

SC-Times Trial Ends

Jury Split in Suit; New Trial Feb. 8

By HANK STERN

The Student Council-New York Times libel suit ended last week in a hung jury, and a new trial has been set for February 8.

After deliberating for five hours, the jury reported to Justice Denis O'Leary Cohalan in New York State Supreme Court that it was "hopelessly divided" and unable to arrive at a verdict.

A hung jury in a civil suit results when the decision is 9-3 or closer. A 10-2, 11-1 or unanimous jury verdict results in a definite decision.

The plaintiffs, who were officers of the Student Council at the time of the 1949 student strike, expressed pleasure at the result of the trial, and confidence in victory in February. William Fortunato, Spring 1949 SC President, indicated he would appeal to this semester's Council to grant funds for legal expenses to continue the suit.

The suit asked $100,000 in damages which Mr. Fortunato says will be donated to the Student Union if the jury finds that The Times' statements calling the strike "Communist-led" were libel.

At its meeting tonight, SC will discuss the suit, and consider whether to take further action.

The trial began last Tuesday and lasted three days. Defense attorney Conrad Lynn told OP he was surprised at the suddenness with which the case was brought to trial after a four-year delay.

BHE Trial Continues

Outraged at Letter By Sand-Holman

By SELWYN RAAB

Suspended basketball coach Nat Holman, testifying before the Board of Higher Education's trial committee last Monday, asserted that he favored the immediate dismissal of former assistant basketball coach Harold (Bobby) Sand as soon as he learned of Sand's proposal to split the proceeds of a South American tour with members of the team, which was contained in a letter by Sand to Ed Warner, former CCNY basketball star.

Holman declared that in August, 1950, Dr. Samuel Winograd, then the Faculty Manager of Athletics, informed him of the contents of the letter. "I was terribly upset and furious," said Holman. He testified that upon learning of the letter he felt that he had to fire him and that "this boy has got to go."

However, Holman later said that he had no authority to discharge any one and that all he could do was to recommend Sand's dismissal to Frank Lloyd, then head of the Hygiene department.

He also disclosed that Winograd advised him not to reveal the letter to the school authorities because of Sand's "loyalty" to the school. Winograd also informed him that this was "Sand's first mistake" and to remember his present economic difficulties.

Holman informed the three man trial committee that he contacted Sand immediately after learning of the letter and asked his assurance that the team wouldn't receive money for the trip. Sand completely denied the letter, Holman said.

Open Fifth Annual Film Competition

The Institute of Film Techniques has announced that competition for the Fifth Annual City College Robert J. Flaherty Film Award has been opened.

The award, given in memory of the pioneer documentary film maker, who produced such pictures as "Nanook of the North" and "The Louisiana Story," is presented for outstanding creative achievement in the production of documentary films.

This year's panel of judges includes Mrs. Frances Flaherty; Richard Griffith, curator of the Museum of Modern Art's Film Library; Arthur Knight, film critic for the Saturday Review; Bosley Crowther, critic for the New York Times; Archer Winsten, New York Post critic; author Lewis Jacobs; Dr. Alice Kelther, Professor of Education at NYU; and Amos Vogel, director of Cinema 16.

The object of the awards is to give film students and the general public an official rating on the best documentary films of the year.

CCNY is the only college in the country offering a degree in Documentary Film Techniques.

Postnotes . . .

The Club Senate will meet Friday, November 6 at 3 PM in Room 306 Main. The meeting was called by the Senate's Steering Committee to consider election of four alternates to Student Council, and suggestions for co-ordinating club activities.

Final date for applications to the activities fair has been extended to Thursday, November 5. Interested organizations must contact Chi Lambda, Box 37, Room 20 Main.

College Seeks One-Way Rule For Terrace

A plan to make St. Nicholas Terrace a one-way street to facilitate diagonal parking is being formulated by the City College Department of Planning and Design for submittal to the New York City Traffic Department. The proposal, if adopted, would double present parking facilities.

In order to determine the normal flow of traffic through St. Nicholas Terrace, representatives of Alpha Phi Omega, the College's service fraternity, will be stationed today at three strategic points: 10th Street and Convent Avenue; 15th Street and Convent Avenue; and 130th Street and St. Nicholas Terrace. From 8 AM to 7 PM the representatives, two at each station, will count the number of cars driving directly through the street.

Their report will go to the Department of Planning and Design, which is headed by Professor Albert d'Andrea (Art). The Department is now gathering facts to indicate that there is only negligible use of St. Nicholas Terrace as an artery of through traffic.

New Plan In Use

A system of alternate side-of-street parking, which forbids parking from 11 AM to 2 PM on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, or alternate on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, is in use on St. Nicholas Terrace and on 138th Street to make possible mechanical widening of these streets.

Sigma Pi Alpha, a social-service fraternity, has meanwhile voted to demand the complete closing of St. Nicholas Terrace and use of the area as a campus and for tennis courts for City College students.

They point out that the great majority of City students do not come to school and will press for Student Council action on their proposal.

Student Union Ball Date Nears; Tickets on Sale

"The Student Union Ball is a function that should be attended by everyone who has an interest in extra-curricular activities," said Seena Levy, co-chairman of the Ball Committee along with Jerry Shatz, yesterday.

The event which will be held in the Great Hall at 8 PM on the night of November 21 is being co-sponsored by OP, Student Council House Plan, and the Inter-Fraternity Council. The latter group is the most recent to join the list of sponsors.

Profits from the sale of tickets will go to the Student Union Building Fund. The price will be three dollars per couple, and will include champagne and refreshments and dancing to the music of Leo Dryer's band.

Tickets are on sale in 120 and 20 Main, and at House Plan.

A Reality

The first student function to be held in the Student Union Building at Manhattanville will be the annual December 5 Carnival, sponsored by House Plan, Dave Newton, HP Director has revealed.

The Student Union Ballroom can accommodate over 4,000 people as compared to the Great Hall's 2,000. Tickets will go on sale this Monday.

As a preliminary to Carnival, the five finalists for the Carnival Queen Contest will be chosen at this year's Carnival Queen Dance to be held this Saturday night in the Drill Hall. The finalists will be selected from 56 entrants by the judges who are Mrs. Buell G. Gallagher, Mrs. Dave Newton, Mr. James Gregor, Director of the Baruch School House Plan, Dean James S. Peace (Student Life), Dr. Alton Lewis, head of the Student Union Building, and Mrs. Jerry Gold, wife of the assistant-director of House Plan.

Discuss Liberal Arts' Value On 'Panorama' Video Series

The question of whether there is value in a liberal arts education was discussed last Saturday on the Dumont Television Network by Marvin Stevens '54, former SC Secretary, and Professor Oscar Zeichner (History), Samuel Middlebrook (English) and Mark Zemansky (Physics).

At the start of the half-hour show, Mr. Stevens was shown a physics demonstration by Prof. Zemansky. The 21-year-old senior, who is majoring in social work, protested that he did not see the value of studying science in college if it did not help him prepare for his career.

Dr. Zeichner then introduced Mr. Stevens to Professors Zeichner and Middlebrook. They maintained that the study of liberal arts and science is essential in the development of the whole person. Professor Zeichner pointed out that many of the concepts that Stevens applied in social work are derived from theories on the nature and rights of man.

The Right to Exist

The Marxist Discussion Club, an undergraduate organization devoted to the study of the doctrines of Karl Marx and their application, is in danger of going out of existence. This is because that group has, as yet, been unable to find a member of the College faculty to serve as an advisor.

The club has written letters to over sixty instructors, asking them to serve as faculty advisor. Only a few answers have been received, and all of these are in the negative.

OP wonders whether the refusal of so many faculty members to serve is due to a "climate of fear" or just faculty indifference to student organizations. Whatever the reason, the club should be allowed to exist, whether or not a faculty advisor can be found.

This unfortunate situation indicates the need for a review of the entire problem of the required faculty advisor. OP, by the way, has been helped immeasurably by its advisors, both Professors Purcell and Yohannan having been staunch supporters and loyal friends of the paper for many years. But many groups at the College are not so fortunate, especially if their views are unpopular.

The necessity for having a faculty advisor has never been made clear, nor has his role ever been accurately and precisely defined. The existing rule must be modified to permit clubs to exist at the College with or without a faculty advisor.

Mechanical Brain Helps Philosophy 12 Students

Anything that makes thinking easier is a delight to students. A machine that solves problems mechanically makes thinking easier.

Hence, a machine that solves problems mechanically is a delight to students.

A student at the College has constructed just such a "delight," an electrically-operated device which tests the validity of syllogisms, logical arguments like the one cited above.

Bernard Jungerwirth, he twenty-four year old designer of the machine calls it a "syllometer," and it is being demonstrated this term to students enrolled in Philosophy 12 by Professor Daniel J. Bronstein. With the aid of the machine, Prof. Bronstein hopes to show that proving the validity of a syllogism, a type of argument known even to the ancient Greeks, is a purely formal matter.

Jungerwirth who is majoring in physics and electrical engineering built the syllometer at a cost of $87.25 for the wiring, relay switches and two standard dry cell batteries. A student in Prof. Bronstein's Philosophy 12 class at the time, he realized that syllogisms could be solved by mechanical means and built the machine to do his homework for him.

To work the syllometer, the student submits the two premises and the conclusion of his syllogism to it. A green light indicates that the syllogism is valid while a red light indicates an illogical conclusion. If the syllogism is invalid, a red light is also lit next to a list of possible fallacies in the argument.

To test the machine, one student in Prof. Bronstein's class offered it the following syllogism.

Some instructors are strict.

All strict people are disliked

by students.

Hence, all instructors are disliked

by students.

Both Professor Bronstein and the syllometer agreed that this syllogism was invalid, since a uni-chairman of the committee why he didn't reveal the information to former President Wright, Holman replied that he "didn't want to go over Lloyd's authority," and that "disciplinary action was handled by the chairman of the department."

Both Holman and San dare accused by The Board of Higher Education with "conduct unbecoming a teacher" and "neglect of duty."

The accusations arose out of the 1950 "dumping" scandal in which the college's famous "Grand Slam" team was involved. Several of the team's players admitted taking bribes to "shave" points and some were later sentenced to prison terms.

When the trial began late last May Dr. Frank Lloyd, former Chairman of the Hygiene Department, who also had similar charges preferred against him, resigned his position at the college. The prosecution then recommended that the charges against him be dropped.

Amateur Radio Club Speaks To Sundry States for Free

It won't be much longer before Dick Tracy's wristwatch radios start appearing on the campus, if the Amateur Radio Society's latest advance is any indication. It is now possible to speak cross-country over the radio by telephone from the College.

For those who are lacking in sufficient energy to make the ascent to the Bell Tower of the Main Building to check the facts personally, but are nevertheless amply endowed with doubt—we refer you all to Buell Gallagher, who will bear testimony as to these truths.

New Service

Dr. Gallagher is only one of the members of the faculty and student body who have already made use of this new and more personal service. Previously, all messages were transmitted from operator to operator, but now direct etheral conversations can be arranged, as Pres. Gallagher discovered when he sent a message to his daughter.

The Bell Tower transmitter, which is known as station W2HJ, is one of the most powerful in the country and sends messages daily to all parts of the nation, including colleges from Maine to California. The CCNY Amateur Radio Society operates this transmitter free of charge to City students and faculty members.

The forty-five society, members of station W2HJ, are all licensed by the Federal Communications Commission. Every Thursday in Room 16M, the society conducts classes for students interested in taking the license exam.

In existence since 1916, the society now operates as a regular service of the Department of Student Life. Messages can be sent by filing forms in Room 120M.

"We welcome anyone in the school to use our services," said a society spokesman. "Come up and see us . . . anytime." —Yudonin.

Accidents Most Common In Gym, Chem Classes

Feel a head-ache coming on? Pain from gastric acidity spoiling your day? Tooth-ache? Ear-ache? Why don't you get up right now and go down to... the Hygiene Building. Ask for Dr. Oswald La Rotunda, chief College Physician, whose job it is to set all physical foibles right.

According to Dr. La Rotunda, the most serious injury ever treated at the College occurred in 1951. Marion Weinberg, a CCNY co-ed, was struck by a bus on Convent Ave., and taken into the Hygiene Building for emergency treatment. She was given all the aid possible and sent to a hospital. There she died of a fractured skull.

Injuries Handled

Fortunately, most mishaps which occur at the College are not nearly as serious as that, and can be handled without difficulty by Dr. La Rotunda and his staff of six physicians and two dentists.

The records show that in the course of one year, 8,653 injuries were treated by the Medical Dept. The most common injuries are simple scrapes and abrasions, which are incurred primarily in the gym classes. These injuries are followed in frequency by burns occurring in the Chemistry labs. Leaky acid bottles and hot bursting test tubes are usually the culprits.

Dr. La Rotunda, who has been at the College since 1917, claims it is a rarity to find a student faking an injury in order to miss a class.

Doctor's Comment

When asked to comment on the general health of the CCNY students, Dr. La Rotunda said: "The general health of the student has improved materially in recent years. This can be attributed to better nutrition, better home conditions, and the awareness of better hygienic habits."

Sigma Alpha Inducts 25

Sigma Alpha, the Junior Honor-Service Society, inducted twenty-five new members at its dinner on Friday evening. The ceremony and reception were held in the Faculty Dining Room in the College's Main Building.

Mr. I. Branman (Speech) was inducted as a faculty member of the Society. Professor Kurt Lowe (Geology) and Alton Lewis, Philip Brunstetter and Cynthia Benzing, all of the Student Life department, were guests at the dinner. Professor Joseph Taffet (Economics) served as master-of-ceremonies.

Martin Blank, Chairman of the Interviewing Committee, pointed out that the twenty-five students inducted were selected from a group of over one hundred and fifty who qualified academically.

The New Members

Sports Star

Tom O'Brien, twenty-year-old Engineering senior, is the captain of this year's City College Cross-Country. Tom has shown a great deal of improvement since the beginning of the year and Coach Bruce expects him to spark the Beavers to a victory this Saturday over Queens and Farleigh Dickinson. Tom competes in the outdoor season.

versal conclusion had been made on a particular premise.

Jungerwirth was born in Poland and came to this country five years ago.

Interested in the field of switching circuits used in computing machines, he expects to work in electronics upon his graduation in June.

Asked if he had resented having the syllogism do Jungerwirth's homework for him, Professor Bronstein commented, "If he knows enough about syllogisms to build that thing, he knows enough for Philosophy 12."

Rams Swamp Bruceman; Pavlides Averts Shutout

By STEVE MARBURG

It was Paul Pavlides' stellar performance that prevented the City College Cross-country team from suffering an even more ignominious defeat than the 17-44 thrashing they incurred at the hands of the Fordham harriers last Saturday at Van Courtland Park.

Beaver Rifflers Meet Jaspers

By BERND LORGE

The City College Rifle Team will open a fifteen game schedule against Manhattan College Saturday. According to Sergeant Richard Hoffman, the team's coach, the Beavers are expected to win, judging by Manhattan's poor showing last year.

The four top men are Al Moss, the team's high scorer, Bob Simon, Hank Brochhagen and John Miller. They have been practicing since the beginning of October, and hope to be at the peak of condition for their December meet with St. John's, last year's Metropolitan League Champions.

"Last year the team finished fifth in a field of sixteen in the Met League, a record which the team will better this season," commented Coach Hoffman, who took over the squad in mid-season from Sgt. Funstuck.

In a practice meet with St. Francis of Xavier High School, one of the best teams of its class in the country, the Lavender nimrods won by five points.

Many members of Xavier's Rifle Team will eventually enter into the ranks of St. John's varsity team.

Pavlides paced over the five mile course in 28:45 minutes to give him fifth place in the running. He was followed by another Beaver, Gene Forsythe, who finished sixth in 28:52. This averted the shutout the Rams would have had if they had finished 1-2-3-4-5. The Rams, without their ace hillanddlers, Terence Foley and Bill Persichetti, were led by John Eufemio, Frank Tarsney, Val Simons, and Walt Kochoer who were the first four men respectively.

Coach Harold Anson Bruce said he was pleased with Pavlides showing especially since Paul had been sick with tonsillitis all last week.

Booters Trim Pratt, 7-0 Meet Strong Aggies Sat.

By JOE MARCUS

The City College Soccer express continued to roll on to the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Championship by overpowering Pratt Institute, 7-0, last Saturday. The Beaver Soccermen will face the Long Island Aggies this Saturday in a game that could decide the title. At the present time the Lavender Booters are tied for first place with Brooklyn College and the Long Island Aggies.

By GEORGE WOLFE

The team performed very well against Pratt. This is the first time that the attack has worked together so well since the beginning of the season. I believe that this Saturday's game against the Long Island Aggies will be a great one. The Aggies have one of their best teams in recent years. Our defense stopped several Pratt scoring drives, and I hope that they will be able to stop the star-studded Long

Score Mounts
The Beavers had an easy time against the Yellowjackets of Pratt, scoring three goals in the initial stanza and two markers in the second and third quarters. With 14:29 gone by in the opening period Tommy Holm scored on a hard shot that landed in the upper right-hand corner. Eikstrem, who set Holm up for the first score, came back ninety seconds later to tally the second Beaver goal on a pass from Holm. The ball slipped through the hands of Pratt goalie Stan Sludikoff and with three minutes remaining in the quarter Ed

Trunk tallied on a beautiful head shot.
The Beavers completely dominated the play in the second stanza. Eikstrem took a pass from Andy Kessenides and beat Sludikoff in the nets with only one minute gone by. Anyaegbunam closed out the City scoring in the first half at the 13:15 mark, when his shot bounded through the hands of Sludikoff.
Morris Hockerman took a pass from Holm to score the sixth Beaver goal with four minutes gone in the third period. One minute later Mario Ferrari tallied the seventh marker. This goal tied the previous Lavender high of Met League play. The Beavers defeated Queens College, 7-0, in 1951.
