Faculty Group May Consider Pres. Report

A meeting of the General Faculty of the College has been called for April 14 by President Buell G. Gallagher at which time "report" will be submitted for their approval, OP learned yesterday. When asked whether this report was the one submitted by Presidential Committee on Student-Faculty Relations, Dr. Gallagher refused to comment. According to Professor John S. Peck (Civil Engineering), secretary of the General Faculty, the meeting was called by President Gallagher in order that he could submit a "report" for their approval. Prof. Peck did not know the nature of the statement to be submitted. The next regularly scheduled meeting of the General Faculty was to be in October.

President Gallagher revealed that he will be the principal speaker at B'nai B'rith dinner honoring President Nathan Pusey at Harvard. The subject of the speech, in Boston on Sunday, April 4, has not been officially disclosed but it is believed that the address will concern itself with "McCarthyism" as a threat to academic freedom.

Tomorrow . . .

President Buell G. Gallagher will speak in the Great Hall tomorrow at 12:30 PM. After his talk, he will answer questions by members of the student body on topics concerning the College.

Observation Post, The Campus and Student Council are co-sponsoring his appearance. Dr. Gallagher last spoke to the students in this way in October, 1952.

Buckvar Calls on Gallagher To OK Presidential Report

Special to Observation Post
By ANDREW MEISELS and HANK STERN

Professor Oscar Buckvar (Government) called upon President Buell G. Gallagher yesterday to "prepare students in their duties of citizenship by letting them govern themselves." Speaking from the sickbed to which he has been confined since Christmas, the chairman of the Presidential Committee on Student-Faculty Relations urged Dr. Gallagher to approve the report of his committee, the so-called "Presidential Report."

Since February 10, the Report has been on Dr. Gallagher's desk awaiting action. The General Faculty Committee on Student Affairs (GFCSA) turned it down on January 25, and it is now up to Dr. Gallagher to send it to the General Faculty, a higher group, for further action or refrain from doing so.

The Presidential Report suggests drastic changes in the present status of student self-government at the College and would, among other things, abolish the Student Faculty Committee on Student Affairs (SFCSA).

In a statement made exclusively to Observation Post, the winner of the first Felix S. Cohen Memorial Award for "contribution to campus democracy" called upon Dr. Gallagher to "submit the Presidential Report to the General Faculty and fight for its adoption." He spoke of the Report as "a logical step forward."

Prof. Buckvar, whose illness kept him in Mount Sinai Hospital until last week, characterized the Presidential Report as part of a "trend begun by President John H. Finley," who established self-government at the College "in the face of faculty opposition." The Professor took a seat at a bridge table and spoke softly. "Progress can't be stopped," he declared. "I just feel that this (the Presidential Report) is a continuation of the Finley effort and in the tradition of Gottschall and Gallagher, both of whom have been and are fighters for student rights." He further expressed his belief that Dr. Gallagher will back the Report.

Prof. Buckvar got up and began walking slowly across the room with the aid of a cane. He is able to stay up only a few hours a day and spends this time reading and talking. "I had to speak up," he smiled, "for the good of the College."

Discriminatory Charters To Be Reviewed by SC

By JOAN SNYDER

A motion recommending the suspension of fraternities and sororities which refuse to disaffiliate themselves from national organizations whose charters have discriminatory clauses, is under study by the Student Council Civil Liberties Committee. It was brought up before Council two weeks ago by SC President Manny Halper.

Supplementing a warning issued by Council three years ago, the motion orders the local branches of such fraternities and sororities either to reform the national charters or to disaffiliate. Refusal would mean "virtual suspension," defined by Halper as the cutting off of publicity rights and of all services of Council. An organization can be suspended only by the Student-Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, SC, however, may recommend suspension.

"I mean business," Halper declared. "If this motion passes, I'll examine the charters of every fraternity and sorority at the College." He added that those which said they didn't have their national charters on hand would be suspended anyway, "because they should have them."

Spokesmen for Theta Kappa Phi, an all-Catholic fraternity, acknowledged that religious services are part of their activities, although their charter "contains no discriminatory clause.

"A fraternity is supposed to promote closeness," one member said. "Common religion helps to bring about this relationship." Asked whether religious difference bars "closeness," he replied, "Maybe not between individuals, but in an organization it sure does."

Zeta Beta Tau, all of whose members are Jewish, said that its policy is to accept pledges without regard to religion.

Enlargement of Honor System Suggested for Lower Corps

An extension of the College's ROTC Honor System to the Basic Corps is now being considered by Colonel Paul Hamilton, (Chairman, Military Science).

The expansion of the system, now in effect in the Advanced Corps, was recommended by the present ROTC Honor Committee at a meeting last Friday. This plan would call for non-voting representatives of Basic Corps classes to sit in at the Advanced Corps Honor Committee meetings. The general structure of the present system would continue as it has since it was instituted in the Spring of 1952 by the popular vote of the Advanced Corps.

Study Not Complete

Commenting upon the proposed plan, Colonel Hamilton said, "The system works well in the Advanced Corps and contributes to the development of good character and good officers. But, as I have not yet made a complete study of the proposal, I cannot say whether I will approve it or not."

The Commandant of the ROTC at the College went on to say, "I consider everything that happens in the entire ROTC my responsibility, and I have to keep in mind the basic difference between the two corps. If I and my staff were to vote positively on the measure, it would still be subject to the approval of President Gallagher."

The Liberal Tradition

We are very pleased at the improvement in Professor Oscar Buckvar's health which has permitted him to return home from the hospital. We would be even more pleased if this improvement continues, and he is able to return to teaching at the College shortly.

But from his home, Professor Buckvar, the Presidential Committee chairman who has done more than his share for the good of the College, has interjected himself into the College situation. Just two days before President Gallagher's appearance in the Great Hall, at which a decision on the Presidential Committee report will be awaited, Professor Buckvar has issued a clear call for the adoption of the report.

His appeal to Dr. Gallagher transcends the actual provisions of the report, which constitute a comparatively minor transfer of authority from the Student Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, to Student Council, with the faculty reserving the right to overrule actions of SC. Professor Buckvar invokes the tradition of former President John H. Finley and Dean Morton Gottschall, and urges President Gallagher to follow it, to step forward and approve the Presidential report despite some faculty stand-pattism and opposition.

In our opinion, President Gallagher's decision on the Presidential Committee report will be the test of his career at the College. From his decision, we will be able to determine whether he will follow in the liberal tradition of Finley, or is merely a slicker model of Harry Gideonse, Brooklyn College heavy-handed president.

Observation Post shares Professor Buckvar's confidence in President Gallagher. We know he will do the right thing.

WHEREAS, the Fifth Amendment has been a part of the constitution of the United States of America since 1791, and

WHEREAS, its use is no less honorable nor more deplorable than the use of any other section of the Bill of Rights, THEREFORE, Observation Post deplores the faculty groups that succumb to the timidity of the times and use evasions and euphemisms on the issue of the political beliefs of teachers, and

THEREFORE, Observation Post denounces the application of Section 903 of the New York City charter to the political beliefs of teachers and administrative aides, and THEREFORE, Observation Post recommends that either the law, or this application of it by the courts, be speedily revised to prevent further injustice to conscientious, diligent and faithful teachers.

Ah, Wilderness - II

Aye, the mills of the gods do grind exceedingly slow. The plea to throw open the lush fields of Manhattanville for the spring and summer gambols of the students remains unanswered.

And it is already spring! In the glorious time when the pulse quickens at the mere thought of the season, and the body craves the caress of grassy earth, we must tread rough concrete and dull asphalt. The very gargoyles seem to mock at this.

Man's rest cannot be complete without Nature. Would not Rousseau agree?

Patina to Stay Pat on Statue Of Gen. Webb

General Webb will have to bear with his patina for a long time to come the unsightly green coating on the old soldier's bronze surface was to have been scoured away by the Webb Patrol a week ago. However, Professor Albert D'Andrea (Chmn., Art), Director of Planning and Design, decreed otherwise. Potent chemicals might not agree with the statue, the professor objected. "It's too bad," a Webb Patrolman said wistfully. "He looks sort of corroded." The Patrol's candidates, who would have wielded the scrubbing brushes, are said to be content with the ruling.

A patina's antique lustre is prized by many artists. Rumor has it that Prof. D'Andrea's intervention may have been for esthetic, as well as practical reasons.

Buckvar's Statement

I just can't help feeling that my committee was on the right side, on the side of progress and the development of student self-government.

I am sufficiently recovered to feel that this battle will be won just as all such battles in the past were won.

The trend was begun by President John H. Finley; it's nothing new. He established student self-government in the face of faculty opposition. He had opponents who were honest and differed honestly. But progress can't be stopped and I just feel that this (the Presidential report) is a continuation of the Finley effort and in the tradition of Dean Morton Gottschall and President Buell Gallagher, both of whom have been and are fighters for student participation as well as Finley. I'm very proud to be engaged on behalf of students in this kind of work.

Knows Gallagher's Problem

I know President Gallagher's predicament. He was called in by some people and I believe and do not doubt he's invited to solve Finley's difficulties and Finley's problems. And I just humbly wish to be counted among these people.

This is especially so, since I have such high regard for my colleagues on the Presidential Committee, every one of whom has labored hard and long. The report is not a product of imagination or whim. It's the result of hard, positive work.

For over 100 hours, as an understatement, the chairman had the pleasure of listening to advice and counsel, not from people who had an axe to grind in the preservation of the status quo, but people who had the best interest of the College and the students at heart. People with forty years of experience whose knowledge and loyalty of the College can hardly be challenged by anybody.

Deans and other administrators were called in. Teachers and students appeared. Those invited were not hand-picked. Literally everybody who had a point of view was invited. Only after this copious and prodigious record of recommendations, legal assurance and educational wisdom was pored over, did the members of the Presidential Committee, all of whom have sacrificed so much time and energy, make their contribution.

For this reason, I call upon President Gallagher to submit the Presidential report to the General Faculty and fight for its adoption. This is in the tradition of Finley, Gottschall and Gallagher. I am proud to align myself with this tradition. I see it as a logical step forward. This is in the tradition of Finley, Gottschall and Gallagher. I am proud to align myself with that tradition.

Every conceivable interest was taken into account. The right of students to student government, it was agreed, generally would be expanded, but nevertheless, not a single iota of faculty administration responsibility was in any way to be deterred or infringed upon. That's where final responsibility would still rest.

But the Committee unanimously agreed that education, no different from other strata of society, must take into account that the world is in a ferment, that these students are living in a modern atomic and hydrogen era, that with a sudden enemy attack, they may be the saviors of the administration and faculty because of their fast responses. It is these qualifications that set them apart in the field of battle, as compared to oldsters.

Why not prepare them in their duties of citizenship here, by letting them govern themselves, subject to the faculty's veto.

But let them feel that they do more than go through the motions that they really have responsibility, and this under no threat of pressure, but with mutual respect and affection, in a common cause because of our College, our community and indeed, our very culture.

Little Old New York Shown In Lincoln Corridor Exhibit

By MIRIAM TEITELBAUM

High button shoes, a brass fire trumpet, and a flintlock musket over four feet long, are objects among the motley assortment now on display in Lincoln Corridor.

Presenting entertaining enlightenment seems to be the aim of the Committee on Cultural Relations, for this group is responsible for the displays in the Lincoln Corridor cases. Headed by Professor Simon Lissim of the Art Department, the CCR plans and supervises the filling of the Corridor cabinets with matter designed to interest Collegians.

The current exhibit is made up of material on loan from the New York Historical Society, which is now celebrating its 150th anniversary. Subject of the display: New York City in retrospect.

Five of the cases abound with photographs and prints of the city, dating from the reign of the one-legged Gouverneur Peter Stuyvesant, to present times.

Another cabinet contains maps, circa 1664, 1775, and 1812, in addition to a 1642 chart of village lots lying below Wall Street, apportioned by the Dutch West India Company to the inhabitants of Nieuw Amsterdam.

Ladies' fashions of the 1890's are featured in one case. Displayed is a hat. Men who bewail their woman's taste in headgear might be consoled if they knew

There is also a profusely decorated purple velvet gown, and a pair of high button shoes. Streets must have been much cleaner in the gay nineties than now, for the boots are made of white silk.

Bed Warmer

that even in 1890, the emphasis was on elaborateness, if the present chapeau is representative.

Practical items fill the last two cabinets. There is an intricately carved fire helmet, together with a fire bucket (also leather), in addition to a waffle iron, a flintlock rifle, four and a half feet in length, and a wrought iron toaster. Almost as long as the rifle (but serving a different purpose) is an eighteenth century bed warmer (or bed pan, as it was then called.) Consisting of a carved copper bowl attached to a long stick, this little apparatus, filled with hot bricks, would be placed between the sheets of a Colonial bedstead. When the bed's occupant retired for the night, a warm couch would await him.

Hamilton's House Looted; Firearms Leave Grange

"The two revolvers were stolen during the broad-open day, Sir," the guard said, "the guns that were used at the last duel of Alexander Hamilton."

Three weeks ago, at the Hamilton Grange, 287 Convent Ave., while another guard was on duty, one of the 35 to 40 daily visitors who was very interested in the guns forced the glass case open and took them home with him. Nothing has been heard of him since. The police do not know the motive.

The Grange is a block and a half north of the Main Campus. It hasn't always been located there, however. It was moved from 143rd Street, between Convent and Amsterdam Avenues, to its present site in 1889 and pushed on rollers for 500 feet, after having been cut in two for the operation. The showplace abounds with thousands of objects such as books, letters, maps, engravings of Washington's battles with the English and other memorabilia of the Hamiltonian period. These articles were given to the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society which assembled them at the Grange.

The house was built by Hamilton in 1802. He did not, however, long enjoy the beautiful view and fresh air. In 1804 he was challenged to a duel by Aaron Burr. Pistols were chosen. On July 11, at an old dueling ground at 6:00 AM, in Weehawken, N.J., Hamilton was mortally shot. He died twelve hours later. He had been the first Secretary of the Treasury of the United States.

New Program Set for Fresh

Freshmen this term are being given the opportunity to express their problems and to discuss matters pertaining to their academic careers under a newly revised freshman advisory program. This program, initiated by the department of Student Life is expected in time to completely replace the freshmen orientation assemblies.

Due to the unusually small freshman class this term, an experiment was started in an effort to eliminate the overcrowding and impersonal nature of the assemblies of previous terms. The two assemblies meeting on Thursday have been split into small groups, of some twenty to twenty-five students, each meeting separately with a member of the Department of Student Life. At these "discussion groups", topics of interest to the students present are considered. In contrast, the two scheduled assemblies on Tuesday are being conducted as in the past with a large number of students in each section.

According to Mr. Stamos Zades (Student Life), the new program has been instituted in an effort to make the freshman more able to cope with many new problems involved in adjusting to College life. The program will be continued next term as far as possible in the face of the unusual large entering freshman class in September.

Blind Wrestler Depends On Sound And Strength

The lacrosse team opens the campaign on Saturday afternoon against the Alumni at Lewisohn Stadium and Coach Leon Miller is pessimistic about the team's chances of bettering last season's 3-0-6 record.

Hit hard by graduation the squad is minus eighteen experienced players, including ten of last year's starting array. Les Gottlieb, the team's leading scorer and standout John Mahon, have graduated, and All-American goalie Harry Friedland has not reported and is not expected to see any action during the coming season.

Rough Job For Miller

As a result, Chief Miller will have to develop an entirely new team. Veterans Ronald Riefler and Stuart Namm are fighting for the vacant goalie position. A large part of the burden will fall on the returnees Milt Perlow, Bob Ruppel, Tony Fredico, Ralph Kelly, and co-captains John McMahon and Arnold Levinson. Defensemen Willie Epstein and Mat Schnell will bolster the backline.

Green Team Needs Help

The coach stated that "the team is still green and there is little hope of bettering its place in the National standings." The stickmen finished twenty-sixth in the country last season.

City College is the only Metropolitan College that has a lacrosse team.

Opinion

Question: What are the chances of this year's baseball team repeating last year's championship performance.

Sol Mishkin, Coach: We will have a good college team. I expect the team to wind up in fourth place behind St. John's, Hofstra and Brooklyn, but if the pitching comes through we can beat them all.

Ozzie Baretz, Center Fielder: We will go all the way if we get the pitching.

Bob Brendel, Pitcher: Pitching is our weakness. If we get it we will overtake St. John's and win the title.

Paul Nacinovich, First Base: It all depends on the shape of our pitching squad. The toughest team in the league will be St. John's.

Al Altonare, Pitcher, returning veteran: We will give the other teams in the league a tough fight.

Joe Katz, Pitcher: We are strong up the middle but weak on the hill. St. John's is the team to beat.

By

PROFESSOR HARRY KARLIN

The tennis team is preparing for the opening match of the season against Hofstra College on April 3. I am confident that the team will have a very fine year. They should take at least four-out-of-nine matches. Right now it looks as though the squad of Cliff Huffman, Jay Bohrer, Allan Jong, Warren Burd, Larry Ginsberg, Harvey Rothstein, Steve Hersh and Eddie Trunk is shaping up very well.

Although handicapped by blindness, Norm Balot, co-captain of the wrestling team, is regarded by his teammates as one of the most adroit grapplers on the squad. The 157-pound wrestler, a graduate of the New York Institute for the Blind, came to the College in 1951.

Balot has been a member of the squad for three years and has never been pinned by an opponent. Although he doesn't possess a vast repertoire of holds, he has the knack of using the ones that he knows with maximum effectiveness. When on the mat he locates his opponents by sound and body contact and then relies on his excellent balance and strength to apply his holds.

The twenty-one year old upper junior, majoring in psychology, is no dud socially, either. According to one of his teammates, "He has the nicest 'harem' of good looking girls one can imagine."

Besides his athletic achievements he maintains a B-plus average. Add to this his enthusiasm and self confidence and you come up with a nice fellow with a bright future.
