Athletic Fund Reduced 10% For Administrative Charges
By HANK STERN
Special to Observator Post
Fifty cents out of every five dollar general fee, including a dime on every dollar athletic fee, has been allocated to pay "administrative expenses," OP learned this week.
The money will go for such items as "printing of course records, preparation of reports, aiding the Purchasing Department, and labor of those who buy supplies," according to Aaron Zweifach, the College's newly appointed Business Manager.

Sand's Counsel Denied Stay As Trial Resumes
A motion to adjourn the departmental trials of former basketball coach Nat Holman and assistant assistant coach Harold (Bobby) Sand until Monday, requested at yesterday's resumption of the hearings by Sand's attorney, Bernard Fliegel, was denied by the Trial Committee of the Board of Higher Education.
Mr. Fliegel based his proposal on the grounds that the frequent postponements of the trial had prevented him from obtaining witnesses in time for this week's sessions. He also declared that unless the adjournment was granted he would be unable to properly de-defend his client.

Halley Favors City Operated
Lottery in Address at CCNY
By JOAN SNYDER
City Council President Rudolph Halley, Liberal Party candidate for Mayor, told a group of more than 500 people at the College last Thurs-that "after the racketeers have been cleaned out of New York City to that of the nation, declar-ting that "while Mayor La Guardia was in office, the New Deal flourished. When the Tammany machine came in we began to lose power in Congress and in the country."

In his address, sponsored by Students for Democratic Action,
Students for Halley, and the You-g Libera l, Mr. Halley further outlined his program for the city as including a return to the 10c fare, and the "Liberal school of thought" can be reversed." He favors raising the rate on "certain large building" as well as raising the state state taxes to a full 2½%. A cleanup would be another example of increased revenue, he said.
Mr. Halley called for the election of a "liberal, independent government" in New York City to serve as a foundation for liberalism throughout the country. He linked the political activity of New York City to that of the nation, declaring that "while Mayor La Guardia was in office, the New Deal flourished. When the Tammany machine
came in we began to lose power in Congress and in the country."

Bobby Sand
Time Marches On Replied for the Trial Committee, Gustave Rosenberg, Chairman of the committee, asserted that his secretary informed Mr. Fliegel well in advance of yesterday's meet-ning to prepare to begin his defense at the opening session.
Mr. Rosenberg also promised to subpoena any witnesses Mr. Fliegel desires to have in court.

The Trial Committee also decided to reserve decision on a mo-nion by Mr. Holman's attorney, Joseph Hayes, to dismiss the charges against his client because of insufficient evidence.
The hearings which were scheduled to be completed by the end of the long summer recess, was postponed until last August because of Mr.
Hayes' inability to return to New York in time for the session.
The trial is being held as a result of the special investigation of the basketball situation at the college which was made by the BHE with the Board of Higher Education on April 21, 1952 stipulate that the resolution

Civil Rights Talk By Truman To Highlight Alumni Gathering
An address by former President Harry S. Truman on civil liberties will highlight the annual Alumni Association dinner on Tuesday night, November 10, in the Grand Ballroom of the Hotel Commodore.
The John B. Finley Award for outstanding service to the welfare of the citizens of the City of New York will also be presented to Howard S. Cullen, Chairman of the New York Post Authority.
In addition, Townsend Harris
Medals for outstanding postgraduate achievements will be awarded to Eliahu Lederbaum '32, Associate of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies; David Rosenzweig '16, Industrialist; Bernard A. Grossman '20,
President of the Federal Bar Association of New York; New Jersey and Connecticut; and Emanuel Saxe '25, Chairman of the Department of Accountancy, City College.
Realizing that the price of the dinner is too expensive for most students, the Alumni Association has made available for immediate purchase one hundred seats at $1.50 per person or $3.00 per couple.
Tickets may be purchased at Alumni House, 280 Convent Ave-ne in person or by mail through cheeks made payable to the Alumni Association of City College. Tickets will also be valid for the speifying program.

Make Changes in Microcosm To Widen Magazine's Appeal

This year's edition of the College Yearbook, Microcosm, will adopt a new picture and caption layout and will feature informal pictures of campus activities, announced Edward Swietnicki, Editor-in-Chief of the College's yearbook.

Swietnicki hopes that this new format, which will cover the activities of the entire student body and not just the seniors, will result in a market for the magazine among the lower as well as the upper classmen.

The price of this year's book will be $7.50 for the hard-covered edition and $5 for the soft bound edition.

Seniors who will be graduated in 1954 are urged to make picture appointments at the Senior Office in Room 109-Army immediately.

A staff meeting will be held tomorrow at 12:15 P.M. in Army Hall for the yearbook should be outlined at this session. "All those who wish to work on the yearbook are invited," said Swietnicki.

He received his MA and PhD from Harvard in 1927 and 1929, respectively, and his LLB from Columbia in 1931. A Phi Beta Kappa, he also held the Gold Medal for Distinguished Service awarded by the Department of the Interior.

Dr. Cohen is survived by his wife, the former Lucy Kramer, two daughters, Gene Maura, aged 12, and Karen Ann, 8; a sister, Dr. Leonora Rosenfield; and a brother, Dr. William Victor Cohen. Funeral services for Dr. Cohen are being held this morning in Washington.
MacArthur Lauds BHE On Anti-Communist Fight

General Douglas MacArthur, Chairman of the Board of Higher Education to rid the city colleges of communists and other subversive elements, is expected to make his appearance in this year's Carnival Queen Contest, which will be held on November 7.

On anti-communist fight, MacArthur said that he would be present at the Carnival Queen Contest, which will be held on November 7.

The annual Carnival Queen Contest will be held on November 7 in Drill Hall, with five Carnival Queen finalists being chosen by a group of six judges. The dance, which is being co-sponsored by House Plan and APO, will be semi-formal with everyone wearing a white gown.

The chosen finalists will get modeling lessons and awards from the New York Catholic War Veterans, the Queens County Young Republican Association, and the American Jewish League for Evolution, a citation from President Truman and an award from General Douglas MacArthur.

With its future still indeterminate, Manhattanville Campus is tied to the past by an empty Catacomb and a black dog, and to its present by a working crew of fifteen and a stray cat.

The Catacomb, reached by a flight of wooden stairs underneath a little hatch in the North East City, work the first shift of the Sacred Heart Manhattanville twenty-four horizontal slabs which jut from the walls of what was once a special body-guard of wooden stairs underneath a small chapel. The Foreman of the watchmen, Joseph Pandolfi, a recruit from downtown Brooklyn, worked the first shift of the three continuous changes of men. At one time a special body-guard to CCNY's fifth president, Prof. Robinson, Mr. Pandolfi now swings a club in search of plunderers who steal pipes and fixtures from the old buildings. One of his men was Foreman at Calvary Cemetery before he was hired by the Hygiene Building.

Disbursed up, with some windows broken, the dormitories, classrooms and chapels of the Manhattanville Colleges are hygienic and safe. Girls' Hygiene classes provide the only student activity at this time a newly constructed library (Continued on Page 6).

Prof. Erlich of Hygiene Dept.
To Head Counseling Service

By ANCILE MALDEN

Assistant Professor Gerald Erlich of the Hygiene Department has recently been appointed Director of the low-to-moderate fee, it is presentable.

On the subject of school counseling, Prof. Erlich hopes that sometime in the future it will receive a grant of one thousand dollars. He feels that the service charges a low-to-moderate fee, and that it is presentable. Some are happy. Some are not. Others are getting an education. The other institutions.

In the service, he was right back into the classroom and studied education. The work there was a lot harder than college. For four hours a day, he had to do a minimum of eight hours of homework. He thought he would be over at five in the evening, and then I would sit and study until morning. Seven in the morning, I had to be there.

Mr. Dreksler, during his four years in the Navy while he was stationed in Long Island, got into a lot of trouble and eventually gave birth to a boy, whom they named Mike.

After he went through an approximately two years of the Korean war Mr. Dreksler was furloughed, and he was never sent to Korea.

To his way of thinking, his marriage and family are the major factors in his being able to successfully adapt himself to his return to college. At present a junior, Mr. Dreksler is majoring in electrical engineering with the goal of going into the field of electronics.

The thought of going back to school is met by different people with various sorts of emotion. Some are happy. Some are not. Other it seems, are indifferent. It could be a way to stay away from a job or an angle to keep out of the service.

Herman L. Dreksler, and ex-marine man and now a technology student, is quite happy about his return to College. Before going into the service, he was like many others getting an education. The only difference was that he must be completed, so he completed it. As he summed it up, "A fellow goes through public school, high school, and then just feels like he can't sit through another class.

Mr. Dreksler felt that there was really no reason in going to school any more so in 1948 he enlisted in the Navy. He chose the Navy because he felt that he would find a cleaner life than in the other branches.

While in the service, he was right back into the classroom and studied education. "The work there was a lot harder than college."

THE OBSERVATION POST

October 21, 1955

Opinion

Question (asked in the expression): Should students be entitled to a reduced rate of fare?

Jaworski: "Yes we should. The transit authority had no justification for raising the fare. They said that if the fares were raised, the service would have to be curtailed, which they have done anyway." Lenny Primack LF 3: "I don't think it's a burden of supporting the subway system should rest on those who can least afford it. The transit can be supported by big business or real estate taxes."

Shula Jacobson US 1: "I think there should be a reduction in fare for all college students, municipal or private. It is very difficult for most students to get along because they don't have jobs and consequently, have no income."

Tom Passailaigue LF 1: "No, I don't think students should get reduced fare rates. The transit is a public service. Even if the carfare are lowered, students shouldn't have a reduction. After all, students are no different from anyone else."

In Memoriam

In the untimely death of Dr. Felix S. Cohen, the College has lost not only a distinguished alumnus and an inspired professor, but a community leader who championed the cause of the underdog throughout his successful career.

As an undergraduate, Felix Cohen served as Editor-in-Chief of The Campus, at that time the Main Center's only newspaper. He opposed the then compulsory ROTC course with such vehemence that The Campus was forbidden by the administration to print any articles on the subject. For several months, a blank space appeared in the paper, accompanied by a note that the space was reserved for material on a certain course taught at College on which the newspaper was forbidden to comment.

For two years, faculty pressure kept Felix Cohen out of Phi Beta Kappa, an honor he had earned scholastically. But the City College administration, motivated by the editor won. The College's ROTC course was made a voluntary part of the curriculum.

Felix Cohen will be missed by the College. His memory will be served if student leaders today take heart from his action and live up to the tradition that "true right" is more important than "what you please."

Ten Percenters

Once again the bite has been put on the students. This time, a ten cent per packet has been made in the already limited funds allotted for athletics, library books and student publications.

The intercollegiate athletic program is particularly weakened by this new reduction. Already operating at a far smaller budget than in the days of a winning basketball team, the latest slash will still further interference with the operation of a successful program. Needless to say, ten percent less library books will not benefit the intellectual side of City College.

OP seriously questions both this new policy and Business Manager Zweifach's assertion that he is merely "trying to balance the budget." For many years, the half-million dollar NIF fund has operated without a service charge. Overseas expenses should be borne by the City, or by other portions of City College, and not by the students, in a situation which is slowly losing more and more of its identity as a free college.

Student indifference to this latest report of misappropriation is easy to understand. There is an atmosphere of ability about the chances of the students to influence the administration on this matter, since College officials seem to take no interest at all. Their only concern, as in the past, with merely reminding the student body to vote (and often).

A few days ago I got a look at your newspaper... I enjoyed it. The new editor, with the sub-editorial page. And then everything was spoiled. For in Bold type, staring at me from the otherwise innocent page was a defense of the world's ugliest of All.

Hansman and Gerhard Hauptmann also received the award from the Swedish Academy but I wouldn't want to pay their salaries or have them teaching my children.

Because we are always interested in the subject to those who are not interested in the joys of anticipation, the writer thought that it was Lord Russell's advocacy of "free love" that lost him the job. It is true that this subject got most of the newspaper space, but the whole grab of holding this circulation gaining item. They disliked the juicy details of Russell's last divorce action and would spread his former wife's charges all over page four.

If any man has been discredited by history that man is Bertrand Russell. Let's stop this nonsense about his having been dealt an injustice.

Angrily yours,
Henry Scheerer

Letters...

DeLunacies...

...and the trials begin again

Creats of City College have often labelled us a "factory," and, in a way, we are, a gigantic factory devoted to the mass production of intellectuals. But since the raw material used is so diverse and the method used so uncertain, each finished product is bound to have its own individual quirks. They are, however, several very definite types of intellectuals I have met and spoken to in my wanderings through the halls and cafeteria of this austere institution.

There is, to begin with, the sub-intellectual. He came to college to avoid the draft, or because his parents breathed into him, or because he had nothing better to do, or for some other worthwhile purpose. The sub-intellectual not only does not want to learn, but he is proud of his ignorance, glories in it, and seems anybody who continued learning after the age of 12. If you pronounce a foreign word correctly, you will have evolved from him a bestial ultra. If you have ever liked a college course, you merit his wrath. And if you ever, intimate that there is anything more commendable in this life than making a book, you have earned his disdain.

I am happy to say that there aren't many of these people at City College. They don't last long.

Pseudo-intellectuals, on the other hand, are quite widespread. These people know a certain individual thing about a certain subject— and they don't let you forget it. They don't discuss things with the pseudo. You listen. And whatever it was that you began talking about, the "conversation" invariably turns into a lecture given by the pseudo on his specialty. Outside of this one topic, whatever it may be, the pseudo is all wisdom. He would not be interested in all of knowledge as does the sub-intellectual and is an educated moron. By the way, if you happen to be so rude as to ask him a question about his subject, the pseudo will write you off as a petty, bourgeois, pedestrian swine who doesn't deserve the valuable time he has spent with you.

But the ultra-intellectual is the most fascinating type of all. He is a real intellectual and a great variety of things— and he knows that he knows. The ultra doesn't talk much. He just sits back making succinct comments on the fact that you have been so foolish as to have said to him. The ultra is a patient man. He allows you to make your point before he begins. Then he will giggle quietly and explain in great detail what an obnoxious bore you are. He will use a tired laugh, that sweeping comment on your ideas and on your very existence is enough to make you want to hide under the table. The strangest of men was known to have endured three such laughs before running home and locking himself in the inner closet for a week.

If the shoe fits, you may throw it at me.
The world is a small place to Peter Sugar, who is serving on the executive board of the World University Service, an organization which believes that students are the world's brothers' keepers.

"This is not a give-away program. We will not help those who are not willing to help themselves." Mr. Sugar was speaking of an organization of Indonesian Students, one of WUS's projects. A typical case illustrating how the Service was conducted by the Corporation of a mission to Indonesia. American students, work was conducted by the Corporation of a health clinic to house the North Campus, and student facilities.

While Manhattanville is being turned red, the watchman wears his sweater "under his jacket, and outdoor field is being marked for field hockey. Dead leaves crunch under the feet, and Catacombs wait to be discovered.

Beaver Runners Continue Training

The City College cross-country squad is being kept in condition by a rugged training schedule, even though they are not participating in the Metropolitan Junior A.A.U. championships this Sunday. Top condition is necessitated due to the fact that the coming schedule includes some outstanding opponents. The next meet, Saturday, October 31, at Van Cortlandt Park, will be against a powerhouse team, New York University and New York University, will also present big problems.

Ron psychologist over up late on October 16, unveiled a new star, Gene Fargy, who was a surprise. He set the four mile course record in all the colleges except City College. The coach is well satisfied with the condition of the team at this point in the season, and looks for Captain Tom 'O'Brien and Jim Michaelson to come in to top form this year. Added support is expected from James Boyd and Bragon, who are described as "a real find." By Dr. Bruce. Dave Reilly and George Spencer may add some extra punch to the team. The only problem with City's running attack, Bruce looks forward optimistically towards the coming season, and adds, "I hope our team can win with a couple of surprise over the "bigger" teams on the schedule, Rutgers, New York University and Rutgers College.

City Natators Start Practice

By STEVE MARBURG

The City College swimming team is looking forward to a strong season, because all except two of their key men have returned to school. The Lavender natators will again have the services of their ace free-styler, Howard Schloemer. The big red-headed engineer was the chief reason that the Bearers finished third in the M.C. Championships last year. He holds the school records for the 220 and the 440 yd. freestyle races and will compete in those events this year.

Two other veterans are Jay Glod and Bob Kellog who are this season's co-captains. Glod will be the mainstay in the shorter freestyle races while Kellog will do the breaststroke along with rucer Vic Palladino. Doing the breaststrokes for City are Joseph Ruffino, a diver who showed a lot of promise after he transferred from Queens College during the middle of last season. Added support is hoped to play with the college's mainstay in the shorter Freestyle this season, he said, "I think there are good performances in the conference. The Bearers are defending champions in all three events this year."

Robert Hayum Becoming Key City Halflback

Twice prevented from playing soccer, Robert Hayum, a twenty-two-year-old, is now being looked upon by serious soccer observers as one of the stalwarts of the varsity team. He was unable to compete due to an ankle injury that caused all extra-curricular activities at the school. Under Coach Sapora in 1952, he left the Macabbi Athletic Club due to his increased studies, but hoped to return. Now this year, he is a star, having been a freshman, as well as several players who had already when people come out for intercollegiate competition, was unable to compete because of the newly passed NCAA rules. "We are made freshmen ineligible to compete on varsity teams."

Commenting on the slashing of the booters this season, he said, "We've got a new team, but everyone works together nicely and we all play to win every game. Emphasizing the value of team-work, he remarked, "Our defense was excellent in the Brandeis game. We stopped them cold. They had several outstanding ballplayers but they didn't work together as a team."

To those who have never seen soccer played, he said, "Soccer is the easiest sport to understand. The ball isn't lost in crowds of players like it is so many times in football. It's fast moving, played well and very enjoyable and easy to watch. You don't have to understand much to watch the game."

On the problem of attendance, he added, "It's better for the team. In general people come out, they don't feel like playing. If you see that one no cures, you don't care either."

Joe Sapora Team Training

The City College wrestling team has started practice for the toughest schedule in recent years. The Bearers will face eight opponents this season, including powerful Lockhaven State Teachers and Princeton University. The Princeton Tigers were rated sixth in the nation last season, while the Teachers gained fourth in the National Intramural Wrestling Championships.

Coach Joe Sapora has expressed his belief that the Bears have an excellent chance to go undefeated if they can only get in enough practice. His optimism can be traced to the return of six veterans from last year. It is not easy to fill the gap left by those who did not come out for teams due to the graduation of a top flight competitor but Coach Sapora feels that Co D'Angelo are battling it out for the 136 pound class. Steve Levin and Bob Kellog have been previous varsity experience.

Another position that is undecided at the present time is the 157 lb. class where Extra Regulars and Jimmy Mischel is fighting it out. Both men have had previous experience. Despite injuries to All-American Johnny Koutsantanou and Bill Saites, the City College Soccer team made its initial Metropolitan Intercollegiate Conference game a successful one by defeating a strong Kings Point squad, 4-3. The Beaver Booters had to overcome a two goal deficit to top the Mariners. As a result of his injury, Koutsantanou is expected to be out of action for about six weeks due to a broken collarbone.

A misplayed ball gave the Beavers their first goal of the game at 8:20 of the second period, Heely, in an attempt to pass the ball back to goalie Steuben, kicked the ball to the left side of the cage and the ball evaded the outstretched hands of Steuben and rolled into the nets. Morris Hockerman, the closest City competitor to the play was credited with the goal.

The Mariners pressed the City goal and tailed twice within one minute. Frank Shaughnessy took a shot that hit the post and bounded in at the 8:20 mark. Forty-five seconds later Lynch outfaked the Beaver's defense and scored the third and final KP goal of the game. Tommy Holm cut the CCNY deficit to one goal at the 15:45 mark when he dribbled in alone and beat Steuben. Three minutes latex, Gus Naclerio was awarded a free kick at the goal and sent the ball over the head of Steuben to tie the score.

Dr. Alton Richards, faculty advisor of the college's new program of intra-murals, sent out an urgent call for referees to officiate in the basketball and touchtackle tournaments. "It is extremely difficult to conduct these tourneys without the services of officials. In fact, no smooth running series of games can be anticipated without the aid of officials," he said. All students interested, please contact Dr. Richards in the Intra-mural office in the Hygiene Building as soon as possible.

Sapora, Matmen Coach, Former AAU Champion

Descriptions such as "a giant in achievement" have been used by admirers in connection with small Joe Sapora, the varsity wrestling coach, who has turned out great teams at City College for more than twenty years. Coach Sapora, a former AAU champion, who was a standout wrestler in his younger days, takes pride in helping handicapped and inexperienced students become good wrestlers.

Some of his most famous students were Henry Wittenberg, twice the Olympic and Maccabian champion; Jerry Steinberg, who placed second in the Maccabian Olympics — Greco-Roman event; and Jacob Twerksy, now a blind history instructor at the college who won the Met senior AAU title in 1942.

All the boys who have worked with Sapora, consider him to be a personal friend who is willing at any time to help them with their problems. He receives hundreds of letters each year from his former pupils. Because of his overall popularity and his capabilities as a coach, he has been named President of the Metropolitan Wrestling Association.

Coach Sapora is one of the pioneers in the attempting to bring wrestling into the city's high schools.

Come !

At three o'clock this afternoon the City College soccer team plays host to Brooklyn College. Attendance which has been poor thus far this season is expected to improve today. So let's all come out to cheer the boys on. They need you.
