

Player's Ethics Responsibility of His Coach

By Hank Stern

"It is the responsibility of the coach to see that players develop character," stated Supervisor of Coaches Nat Holman. The senior college athletic mentor told OP that athletics at the College build character, and imbue the spirit of fair play and good sportsmanship. He said that every man now coaching is eminently qualified to work with athletes, and there is no pressure from the office if a team was fielded. There he believes, no recruiting at City College and hoopster Billy Press had to leave school for financial reasons, because there are no 'soft jobs' available.

The Board of Higher Education committee investigating City College athletic policy and performance will make a thorough study of over-emphasis, President Wright's office averred.

In reply to a list of questions about evening session cram courses and employment of A. A. staffers in the Registrars Office, it was said that answers would have to await the Committee report, but the study will be comprehensive and revealing.

Professor Holman declined to answer some questions about material to be covered by the in-investigators, saying that he would have to speak to the committee first.

When asked if he felt that a coach is responsible for the lack of ethics of his players, Holman said that if a coach knew about a player's bad morals, and did not improve them or report the athlete to the Supervisor of Coaches, the coach was responsible. But, if the coach did not know about the player's poor morals, said Holman, he was at fault because it is his responsibility to know.

Prof. Frank S. Lloyd (Chmn., Hygiene) did not answer that question, claiming that it was unfair, loaded, and academic. He asked rhetorically if an economics teacher is responsible if a student cheats on a final exam.

Sandler Reinstated by Dean Turner; No 'Disloyalty' Notation on Record

By Andy Meisels

Marvin Sandler is to remain in Professor Berkson's class for the remainder of the term, it was announced by Dean Turner of the School of Education yesterday afternoon. Professor Berkson agreed to comply with the dean's request, but as of this writing, he has not yet been notified of the development.

Dean Egbert Turner

Berkson had asked Sandler, to leave his class after he had made statements which the professor considered un-American. Prof. Berkson also had said that he would see to it that Sandler never got a teaching position in a public school.

On Friday, the next day the class met, Dean Turner presided with Sandler attending. The dean asked for suggestions on the matter.

In a session which lasted almost two hours, the class seemed to agree that the best course of action would be to have Berkson and Sandler make "general apologies" to each other, admitting that neither had been fully right and that neither had been fully wrong. Sandler was willing to comply with this request. The professor, however, was not.

When asked if any notation of the affair would be made on Sandler's record Dean Turner said, "We don't put anything, whether pertaining to a physical or loyalty defect on a student's record on the basis of one letter. When many negative letters about a student are received by this department, we first investigate thoroughly and only when there is absolutely no doubt do we put a notation on a student's record."

Dean Turner feels that "the classroom is a place for free discussion of all matters pertaining to the course or of any matter brought up by the instructor."

As to whether the reinstatement of Sandler would clear the matter up, Dean Turner commented, "It all depends on the two parties. I've done all I can."

Basement Dormitories in AH To Be Abandoned Next Month

By Ed Lipton

In a letter to Mr. Edward Decker, Army Hall administrator, Dean of Administration Leslie W. Engler announced that the dormitory facilities in the basement of Army Hall must be vacated by January 15.

These rooms are used by those students who come under the category of 'special needs.' They must be abandoned because they "do not meet acceptable standards of health and supervision."

Dean Engler described many ways in which the rooms do not meet acceptable standards. He said that the rooms are very damp, and are not properly ventilated. In addition, the dormitories are too crowded and there is a lack of sufficient desk space. "The rooms are nothing that the College could be proud of," he concluded.

Eleven students are affected by this ruling. Ten of them are on athletic teams. The use of these facilities, at reduced rates, enables many of them to compete in varsity sports. As some of them live far from the College, it would take too much time for them to go home after practice. Sports stalwarts such as Joe Penabad, co-captain of this past season's championship soccer team, have used these rooms during their particular sport season, and then moved out.

Some of the men affected may have to quit their teams because of this decision to vacate the rooms. One student commented that he cannot move upstairs, and if he has to go home every night, after practice, he will be deprived of three hours of sleep daily.

Those students who so wish may transfer upstairs to a regular room but will have to pay the standard rates of four dollars a week and up, compared to the one dollar they now pay weekly.

No special rates are available for upstairs rooms because the "minimum cost for dormitory accommodations on the upper floors of Army Hall cannot be set lower than the present minimum for all students without increasing the deficit of Army Hall." Dean Engler's letter stated

Classmates Call Sandler Wrong For Impudence

Several students in Professor Berkson's Education 11 class have belatedly but definitely come out in support of their teacher's action in trying to bar Marvin Sandler from class. In an interview with OP yesterday, two of Mr. Sandler's fellow classmates declared that Professor Berkson's promise to record Sandler's attitude on his record was merely a result of his obligation under Education Department rules, and should not have been built up as a breach of academic freedom. The Education Department form, which is separate from the character record, obliges the teacher to indicate whether or not the student has shown a "proper attitude toward democratic ideals and the government of the United States." The only unusual aspect of this case, these students claim, is the teacher's announcement of his intended answer to the question. They also feel that it was merely a case of impudence on the part of a student, who should have left the class when asked. Sandler had no right to disobey orders, they further asserted, and he should have taken his protest directly to Dean Turner.

The two students revealed that just prior to the incident Professor Berkson expressed his willingness to discuss Sandler's views outside of class anytime with anyone, thus dispelling the illusion of the teacher's alleged background of encroachments upon academic freedom. In fact, the two stated, Professor Berkson's attitude toward free discussion is exemplary.

Friday's Referendum to Decide Merger; Both Sides of Controversy Summarized

The only referendum on the ballot this Friday will ask the student body to choose between one or two newspapers on campus. OP presents the highlighted views on both sides of the question below. OP's opinion will appear in tomorrow's issue. Editor.

For Merger

Perhaps the most positive arguments for merger can be gotten by a refutation of the arguments against it.

Two papers insure a variety of opinions.

The facts are:

- Two papers insure only the possibility of two opinions.
- With two papers there is an equal possibility, that one opinion will be doubly entrenched by being supported by both papers.
- A new paper could have the expression of all opinions guaranteed by its charter.
- At present the papers tend to stifle opposing opinions because of the existence of two papers.

Two papers allow more students to work on publications.

The facts are:

- The amount of work available is determined by the number of issues—not the number of papers. One paper will print three issues a week.
- There isn't enough news to publish three or four times.

The fact is:

- Those editors that make the above statement admit to their incompetence as editors. There's enough news for five times a week, two editions a day.

Positive arguments for merger are:

Merger will save money by:

- Cutting printing costs.
- Cutting engraving costs.
- Causing higher advertising rates.
- Insuring more advertising.

Merger will make for greater expression of opinions and ideas:

- The insurance of charter provision for minority opinion expression. Providing more space for those with ideas and talent.
- Allowing for special supplements like the type Campus published on academic freedom and OP's "War or Peace" of last year.
- Merger will insure greater coverage of news because of the greater need of news.

Against Merger

Since this is the time when we are all concerned with the approaching Student Council elections, let us briefly consider what would happen if there were only one newspaper at the College. It must be obvious that those candidates who are endorsed by the newspaper would run away with the election, no matter how much publicity they get otherwise.

To be very specific, there was an instance some years ago, before the founding of OP, when the Managing Editor of the Campus was assured election to a high Student Council office because his opponent's qualifications were completely ignored. Under the present system of two newspapers, this cannot happen, since each checks upon the other.

It is obvious that if only one newspaper were in operation, the student body would be presented with only one side of every important issue. The editorials would be written by the Managing Board, and these six or seven people would mould the opinions of thousands of students. Under the present system, both sides of every question are presented to the students.

It should be made clear at this point that any merged publication, be it an exact duplicate of the New York Times or not, would not be worth reading, if it were to come out four times weekly, as has been proposed. Items of little or no interest to the student body as a whole would have to be magnified and repeated, in order to fill up the pages. It is a fact that there is not enough news at this College to make a four-times-a-week newspaper worth while.

A merged newspaper, due to loss of advertising money, would come out approximately 40 times, as opposed to the total of 60 issues which now appear. In short, the students would get less for their money, both in value and quantity.

In times like these, it is vital that we preserve not only our academic freedom, but also our intellectual freedom. Diversity of thought is the cornerstone of Democracy. A merger is an invitation to intellectual dictatorship.

By Jay G. Samsky

It is a well established fact that dead men do not talk. Is it true that deceased and stuffed parrots never speak either? For many years people thought that they didn't but a recent discovery by Dramsoc has proven how ignorant we mortals are. This CCNY theatre group has found a stuffed parrot that speaks! The group has not disclosed how it came across this taxidermal phenomenon, but it lost no time in signing Melvin (that is the queer bird's name) up for a two night stand at the Pauline Edwards Theatre. (No, Melvin is not giving a one-bird show; it just so happens that Dramsoc can use a parrot in its forthcoming production). Melvin is thrilled with the idea of becoming an actor and it pleases him to know that he can be of service to the group. Now people will not call him a stuffed-for-nothing bird.

Melvin will be seen in Dramsoc's production of Moss Hart's comedy "Light Up The Sky." This play was presented on Broadway in November 1948 and it is a satire on the theatre of today and the people connected with it. All the action (and there's plenty of it) takes place in a very lavish hotel suite. The characters, including Melvin, are sarcastic, witty, and unpredictable. If you know the theatre really well, you will be able to tell which theatrical personalities Mr. Hart's creations portray. The principal roles will be played by veteran Dramsoc performers Sonya Kokotoff, Naomi Rey, Roslyn Yager, Ted Rifkin and Seymour Schmutter. Ivan Lyons-Pleskow, a very recent addition to the Dramsoc roster, will be making his City stage debut. Ronnie Ershowsky, a student, is the director of the production. All the sets have been designed and constructed by the club members themselves.

The play will be presented on December 14 and 15 at the Pauline Edwards Theatre. Tickets are on sale in the Cafeteria and they cost $1.00 and $1.20. You won't want to miss seeing Dramsoc "Light Up The Sky."

Professor of Philosophy Iran Expresses Views on Mankind

By Sim Katin

I asked vaguely about the situation of Mankind today.

"Like all periods of change (the present one) has brought with it resulting psychological uncertainty. We have no values to lean on. Like all things values are in a flux."

(Kaikhosrov Irani! I had asked for the professor's full name and he obligingly spelled it out.)

"Victorian virtues no longer exist. No more is man trusting in science and technological development to build and construct for the general betterment, though he knows not why."

(Born in Bombay, the Professor studied there and then went to Vienna and later to England where he came under the influence of Sir Arthur Eddington. Afterwards he returned to Bombay to finish his education and became a lecturer in Physical Chemistry at the University of Bombay.)

"Some men question what they are doing. This leads to enlightenment, but not before the price of uncertainty has been paid."

(In India, Professor Irani published a book on Physics and on the side, received a law degree. He did not, however, practice law. Instead he started work in theoretical physics which brought him to America.)

"No one evaluates; it cannot be done in a world of today. Men accept the conceptions of their group."

(In America the Professor has done research in several universities, most recently at Columbia. Here was developed also his interest in the Philosophy of Science which he had begun to study while in Vienna.)

"Man does not know the answer to the question, 'What am I living for?' There is no ultimate goal that can be known with certainty. Yet that is no reason for inaction. This is most paradoxical."

"I would just as soon not have been born. Yet I have certain commitments which keep me from the loneliness that would arise from the realization that ultimately there may be nothing."

(Professor Irani has no definite plans for the future.)

I questioned further.

Prof. K. Irani

"Are you married, Professor?"

"No."

"I am a Parsi."

"I beg your pardon?"

"In about the seventh century the Zoroastrians of Persia (Iran) emigrated (after the Arab invasions) to India where they settled in two communities. I am of one of these."

I continued to question on religion.

"Religion is the ultimate set of beliefs by which one makes a reconciliation with the world around him. Religion should not dictate; its domain is not that of fact but of ideals."

I was almost satisfied, but continued: "Why do you wear a beard, Professor?"

He answered: "I am hemophilic."

My dissatisfaction with this reply prompted me to recall his words on religion and reason: "It is not given to us to rest in absolute certainty; once having questioned, we cannot return."

OP SPORTS

By Bob Salgado

"In sports you have to take the good with the bad," said Nat Holman after his Beaver hoopsters had lost to St. Joseph's, 86-45.

The students have to take the good with the bad also. It's great fun to cheer for a great team, but it's heartbreaking to see your team swamped by a powerful foe. Nonetheless if the famous City College student spirit, as demonstrated in Madison Square Garden, is authentic, now is the time to show it.

Up to now the students have let the team down. Proof of this is that advance sale of basketball tickets has been abandoned because of insufficient sales.

The team is not obligated to the student body as some students seem to think, but rather the students are obligated to support the team. It is our team; every defeat reflects on all of us, not just on the team.

We enjoyed their victories, now we must share in their defeats, if they come. The surprising thing is that the team is not losing all its games. The boys are trying, and the students should appreciate their efforts and support them.

The team lacks varsity experience and their opponents are loaded with hoop veterans. However, what they lack in experience they make up in spirit. This will not make them a nationally ranked team, but it will produce a lot of upsets.

Things aren't as bad as they may look at first glance. The Beavers are still one of the fastest teams around. Their problem at the moment is control of the boards and the lack of a good pivot man. Dick Watson, 6-7 has improved amazingly since last season, but he still has a way to go before he can be effective. The only other tall man on the team is Marty Gurkin, 6-4, who has been hampered by a bad ankle for the last two games. This has not stopped him from playing, and it is another example of the spirit displayed by the team.

Jerry Domerschick, one of the stars of last year's frosh quintet, has been the outstanding player this year. In the Rutgers game he was high scorer with 20 points.

Bobby Logan, with his tremendous driving layups has not been far behind Domerschick. The other members of the team have had their good days. Dick Watson was high scorer against Roanoke with 18 points. Jerry Gold, Marty Gurkin and Bob Baker played hard and fast to beat a favored Rutgers five.

The longer this team plays together the better they will become. The starting five has changed so much that they have not had a chance to develop as a team. Barring further loss of players, the team should be able to develop into a good ball club.

A bright ray of hope that penetrates the gloom, is that the team, as it stands, is made up of sophomores and freshmen. Next year we should have an experienced well integrated team, that will put us back on the basketball map.

But let us not wait for the future. We must act now. This year's team still has the greater part of its schedule to play and it has a good chance of winning most of its games. If we want a basketball team, we must support this team, not the ones to come. The gym is not very big. There is no reason why we shouldn't be able to fill it for every home game.

Aside from raising the morale of the basketball team, we must also raise sufficient money to continue varsity sports. When the students pay for tickets to home basketball games, they are helping pay for all varsity sports at the College. If we don't go to the games, we won't have any games to go to next year.

The ECAC will reconsider the application of the ruling on college athletes playing summer basketball. This may well result in the revocation of the ban on Shelley Thomas, Larry Meyers and Howie Levinton. This would add three players to our badly depleted hoopsters.

Swimmers Sink B'klyn Poly 53-31; Cop Eight Events in Season Opener

By Steve Marburg

The CCNY swimming team opened its season last Saturday with a big splash by beating Brooklyn Polytechnical Institute, 53-31. The mermen were overpowering. They took first place in every event except diving and the 400 yard relay.

The only close contest was for second place in the 220 yard freestyle event. Stan Worchel just beat out the Technicians' Keating to take second. In the 200 yard breaststroke race, City's Bob Kellogg was nipped at the finish by Poly's Alaimo to give them second place. The Beavers won the 300 yard medley by more than a length of the pool and Freddie Vicedomini, Charlie Schlichterlein, Jay Glat, Normie Klein, Vic Fulladonna and Howie "Cosmo" Schloemer all won handily in their respective races. Cosmo Schloemer, the sole Lavender representative in the 440 yard freestyle won by more than 75 yards. Tony Sousa swam two excellent races, the grueling individual medley in which he took first, and the 200 yard backstroke event where he took second behind Co-captain Normie Klein, the Met backstroke champ.

Brooklyn Poly dominated the diving although Bernie Lloyd, also of the wrestling team, just missed second place. He was beaten by two able divers, McTernam and Skaar.

Millions of smokers have reached the same conclusion — there's just one test that really proves cigarette flavor and mildness!

It's the sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke — on a pack-after-pack, day-after-day basis. No snap judgments! Once you've enjoyed Camels for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why . . .

St. Joseph's Downs City, 66-45; Initial Defeat for Lavender Quintet

By Joe Marcus

The Beaver Hoopsters suffered their initial defeat of the season at the hands of St. Joseph's 66-45, last Saturday at Philadelphia.

The Philadelphians were sparked by the fine play of James Desmond, John Hughes, and John Doogan. Dick Watson sat out most of the fourth quarter because of four personal fouls. Jerry Domershick and Bobby Logan were forced to play almost the entire game because of the lack of sufficient bench strength.

The Beavers trailed from start to finish in a contest in which they displayed an inept passing attack. The Hawks of St. Joseph's pulled away to a six point lead in the first four minutes of play. The Beavers were unable to score a field goal until eight and one half minutes had elapsed. Jerry Gold becoming the first Beaver to score from the floor as he sunk a driving layup. The first period ended with the Beavers on the short end of a 21-11 score.

The Hawks increased their lead to seventeen points at the end of the first half. Desmond led the Maroon to their lead with his fine set-shooting and floorwork. The score was 34-17 as the squads retired to their dressing rooms at intermission.

John Hughes opened the second half with three consecutive set shots to give the Hawks a 44-17 lead. The Beavers were unable to answer back until the four minute mark of the third period. Their outside shooting was futile and they were unable to crack the fine Maroon defense. The Hawks left the court at the end of the third quarter with a 52-30 lead.

The Lavender rallied in the final stanza, after the Maroon had compiled an impressive 66-37 lead. In their scoring spree the Maroon were paced by John Doogan's eight points. Sy Cohen led desperately to make the game respectable with five points in the final three seconds of play. With only five seconds remaining in the game the Beavers scored their final two points when Jerry Gold, lying on the court passed to Bobby Logan who sank a lay up which ended the scoring.

Ticket Change

The advance ticket sale for City home games has been discontinued because of poor student response. Tickets for future home games will be sold at the gate the night of the game. A.A. cards will be honored at the gate. The two for one ticket policy (the purchase of two tickets on one AA Card) will be continued. This policy on ticket sales holds for all home games with the exception of the University of Puerto Rico contest New Year's Eve.

Beavers Beat Lion Riflers

Paced by the shooting of Al Moss and Henry Brochhagen, the City College Rifle team defeated Columbia University last Friday 1307-1331, for their third consecutive victory of the season. The defeat was the first one incurred by the Lions this year.

Individual honors went to Al Moss of the Lavender, who shot an excellent score of 285. Joseph Russo of Columbia and Henry Brochhagen of the Beavers tied for second position with scores of 280. Billy Betker of the Lavender and Harry Mohler of the Lions finished in a dead heat for fourth position with good scores of 278 each.
