Opponents to Club Lists Will Hold Open Meeting

A meeting to discuss what steps should be taken to combat the newly instituted membership list ruling will be held this Thursday in Room 19 Main at 12:20 PM. Called by several political club leaders who are opposed to compliance with the new procedure, all interested students and faculty members are being asked to attend.

Arnold Adoff, President of Students for Democratic Action said, "While my club has not yet decided what it will do about the ruling I believe all the clubs should get together and decide on a united course of action at this meeting."

Martin Gruberg, Student Council Vice President, stated yesterday that he is completely against any kind of compulsory membership listing for any club. "I am going to introduce a plan to the Student Faculty Committee on Student Affairs (SFCSA) which will put a student's record of membership back on a completely voluntary basis," Gruberg explained. "The Department of Student Life can check on the validity of this volunteered information through the club presidents. The College should encourage club membership and not attempt to stifle it as the SFCSA has done by its recent ruling," he added.

The compulsory membership ruling passed last November, and later amended, by the Student-Faculty Committee on Student Affairs has been strongly attacked by six political clubs, both college newspapers and several faculty members. Dean James S. Peace (Student Life), who was asked to implement the decision, modified the rule last week and stated he is going to ask for a new decision on the matter at the first SFCSA meeting this month.

Pres. Asserts Human Needs

President Buell G. Gallagher reasserted the need for a basic set of principles on which to base action, speaking last Thursday before a meeting of the Protestant Council of New York at the Hotel Sheraton-Astor.

Pres. Gallagher took issue with the opinion, allegedly expressed by a City College student on a recent panel program, that "we have got to put aside principle, because we are dealing with human beings." Quoting an editorial in the Philadelphia Enquirer, he said that rather, "It is because we are dealing with human beings that principle is vital, should be upheld, fought for."

Gallagher Explains Channels For Any Student Union Fee

President Buell G. Gallagher asserted yesterday that a proposal for a student fee for Student Union must go through certain channels and must ultimately be passed by the Board of Higher Education. Pres. Gallagher explained the procedure at the meeting of the Student Union Board of Directors last night.

The channels, referred to by the president mean that a recommendation must first be made by the Student Union Budget Committee to Dean Alton Lewis (Director of Student Union), and then be passed on by Dean Daniel F. Brophy (Dean of Students). The proposal would then be given to the President who must have it approved by the Administration Committee. Final approval by the BHE is then required.

President Gallagher further stated that although a referendum to the students concerning the Student Union fee is unnecessary, it might be advisable.

No definite statement whether or not such a fee would be necessary was made.

Four student subcommittees composed of students faculty and alumni, were established last night. Their job is to advise the main committee on proposals which would determine the policy of Student Union. The subcommittees organized were: a subcommittee on Government, Budget, Program and House. The function of the House Committee will be to determine what furniture fixtures would be necessary.

The SU Board of Directors was set up by presidential request. It will function as an advisory committee and will be concerned with creation of broad policy for Student Union

Soviet Head's Surprise Exit Puzzles Profs

The resignation of Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov seems to have come as a complete surprise to many observers at the College.

Mr. K. E. McKenzie (History), a teacher of Russian history, offered this interpretation: "Kremlinology is not a fully respectable profession, since it defies scientific method. Our guesswork—and that is all it can be now, may be improved within the next few days when other changes in leadership are announced. Although Malenkov's resignation statement made no reference to international affairs, the pressures which might have been exerted from China should not be ignored."

In one of his classes yesterday Professor Oscar Janowsky (History) expressed the opinion that the Soviet Army and the Communist Party had temporarily united to oust Malenkov. This, he felt, seems true because Nikolai Bulganin controlled the Army and Nikita S. Khrushchev (Communist Party Secretary) the Communist Party organization. Prof. Janowsky further asserted that these two power groups would eventually split, with more trouble resulting.

Ghastly

Theodore, the monologist of the weird, will soon relate his tales of ghostly intrigue at the Pauline Edwards Theatre at the Baruch Center. In many of his performances he refers to one of the College's newspapers as a "fifth rate rag." (His petulance stems from a bad review.)

The grotesque spectacle will be sponsored by Phi Epsilon Pi and they promise a night of horror and laughs. Ducaats for the nocturnal sage of lunacy are on sale for $1.15, $1.35 and $1.50 at Room 120 Main. The mottled man of mystery and humor will be presented on Saturday night, February 19, at 9:00 PM.

High Court Given Ex-Prof's Appeal

A former Brooklyn College professor, fired under Section 903 of the New York City Charter, won a review Monday of his case by the United States Supreme Court. Section 903 provides for dismissal of city employees who refuse to testify before courts, grand juries or legislative inquiries on the grounds of possible self-incrimination.

Two former City College employees, Richard H. Austin and Hyman Gold, were suspended from their jobs in the Registrar's office on February 16, 1953, for refusing to answer questions at a hearing of the Senate Internal Security Committee. Both invoked the Fifth Amendment and were suspended under Section 903.

Only One Succeeds

Of fourteen teachers dismissed under Section 903 who appealed, only one, Professor Harry Slochower, who formerly taught at Brooklyn College, succeeded in his appeal. He was dismissed on October 6, 1952 for refusing to tell a Senate Judiciary subcommittee whether he had been a member of the Communist Party in 1940 and 1941.

Prof. Slochower's appeal was successful because he raised a "properly presented Federal question." In other appeals, the Supreme Court has not reviewed state court decisions involving Federal questions unless they were raised in lower court proceedings.

Federal Questions

The Federal questions raised by Prof. Slochower were:

- That the automatic operation of the New York City Charter and Administrative Code under which he was dismissed deprived him of tenure in his employment and a trial to which he was entitled.

- That the Senate subcommittee was not empowered to consider, and has not specifically stated that its questions were not "aimed at," the official conduct of city employees so that Mr.

Slochower could not have known that the questions asked of him related to his official conduct.

- That at the time of the Senate group's inquiry there had been no determination under New York's Feinberg Law that the Communist Party was subversive and that membership would affect the eligibility of teachers. Retroactive application of such a determination was constitutionally prohibited it was concluded.

Mr. Slochower argued in the state courts that his rights to due process of law and equal protection of the laws, as guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution, had been violated. The state court ruled against him.

The thirteen teachers whose appeal had failed argued that the Feinberg Law conflicts with the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution.

House Gets Scholarship Plan Proposed by Pres. Gallagher

A bill providing for federal scholarships and loans to college students has been introduced in the House of Representatives by Representative Frank Thompson Jr. (D-NJ).

The proposal is a revised edition of a bill introduced by President Gallagher when he was Assistant U. S. Commissioner of Higher Education.

Difference

The Thompson Bill differs from Dr. Gallagher's proposal in that it would allocate sixty percent of the stipends for studies pertaining to the national defense in the event of a national emergency. The proposal of Pres. Gallagher contained no such clause.

The Congressional Record for January 14, 1955 says in part: "During a time of active hostilities or when found by the President to be necessary in the interest of national defense, at least sixty percent of the stipends must go to students engaging in studies which are determined in a manner prescribed by the President to be related to the national defense or defense supporting activities."

President Gallagher noted that the "national emergency" provision was merely a device to get State Department and Pentagon approval of the bill. He said however that the sixty percent allocation was a victory and was grateful that it wasn't 100 percent. Dr. Gallagher then went on to say that federal scholarship money should bear no relation to national defense since "it is an investment in our nation."

President Reiterates Position Acclaiming 'Freedom of Press'

In a letter to the Tablet, official organ of the Brooklyn Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church, President Buell G. Gallagher reiterated the principle of "full public criticism" and freedom of the press rather than clamping "a dictatorial censorship of the press." The letter was a reply to the Catholic paper which had headlined its attack of the Observation Post and the Ticker, Baruch Center newspaper, "CCNY Papers For Immorality."

Omit Facts

"The story . . ." the letter continues, "omits important aspects of the factual case, and arrives by distortion at implication which no one acquainted with the facts will recognize as true."

The President stated that he unequivocally disapproves of the "offending" items in Mercury, the College's humor magazine, although he supports the use of democratic rather than totalitarian methods of correction.

The attack was originally based on an "offensive" joke printed in last fall's edition of Mercury. As a result of the joke, Rev. William L. Malloy, advisor to the Catholic students at the College, wrote a letter to Pres. Gallagher. The President, in his answer, affirmed that "freedom to be offensive (subject to legal redress) is inherent in the system under which we live."

Three Headed Female Scans All Directions

Students at the College are constantly being reminded to "Look to the Past, look to the present, look to the future." This noble, if seldom-understood admonition, is the chief adornment of the College's three-headed feminine emblem. "Respice, Adspice, Prospice," is how the seal puts it.

Its three peering heads symbolize youth, maturity, and old age, respectively.

Although the triple visages appear Greek, it is doubtful that they are derived from Greek mythology, according to Professor Stewart Easton (History) an authority on the subject. He suggests that it may be of Indian origin, since the Indians were partial to three-headed images.

The exact date of the original drawing is unknown. A three-dimensional seal was first created by Professor Albert d'Andrea (Chmn, Art) during the College's Centennial, in 1947. The slogan "Respice, Adspice, Prospice," was suggested by a former professor who taught at the College during the latter part of the nineteenth century.

Lure of Tugboats Tows Prof. to Canal Holidays

By ROBERT KEENAN and JAY CARR

At least one member of the English Department has found a way to combine vacation with avocation. The annual decision plaguing multitudes of vacation-goers are no problem at all to Professor Frederick C. Shipley (English), Director of the Summer Session. The Professor neatly manages to dovetail canal trips, photography and writing to while away his vacation days.

A few years back, Professor Shipley decided to take an auto trip along the route of the old Erie Canal when the thought struck him, "Why not try and get on a tugboat—see the canal from the business end?" Fortunately he "knew someone who knew someone" in the Moran tugboat firm. After signing a "Death Warrant Waiver" releasing the company from "responsibility for any of the gory accidents that could befall me," his ambition was realized. Camera in hand, Professor Shipley jumped aboard a tug from a canal lock in upstate New York—and his second career began.

Pictures Bought

In return for the Tugboat Company's hospitality, Professor Shipley, a photography enthusiast, gave the company publishing rights to some 250 pictures he took in the course of his canal-boating experiences. The pictures, appearing in the Moran Company's magazine, Towlines, caught the eye of the Texaco Company. Texaco thereupon commissioned him to provide pictures and story for an article dealing with the Erie Canal; Professor Shipley obliged, and his article appeared in the April, 1954 issue of Texaco Topics.

When asked how it all began, the Professor replied, "When you've got a job like mine you can't stay at home, or every other day you'll be called to the telephone to rub down someone's headache—which then becomes your own." So he makes it an unalterable rule to get away from home for a week or so, between the close of the spring session and the opening of the summer session.

Tanker Adventure

Last September the adventurous professor moved from the tugboat to the tanker class. On Labor Day Texaco flew him down to Port Arthur, Texas, to ride one of their tankers, the S. California, from Texas to Portland, Maine. This turned out to be an eight-day, fourteen-hundred mile journey. A description of the trip, accompanied by pictures, appeared in the October issue of Texaco Topics. Texaco had further plans for the professor. During the recent Christmas vacation he was scheduled for a trip on a cross-country tanker truck to record his impressions of their overland delivery operations.

Varied Experiences

Professor Shipley emphatically doesn't fit the stereotype of the cloistered academician. In his pre-professional days he held a variety of jobs. Following his graduation from Washington University, St. Louis in 1921, he tried his hand at journalism—as a reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. After four years as a member of the Fourth Estate Professor Shipley spent some time in the advertising field and later, the coal business. He spent 1926 at Columbia University taking a graduate course in English—and earning his way as "head garbage man" in a women's dormitory, and as a dishwasher in Columbia's Johnson Hall.

"I've had a lot of fun in my day," Professor Shipley said as he looked back on his varied career. "Incidentally, I'm still having it."

Washington Fought Redcoat Army Where History Scholars Now Study

By SAUL SOFER

Two hundred years ago, not even a history librarian could have halted the tumult which occurred on the site where the History Library now stands.

The rebel American armies, under Generals Washington, Putnam and Greene, held off the British redcoats of General Howe on the very spot where today's students serenely study their history.

The Continental Army, according to the history books, was in dire peril of defeat after the British completely routed them in the battle of Long Island.

Washington, feeling that he could not hold New York, thought it best to destroy the city, desolate the country around it and withdraw up the Hudson River. If carried out, this plan according to military experts, would have forced the British to abandon New York and the mouth of the Hudson. It would have left them on the edge of winter without quarters, and in the end probably would have shortened the war.

Under pressure by Congress, Washington reluctantly dropped his plan and accepted the alternative of entrenching his forces ton to gain enough time to rally his broken, demoralized army and to delay General Howe's men until winter began to set in.

Battle Remembered

All that is left today of this historic battle of Harlem Heights is a large bronze plaque, which hangs unnoticed in the History Library. The plaque donated to the College by the Sons of the Revolution in 1905, states: "To the memory of the men of the revolution who stood undimayed by defeat and held their ground on these heights against a powerful enemy. On this site American troops encamped after the battle of Harlem Heights. Here they skirmished and kept their vigils. Here Washington, Putnam and Greene and other heroes of the struggle cheered their spirits and roused them to noble exertion and final triumph."

Swimmers Drown Kelly Green; Trasen Standout

By BERT ROSENTHAL

Led by Ben Trasen's three first place finishes, the St. Nicholas Heights swimmers splashed to a 48-35 victory against the Manhattan mermen, last Saturday. The match was held at Horace Mann High School, the loser's "home" pool.

For the first time this season no record shattering performances were scored, as the pool was considered to be "slow."

In capturing their third consecutive triumph and fourth in five outings, the natators employed a small squad to great advantage, while garnering eight out of ten first places. They had previously beaten Brooklyn Poly, Lafayette, and Fordham, with Columbia having inflicted the only defeat upon them.

Trasen, in accounting for fifteen points, predominated in the fifty-yard, 100-yard and 440-yard freestyle events.

Reliable Howie Schloemer won his specialty, the 220-yard freestyle event with young sophomore Jimmy Johnson finishing second. Johnson also registered a second in the 100-yard freestyle behind Trasen to tally six points.

Barrel-chested Tony Sousa also scored a first in his feature race, the 150-yard medley with a time of 1:49.1. Sol Stern recorded a mild upset when he sped to a 2:33 clocking in the 220-yard backstroke to defeat the Kelly

Millrose:--City Finally Places Via Shot Put

For the first time in the college's history, the track team scored in the Millrose Game Meets conducted last Saturday. Joe Kuschner placed fourth in the shotput with a toss of forty-eight feet, six and one half inches during the afternoon field events held at Baker Field.

The thincad's coach, Harold Anson "Doc" Bruce, who announced the entire meet program, described the Games as the most perfect set of athletic events currently in existence. He cited Fred Schmetz, its director, for his twenty-five years of excellent service on behalf of the National College Track Coaches Association (NCTCA).

This Saturday the harriers will compete in the New York Athletic Club Games in Madison Square Garden. The Bruccemen will only be able to enter a one or two mile relay team because of the lack of trackmen. Fred Thomson, one of the best relay men on the squad has graduated. According to Coach Bruce "His loss will be greatly felt in future events and we haven't as yet found anyone to replace him."

Matmen Bow To Tough Foe As Balot Ties

The City College Wrestling team, winless in three previous matches, suffered their worst defeat of the season Saturday, bowing to a powerful Lock Haven State Teachers College squad, 35-2. An estimated crowd of 1300 people turned out to watch the match, held in Lock Haven.

The only bright spot for the Beavers in an otherwise devastating afternoon was a draw in the 157 lb. class between Norm Balot, the College's blind wrestling star, and Henry Shaw of Lock Haven. Not only did this prevent the Lavender grapplers from suffering the further ignominy of a shut-out, it enabled Norm to continue an unbeaten skein which includes three wins in regular play and five straight exhibition victories.

This Saturday, matmen will again go after their first victory of the campaign, when they tangle with the United States Merchant Marine Academy at City

Green's Ken Santucci and his teammate Arnie Farber. Lou Ruffino placed first ahead of the Jasper's Dick Thorton and the Beaver's Marv Gettleman with a total of 40.76 points.

With Stern, Bob Kellogg and Roy Schlachter swimming, the aquamen swept the 300-yard medley, the opening match on the program with a time of 3:18.7. In the other relay, the 440-yard freestyle, which the mermen won by approximately twenty-five seconds resulted in a disqualification because of a false start and illegal turns. Illegal turns also prevented breastroker Phil Duckett from a second place finish.

The squad, along with their coach Jack Rider will travel to Kings Point, N. Y. this afternoon to engage the U. S. Merchant Marine Academy, and then return home to swim the Hunter aquamen Saturday afternoon.

Baby Hoopsters Meet Army Today; Compiling Best Record in Years

With seven games remaining on the schedule, the College's freshman basketball team, under Coach Dave Polansky, has a chance to be the first frosh outfit in several seasons to compile a winning record. The yearlings have a 5-3-1 mark so far this season and this afternoon they travel up the Hudson to West Point to tangle with the United States Military Academy Piebes.

That 5-3-1 mark is a strange one, in that ties in basketball are as rare as a seat in the cafeteria. The deadlock occurred on January 12 in East Orange, N.J., when the cubs fought through two overtimes to a 55-55 finish against the Upsala JV.

Everything went against the Beavers that night. First of all, the halves were sixteen minutes rather than the conventional twenty. Second, the officials seemed hesitant to call personal fouls against the home team and only two fouls were charged against Upsala in the entire first half. To cap the evening's entertainment, the officials insisted that the third extra session be "sudden death." Coach Polansky refused, since college rules do not call for sudden death. At that point the officials called the game a tie.

According to Polansky, the yearlings played their best game of the year in the tie affair, losing the ball only eight times all evening, which is excellent for a freshman squad.

and defensive player. Others who are ineligible for one reason or another are Joe Santagata, George Cerny, and Len Wailer.

The cubs had their easiest test of the season last Thursday against Montclair, winning by an 83-43 score. The count could have been much higher save for the fact that Coach Polansky used the reserves quite a bit.

The toughest game of the slate figures to be next Tuesday's tilt with Fordham. The Ramlets boast an unbeaten outfit and have yet to be extended in crushing some teams as Seton Hall, Hofstra, St. Francis, and Columbia. They have scored over 100 points several times and in Jim Cunningham, a 6-foot 2-inch Buffalo lad, boast a player who is averaging better than thirty points-per-game.

The frosh will go most of the way from now on with six players: Joel Ascher, Richie Garber, John Kenneally, Bruce Schwed, Frank Shovlin, and Bob Silver. Silver, however, is recuperating from a sprained ankle thus placing the immediate burden on the shoulders of the remaining five.

'Five' Meets Bridgeport And St. Francis of Bklyn

By Herschel Nissenson

Within the space of the next three days the College's basketball team will face one of its newest and one of its oldest rivals. The newcomer to the schedule is the University of Bridgeport, who will be facing the Lavender for the first time, while the old rival is St. Francis College of Brooklyn. The St. Francis clash will be the twenty-ninth in a series which dates back to 1921.

Tomorrow evening the hoopsters will engage Bridgeport's "Purple Knights" in Bridgeport, Conn. While not too much is known about the lads from the Nutmeg State, as far as can be ascertained from the wire services they have compiled a 4-won, 7-lost record this season.

The Knights have beaten Yeshiva, Brooklyn Poly, Plymouth (NH), and New Haven State Teachers. Of these victories, only the Brooklyn Poly tilt was close. On the other hand, however, Bridgeport has been roundly thumped by Manhattan (101-63), Rider, New York AC, Hillyer, American International St. Anselm's and Adelphi (66-59).

Holman Scouts Knights
Coach Nat Holman scouted the Knights in their season opener with Manhattan and reports that they do not have much height, although several players do go about 6-3. The Beavers expect that Bridgeport will throw up a zone defense. The zone is liable to puzzle the hoopsters inasmuch as they have lost guards Jack McGuire and Bernie Cohen who were effective against this type of defense. Also gone are Teddy Brimat, whose heavy program has forced him to quit the squad, and Norm Goldhaber, who is ineligible.

For tomorrow's game Coach Holman will choose his backcourt duo from a trio consisting of Ralph Schefflan, a sophomore, Dave Simmons and Walt Tannenbaum, seniors. Tannenbaum, who missed five games earlier in the season due to a pulled muscle, has gotten the nod in the past two contests.

On Saturday night the cage will meet St. Francis in the Madison Gym. The Beaver cubs will face the Terrier JV in the opener at 6:30 PM. The varsity game will be televised over WATV (Ch. 13) at 8:30.

Over the years the Lavender

Merv Shorr High Scorer

has compiled a substantial 23-edge in the series with the Brooklynites, but Danny Lynch outfit has taken the last three contests, last year by a 71-50 score.

Hold 11-5 Record
The Terriers have won eleven out of sixteen games this season having lost to such teams as Mount St. Mary's, Fordham, St. John's, Manhattan, and Holy Cross. The losses to the three metropolitan teams have just about eliminated the Franciscans from any hopes they might have had of successfully defending their mythical Metropolitan title. The Terriers have defeated New Britain State Teachers Pace Providence, Toronto, Nationalist China, Loyola (Balt.), Fairleigh Dickinson, Fairfield, Siena, Ithaca and St. Peter's.

St. Francis' big men are Al Inniss a 6-foot 7-inch freshman (since St. Francis has an enrollment of less than 500 male students, freshmen are permitted to play varsity ball), and Walt Adamushko, a 6-foot 6-inch sophomore. Inniss is an outstanding defensive player and won the Most Valuable Player award in the St. John's game.

Terrier Stars
Up front the Terriers have George Fox, a 6-foot 2-inch sophomore, Dan Mannix, a 6-foot junior, and Elliott Press a 6-foot 2-inch senior. Mannix is the leading scorer this season.

In the backcourt the Red and Blue has five players from whom to choose. They are Frank Dentico, a 5-foot 10-inch senior, Tony D'Elia, a 5-foot 10-inch freshman, Leo Keegan a 5-foot 11-inch senior, Jim Murphy, a 5-foot 11-inch junior, and Les Yellin, a 5-foot 11-inch freshman. D'Elia and Yellin have been starting of late and may get the nod Saturday night. Anyone wishing to scout the Terriers can tune in Ch. 13 at 8:30 tonight for the St. Francis-Queens game.
