

Traffic, Crime Reports Given Before Council

A report on the traffic and crime situation at the College was given to the Student Council yesterday by Sid Lawrence, Class '56 Representative.

Acting on a request by Lawrence, the Traffic Commission of New York City made a survey of the traffic picture at the College last July. Lawrence is still waiting the survey report, but is hopeful that the "City will take action to see that the campus is no longer a speedway." Discussing the policing of the area around the College, Lawrence said that six policemen are in patrol, 24 hours a day, in the College neighborhood. In addition, there are always eight school guards on the campus during school hours.

To help prevent crime at the college, Lawrence recommended that:

- Students try to walk in a group when leaving the campus at night.
- Students never leave anything in their cars.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of Council last night, Ken Weissman was appointed chairman of the Facilities Agency to replace Paul Siegeman, who resigned.

Senior Council Meets Today

The Senior Class Council will meet this evening in Room 151 of the John H. Finley Student Center. Candidates for the two Class of '56 positions vacant on the Student Council should be at the meeting.

Today is the last day Senior class cards can be obtained at the Senior Class office, Room 151, Finley Student Center.

The Senior Class office will be open:

- Tuesdays 11AM-1PM
- Wednesdays 10AM-11AM
- Thursdays 11AM-3PM
- Fridays 11AM, 1PM

Tickets for the Senior Prom (Dec. 17) and Senior Rings are on sale at the office.

Seniors interested in working on class activities should contact Bob Kahan, Vice President, Class '56, in the Senior office.

Kickoff . . .

Observation Post's candidates' class will get off to a flying start today with a discussion of news writing. Drop around to the OP office, Room 326, Finley Center, at 12:30 PM.

Whether you want to write, draw, juggle business accounts, or take pictures, you'll get the chance on OP. You'll enjoy it, too.

Political Clubs Seeking Agreement on Club Lists

All political clubs on campus, including the Marxist Discussion Club (MDC) and the Young Progressives of America (YPA) will seek to comply with the Membership List Ruling this semester. The YPA and the MDC refused to submit membership lists last semester and as a result lost their charter.

The membership list ruling, passed by the Student Faculty Committee on Student Affairs (SFCSA) one year ago, requires a full membership list from all clubs on campus.

Sima Freedman, President of YPA, said yesterday, "the membership lists present a big danger on campus. They helped to stifle student activities and intensify the fear of the student that he may be deprived of employment because of his college activities." Miss Freedman went on to call the Membership Lists Ruling "unjustified" in view of the present easing of international relationships.

Ms. Freedman said that the YPA will try to submit a membership list in order to obtain a charter. She continued that last semester there were few independent thinking groups on campus and in an effort to alleviate this situation YPA will try to comply with the ruling.

Will Comply With Ruling

Eric Brown, a member of the MDC, said the MDC will comply with the list ruling if no other alternative can be found. Brown emphasized the point that a twelve name membership list, the minimum number needed to obtain a charter, will be submitted only if the MDC is forced into such a move.

He said that he hoped all political clubs would stand together in a refusal to submit membership lists in an effort to make the SFCSA reverse their decision. "The MDC knows," Brown said, "that the student body is overwhelmingly against the membership ruling and that the clubs must stand together in order to voice an effective protest against the ruling."

"SFCSA must take heed, Arnold Adoff, acting President of SDA, said yesterday, "of the students' overwhelming vote against membership lists." Adoff expressed the hope that the SFCSA will reverse their decision and "return to the right path."

Adoff said that SDA, which was the first of the protesting political clubs to comply with the ruling will submit a membership list this semester only if they decide to fight the ruling out in the open.

He continued to say that although the SDA has lost members because of the ruling, SDA still stands firmly opposed to the

BHE Finds K&C at Fault In Center Work Stoppage

In an action late last night, the Board of Higher Education (BHE) declared the K&C Construction Co. responsible for stopping work on Manhattanville Campus last August. K&C had been contracted by the College to renovate ten buildings on South Campus, but removed their workers in August, leaving the work incomplete. The BHE also announced that K&C "served notice on August 24 of their intent to sue the BHE and New York City for $587,784" for work done on the South Campus.

With the K&C contract declared in default, the College will now accept new bids at the "earliest possible moment" for the completion of the renovation of John H. Finley Student Center, according to President Buell G. Gallagher.

The costs for completing the work will be deducted from pay-to be made to K&C. Last August, the K&C Construction Co. walked off the job, claiming that as far as they were concerned the renovation was completed. However, Pres. Gallagher claimed that in some areas the work was not done.

The K&C Co. started the job early this year and they were to have finished all work in March. But the renovation was still in operation in August.

According to the President, fines were imposed on the company for each day after the completion date stated in the contract.

When the bid by K&C was accepted, Robert Mayo, Evening Session Board of Directors, sent a memorandum to Pres. Gallagher stating that K&C was not reliable. He had cited instances in the past where K&C had not properly fulfilled their contracts.

Revenge . . .

The Dodgers will be seeking revenge today at Yankee Stadium and Observation Post will again give an inning by inning account of the game. A radio will be set up just inside the main entrance to the John H. Finley Student Center.

'Sore Throats' Lose Awards

An apparent epidemic of sore throats among winners of House Plan awards is preventing them from receiving their gifts.

Last June, HP named thirteen students, faculty members and alumni as recipients of gold and silver keys for having "given distinguished service to House Plan." Since the keys were not prepared yet, the winners were each given a box of cough drops as a token, to be presented when the awards were ready. The awards are available, but none of the winners still have their box of cough drops.

Gallagher Asks $200,000 Goal for City College Fund

A goal of $200,000 for the coming year was set by President Buell G. Gallagher yesterday at a fund raising luncheon of the City College Fund. Approximately $60,000 a year will be donated to the John H. Finley Student Center. Since the annual operational budget of the Student Center is $124,000, the rest of the money will come from student fees.

Gloria Kingsley, Student Council President, was present at the luncheon. This is the first time a student was ever invited to such an affair. She told the alumni

"how grateful the students are" for the interest the alumni have shown.

The City College Fund has also contributed money to other sections of the College. $17,000 was contributed to Lamport House, Baruch Center House Plan, and $9,500 to the City College Placement Office.

'Greek Week' Heads Events Planned By Inter-Frat Council

The Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC) will sponsor a "Greek Week" from October 3 to October 7. The event will include athletic competition among all the "Greek-lettered" fraternities on the campus.

The tournaments, in which sixteen fraternities will participate, will include softball and swimming competitions. An opening ceremony will take place October 3 on the main lawn of the South Campus.

The softball events will be held every afternoon during that week after 4 PM. The finals will take place on Friday.

Swimming events will be held in the College Pool from 12 to 2 on Thursday.

One team trophy for the highest point score will be presented at the IFC Ball on Thanksgiving weekend.

According to Bob Castle, Vice President of IFC, "The purpose of 'Greek Week' is to promote better relations among the fraternities on the College campus and between fraternities and the College at large."

Drifting Apart

Even before the shift of the School of Liberal Arts & Science to the South Campus, we watched with dismay the springing up of barriers contributing to an increasing separation of the School of Technology from the rest of the College.

The greatest barrier to a strong feeling of unity and the creation of one college community is now a matter of geography. In the interests of efficiency (we assume) all departments of similar degree fields are grouped together, with the School of Technology remaining sequestered on the North Campus. However, efficiency is often carried too far.

This, we believe, is the case embodied in the two requests of the Technology Intersociety and Interfraternity Council (TIIC) to use the Townsend Harris Hall; first, for their regular organizational gatherings, and secondly, for their Thursday evening Tech Leadership Development Program meetings. We believe that TIIC is taking a step in the wrong direction by expressing a desire to remain apart from the other student groups on campus. It is our belief that they should do just the opposite for the following reasons:

- 1) By operating from the Student Center, TIIC will be able to work more closely (and more efficiently) with other student groups—already established in the Center.
- 2) They will be able to take advantage of the many added facilities that are already at the Center and those that will soon be added—including large meeting rooms which will fill their needs.
- 3) A social program designed to bring about the integration of the two schools can be organized much more easily when the groups involved are working next door to each other rather than five blocks apart. Why not give it a fair chance, TIIC? You may change your minds.

We also believe that in addition to traversing the five blocks from campus to campus to attend meetings, the techmen would do well to follow the same route and take a class or two more down on the South Campus than they are taking at present. We note that many English Professors are seen trudging along Convent Avenue, the reason being that the men of the School of Technology take their English classes up on the North Campus along with the technological part of their curriculum, rather than in the English Department's new building on the South Campus. This situation is an unhealthy one, we believe, in that it contributes to the feeling of apartness of the School of Technology from the rest of the College. The few steps saved represent far too great a price to pay in our eyes.

There is also the matter of getting your money's worth. All of us paid a $3 fee at the beginning of this semester—for a Student Center where we would no longer have to work in cramped offices with inadequate facilities. We have waited a long time to reap benefits from this building into which we have poured so much time, money and energy. Not to do so would be selling ourselves short.

The picture of a Tech student arriving from high school and spending his entire four years up on the North Campus except for an occasional social function or social studies class is a distressing one indeed. It is a good bet that many prospective engineers will switch before it is all over and not simply because their minds are incapable of absorbing the subject matter.

The curriculum committee for the School of Technology would do well to consider the fact that many techmen feel that something is lacking in their education and that a continued policy of segregation, unconscious or otherwise, does nothing to combat this feeling. If the number of liberal arts courses taken by engineers cannot be increased, then at least let them take these courses in an atmosphere that they have paid for and are entitled to.

By Paul Weissler

The leading lights in the operation of the Finley Student Center will soon have more money than they can use. Approximately $126,500 was appropriated including an expected $60,000 from the alumni to keep the Center operating for a full school year. Now it is apparent that a little over half the school year comes closer to the mark. Certainly the full appropriation will not be needed for this year. What will be done with the rest? To place it in a reserve fund, as the Center Board of Directors has voted, or charge a lower fee for the second half of the school year is not a fair solution.

An emergency fund seems to me rather ridiculous in light of the padded budget that was prepared in the first place. A padded budget (the Board's could leave a $40,000 surplus) is not necessarily the evil that it could be. To leave enough money to cover the errors that will be made by inexperience with such a Center is logical, but to suggest that it could take nearly twice as much money as this padded budget allotted is foolish. If the Board intends to leave the extra money for the future, I'd like to know what's being done presently for those who've given it and could make good use of it.

A lower fee for the second half of the year may seem attractive to some, but it is actually the less desirable of these two poor alternatives. Aside from the difficulty of going through channels to change the fee, there are other problems. First, the seniors who will graduate in January should and will feel indignant. They will have paid a $3 fee for probably one month's use of the Student Center, while those who remain will pay, say $2, for argument's sake, and have a full term's use.

Another obvious difficulty is what to do when the fee will have to be raised again. Even if operating expenses are cut, we cannot expect the alumni to continue subsidizing the Center to the extent that they are doing for the first year of operation. Thus a return to the $3 fee is unavoidable. The hue and cry that will be raised by students will be difficult to quell and antagonisms between the student body and the Administration would be a natural result.

One answer would be combining of the Student Activities and the Center fees into one. Not only would this solve the present difficulty, but it also would be of great value in the future. At present, of course, this move would involve the lopping off proportionally from the Center budget the amount that would have been used to operate the building's facilities from the start of the term until the opening date. Certain expenses are being incurred with the Center in partial operation and this is a factor that would have to be considered. The money that will not be spent operating Student Center could be easily diverted into the fund for student activities, which are badly in need of fiscal adrenalin.

For the future, any money saved by efficient operation of the Center could be easily switched to pay for student activities for the next term.

One of the comforting aspects of the Student Center confusion is the ascendancy of Dean James S. Peace (Student Life) to the directorship of the Center. While this is not a promotion for Dean Peace, it is an addition to his responsibilities. As he has personally conceded, the additional work will not be much; it is actually a matter of assuming broader supervisory responsibility. For this reason, he has not requested the supplementary salary that former director Alton Lewis wanted and would have gotten. It is not only by saving money that the College gains. Whether justifiably or not, Dr. Lewis was not popular with many of the students he had to work with. Dean Peace, however, enjoys wide popularity among student leaders. He has, over the years, gained their confidence and they prefer to work with him.

Girls Wanted

The Gilbert and Sullivan Society males are chasing after girls—but it's strictly for the sake of the club. The society, which is planning its forthcoming production of the "Mikado," finds its supply of females insufficient for the number of opposite sex parts in the operetta—from the heroine Yum Yum to the little maids.

The club is appealing to all girls who like to act or sing to join. A meeting will be held today in Room 406 Finley Student Center at 12:30 PM.

Redskins Hunt Student during Indian Summer

Being hunted by Indians in a swamp is an incident not usual part of a sociology syllabus, but for one student at the College it might be.

At the time of the hunt, Leon Levine, an Anthropology major, did not have time to rewrite the syllabus. He was too busy boiling water to drink in an old tobacco

The whole affair started when Levine left the city for the woods in Minnesota this summer, to learn how to live with people he knew only from sociology books. Joining a Quaker work-camp serving the Chippewa Indians in reservation. The people at the work-camp—who included a Spaniard—devoted a major portion of their time to organization activities for the Chippewa children and recreation for youths.

Levine was on a canoe trip with the Indian children and the Quaker minister who operated the camp that Levine believed was lost in the swamps. Neither knew which direction they had taken. In the distance they could hear faint shouts. They called out with loud yells, but the shouts died away. They were left with some matches, a compass, and the great mossy woods.

search for Levine and the minister. Meanwhile, the pair had resolved to bear northeast. The moss lying everywhere proved to be a benefactor. From it they were able to squeeze water into the tobacco can, boiling the liquid over a small fire. After many hours of trudging, still shouting out occasionally, they were heard by a camper who led them back to their canoes. An Indian boy was sent to inform the searchers, and then Levine was on his way again—another canoe trip.

Loin Cloths, Razors, All Job of Gov't. Economist

By ARNOLD ADOFF

An economist working for the government during wartime is often concerned with "such vital matters as laundry prices, razor blades and loin cloths for African natives," according to Professor Henry H. Villard (Chmn., Economics).

These combinations came about while Professor Villard was working for the War Production Board and the State Department. While becoming an expert on laundry prices for the Office of Price Administration, his wife was computing small arms ammunition requirements for the British Supply Mission. This, Professor Villard considers, was an "unusual division of labor".

The word "unusual" seems to typify Professor Villard's life from the time he was graduated from Yale University with a Bachelor of Arts degree. He then went to England where in two years he "held his own" and acquired another BA. Because of the English system Professor Villard got the "cheapest Master of Arts" on record—the price was five pounds and a five year wait. Not content to wait idly in England he returned to America and received his doctorate in Economics from Columbia University. After teaching at Minnesota, Amherst and Hofstra College he came to the College as head of the Economics Department six years ago.

This diverse teaching experience was interrupted by the war. On a project for the War Department, Professor Villard was a bombing research analyst concerned with the best ways of wrecking a railroad. This was "something that Jay Gould had pretty well worked out a long time ago—but without the use of air attacks", Professor Villard said.

At present Professor Villard is working on an elementary text book stressing the relative performance of different ways of organizing an economy. His principal interest is in productivity, which he considers an important aspect of an economy's performance.

Professor Villard's father was Oswald Garrison Villard, the long-time editor of "The Nation", a national magazine. His grandfather was president of the Northern Pacific Railroad at the time of its completion. Professor Villard is related by marriage to the late William Lloyd Garrison, the famous abolitionist. And this mixture of magazines, railroads and abolition led to razor blades, African natives and productivity.

Booters vs. Pratt In Met Debut Sat.

They're off!!

The Beaver steamroller, after gaining momentum in last Saturday's 10-0 rout of State Tech, will be at full speed when it collides with Pratt Institute in the league soccer opener this Saturday, at 11:30 AM in Lewisohn Stadium. The Lavender will be starting defense of their Metropolitan Intercollegiate Soccer Conference championship.

In last season's opener, the City soccer men defeated the Engineers, 5-1, at Cunningham Park in Long Island. Pratt managed to tie up the game, 1-1, before the end of the first period, but it was no contest after that as the Beavers scored twice in the second and fourth stanzas, while goalie Wally Meisen was holding the Engineers scoreless for the rest of the game. Pratt bounced back from this defeat and another against Brooklyn College to win its last five games and finish the season in a surprising second place tie with the Kingsmen.

Lavender goalie Wally Meisen, who finished last season with four consecutive league shutouts, will start in the nets against the Techmen. Despite the fact that several tryouts have looked good in the goal, Meisen gets the nod because, as Coach Harry Karlin sums up, "Wally is just great. I have no one who comes close to him."

Because of the keen competition among the players for starting berths, the lineup is still something of a mystery. The fabulous Johnny Koutsantanos will be the starting center, and Wolf-

Jordan Learns Soccer In Iran; Tennis in USA

From the oil refineries of Abadan, Iran, to the Lewisohn Stadium dust bowl is quite a journey. Vahe Jordan, an outstanding member of this season's soccer team, and a member of the City College tennis team, has made that trip and the coaches of both squads are very thankful that he did.

Born in Issaham, Iran, twenty years ago Vahe learned soccer at an early age. Before he was even thirteen years old, he was good enough to play on his high school team.

An engineering student, Vahe is presently starting his senior year in college and hopes to lead both the Beaver booters and the racquetmen to successful seasons. Harry Karlin has had a chance to observe Vahe on the fields of both soccer and tennis and has nothing but praise for the former All Metropolitan Soccer choice. "He is one of the hardest workers who ever stepped out on the tennis courts or the soccer field," stated Coach Karlin.

Last year's Soccer team was greatly strengthened by the transfer of Vahe from Hunter College where he captained both the Tennis and Soccer teams.

His first interest in tennis came seven years ago. After his family came to the United States in 1948 and settled down in Forest Hills, Vahe was taught the game by his mother. Mrs. Jordan had been a tennis enthusiast for many years. She played tennis with the British employees of the oil refineries at Abadan where Vahe's father was employed, and later at the British Embassy in Teheran where Mr. Jordan was engaged as an assistant to the British Consul.

Vahe's major interest at the present time, besides helping City College to retain the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Soccer Championship for the third consecutive year, is aviation. He ultimately plans to work for an overseas branch of an American aircraft company. He prefers to work in the "Land of Revolutions" — South America.

Netmen . . .

Coach Professor Harry Karlin will be on hand to meet all tennis aspirants today from 12 to 2 PM at the team's first fall tryout and instruction meeting, at the Jasper Oval handball courts, Convent Avenue and 140th Street. Freshmen candidates as well as upperclassmen are asked to attend by the net mentor.

Matmen Begin Drill; Sapora Very Hopeful

The College's wrestling team opened practice yesterday in Goethals Hall Gym.

Coach Joe Sapora anticipates an improvement on last season's record of two wins and five defeats. He says "I think we'll do very well; I certainly hope so. We have a bunch of vets returning."

The matmen have lost three regulars from last year's team by graduation: Norm Balot, 157-pounder, who was undefeated in six matches; Spencer Nussbaum, and Seymour Holtzman. Balot's loss will probably hit the grapplers hardest, and Coach Sapora is undecided as to who will take his place. "It should be either Fred Starita or co-captain Ira Zingmond," the coach declared. Steve Karides, who injured his arm last season, will join Zingmond and Starita in the battle for the 157 lb. post "if his arm is all right."

Al Taylor will probably take over the 130 lb. spot vacated by Holtzman. Others on whom Sapora is counting are co-captain Sal Sorbera in the 123 lb. class; 130-pounder Vince Norman; Bernie Stool at 167 lbs.; and Harvey Werblood who takes over the 177 lb. class from Dick Barry. Heavyweight Jim Zoubandis and "Sonny" Gola, a sophomore, will vie for 147 lb. honors with returning veteran Bob Engler.

Coach Sapora has made it clear that these listings are only tentative.

Rah-Rah!

Sandy Kelberg, captain of the Cheerleaders, has announced that preliminary practice will begin today at 12:30 PM in Room 02 Abbe Hall. Attendance at this meeting is important as the cheers will be taught immediately. All students, male and female, are eligible to participate.

SportOPics

By Bert Rosenthal

City College goals will be scored aplenty, easy layups will be missed, trackmen will break individual records, fencers will cross swords with moderate success, wrestlers will be pinned repeatedly and swimmers will be dunked more than once.

The above is my long-range forecast for the upcoming sports season.

The College's coaches with a hope, a prayer and a crop of experienced veterans are naturally looking forward to a successful Fall sports campaign. However, according to pre-season reports and compilations, the outlook is primarily dark in most sports.

With limited knowledge and very little money in my pocket, I'll proceed to offer my prognostications with a minimum of sure bets.

Soccer—Another Metropolitan Intercollegiate Soccer Conference championship appears inevitable for Coach Harry "Doc" Karlin's brilliant eleven. With All-Met players Johnny Koutsantanos, Wolfgang Westl, co-captain Eddie Trunk and Vahe Jordan returning from last year's squad, the soccer men with six other veteran performers are unquestionably the best in their division. Newcomer Bert Dorfman, Fred Munters, Billy Arnheiter, Lucien Zarnowski and Dave Graveson promise to add scoring punch and defensive strength to the already power-laden booters.

The only roadblock preventing an undefeated season may occur when the Lavender invades West Point for a revenge meeting, Friday, October 14. The Cadets drubbed the Beavers, 3-1, at the Point last year, which was the one setback on their otherwise unblemished eight won, no defeat record. As our "Upset of the year" prediction, we're going way out on a limb and predict the Beavers upend the Black Knights, by a 3-2 count, no less!

Cross Country—Starting the season with a new mentor, Professor Harry deGirolamo, the hill'n'dalers are desperately looking for capable runners to back up their one-two punch of co-captain Bill Kowalski and Rick Hurford. Departed coach, Harold Anderson "Doc" Bruce has wildly claimed that "I left the best group of cross country runners the school has ever had." Yes, Hurford and Kowalski are outstanding, but who else? Gene Forsyth is a question mark because of a pulled adductor muscle in his right thigh, and Gene Sherman and Herb Verter, two other holdovers are inconsistent.

I'll predict a narrow victory in the quadrangular meet against Brooklyn, Queens and Hunter, and another win over Fairleigh Dickinson, but that's all. They will be outclassed by Fordham, and outrun by Adelphi and Iona.

Swimming—Coach Jack Rider's Metropolitan champions are in for a rough season. The natators have some good swimmers returning, but the losses of Howie Schloemer, Bob Kellogg, Lou Ruffino, Tony Sousa, Ben Trasen, Steve Keston and Bob Stagg because of various reasons, will require a vast rebuilding program. Jimmy Johnson, who exhibited immense ability last year and unfailingly placed second to the inimitable Schloemer, will be the backbone of the team. Richie Silverstein, Shelly Manspiezer, Arnie Farber, Steve Stern and Marv Gettleman figure to be the main-producers for the aquamen.

Conquests over Manhattan, Lafayette, Hunter, Fordham, Brooklyn College and Brooklyn Poly are forecast, with the United States Merchant Marine Academy, sophomore-studded NYU and the annual Ivy League adversary Columbia, expected to topple the team.
