meeting on March 27, the Faculty of the School of Education voted to require a year of conversational Spanish of all elementary education majors, this to become effective with students entering in the fall of 1969.

As you may also know, the School of Education is introducing next fall a pilot program for the preparation of teachers. This program emphasizes four years of experience in urban schools, community agencies and working with children of the community, accompanied by seminars, this to replace more conventional courses in education. As part of the requirement of this program, all students must pursue work in conversational Spanish. They must also take a course from among the several now available in black and/or Puerto Rican history.

Sincerely yours,
Doyle M. Bortner, Dean,

Making It Clear

March 19, 1969

Editor, Tech News,

I was sorely aggrieved to see the editorial of TECH NEWS demanding to know where I stand with regard to the CUNY budget cuts.

I have attended the Student Advisory Committee conference that co-ordinated the trip to Albany. I have sanctioned the use of the Student Senate office for the CCNY protestors to use. I allowed Messrs Bermanzohn and Brown to co-ordinate the protest to Albany due to the fact that they had been working on it long before I was formally elected President.

Lastly, I should like to point out that I spoke with a member of your staff, Mr. Paul B. Simms, stating my opposition to the budget cuts. It's apparent from

Where It's At

By ZVI LOWENTHAL

The reporter entered the modern Administration Building, ascended the three flights of stairs and finally stopped before a lone secretary who sat at the reception desk reading a paperback and chewing Dentine loudly.

"Do you have an appointment?" she asked, not even looking up lest it should cause any tension in her neck.

"Yes. I'm supposed to have an interview with the President."

"Have a seat then," she replied, pointing to the empty chair across the room. After a few minutes of silence, she dialed an extension, whispered a few words and bade him enter the sanctum sanctorum.

Sitting behind a clean desk, the President was playing solitaire and evidently quite happy to have a visitor.

"Come in, come in," he said, extending his hand. "It really been a long time since I've had a visitor, you know. I'm sure glad you could make it."

The President walked over to his closet and pulled out a bottle of scotch. "Sit down," he said, "what can I mix for you?"

"Scotch and soda."

"The last time we met I was threatening to quit over those CUNY cuts. Do you remember? Ah, those were the days my friend. Front page in the Times, first editorial, even Newsweek!"

He now leaned back in his shiny black executive chair, dragging on one of those cigarettes you have to walk a mile to get, reflecting on the old days. "I can't understand it, though I was very discreet and tactful in not quitting even though there were some cuts," he mumbled. "How was I to know that it would develop into a trend?"

"Do you mean the trend by college students of quitting the Universities?" asked the reporter.

"Exactly what I mean." The President was evidently quite infuriated. "The nerve. What right have they in quitting school and leaving me without a student body?"

"Yes, but it also happened to three colleges in Boston and two in California..."

"But I didn't intend on quitting from the start. The publicity was just to wangle an agreement with Albany," he explained. "All I wanted to do was to inform the public of our monetary situation."

"What was the students' reason for quitting the College?"

"Because I didn't quit as I had promised. And then the faculty resigned because there was no one left to teach," he admitted.

"There was rumor of converting the College..."

"Converting the College! We'll see about that," he cried with that succinct and fiery vernacular that, in the old days, was used in warning of his quick retirement on WINS.

"They were thinking of converting it back into a college," explained the reporter.

"Do you think there is any chance of saving it?" he asked, with a tear creeping slowly out of his left eye.

"Not much. Construction is due to begin soon."

"Sixteen years. Sixteen years I spent building up the college, only threatening to resign six times, and never even getting a chance to do it," he confessed.

"What about those funds?"

"We have plenty of funds now. Two years' supply of board erasers, chalk, pencils, crayons, coloring books, in fact, everything a university needs, except students," the President lamented.

"Have you thought about trying to obtain another job at a different university?"

"Who will take me? Who will take a chance with me? I have failed and people know it. There is only one future for me. That is the reason I called you here today."

The President pulled out another cigarette, took another slug of scotch and began to smile. "I want full coverage front page story, editorial, like last time," he said.

"Fine."

"I am formerly announcing my resignation, better late than never, and declaring myself candidate for Mayor of New York."

Essentially Insignificant

Gestures seem to be the thing of the moment; after all, the Paris peace talks provide an excellent example. And the 23 faculty members who resigned their department chairmanships in protest of the proposed state budget cut have joined the crowd of posturers. President Gallagher's resignation (which, we note, is open-ended) is a significant development, and his departure would at least affect a change in the functioning of the College. The faculty members, however, are neither leaving, nor relinquishing their administrative powers; some, indeed, seemed to find the entire matter a question of group conformity.

As a vote of confidence in the President, the move is fitting, but as a "dramatic protest", it fails completely. Perhaps the faculty should reconsider its tactics and next time come up with something more meaningful. In any case, we are most interested in the action the chairmen will take when the budget is finally approved.

Blood Bank Gasping For Life

"Princess Aorta is dying. Won't someone donate a pint of blood to help her?" This plea was issued by the Blood Bank Council a week before Easter in anticipation of the Blood Bank registration drive this week. And all outside 103 Finley along the corridor posters document her progress. Aorta is fictitious; she does represent the real person who needs blood. However, the plea falls for the most part on deaf ears. In last term's drive, out of thousands of eligible blood donors, about three hundred people signed up to donate. And only 92 pints were actually collected. (The blood bank needs more than 250 pints a term to meet its demands.)

The Blood Bank exists for the use of all students and their immediate family, the faculty and their immediate family and recent alumni. There is no charge, and the blood need not be replaced, as hospitals require. But in most cases, the Blood Bank Council cannot give all the blood requested because of the low supply. To get blood, one must see Dr. Meisel and explain his situation. The Department of Student and Personnel Services will implement the transaction.

Mitchell Durant, a spokesman for the council, criticized the student press for contributing to the widespread student apathy. "They did not consider us newsworthy enough. And during our registration drives, many of the organizations we asked to man our booths didn't show up."

"We decided that for a final attempt, we would let the college community decide if there is a need for a blood bank. If less than a hundred pints are collected this term, we will know that the students have voted against us and will discontinue our service. The Red Cross has said in effect that if less than one hundred pints of blood were donated again, it would be a waste of their time to collect blood for us. And anyway, how can we operate efficiently on such a low supply?"

Persons over 18 wishing to donate no longer need a parent's consent. The actual collection will take place April 23 in Knittle Lounge, and April 24 in the Grand Ballroom.

er Education were collected by telephone. The statements do not contain any actual signatures. However, in the words of Prof. Elias, "We are men of honour."

One of the few chairmen whose name does not appear on the list is Prof. Anton Steinhäuser (Mechanical Engineering). Prof. Steinhäuser, who claims to support Dr. Gallagher's actions completely, said that the point had already been made clearly enough by the President, whose departure would be an actual loss to the school, while his resignation would only be a change of position. In as much as he does not believe that the College will be closed this fall, Prof.

Steinhäuser said that "No matter what happens to the freshmen the department still has to operate."

Prof. Nathan Birnbaum (Chemistry) explained that his name did not appear on the list because Prof. Volpe, who made most of the phone calls, was unable to reach him. When asked whether he would add his signature if he could have been reached, Prof. Birnbaum replied that he believed so, because "with so many good friends in it, it would have been difficult not to follow."

The third non-resigning chairman who could be reached for comment was Prof. Alois X. Schmidt (Chemical Engineering). Prof. Schmidt revealed that he had not been consulted on the matter until late Wednesday afternoon. At this point he was unable to conform to the decision of those chairmen who had decided to offer their resignation, because he was not willing to make a decision of such

NOTICE TO ALL ORGANIZATIONS

If you need financial assistance for any projects which will be held during the Fall 1969 term, follow this procedure:

1. Submit a TYPE-WRITTEN DETAILED DESCRIPTION of your activity and a COMPLETELY DETAILED budget for the activity and/or activities for which money is needed. List in order of importance those ACTIVITIES WHICH CANNOT BE HELD WITHOUT STUDENT SENATE ASSISTANCE. Include also the names and phone numbers of your President and Treasurer, the number of members you have, the amount of dues charged per term and the amount of money available in your treasury. Place the above information in the Student Senate Treasurer's mailbox (152 Finley) by Friday, April 25th at 3 P.M. Furthermore, kindly submit a copy of your organizational budget for Spring 1969 and/or your proposed budget for Fall 1969 with your request or be prepared to bring it to your interview.
2. The Student Senate Finance Committee will review the activities and will establish general guidelines by April 29th and interviews with the representatives (President and Treasurer only) of the organizations will take place from April 24th through the week of May 5th.
3. Money requested for publications will be handled by a special publications advisory board to the finance committee (the most recent copy of your publication and a budget and description of it must also be brought to them). All requests for community service projects will be handled by a special community affairs advisory board to the finance committee. Meetings of both these groups will be held after all requests are in.

REMEMBER — The deadline for submitting requests is Friday, April 25th at 3 P.M. ANY REQUEST RECEIVED AFTER THE DEADLINE WILL NOT receive consideration. If you want further information on the procedure, call me at TR 3-0587 on Saturday night, April 19th (9 P.M. - 12 A.M.), or from Monday, April 21st through Thursday, April 24th (9 - 11:30 P.M.). PLEASE DO NOT CALL FROM SUNDOWN FRIDAY UNTIL SUNDOWN SATURDAY.

Sincerely yours,
