Clancy Victorious; S.C. Changes Day; Pogo Shy 1 Vote

In an overwhelming, record-breaking victory, Joseph I. Clancy, Jr. polled an unparalleled 2034 votes in last Friday's elections for the Student Council Presidency and won a tremendous popular endorsement as • well.

Clancy's only opponent on the ballot, Liste Greenidge, received 648 votes, while the name of Dave Silver was written-in 348 times.

In a morning-after statement to Observation Post. Clancy called on all elements of the College Community to aid him in solving College problems. Pogo Politics

Walt Kelly's comic strip possum. Pogo, entered CCNY politics unannounced last Friday. A candidate for the swamp's presidency in the New York Post, Pogo was nosed out by one vote in the City College race for MSA delegate. The final count was Pogo 266. Hamilton 267.

It was a tragic defeat for enisml lovers and several stray dogs on campus have demanded a recount.

In the important cortest for President of the Senior Class. five-term incumbent Walter Urban made it No. 6 by collecting 349 votes to 289 for Bernie Londin and 232 for Louis Kavanau. Other new class presidents include Fred Queller who defeated: Bernie Rothman in '54; Gerry Smetana, who beat out three ther candidates in 1955; and Art Pittman, the new president if the freshman class.

Three new NSA alternates were hosen: Hank Stern, Gerry Kramer, and Ray Hamilton, the later a write-in.

In a referendum on the Council meeting day, 1845 student voters thought Council should meet Wednesdays at 4 P M.; the change will go into effect starting next Suptember.

Jolson Meant City College Alone, Says Frankenthaler

All of the money in the Al Jolson will, left to The College of the City of New York, is to be used for the benefit of The City College exclusively, and is not to be shared with the other municipal colleges. This decision was made by Manhattan Surrogate George Frankenthaler, culminating five months of legal dispute between

He felt that all the evidence points to City College as the "particular beneficiary intended by Jolson."

> , The fund, which is to be used for needy students and will probably be distributed through the office of the Central Treasuerer, amounts to about a fourth of a million dollars. President Wright has indicated that the money will not be forthcoming soon, since Jolson's family must be taken care of first.

Looking Back

There is nothing better for a Democracy than disagreement on important issues. It can lead only to a more constructive, more enlightened understanding of our problems. In the past, this newspaper has disagreed violently with President Wright on many issues vital to the student body. We have called each other some rather unpleasant names down through the years, when occasionally we both lost our heads over some red-hot argument.

Yet, in looking back, we can not bear any ill will towards our retiring president. Whatever disagreements we have had have been honest differences of opinion. The president never once forgot the most important element in any of our problems—the students. Whatever decisions President Wright ever made, were made with the interests of the entire College community at heart.

Under President Wright's capable leadership and boundless energy, the Departments of Student Life and Testing and Guidance were created, in line with his policy of keeping the welfare of the students uppermost. Many students found their ways into various professions through these services. Others had a much more enjoyable time at the College than they would have, had these two departments not been in existence. Still others had numerous problems of curriculum, financial embarrassment, and general college life solved for them by these departments, both of which are now in smooth running order, excellently administered.

Now that he is about to retire, the Observation Post, which has disagreed with him so violently on many occasions in the past, feels that it has the obligation to thank President Wright for his long and constructive service to the school. As an administrator, he has been efficient; as an educator, progressive; as a friend, loyal. We sincerely hope that his successor, whoever he may be, is able to fill the vacuum.

Goodman is Dead

Language is a poor medium with which to express OP's reaction to the death of Professor Theodore Goodman. Professor Goodman once said that there are many experinces which we do not get by means of language. We guess e included strong emotions as among these experiences.

Those students who had Professor Goodman are very fortunate. Their lives will never be the same for having known him, his effect was so great. To his students he was just a professor, he was the professor. He was dynamic, la fascinating; he gave college a newer, more significant senior Class activities will be initiated with the formation of committees. The reactions of his students, former students, and not just a professor, he was the professor. He was dynamic, vital, fascinating; he gave college a newer, more significant meaning.

colleagues when they received word of his death is testimony of the tremendous effect he had upon all who knew him; at first, disbelief that The Little Cloud had left and then sorrow, deep sorrow and some tears. Those instructors who wondered why their students seemed depressed Friday, now know the reason.

Professor Johnson's fine speech at Sunday's funeral sounded a most important keynote. He drew an analogy between the professor's death and the end of a book: the end of a book is really the beginning. We must therefore look to the future. Thousands have been affected by Professor Goodman: many more will take the courses in narrative writing which were taught for so long by "Teddy" Goodman. We hope that these future students will also gain immensely from taking the courses he made popular. The instructor who follows him will have a difficult task. We hope this instructor will teach the courses with as much vigor, enthusiasm, and devotion as did Professor Goodman, whose memory is immortalized in the hearts of those who loved him.

Dr. Goodman had a great folwing among his present and semer pupils. The expression He opend new vistas for his tudents" has become almost a liche for describing him.

There is today in the History Department a Dr. Jacob Twermy who was a student of Prof. Goodman's. Dr. Twersky was idso the State AAU Wrestling Champion in 1942 although he : blind.

When Twersky was in his lass, Dr. Goodman would often go with him to Central Park. Together they would sit on a bench near the briddle path. When riders approached, Goodman would shut his eyes and the two, now equal, would try to guess the number of horses. Often there would be others near them quite real to all who knew him on the bench. From the sound they made Twersky would describe them. One fellow was est. ing a banana and Prof. Goodman urged Twersky to describe the banana by smell.

Dr. Goodman truly had the gift to help others in working to their utmost capacity. His "intangible something" aided all the students in better understanding the subject matter as well as the world around them.

It is rare that such a combination of humanity and brilliance is effected. No man was better qualified to teach his subject. As Dr. Edgar Johnson, chairman of the English Department, put it: "Many times in the course of a faculty luncheon there would arise a discussion of some book that we all had read. It wasn't unusual for Teddy to make teal or even twelve illuminating points about the book that non of us had realized in our real. ing."

The "something" he had may have been intangible in description, but it seems to have been

Convent Avenue Dear Editor:

In order to close off Convent Avenue to traffic, SC led a demonstration featuring a human chain across the street. The students protesting seemed to feel particularly strong about Marion Weinberg's death and about preventing such incidents in the future. As co-chairmen of Camp Marion, we would be the last persons to disagree with this worthy thought. But we would like to point out a few facts and practical suggestions.

Marion Weinberg was hit by a bus because she ran into its path while she was still looking toward the sidewalk and talking to someone there. Granted, it would no traffic on Convent Ave., and upon crossing. But let's be realistic. There is traffic and we do have to watch ourselves.

If SC is interested in preventobviously ineffectual projects as a human chain on Convent Ave.? Why not conduct a campaign to educate the students to be more careful? This is potentially a large and important undertaking which could prove fruitful. Here. SC would be doing a practical service to the student body, not
