Professor Sam Winograd, whose policies and purchase of basketball equipment have been questioned by the NYC Department of Investigations, is waiting to testify.

The fate of Prof. Winograd, former Editor of OP, is up to President Buell Gallagher and the BHE.

President Denies Existence Of Holman Case Transcript

By HANK STERN

There is no complete transcript of the Board of Higher Education meeting last week at which Nat Holman was dismissed from the College; President Gallagher said yesterday. A stenographic record of all motions made at the meeting, and all decisions reached, will be revealed to the public next Monday, but there is no record of exactly what was said by Board members at the meeting.

James V. Hayes, attorney for the ousted basketball coach, stated yesterday that the existence of which was denied by Dr. Gallagher.

Joseph H. Cavallo, chairman of the BHE, had earlier refused Hayes' request for the transcript. He said: "the Board has never been taken from discussions in closed meetings."

President Gallagher also disclosed that Lewis A. Wilson, who is New York State Superintendent of Education, has the authority to overturn the BHE ruling if he feels it is unwise. Holman's attorney, therefore, will not have to attempt to prove that the BHE decision was illegal, but must show that it was unjust.

The report was submitted three months ago by former New York City Investigations Commissioner James H. Shields. A statement issued late Wednesday by President Buell G. Gallagher revealed that although he received the report from Dr. Cavallo in December 1953, he "decided not to take formal action until the trial of Professor Nat Holman and Harry (Bobby) Sodd had been completed, so that there could be no confusion between the two inquiries and to avoid the possibility of prejudice of the two men then under trial."

The College is now conducting its own investigation into athletic practices, Dr. Gallagher stated. He added that he would "now proceed to complete the inquiry and to take such action as might be warranted."

Dr. Gallagher refused any other comment on the subject of the investigation. Yesterday morning, Professor Sam Winograd, former Faculty Manager of Athletics, visited Dr. Gallagher in the President's office.

Last night, Prof. Winograd angrily denied that he was guilty of "prolonging." "I don't care if they've got forty investigations," he said, "I welcome any inquiry into the matter."

Professor Winograd repeated that he received "no kickbacks in any shape, color, or form." He said it was "time to stand up and fight," and was trying to pull the red herring across the trail. "They should stand up and be counted," he declared. (Continued on Page Three)

BLOOD BANK

"NEXT?"

Pledges for donations to the College's Blood Drive will be accepted all next week.

This year the College is in a City-wide competition with all other metropolitan colleges. A goal of 1000 pints has been set for C.C.N.Y. to maintain its position as highest donor in New York. Tables will be set up around the College to permit students to register more easily for the blood bank.

Artie Diamond of Alpha Phi Omega is chairman of the Student Council Blood Bank Agency and in charge of the drive. He will be aided by members of A.P.O. and the Webb Patrol.
Ah, Wilderness

With Spring just around the corner, we would desire nothing better than to return to nature in the best of the Woodrow Wilson tradition. It is a tradition not unfounded in our City College student life, in the great out-of-doors. It has come to mean sitting on a stone bench and inhaling carbon monoxide fumes from passing cars. And yet, just scant blocks from our sun baked campus lies a part of the original forest primeval. In common nomenclature this bit of paradise is known as Manhattanville.

However, even this is denied to us. At present the only sounds which penetrate through the hallowed portals of the City College student life, in the great out-of-doors, is the sound of our sun baked campus.

President Gallagher, we beseech you to throw open the College gates. They are necessary to us, the students, and it is necessary to the College but the future of the College would no longer offer the challenge to which our boys are accustomed.

A Step Forward

The Presidential Report, as sweeping as it is, cannot mean sitting on a stone bench and inhaling carbon monoxide fumes from passing cars. It cannot mean waiting for a directive from the Student Union.

I am therefore left with the inescapable conclusion that the report has been issued from the President's office.

It is unfortunate, but continued inactivity will kill the President's Report, as surely as a negative vote. The student body can ill afford to let this happen. That is why OP is continuing the fight for positive action, continuing in the face of determined opposition on the part of those who "do not wish to influence the President's decision," and that is why we will continue, and not stop until the Presidential Committee Report has been approved.

No Cause for Joy

Today marks an anniversary, but we can find no cause for celebration. Just one month ago the General Faculty Committee on Student Affairs turned a document over to the President of the College, a document born after three months of intensive study, a document which was to revolutionize the entire field of student-faculty relations here at the College,—the Presidential Committee Report.

However, GFCSA, showing a marked reluctance to change the existing state of affairs, could not resist drafting a text of its own, a masterpiece that negated the very proposals on which the Presidential Committee Report was based. Thirty-one days have gone by since the conflicting statements were placed on Dr. Gallagher's desk. During this period no decision on the report has been issued from the President's office.

Old Soldiers Never Die, They're Only Depaftined

There's an unusual item on the program for Spring cleaning at the College this year. The item: the patina covered statue of General Webb.

The General will undergo rehabilitation by scouring brush tomorrow, wielded by members of the Webb Patrol, to celebrate the Patrol's tenth anniversary. Undisclosed, but potent, chemicals will brighten the bronze sculpture removing the green deposit of patina.

Sworded and dingy green, the General has been ravaged by thieves and oxidation during his

The report, which was publicized as lead story in Wednesday's New York World-Telegram and Sun, is said to deal with malpractices in buying equipment. It reveals that the College paid more for such supplies as basketballs and team uniforms than other colleges in the metropolitan area, including Hunter and Brooklyn College.

The firm that sold the College the equipment at higher prices, according to the report, was owned by a personal friend of a College athletic executive. The firm was later identified as the Circle Athletic Supply Company, which is owned by Bernard Barashack, Yeshiva University basketball coach, and Louis Eisenstein, a referee in the National Basketball Association.

Professor Winograd was Faculty Manager of Athletics from 1947 to June 1953. When President Emeritus Harry N. Wright replaced Winograd as Faculty Manager with Prof. Arthur Deshiery, he praised the former architect of the College's athletic policy by stating: "We regard your entire administration of this responsibility as having been motivated by complete loyalty to the College."

Dr. Casella's statement that the BHE had the Shells report contradicted Prof. Winograd's detail reported yesterday in The Campus, of the Telegram story this morning. The BHE is expected to be on target. It is as hard to wrest the wheel as the bottle from grasping hands.

The Aircraft Observer... eyes...ears... brains... of the Air Force Team!

They keep saying CCNY is a subway college, and they are right. The majority of our students lead promptly for the holes in the sidewalks at 13th or 14th Street the minute classes end. Nevertheless, the tendency to blame that old devil "student apathy" for all the weaknesses of student activity here is just a bluff. Student activities are not strong to begin with, but the thing weakening them is not lack of interest, but superabundant restrictions. Loose red tape and fuzzy regulations (the rule book now is 72 pages long) would help a great deal in this direction.

One of the great battles of modern times is the fight to win the use and control of the family car as the protecting parent. The initial struggle usually deals with learning how to drive. A victory ensures when the license is finally secured. After all, if the State of New York says you're a good driver, how can mere parents argue?

Next big problem is usually insurance. This is rather expensive, and the student must be either well-heeled or unusually persuasive to secure the documents necessary to provide $10,000 coverage for the fellow you bump into.

If Dad doesn't use the car, things will be easier if he's a steady driver. You see, driving is as habit-forming as drinking, and it is as hard to wrest the wheel as the bottle from grasping hands.

Question: Do you think that the current Congressional investigations have curbed the teachers' freedom of expression?

Stanley Osesvitz, U. So. 1: I think that teachers are afraid to bring up controversial issues not only because of the Congress...

Ray Forryth, L. Br. 7: I feel that they are unjustified, unbalanced, for, intimidation and have limited teachers' freedom of expression.

Biba Bell, L. Fr. 1: It teachers wish to express opinions contrary to our current policy, such as agreement with a particular phase of activity within the Soviet Union, they are not free to express these views, as they should be in an intellectual-ly free society.

Lady Beavers End Campaign

Boasting a respectable record of 7-4, the women's basketball team closed out its season with a hard fought victory over the University of Chicago, 52-41. Prior to last night's affair the team was undefeated in its last five encounters, taking the measure of Wagner, Rider, Adelphi, Hofstra and Brooklyn College. The Gals' three setbacks were administered by Queens College, Hunter and NYU. Coached by Miss Marguerite Wulfers the Beavers have demonstrated a sharp defense. The leading scorer is Judy Leven, averaging 14 points a game. Sandy Berman and Barbara Dette have netted 12.7 and 11.3 points, respectively.

Cafeteria Security...

College officials have remained silent on whether any additional safeguards have been instituted in the cafeteria since the $600 robbery over the Lincoln's Birthday weekend.
