Javits Outlines Program '58... Of Advance for the City

Attorney General Jacob K. Javits outlined a six-point program for the future development of the city last night before an alumni gathering. Speaking at the seventy-fifth annual dinner of the Alumni Association, in the Hotel

Sheraton-Astor's Grand Ballroom Mr. Javits said he felt the following points were essential for city's progress:

- An atomic energy development program on the state level to insure future prosperity of the metropolitan area as well as the whole state. Toward this end, he called for the establishment of a State Atomic Energy Commission, with appropriate advisory committees of scientists and citizens.

This group, he said, should devise methods to encourage private atomic development within the city and state, and "survey the possibilities of the generation, transmission and sale of electric power from atomic energy."

- Citing the importance of the Port of New York to the City, he hoped that in spite of the forced resignation of a Porth Authority member he considered very capable, the effectiveness and prestige of the Port Authority would increase. He viewed the Port Authority's most important job as the winning of the longshoremen's confidence. Attacking the International Longshoremen's Association as racket-tainted, he charged that the union was not giving its members the "job security and dignity to which they are entitled."

- In spite of the "most adventurous construction" in public buildings, office buildings and public housing that the "world

Jacob K. Javits
Outlines Six Point Plan

has ever seen," we need building on a "hitherto unattained scale" to meet our requirements. The attorney-general said that about 300,000 people in New York City live in substandard dwellings.

- To balance the move to the suburbs, Mr. Javits recommended that serious consideration be given to dealing with the problems of transportation "on a regional basis rather than local." He viewed the state government as the logical leader in such planning.

- Civic responsibility analogous to that of a small town can be established in New York City. "In such problems as the grave emergency in juvenile delinquency and youth crime, the integration of newcomers and the redevelopment of sections of the community, neighborhood community responsibility is indispensable."

- Citizen participation in the solution of the city's problems was viewed by the attorney-general as a common sense realization that "as the City goes" so goes the status of the citizen's capital investments here.

College medals were presented to distinguished citizens, including Dr. Jonas E. Salk, who received his award in absentia.

Seniors...

- Senior Day and the vocational guidance seminar will be discussed at today's Senior Class meeting in the Grand Ballroom of the Finley Student Center at 12:15 PM.

- A tea and dance have already been set for Senior Day which will be held on Nov. 23.

- The vocational guidance seminar will be held on Thursday, November 17 at 7:15 PM in the Grand Ballroom of the Student Center. Alumni from the Class of 1941 will act as advisors to the seniors.

Two Class of '58 positions are open on the Student Council. Any members of the class who are interested in filling the position may apply in Room 205 Finley Student Center at 12:30 PM this afternoon. The positions are open also to the resignations of Stu Schaar and Rosanne Farkas.

Finley Center Shuts Floors For Cleaning

The second and third floors of the Finley Student Center will be closed down for a one week period beginning 2 PM Thursday, November 17, David Newton, Associate Director of the Center, announced yesterday.

During this period, the rooms and corridors of these floors will be painted and varnished. In addition, various small repairs will be made in the area.

The close-down affects various publications, several lounges and the ping pong, pool, and game rooms.

Mr. Newton also announced that the fourth floor of the Center will probably not be opened this semester. Opening of the floor is dependent on repair of the roof and the painting and varnishing of fifteen rooms. Contractors have not been let out yet for the repair of the roof. Mr. Newton estimated that it will be two to four weeks before the roof is repaired.

Brophy Won't Trust Students With Center Plans: DeMaio

Joe DeMaio, Chairman of the Board of Managers Agency, yesterday accused Dr. Daniel F. Brophy (Dean of Students) with a "lack of confidence in the ability of students to act responsibly in affairs which concern them and the Finley Student Center."

DeMaio made the accusations after he learned that the Managers Agency will not have certain responsibilities in the day-to-day operation of the Center that he had thought would be under its jurisdiction.

Yesterday, Gloria Kingsley (SC President) conferred with Dean Brophy in order to clear up the

Publication Comm. Draws SC Attack

By FRED BORETZ and DAVE GROSS

The setting up of a committee of professional journalists to evaluate student publications was unanimously condemned last night by Student Council. SC termed as "a form of indirect censorship" that part of the resolution of the Board of Higher Education which requires the Committee to report any publication which does not cooperate. The motion introduced by Arnold Deutchman '53 representative, also requested the

President Buell G. Gallagher
His Suggestion Condemned

BHE to reevaluate this resolution.

A further Council objection was the fact "neither the Student Government, nor the College publications were consulted, prior to the formation of this Committee, as the BHE has presently designed it to function."

Council referred to the College, as one of the few remaining colleges with absolute and complete freedom of the press and possessing no body, primarily constituted to review newspapers and other publications, prior to the establishment of this committee.

The motion also quoted the Student Bill of Rights, a part of SC's by-laws, as upholding, "the right of students to establish and issue regular student directed publications, free of any censorship or other pressures aimed at controlling editorial policy," and reaffirmed Council's support of its basic policy declaration.

President Buell G. Gallagher announced the establishment of this committee last week because he had been, concerned over the performance level of some of the publications bearing the College name.

The members of this Committee are Fred Hechinger '42, Education Editor of The New York Herald Tribune; Dr. Benjamin Fine, Education Editor of The New York Times and Thomas Brennan of the Legal Department of the Hearst Corporations.

The Committee will issue a report after each semester evaluating the standards of the College publications on, "ethical, literary, meritorious and journalistic" basis.

Iris Goldstein, SC Secretary, applauded the unanimous action of Council as being, "in keeping with the democratic concepts of freedom of the press."

SC Vice-President, Joel Resnick, stated that this resolution was, "in accordance with the previous policies of the National Student Association and Student Government."

Chmn. of BHE Reveals Lack Of Instructors

"At present the municipal colleges are supplying more than sixty per cent of the teaching staffs of the City's public schools," Dr. Joseph B. Cavallaro, Chairman of the Board of Higher Education, said on Wednesday, November 2. He was addressing the Education Society of Brooklyn College.

Dr. Cavallaro stated that, "a new and serious shortage in the secondary schools now threatens," despite the 10,000 prospective teachers in the four City colleges. He went on to say that the one third of our matriculated undergraduates in addition to the 2,500 student candidates working toward their Master's degree, represent one of the largest groups of prospective teachers in the country.

Paternalism

An era of benevolent paternalism seems to have dawned at City College.

The appointment last week, of three journalists as a committee to review all publications here, and the accompanying warning issued by the Board of Higher Education to all publications which might prove uncooperative, has confirmed our belief that such an era is now with us.

Apparently the belief that students must be taken by the hand and carefully shown how to conduct their extra-curricular affairs has become the prevalent view among the members of the BHE and many members of the Administration here.

Of course, it is easy to assume that we are now only concerned for our own skins, and that the creation of this review committee is a real threat neither to the press nor to the student body. But it appears that the same sort of medicine which has recently been dealt out to the political clubs in the form of membership lists is now being administered to us, regardless of whether or not we feel ill.

Although it is a mild and subtle-looking form of medication, its implications are dangerous. Its administrators have written the following prescription.

"Someone is peering over your shoulder. Be careful of what you do, say or write and, be prepared to pay the consequences."

This kind of pressure is not new at the College. The creation of compulsory membership lists was the first example. They were started under the guise that it was long overdue for students to have the courage of their convictions, and that they should be man enough to stand up and be counted for their political views—even if it might later deprive them of their livelihood. No longer are the principles of non-conformity and progressivism to be fostered at this institution. Those benighted days are over—students must now learn that an era has dawned at the College which looks with contempt upon nurturing any muckrakers or possible political mavericks.

City College is now becoming "respectable," and the Administration, with the best wishes of the BHE, is going to show the student body the right road to conformity and how not to let the tax-payers down.

The two most obvious examples of attempts to instill this fervor are the membership lists and the publications review committee. But there are other examples, although they may not be as striking.

Most of the recommendations by the Buckvar Committee, which was appointed by President Gallagher to investigate the concept of student government at the College, have been conveniently shelved. This committee recommended giving the students a real voice in their own extra-curricular government. Unfortunately, the untimely death of Professor Oscar Buckvar and the graduation of the students most actively concerned with the committee left few people to remember its work.

Also, there have been ominous rumblings concerning the administration of the Finley Student Center. It seems that students may have trouble deciding its policies for themselves—and having the policies stick. We hope this will not be the case.

Students at the College will always appreciate friendly interest and advice in their problems. But they must be trusted to learn responsibility by assuming it, not by having someone else's version thrust on them. Moral courage and independent thought can be shaped during the college years—if students are left with freedom to learn these qualities by themselves, as, in the long run, they must.

Note

Speaking of the review committee on journalism, we would like to offer a pertinent statement written in 1644, by one John Milton:

"It cannot be denied that he who is made judge to sit upon the birth or death of books, whether they may be wafted into this world or not, had need to be a man above the common measure, both studious, learned, and judicious . . . If he be of such worth as behooves him, there cannot be a more tedious and displeasing journey-work, a greater loss of time levied upon his head, than to be made the perpetual reader of unchosen books and pamphlets, off-times huge volumes . . . To be enjoined the reading of that at all times . . . is an imposition which I cannot believe now he that values time and his own studies . . . should be able to endure."

College Prof. Rules Isle In Pacific--Bans Women

By DEBI WEISSTEIN

A wartime call to "Bali Hai" was answered by Professor Milton Offut (History), who governed a South Sea island during part of World War II.

The first thing that he did as governor was to remove all the women from the island and send them elsewhere. "That surely saved a lot of trouble right there," said the Professor.

The history professor was navigator of a repair ship which was anchored near the New Hebrides Islands. His Admiral needed a man to govern the Melanesian natives, and sailors "at liberty." As the navigator, Professor Offut was idle while his ship was docked, so he was chosen governor. "I was the Admiral's 'neck,'" he

"The Governor will insure that the men ashore on liberty are not bitten by mosquitoes."

"When a new officer read the missive, he asked me what I had done about it, relates Professor Offut. I took the new man to the edge of the jungle and picked up a hollow lead pipe. I lifted it to my lips and cried, 'Now hear this! Now hear this! The mosquitoes will not bite the men.'"

The governor was given the job of designing and constructing toilets for the people on the island.

Bali Hai Called

explains. "If anything went wrong, I was completely responsible."

He set up a baseball diamond in a jungle clearing. By the end of the day, the field was covered with broken soda bottles. Men cut their hands and faces sliding on the ground. They were taken to the Governor's Mansion, a small, white shack, to be treated by the governor, who also acted as doctor and chief of police. "Because the water was contaminated with everything from dysentery germs to liver flukes," he remarks, "I had to cleanse their wounds with the sterile alcohol of ordinary beer."

The Admiral once sent a dispatch to the island which read,

With the aid of some of the men, he built two mammoth latrines of steel and concrete, one of which held 4,000 men. "It was upsetting to the dignity," remarks the Professor, "but I gave them the best."

Commenting on the natives, Professor Offut says that they were good businessmen. When they saw that they couldn't make enough grass skirts to keep up with the demand, they imported quantities of skirts from a factory in New Zealand.

After four months, the repair ship left the island to set up bases in new positions. "I was never governor again," exclaims the professor, "I carefully avoided that."

SportOPics

By Bert Rosenthal

While most other campuses ring with the sound of football chatter and enthusiasm during the fall sports campaign, City College has to be content to shout its "Allagaroo's" for the Beaver soccer team.

That's nothing to be ashamed of though, because the booters have established themselves as a perennial national power. As a matter of fact, the Lavender has won the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Soccer League championship in three of the last four years. To add further to its prestige, City had earlier this season, victimized a West Point squad, 3-2; the Cadets being an eleven that is usually rated in the upper echelon of soccer ranks.

The soccermen had compiled a string of sixteen consecutive conference games without a defeat until they collided with traditional rival Brooklyn on Tuesday; who were the last Met conquerors of City by a 1-0 margin in 1953.

Tuesday's rough and tumble fracas seemed like it would be a replica of the contest played two years previous, even though the Lavender were pre-game favorites on the basis of comparative results and because of its higher league standing. It was obvious, however, that the Brooklyn bully boys didn't believe in the inevitable, as they performed with the fierceness and determination of a winning aggregation. They battled the Beavers on even terms for the entire first half and trod off the Lewisohn Stadiums terrain at intermission deadlocked at 0-0.

This would be a moral victory to City soccer opponents, but the Flatbush outfit seemed even firmer in its conviction that they could upset the champs. Dick Breyer, the visitor's goalie, had thwarted all scoring attempts by the Beaver high scoring forward wall, led by All-American Johnny Koutsantanou, and including Wolfgang Wostl, Morris Hocherman, Fred Bonnet and Billy Arnhelter.

Matters looked even brighter for the Kingsmen when its left winger Conrad Bautz scored on a breakaway play at 5:25 of the third period. The occasion marked the first time this season that any Met team had gained a lead against the forces of Harry Karlin. City pressed and hounded the Maroon defense, but could not capitalize on any scoring opportunities.

As the fray was "supposedly" drawing to its climax, and the Beavers were still trailing 1-0, a "Kingsmen" sportswriter was heard to bellow from the sidelines to his school's netminder, "Dick (Breyer), now you can relax in a rocking chair. The game's in the bag. There's only thirty seconds to play."

Thirteen seconds later that same budding journalist was made to eat his words. City captain and halfback, Bob Hayum had lofted an out of bounds kick, which Koutsantanou was able to raise past the outstretched hands of Breyer for the tying goal, with a spinning head shot into the upper right corner of the twines.

Sure enough, in the first five-minute overtime stanza that ensued, the discrepancy in team quality that was evident in the second half began to tell. At 2:25, Hocherman, after taking adept passes from Kouts and Robert LeMestre, rammed the sphere past Breyer for the clinching tally. The goal also enabled City to regain the league lead by one point over idle Hunter.

Speaking of Hunter, the high flying and hustling Hawks will be performing against the Lavender in Lewisohn Stadium next Monday at 2:30 PM, in a battle for the Met conference crown. Why don't YOU come out and support the soccermen, who need and richly deserve some backing?

Booters Place Met Title On Line Against Hunter

Even though the City College soccer team won Tuesday's Election Day game in a blazing finish, the Met Soccer Championship is still a hotly disputed issue. It seems that a new pretender to the throne, a candidate known as Hunter, will try to usurp the crown when it invades Lewisohn Stadium next Monday to engage the Beavers at 2:30 PM.

The Hawks will base their platform on Messrs. Bob Perez, Gabe Diaz, Gabe Schlisser, and Dick Borow. The first three gents, who occupy the center forward, inside left, and center half-back positions respectively, have each tallied four goals this season, while Borow is considered one of the finest goalies in the league.

Offense Weakened

This will probably be the last match of the year for both squads, for if City comes out victorious against the Hawks, they will have clinched the title, and a game with Fort Schuyler would be unnecessary. Tony Goodyer, left winger; Lance Smith, inside right; and Jack Leiser, right wing complete the Bronxites forward line.

The Citymen will not enter this crucial game at full strength. Vahe Jordan, regular left winger, will be out with a bad case of pneumonia. Stan Spielman, who is an important front line substitute operative, will be unable to compete because of an ankle injury.

The visitor's defense was hampered earlier this season when Vic Abraham was sidelined with an ankle injury, but Schlisser's moving over to center half and the return of Marty Silverberg has lessened the damage.

Beavers Ready and Rarin'

Nevertheless, the Beaver booters will really be up for this game and feel confident of downing Hunter as long as they play rugged, alert ball.

They played listlessly throughout the first three and one half periods of the Brooklyn game, and found themselves trailing, 1-0. Then they began to realize that all their victories this season would mean nothing if they lost this one. They began to hustle, and it eventually paid off. John Koutsantanou tallied on a spinning head-shot with seventeen seconds remaining to send the game into overtime, and Morris Hocherman registered the deciding goal at 2:25 of the first overtime.

Last Game for Six

Last year the Beavers downed an inept Hawk squadron, 4-0, on the losers' field, in a game that featured half-court soccer—always on the Hunter half.

Wolfgang Wostl tallied the first goal after 5:15 of the initial period had elapsed. Despite the fact that City controlled the ball for the remainder of the game, it was unable to find the scoring range until late in the last frame, when Koutsantanou tallied twice and Wostl blazed in the last one with less than a minute remaining.

This match will be the last one in which Kouts, Morris Hocherman, Eddie Trunk, Bob Hayum, Wally Meisen and Vahe Jordan will be playing soccer in a City uniform.

Kouts holds the record for scoring the most goals in a single season (thirteen), and for the most lifetime tallies by a Beaver (thirty-one).

In Hocherman, the Lavender keeps an invaluable playmaker and scorer. Co-captains Trunk and Hayum were two of the main factors in City's success over the past few seasons. Both have been stalwarts on the defense, and Hayum has managed to contribute some timely goals.

John Koutsantanou
Booter's High Scorer

Sport Notes

• The College's rifle squad will engage in its second triangular meet of the season today at 5:30 PM, when they face Hofstra College and Stevens Tech in the Lewisohn Stadium rifle range. It will be the first home engagement for the nimrod's, who split a three-team affair last Friday by placing second to St. John's and defeating Columbia at the Redmen's range.

• The Beaver cheerleaders will hold a meeting in Room 02, Abbe Hall, this afternoon at 12:15 PM. All those interested in joining the College's Beaver Booster organization are urged to attend.

• The scheduled wrestling match at the United States Merchant Marine Academy for Friday, February 17, has been rescheduled for the preceding evening at 7 PM.

• Gus Nacleriq, All-American left winger on last season's Met championship soccer outfit, is currently working for an Army Intelligence organization.

CTC and IC4A Meets on Tap For Harriers Over Weekend

Having finished its dual and triangular meet season with a 3-2 record, the Beaver harriers will finish the cross-country season by competing in the third annual Collegiate Track Conference Championships (CTC) on Saturday and the Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association of America (IC4A) championships on Monday. Both meets will start at 1:30 PM in Van Cortlandt Park.

In defending their CTC crown, the Beavers will oppose New Britain State Teachers College, New Haven State Teachers College, Montclair State Teachers College, Adelphi, Hofstra, Brooklyn College, Iona, and Kings Point. The hill 'n' dalers have beaten Adelphi, 29-28, and lost to Iona, 22-34, in dual competition. Last year's victory was the first cross-country trophy ever won by any City harriers. Bill Kowalski, who finished fifth in 27:11, and Rick Hurford, who took eleventh place will again compete for the Lavender, along with Brian Quinn, Gene Sherman, Gene Forsyth, Ronnie Lindo, Herb Verter and Sal Sorbera.

Judging by this year's performance, the harriers should have a bit more trouble capturing the CTC trophy on Saturday. Iona drubbed the Beavers last Saturday, with two Gaeis O'Donnell Joshua and John Connolly easily outdistancing City's Bill Kowalski. Sophomore Brian Quinn, who was so successful earlier in the season fell off a bit against Iona.

Last season the Beavers finished a sorry last in the IC4A meet, and there is little hope of any great improvement this year over that showing.
