Discount Rate To Be Raised At Bookstore

Students will pay less for textbooks purchased at the City College Bookstore next semester because of the store's improved financial condition.

The bookstore will raise the discount rate on books from 10 percent to 11 percent, Barney McCaffrey, President - elect of Student Council, announced yesterday. The change, which will affect all books selling for $2.00 or more, was voted at a meeting of the Student-Faculty Bookstore Committee last week. The committee sets policy for the nonprofit making bookstores here and at the downtown Baruch

At one time the rate was 11 percent but increased expenditures caused a reduction to the current rate. Now, according to McCaffrey, a member of the committee, the bookstore is prospering and therefore it was decided to increase the rate. This, he said will enable the student body to to benefit from the store's favorable financial balance.

At its next meeting, scheduled for early next year, the committee will decide whether or not to open its meetings to the pubin private since the group was organized in 1937.

Membership Rule Gets Final Airina

The pros and cons of the rule requiring all campus organizations to release full membership lists were debated yesterday by twentyseven students and faculty members.

The discussion took place at a special open hearing of the Stu- tution was said to have "laid last month. The meeting was held as a result of the strong protests voiced by political clubs and other groups at the College in opposition to the ruling.

SFCSA will make a final decision on the question on January

The argument presented by four students and one faculty member in favor of the ruling were: that until 1938 lists were required from clubs, and that prior to that time the question had never been considered important.

An analogy was made to primary elections in that those who wish to be active and have a voice in a political party must sign their names in registering with a party. The price that should be paid to express our views is the obligation to "stand up and be counted."

More numerous were the speaknine students, and six professors. They claimed that the bad aspects of the ruling by far out- licans). weighed its good points. Employ ers could be informed of students' extra-curricular activities also pointed out that in view of the times, students would be asked to accept a lifelong responsibility for their youthful associations. Creeping Big Brotherism ha In that great oasis down the street—called Manhattanbr_there is a most unusual building—we do not know what it is called. This building, when it is opened, is supposed to house all extra-curricular organizations and activities. At other campuses all across the world such a building is known as a "Student Union." Now this building of ours looks and sounds like a Student Union building but, and this is the most unusual part, it is not. We are told by those in official positions that it is a "Student Center." The word "union," we are told with a knowing glance and an off-therecord wink, is a dirty word, with unpleasant connotations and all that.

Today we're concerned with a question of semantics, or perhaps it's a matter of dialectics, or maybe just down-right foolishness. To put it simply we'd like to examine the old question of how far words can be bent before the public snaps back.

Furthermore, in describing this most unusual building as a prospective home for extra-curricular organizations and activities, we are told that our diction is a little behind the times. Not "extra-curricular," but "co-curricular." It is difficult to understand how club doings can suddenly become "co-curricular" without carrying any academic credits and without being paid for by funds other than those supplied by the students. But these details are incidental and "cocurricular" is the brand new mimeographed line. As George Orwell might have put it: We have always been at war with "extra-curricular."

OP believes that the time has come for everyone to demand that a spade be so-labeled. Let us boldly declare that day is not night. An assault on old fashioned "single-think" is being made, it seems to us. We believe that the time to stop "Creeping Big Brotherism" is now.

Mandate

Barney McCaffrey, Student Council's President-elect. received a clear mandate from the student body on Thursday to continue the forceful job done by his predecessor, Ira Klosk. McCaffrey's record has been closely involved with Council's. He stands for increased student responsibility in the governing of the College, and for mature use of that responsibility.

We are happy to be able to congratulate him on his victory, and to wish him a successful semester. We pledge him our help toward its success.

QUESTION: What do you think of the social life at the College?

I enjoy participating in the College social events, but I think that there is room for improve-

Sandy Weinberg LJr. 3:

I am not concerned with anybody else's social life. I myself am not confronted with too many obstacles.

Marvin Rechter USo 3:

The success of College social activity depends entirely on the individuals themselves. I enjoy myself when I go to College functions.

Professor William Etkin (Biology):

There is too much social life but not enough intellectual activity at the College. I speak not only as a teacher but as a parent.

Herb Altman UF 1:

It is good as far as it goes, but there is room for improvement such as the elimination of the School of Technology.

Of these three Shaughnessy was the only one to even make the Conference first team, much less the all-State outfit.

The probable reason for the apparently undeserved selections was expressed by Howard Chippy" Spohr, Assistant Faculty Manager of Athletics. "After each game the referees and coaches select the three top players on each team," he said "and since Queens and Kings Point played more games than we did their players were probably named more often than ours."

Meanwhile, it was announced that co-captain Naclerio has been invited to participate in the third annual soccer forum, starting December 26 in St. Petersburg, Florida. If Naclerio impresses Navy coach Glenn Warner in practice sessions, he may be asked to play in the North-South game on December 29. Koutsantanou and Eddie Trunk will also

McGuire Stars Against Wagner; Beavers Face Scranton Next Week

The College's basketball team, beaten by Wagner College Saturday night, will play its next game on Tuesday evening, December 28, journeying to Scranton, Pennsylvania to face a Scranton University five that has blown hot and cold this season. The outstanding performer in strong bench and, Coach Polansky play again until January 6 there the 59-67 loss to Wagner was Jack McGuire. McGuire, whose eligibility runs out in mid-season, tallied 18 points to tie Captain Merv Shorr for high-scoring honors. In addition, McGuire was a valuable rebounder, getting inside the Wagner defense time and again to clear the boards.

Despite the fine rebounding of McGuire and Shorr, the game lay-ups. was won off the boards. Wagner took three or four shots at a time while limiting the Beavers to one. The main Wagner culprits were 6-foot 6-inch Charlie Harreus, 6foot 5-inch Lonny West, and 6foot 2-inch Ed Peterson.

Next Tuesday's game against Scranton will be played on the had been counted on as a starter Catholic Youth Center court, located at Jefferson and Vine knee in pre-season drills and has Streets, in Scranton. Starting been out of action for over a time is 8:30 PM. The Youth Center can accommodate 5,000 spectators and a capacity crowd is anticipated.

Record

The Royals have split even in six contests this year, beating Lebanon Valley, King's (Pa.), and Hartwick, while losing to Cornell, Seton Hall, and LeMoyne. They led mighty Seton Hall midway

The Pennsylvanians have a fairly tall outfit. The big man is Captain Bob Bessoir, a 6-foot 6inch center, who averaged 17.6 points per game last season. At one forward will be 6-foot 4-inch Joe Fitt, the team's second high scorer, while at the other forward position will be Linzo Jenkins, a 6-foot 3-inch sophomore. The backcourt posts will be manned by little Tom McHugh, a 5-foot 8-inch sophomore, and Frank Germain, a 6-foot 1-inch sophomore.

The Royals have five players from the metropolitan area. Bessoir comes from Jersey City, Jenkins and Tim McGovern hail from Newark, Sal LaSpina is a Brooklyn boy, and Germain is from Astoria.

The Scranton coach, Pete Carlesimo is in his sixth season as, cage coach, and he is also the football mentor.

The University of Scranton is a Roman Catholic institution conducted by the Jesuit Fathers, It was founded in 1388 and currently has an enrollment of 950 students.
