

Times Writer Hits Gallagher Sports Claims

President Buell G. Gallagher's recent charges of professionalism in collegiate sports have been characterized as outdated by Arthur Daley of the New York Times' sports staff.

The shading of the athletic picture is not black, he said, in the paper's Sunday edition, as Dr. Gallagher, claimed, but more of an embarrassing tattle-tale gray. "Dr. Gallagher's charges would have had greater validity a quarter of a century and more ago. In the old days there was such a thing as 'the tramp athlete' . . . there were some who didn't bother going to classes," he said in his article.

The references were to off-the-cuff remarks made by Dr. Gallagher in a speech before the Association of Higher Education on February 28 in which he said, "the players are hired by the highest bidders and play for the day they get—in scholarships, jobs or cash. Whenever you have a big-time team you have a professional team."

Amateur

In the pure and idealistic definition, an amateur, according to Mr. Daley, never capitalizes on his athletic skills whatsoever, but plays only for enjoyment.

"But the 100 per cent amateur is almost as rare as the dodo bird," he said.

"The one safeguard educators have," Mr. Daley pointed out, "is to insist that athletes keep up their marks as legitimate students in legitimate courses."

CONTROVERSY CONTINUES:

Hillel Council Attacks Lists; McCaffrey Plans New Rule

The Hillel Council voted to oppose the compulsory membership list ruling at a meeting "on principle" Monday night. On the suggestion of Rabbi Arthur Zuckerman, Hillel Director, they also decided to refer the matter to their Executive Committee for official wording of a resolution to condemn the new procedure.

Before discussion was held on the subject the Council listened and asked questions of two invited speakers who presented background information on the topic. Gil Robinov of Students for Democratic Action gave a brief history of the problem and explained the reasons why his club was protesting the decision, and Steve Brickman, President of Technology Interfraternity Intersociety Council and a member of the Student-Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, spoke for the new rule.

Robinov stated that members of Hillel were in danger of having their freedom of conscience infringed upon at some future time. He explained that a member might someday want to exercise his constitutional right and not wish to reveal his religious affiliation to someone; yet he is now being forced to list it in his permanent file.

The Council also decided to poll the Hillel membership on the ruling. The poll is expected to be taken within a month, according to Heshy Heller, Vice-President.

Barney McCaffrey Prepares Substitute

Barney McCaffrey, Student Council President, will offer a new substitute proposal for compulsory club lists, informed sources revealed yesterday. The plan is expected to be brought up at the next meeting of the Student Faculty Committee on Student Affairs on March 29.

McCaffrey's proposal, according to these sources, will ask for complete membership lists for all clubs at the College. As with other substitutes offered, McCaffrey's proposal will make a special exception for political and religious clubs. This substitute will ask that political and religious clubs must submit full membership lists from which a student's name may be expunged at the time of his graduation, if he so requests.

The McCaffrey substitute would not put the names of students who object on master lists. Master lists, as presently planned, will hold the names of political and religious club members with only descriptions "member of political club" or "member of religious club."

McCaffrey's revision of the ruling would be similar to one offered on February 23 at an SFCSA meeting by Al Eisenkraft, President of House Plan. At that time Eisenkraft recommended that members of political and religious clubs be given the alternative of not having to put their names on the master list if he did not want to do so.

Professor Easton to Receive Freedom Week Presentation

Professor Stewart C. Easton (History) has been selected as the recipient of this year's "Academic Freedom Award." The decision was announced after a meeting of the Executive Board of the Academic Freedom Week committee last Friday afternoon.

The award, which is given annually to "the faculty member at the College who has done the most work in the fields of academic freedom and student rights," was presented last year to Professors Mark Brunswick (Chairman, Music). It will be awarded to Professor Easton at a ceremony in Knittle Lounge on April 29 which will culminate a week of various activities on the theme of Academic Freedom.

Professor Easton has been teaching at the Main Center for two and a half years. He is the faculty advisor to the Student Government, Students for Democratic Action, and Observation Post. He has also been active in other student activities and is presently taking part in helping SDA try to work out a solution to the compulsory membership list problem.

Alumni Honors Otis at Dinner

The City College Club honored William Bradley Otis, former Professor of English at the College, at a testimonial dinner held last week at the Hotel Astor.

Professor Otis entered the College in 1904 and was one of sixteen professors who led the fight to end compulsory ROTC. He is also known as the founder of the first course in American literature here at the College.

Calling Professor Otis "a service and fortress in my time of great need," Professor Nat Holman (Hygiene) praised him for his service as chairman of a committee which supported him during the basketball scandal.

Among others honoring Professor Otis was E. V. Harburg '18, author of "Bloomer Girl" and "Finians Rainbow," and Ben Graver, radio announcer.

SG President Hits Bookstore Chairman as 'Undemocratic'

By CLAIRE KATZ

Barney McCaffrey, Student Government President, today charged the Advisory Committee to the City College Book Store with using "undemocratic and heavy-handed methods" in its policies regarding open meetings and representation.

The Bookstore Committee, which is composed of three faculty members, three students, and a faculty chairman, who votes in case of ties, maintains a policy of holding closed "executive" sessions, allowing the managers of the stores non-voting representation. The Committee had agreed last semester, after SG agitation, to hold a special meeting to discuss the possibilities of open meetings and non-voting employee representation. Contrary to this decision, Professor Nathan Seitelman (Accountancy), Chairman of the Committee, sent a questionnaire to the committee members, by which, McCaffrey asserted, "the Chairman is trying to prejudice the case beforehand." The SG President refused to answer the questionnaire, in protest.

"This Committee is certainly far behind the times," McCaffrey stated. "The Student Faculty Committee on Student Affairs and Student Faculty Fee Committee are certainly more controversial than this one, yet they both hold open meetings."

Professor Seitelman has released a letter containing the consensus of the poll, which reveals that the members are opposed to granting listeners' attendance to students "and employee representation at committee meetings." The Chairman has placed this matter on the agenda of the next regular meeting, to be held early in April.

A Question of 'Libel'

Aroused at some comments in an Observation Post editorial which lamented the role of student government at Brooklyn College, the editors of the school's newspaper, Kingsman, have accused OP of "libeling Brooklyn College students, faculty members and administrators in general, and BC's Executive Council, Senate and Kingsman."

Unfortunately, the BC editors, who have a very vague idea of exactly what the term "libel" means, did not check the facts before they took us to task.

In fact, at the end of their lengthy and unsubstantiated diatribe, they declared, "Although Kingsman agrees in general with OP's stand, it cannot condone the paper's methods." It is heartening to see that they "agree" with us in general and, if they had read OP's issue of March 3 (one day before they appeared) they would have discovered that ample space was given to faculty members concerned with the Debate Council situation. Their editorial charged that we distorted the facts by not presenting the faculty's position.

A peculiar aspect of the Kingsman's editorial is that they haven't troubled to substantiate their nebulous charge of "libel." We would advise the Kingsman, in future, not to cry libel whenever the truth is too shocking and strikes home too hard.

It would also be well for Kingsman to remember their own words of less than a year ago in commenting on the local situation. "Those students who challenge and question rather than accept blindly are decreasing in number."

Noted Without Comment

Brooklyn College Kingsman, March 4, 1955—Richard Johnson, one of Senate's representatives to the Faculty Student Committee on Student Organizations (FSCSO), has been informed that he can not participate in extra-curricular activities for the remainder of this semester. The notification came in the form of a letter from Dean of Students Herbert Stroup.

Dean Stroup's letter stated in part. "In view of the student activities schedule which you have maintained, and the significant drain upon your attention and energies that it has involved, I am writing you that I must declare you ineligible for membership on the FSCSO and for officerships in student activities."

The dean also stated that Mr. Johnson's academic standing was barely adequate. It has been stressed that this action was taken only with Mr. Johnson's best interest in mind.

Date Service, Nights of Fun Planned at SU

Beards and barbers may finally come together in harmony—not at Army Hall, but in its roomier replacement, the Student Union Building.

A tentative list of activities scheduled for the Union features both a beard-growing contest and a barbershop quartet. Alphabetically arranged, the ten-page list has canasta instruction rubbing verbal elbows with campus cleanliness, and proms along with a pinochle tournament.

Music also comes into the picture. Practice pianos and music rehearsal rooms are promised, together with outdoor summer concerts, organ recitals, group sings and jam sessions. Open-air life is by no means neglected. Boat trips and bus excursions, along with a series of camping trips and hikes insure sufficient contact with nature. Indoor sport is always in season at SU, too; the brochure promises a record listening room, pool instruction, hostess service, and a date bureau. There is also cryptic mention of a "fun day of fun night."

For the hobby-minded, clubs in ceramics, art, dance and the drama abound, while more esoteric needs will be answered by a model airplane group, a pet show, and a puppet performance. The faculty will join the fun in a President's and Deans' reception, an exhibition of student and faculty art, and a faculty advisor liaison group.

Numerous instruction courses, enabling those taking them to obtain a mastery of all subjects from dancing to cribbage will attempt to lay the groundwork for the fevered activity ahead.

Wheels'—Like Bissons—Go Rolling Along!

Blessed are those who go and in circles for they shall come rolling wheels." This is the motto of the newly formed Rolling Wheel Society, whose purpose is to "help increase student participation in the college's extra-curricular program by the judicious use of wheels."

The Society was born in a physics class, "when we were discussing rolling wheels and rolling friction such as a rolling ball saves nine" and "something's rolling in Denmark," says Joel Mick, Vice President of the Society. "Some of the boys in the class decided that an organization should be created to perpetuate these ideas. We didn't get rolling until this term when I found myself in the same class with one of the original wheels. We agreed something should be done to save our old plans."

The Society is divided into the three parts of the wheel; the hub, which forms the executive, the spokes which comprise the social committee, and the rim which consists of the general membership.

Happy Birthday was sung to the College students who might be celebrating their natal days, at the first meeting last Thursday and club slips for the Student Faculty Committee on Student Affairs were filled with "wheel" instead of member. As the official Club song goes, "rolling wheels never die, they just roll away."

Your search is over when you light up a Lucky. You'll find out why college smokers prefer Luckies to all other brands, as shown by the latest, greatest college survey. Eighteen Returnees Brighten Diamondmen's 1955 Outlook

By STAN WECKER

When baseball comes, can Spring be far behind? On February 9, almost a month before their major league brethren departed for milder climes, over sixty hopeful athletes turned out in force for the first practice session of the City College baseball team. The squad, bolstered by the return of eighteen lettermen, figures to better its poor 1954 showing, which saw the Beavers win but four of twelve contests, to finish in a tie with Brooklyn for the Met Conference cellar.

"Skip" Mishkin, pointed out that over half of the aspirants were freshmen, and therefore were not eligible for competition, since City has no freshman team. "This situation really handicaps the development of the varsity," he complained. "The kids lose a year of valuable experience, and even when they come up it's hard to experiment with them when you have to play for keeps."

The new mentor has presently cut the squad to twenty five and hopes to become more familiar with his players when Lewisohn Stadium is available for serious workouts. On the basis of last season's performances, Coach LaPlace will probably field a team composed largely of veterans.

John Ryan figures to be the starting first sacker, while Mike Kucklinka, co-captain, will shift from his shortstop post to cover second base. Roaul Nacinovich, who replaces Kucklinka at shortstop, and third baseman Ed Lubitz round out the infield.

Co-Captain Jim Cohen, one of the steadiest performers on the squad returns behind the bat.

Coach LaPlace will select his three flychasers from a quartet composed of Lou Bernero, Al Wolfman, Nick Hrinkevich and Vince Ciccone, while Dom Tene-relli is slated to see extensive service as number one utility man.

The pitching staff has been strengthened by the appearance of several promising rookies, but last season's mainstay, Joe Galleta, again figures to be the big gun. Bernie Spiro will probably be the number two starter. The team will be handicapped by lack of a southpaw hurler.

Smugglers

Among the City Colleges host at the CCNY-NYU basketball game last Thursday, were some real cloak-and-dagger men.

Speeding toward the Fordham gym Thursday evening a car full of students fell to work hacking away at a coffin. Dissembling the box with knives and bare hands, the first part of the mission was accomplished. Their goal was to slip the coffin, traditional at CCNY-NYU contests, into the gym despite the special police posted there this year to keep it out.

Their dagger work being done, the students hid the pieces of the coffin under their greatcoats and one by one gained successful entrance into the gym.

Finally assembled, they triumphantly began to parade it around. The appearance of The Thing caused a riot and when the coffin had gone half around the gym a horde of wrathful NYU men swept down upon it and after a lusty brawl destroyed it.

SportOPics

By Herschel Nissenson

The game had just ended. Up on the floor the Brooklyn College supporters were mobbing Coach Placido Gomez and his players. The big hero from the Brooklyn standpoint was Barry Brunstein, who had spent practically the entire contest on the free throw line. Bill Lewis was the first one to enter the locker room. He crumpled his warm-up jacket into a loose ball and hurled it against one of the metal lockers.

The rest of the team trooped in slowly, silently. Coach Nat Holman sat slumped on one of the benches. Captain Merv Shorr, close to tears, flopped exhausted several feet from Holman.

The players showered, dressed quickly and left.

The last one to leave was Shorr, the Beavers' captain. He had played his last two games with a rubber sponge in his right sneaker to protect a ruptured blood vessel from any further damage. He played the last eleven games with a brace on his left knee to protect an injury he had suffered in the Queens game. Now that the season is over he will have the leg X-rayed to determine the extent of the injury.

The effect Shorr's injuries had on the team was not evident in the scoring column, for he tallied thirty-nine markers in the last two games. However, Merv accounted for only seven rebounds against NYU and nine against Brooklyn, far below his season's average of nineteen.

On Saturday night as he limped out of the locker room he managed to conceal the pain in his legs, but a CCNY team had lost for the first time to another municipal college, and he could not conceal the pain in his heart.

SOME SIDE, SOME SNIDE REMARKS:

My all-opponent team from the CCNY viewpoint would include Brunstein (Brooklyn), Ed Conlin (Fordham), Chet Forte (Columbia), Al Inniss (St. Francis) and Connie Perry (Montclair) . . . George Fox, St. Francis' high-jumping forward, attended CCNY Evening Session during Spring '53 and played on the same Evening Session team with Ralph Schefflan of the Lavender varsity . . . Bill Lewis of the Beavers was captain of the Brooklyn Tech varsity when Al Inniss of St. Francis was a substitute . . . Irwin Blumenreich, Yeshiva University's high-scoring forward, played freshman ball here three years ago . . . This column disagrees with Coach Johnny Bach of Fordham who accused Referee Jimmy Lennon of having "no guts." After seeing Lennon officiate at Brooklyn College we would be inclined to say that he has "no eyes." . . . What has Jammy Moskowitz got against City College?

Record Books Rewritten by Shorr; 'Baby Tank' Breaks 4 Standards

Although the College's basketball team finished its season with a poor 8-10 record, Captain Mervyn Shorr experienced an outstanding campaign, smashing almost every CCNY scoring mark.

The 6-foot 4-inch, 220 pound senior's chief accomplishment was the breaking of the career scoring record previously held by Irwin Dambrot.

Dambrot, in four years on the varsity (1947-50), had accumulated a total of 977 points, Shorr's twenty-five point output against Brooklyn College last Saturday enabled him to conclude his three-and-one-half year varsity career with 992.

The outstanding feature of the new mark is that Shorr played but sixty contests, whereas Dambrot participated in ninety-eight.

During the season Merv averaged 24.4 points-per-game, shattering the standard of 17.7 established by Jerry Domershick during the 1952-53 campaign. In eighteen contests Shorr tallied better than thirty points three times, better than twenty points twelve times, and hit in double figures every game.

In addition, Shorr pulled down 342 rebounds, an average of nineteen a game. His rebounding average was lowered somewhat in the NYU and Brooklyn tilts, when, playing with a ruptured blood vessel in his right foot, the "baby tank" could only clear the boards sixteen times, seven against NYU and nine against the Kingsmen.

Another mark which was erased from the books was the one-game standard of thirty-six set by Shorr last year against Montclair. Merv dropped in thirty-seven against Hunter and then notched thirty-eight in the Upsala clash.

In all, the burly Bronxite amassed a total of 441 points to smash the regular season mark of 376 set by Ed Roman during the 1949-50 campaign. Roman actually tallied 475 points that season, but ninety-nine of them came in the NIT and NCAA tournaments. Besides his scoring achievements, Shorr had a 41.1% field goal average. Second only to Jack McGuire's 45.9%.

Merv Shorr
Record Smasher

McGuire, who played only the first ten contests before using up his eligibility, averaged 17.1 points-per-game. The only other Beaver to score in double figures was Herb Jacobsohn with an eleven point average.
