Holsager Junior Prexy; Succeeds Shelly Scherr

Don Holsager was elected President of the Junior Class last Friday. He will fill the vacancy left after the death of Sheldon Scherr. In last term's elections, Holsager was elected Vice-President.

Holsager, who had worked closely with Sheldon and was familiar with his ideas, said that he intends to carry out the plans made by Mr. Scherr.

Report Dozen Crimes Since Term Opening

Twelve crimes have been reported at the College since the beginning of the semester. The thefts occurred in the Hygiene Building. Trousers, books, briefcases were pilfered in both the pool transient lockers and the regular gym lockers.

John Kelly (Hygiene) pointed out, however, that the locks taken in all cases were unprotected. He said that the lockers were left unlocked or items were left on the lockers.

The College is a public institution and there are so many different ways of entering the buildings that it is impossible to watch all the entrances, Professor Hyman Krakower (Chmn) explained. He went on to say that the thefts were mainly the result of students carelessness.

'Blackboard Jungle' Not True Says High School Teacher

The question "Is 'The Blackboard Jungle' really a blackboard jungle?" was answered in the negative for the Psychology Society, Monday by Mr. Carl Erdberg, Chairman of Social Studies and English at the Bronx Vocational High School.

Mr. Erdberg declared, "No teachers are beaten up behind closed doors. The problem of juvenile delinquency lies not in a blackboard jungle but in an asphalt jungle. The schools inherit the conditions of the outside world. There are no gangs actually existing in the bounds of the High School, according to Mr. Erdberg. 'Yesterday, a boy chased a girl down the halls brandishing a stapler. This was the first time in my three years at the school that such a thing happened,' Mr. Erdberg explained. He added that there might be a kernel of truth in the book's suggestion implying the possibility of female faculty members being molested by students, but there is nothing as serious as the scene portrayed in the novel. Letters of protest were written by all the women on the teaching staff.

"Bronx Vocational High School gives the students a sense of security, a sense of appreciation for the little that they can do," claimed Mr. Erdberg. "The boys are quiet and docile in class."

In conclusion, Mr. Erdberg told the Psych. Society that Evan Hunter, the author of "The Blackboard Jungle," had taught at the school for only seventeen days. He resigned at the end of this period, giving "poor health" as his reason and thanking the English Chairman for the kindness shown towards him while he was working there.

Plans for the coming year will be discussed at the next meeting of the New York Metropolitan Region of the National Student Association (NSA), which will be held Sunday, October 16.

Observance of United Nations Day, October 24, Academic Freedom Week, cultural exchange and a city-wide leadership training program will be among the topics discussed at the meeting. It will be held at the Fordham School of Education, 304 Broadway, at 1:30 PM.

The Region will also discuss plans to further its campaign for reduced fares on Transit Authority subways and buses for (Continued on Page Three)

College Receives Goodman's Books; Presentation Made by Prof's Wife

More than 500 books were presented Wednesday to the College by Mrs. Theodore Goodman, widow of the late Theodore Goodman, English professor at City College for thirty years. The books included the late Professor's library collection.

Mrs. Goodman presented the library in the office of President Buell G. Gallagher. Jerome K. Wilcox, the College's librarian accepted the gift.

The library included a collection of the works of James Joyce and Maria Edgeworth, writer of the late 18th and early 19th century.

Mrs. Goodman said that she hoped "the men and women of the College would treasure the books as much as he (Prof. Goodman) did." She explained that the library was "a fine example of an educated person's library."

Chayefsky's Teacher
Paddy Chayefsky, noted television and film writer, had been a student of the late professor. Mr. Chayefsky wrote the script for the movie "Marty" which is currently being shown in New York City.

Prof. Wilcox also received a copy of Prof. Goodman's book "Techniques of Fiction," which was published Wednesday by the Liveright Publishing Company. The book was edited after the

November Prom To Be at Waldorf

By DAVE GROSS

The second All-College Prom will be held Thursday, November 25 (Thanksgiving Day) in the Grand Ball Room of the Waldorf Astoria. This year's Prom is sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC).

Eight hundred tickets at $5.00 per couple will be placed on sale late next week. The Charley Spivak band and the Catalina Roland Mambo band have been hired for the prom and either Harry Belafonte or Giselle McKensie will make an appearance. Furthermore each girl is to receive a "favor" (gift), said Bob Castle, Chairman of the Thanksgiving Prom committee.

Tickets Go Fast
Tickets should be bought early, according to Bob Castle. He pointed out that 700 tickets were sold within twelve days for last year's All College Prom.

Last year's Student President, Ira Klosk, inaugurated the idea of a Thanksgiving Prom. Joe De Maio, who was then Director of the SG Social Functions Agency, said it was the "biggest success" of any College ball. Student Government was planning another prom for this semester. It was called off, however, because the Junior Class was to hold their prom on the same night.

Bob Castle said IFC's reason for sponsoring the affair was that, "we know from the success of last year's prom that this is the sort of thing the students are looking for. We are confident, in fact we know, it will be the greatest affair the College has ever had."

Ira Klosk
Originated All College Prom

The decision to sponsor a Thanksgiving Prom was made by the presidents of the fifteen Greek letter fraternities, which comprise the IFC, on Sept. 23. Arrangements for the prom have just been completed.

Awards will be given at the ball to the fraternity which scored the most points in the "Greek Week" games.

Greek Week was a full week of athletic games between the frats of the College. Its purpose was to promote better relations between frats on the campus and frats and the College at large. A scholastic award will also be given to the frat with the highest average.

Lounge Committee Established By Student Center Managers

The Board of Managers of the John H. Finley Student Center will set up a Student Faculty Committee for the establishment of a faculty lounge. This decision came at the Board of Managers meeting yesterday.

The committee will be composed of three faculty members and three students. The students are Stuart Schwartz, William J. Stern, and Norma Wolk. The faculty members have not been selected. Professor Marvin Magalaner (English), Professor Joseph Pistrang (Civil Engineering), and Mr. Irving Branman (Speech), however, have been approached.

To Make Recommendations
The committee will make recommendations to the Board of Managers concerning the policies, furnishings, and other activities for the operation of the lounge.

It was announced at the same time that the game rooms and the ping pong room are to be opened on Monday, October 10.

Chess and checker sets, regular playing cards and pinochle decks will be supplied.

Contest...

The History Department is sponsoring an essay contest on the topic "Roads to Reunion: Solving the Problems of the Civil War." The awards will be $150 for first prize, $50 for second prize. The essays should be 8,000 to 10,000 words in length, and must be submitted to the History Office, Room 328 Wagner Hall on or before May 15, 1956.

Visitors Welcome

During the last few months the routes between such far-apart places as Kiev, USSR and Waterloo, Iowa have become well-trodden pathways for groups of visiting Russian and American farmers. A new spirit apparently was dawning between the two countries—at least when it concerned farmers.

We sincerely hope that this newfound amiability will not turn out to be a short-lived summer romance. One way this spirit could be continued would be to allow Russian student groups to enter the United States without asking them to be fingerprinted. Last spring the State Department refused to allow a student group which was headed for the United States entrance permission unless they fulfilled this requirement. The Kremlin not to be outdone, indignantly replied that their students would not enter with smudged fingers, and so the trip was off.

When summer came, Washington discovered that the ruling could be waived and unfingerprinted farmers began arriving. With a precedent now established, the State Department would find it very embarrassing indeed to continue demanding that the students comply with the ruling.

With this in mind, Student Council should immediately invite all Russian students bent on visiting the country to pay us a visit also. An overture such as this could start the ball rolling on a long-overdue student exchange program between the two nations.

The Perennial

Perhaps one day in the bright future an editorial on a theme such as this will not be necessary every semester. That will be an era of enough money for every organization at the College, including the hard-pressed newspapers.

As of now, however, the disheartening facts are quite different. Although the student body has voted to have each newspaper come out twice a week for the length of the semester, its wishes will have to be disregarded if our present pittance from the Student-Faculty Fee Committee remains unchanged. Our printing costs have risen almost 15% above what they were last semester—and even then we were unable to complete the term.

We find ourselves in this plight generally every alternate semester. For the fall term, with greater student enrollment and consequently more funds, the College—as represented by the Fee Committee—has plenty of money to throw our way. Come the grim spring semester, though, we are sharply cut in funds and barely manage to struggle through. The Fee Committee must realize that we operate on a yearly basis, and should so set enough funds aside at the beginning of each year to see us through.

Unless there is wiser planning in this direction, the newspapers will have to stop publication much earlier this year. Accordingly, clubs and campus activities will not get the publicity they must have in order to thrive. We hope that this is not allowed to happen. If our needs are not satisfied, it will be to the College's detriment, too.

O Portraits

Playing the role of "Mrs. Santa Claus" in a third grade play doesn't usually lead to teaching in college, but for Dr. Elsie Finne (Speech) it did.

From the age of eight she has loved the theatre, and since that modest start, she has acted the lead roles in many plays.

Throughout her high school career, Dr. Finne gained experience in acting and directing, as well as writing for the theater. The highlight of her school acting career came however when she was a senior at Denison University in Ohio. She was "Coropheus" in Sophocles, "Antigone." "Coropheus," as head of the chorus, with a regular speaking part and a part in the dancing, gave Dr. Finne a chance to learn something about various parts of the theater.

Upon graduation Dr. Finne taught Speech and English at both Denison University, and De Pauw University in Indiana.

After dramatic training professional stock acting followed for Dr. Finne, in such places as Magnolia, Massachusetts, Tarrytown, New York and Arden, Delaware. Among the plays in which Dr. Finne had important parts are "There's Always Juliet," "The Shining Hour," Noel Coward's "Hay Fever" and "Sketches" by Dorothy Parker.

But Dr. Finne "never seriously intended staying in the theater." So when she happened to be "at liberty" and an offer was made to her to take over the head of the Theater Arts Department at Briarcliff Junior College, Dr. Finne jumped at the chance. The job proved to be an interesting one, for not only was she the head of the entire department, she was the entire department. That meant that she only had to teach classes in Theater History, Speech, Make-up, Scene Construction, Lighting, and Rehearsal. Even with such a difficult program Dr. Finne decided to do some graduate work in Speech, and received her degree at New York University.

In 1942 Dr. Finne started teaching at City College. She likes college teaching and feels she was aided immensely by her acting experience. "Acting gives you insight into the dignity of human emotion, and this is so necessary for teaching. Acting also requires a humility, simplicity and terrific sincerity."

Babies' Photos Sought by HP

The "cutest baby face" is the object of a search by the House Plan Carnival Committee. Instead of seeking only a Campus Queen for 1955, the Committee also is asking faculty members to submit photos of their daughters who are between the ages of five and nine. The photos will be used to find Miss City College of 1970. The winner will be brought to the Carnival to remove the crown from last year's Queen, Miss Bunny Gold, and bestow the coronet to the 1955 choice.

Applications for the Miss Campus Queen contest will be available in the HP office, Room 335 Finley Student Center starting Monday. From the entrants, five finalists will be selected at the Carnival Queen Dance on November 10. The winner will be chosen at the Carnival, December 10. Wives of faculty members will serve as judges for the contests.

Tickets for the Campus Queen Dance will go on sale October 17, for $3 a couple.

Animals Knock at Door But Prof. Gets Privacy

By ARNOLD ADOFF

The rattlesnakes and raccoons protested, but Mr. Leonard Ehrlich (English) maintained his privacy this summer. This isolation was achieved at a colony of artists, writers and composers sponsored by supermarket chain heir

Huntington Hartford, in a canyon usually occupied only by animals outside of Santa Monica, California.

Rows of studio-cabins, one allotted to each of the twenty-five people invited to spend the summer creating, were interspersed among the wildlife. Mr. Ehrlich's studio consisted of a bedroom and kitchen. A lunch-box was left on his door-step each noon to fulfill his food requirements.

The rules of this unique colony (the only other two in the United States are at Yaddo and Saratoga Springs) were simple but effective. No member could visit another without an invitation. There was no worry about the ordinary concerns of daily living. As Mr. Ehrlich put it: "The beauty of it all, was that one must devote himself entirely to creative work for a period of three months."

This summer, the colony (situated near Beverly Hills) was inhabited by a combination of distinguished and untried people each of the fields. Selection of the men and women is made by committees who make their choices on the basis of reference and the record.

Mr. Ehrlich worked on a "lonely novel" during his stay at the colony. He has been a teacher of English at the College for four years, having previously taught at Smith College. He is at present recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship. He received his Bachelor of Arts at the College and was a former student of the late Professor Theodore Goodman. Mr. Ehrlich's most well-known book is "God's Angry Man," a novel dealing with abolitionist John Brown.

Motorcycling Student's Error: Didn't Recognize Dean Engler

A student who didn't know what Dean Leslie W. Engler (Administration) looks like has found out the hard way. As the dean was walking through the South Campus, the student putts of a motorcycle and bumps into the dean's ear. Stopping the drive, he asked him what he thought was doing, where he thought was going, and with whose authority.

The youth, looking unabashed, only said that he had gotten special permission from Dean Engler. Dean Engler asked the student where "the dean" was and made a guess at he looked like. "Why, he's in his office; I was up there just a few minutes ago," the student answered. To bolster his case, he described the Dean as a short, portly, corpulent individual. Dean Engler, who is of trim build, roared and ordered the student off the campus.

A look of horror appeared on the youth as he inquired, "Are you Dean Engler?" His anger still unused, the dean roared, "Never mind who I am; just leave!" The student got the idea.

Other students have noticed him riding around the campus the past few days giving girl friends a lift.

ness. Dr. Krakower said he "urgently requests students to cooperate by placing regulation padlocks on any of the lockers they use throughout the College."

Last week a leather couch was slashed in Wagner Hall and the telephone wires to the pay phones in Mott Hall were cut.

Mr. Phillip H. Brunstetter (Student Life) suggested that all students who have had books taken from them contact the Beaver Book Shop in case the thieves decide to sell the books there.

CCNY Gets a Democrat Courtesy of Republicans

An FDR Democrat can thank the Republican Party for his job at the College. Professor Donald C. Blaisdell, appointed Chairman of Government near the end of last term, was working at Geneva when the GOP was voted into power. His job, which had to do with the United States relationship in United Nation agencies, expired in 1953 and was not renewed by the Republicans. After teaching at Wellesley College and the University of Florida, Dr. Blaisdell was asked to chair the Government Department.

His career in government, which provides practical experience for the courses he teaches in American foreign policy and American government at the College began during the administration of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt. He was chosen assistant to the Undersecretary of Agriculture because "I knew him." In 1941, he was promoted to the State Department where he dealt with trade agreements and Lend Lease. Before going to Geneva he spent some time in the part of the department which was planning for the UN.

His earliest teaching experience came at Roberts College in Istanbul. "Two interesting things happened in Turkey," relates Prof. Blaisdell with a smile. "I went to the scene of ancient Troy, and I met my wife."

Other Interests

Political science and international law are not the only interests of the new Chairman. He bought an old frame house and almost 100 acres of property in Maryland. He restored the land using the newest methods of conservation and erosion control. "I like to do the things a man does around the house," Dr. Blaisdell admits. "I like my vegetable garden and my tools."

"At the end of my first three weeks of work at the College, I am favorably impressed with most everything about it—the students, the faculty and the administration," Professor Blaisdell says happily.

Ideas developed at NSA are constantly being used at the College, he declared. The current Technical Intersociety Interfraternity Council Leadership Development Program is a result, he said, of training Herb Geissler, the group's president, received at the last NSA Congress.

Cindermen Go Against Bklyn., Hunter & Queens

Cagers . . .

Anyone interested in trying out for the Freshman Basketball team should go to the Athletic Office in Lewisohn Stadium for an eligibility card as soon as possible. Practice will start November 1 at 4 PM in the Tech Gym.

Up and down the hills and into the hinterlands for five miles will travel the City cindermen officially for the first time this season tomorrow, when they oppose Brooklyn College, Hunter and Queens in a quadrangular meet at Van Cortlandt Park at 1 PM.

The hill'n'dalers, under the tutelage of a new coach, Harry deGirolamo, former Evening Session track mentor, will send a primarily inexperienced squad to the fore. DeGirolamo has replaced Harold Anson "Doc" Bruce, who "shoed" the harriers for the past ten years. Bruce was forced to retire last June, under a New York City mandatory retirement law.

Veterans Bill Kowalski and Rick Hurford, harrier co-captains, comprise, as deGirolamo states, "The backbone of the team."

Kowalski, an upper junior, was a tremendous factor in the cross country team's successful 1954 season. In dual meets with Hunter, Fairleigh Dickinson, Queens and New York Maritime, he crossed the finish line first, placed third against Upsala, and gained a fourth place against a powerful Fordham aggregation.

Herb Verter, another letterman, who was counted on heavily to score for the Beavers, will be sidelined with a sprained left ankle, which he injured last Saturday during team time trials at the Van Cortlandt course.

1954 co-captain Gene Forsyth, who was sidelined with a muscle injury most of last campaign, "is about ready to go," according to the coach. The other returnees are Gene Sherman and Sal Sorbera. Sorbera is a four letter man who earns his other "C's" for wrestling, riflery and track.

Newcomers Bryan Quinn, Dan Hanifin and Bill Plummer, the latter just out of the Army following a two year hitch, have impressed deGirolamo greatly.

However, not wanting to go out on a limb until he sees the team under "real competition," deGirolamo has stated only that, "City will field a team that they will not be ashamed of."

Bill Kowalski Hopes to Repeat

Nimrods Open Practice With Nine Veterans

With nine lettermen returning, Sergeant First Class Arthur Cariddi, in his freshman campaign as rifle coach, is making no wild claims about his newly inherited squad.

"We should do as well as last year, if not better," SFC Cariddi cautiously stated, "but we really won't know how sound we are until some time has elapsed in the season."

Returning from last season's squad, which compiled a 12-6 overall record are captain Sal Sorbera, John Marciniak, Norman Hess, Steve Madigan, Harvey Inventausch, Werner Hartl, Morty Solomon, Robert Sullivan and Ernest Trump. Sorbera, also a cross country, wrestling and track and field letterman, compiled a highly respectable 279.8 average for the nimrod's seventeen league contests.

Booters Oppose USMMA In Met Tilt Tomorrow

By MARV GLASSBERG

Get the iodine and gauze ready for tomorrow at 10 AM, when the City soccermen invade the US Merchant Marine Academy in Great Neck, LI.

If past performances mean anything, this should be a rough-and-tumble contest.

The Met champs will be ready for anything, but coach Harry Karlin doesn't want a recurrence of what happened two years ago. The Beavers suffered three injuries in that game, including a broken collar bone inflicted on John Koutsantanou.

"Last year I told the officials to throw out anyone who started to play rough, even my own men," said Karlin. "The refs did a great job then. I hope they control this game the same way."

City College downed Kings Point last season, 5-1, in a game that started out with hard body contact. The Lavender led by one goal at the end of three periods, but Koutsantanou and Wolfgang Westl both scored their second goals and Robert LeMestre chipped in with one to cinch the victory.

Jean-Pierre Riviere, a fullback, remembers that last year the officials warned a Mariner who started roughhousing. He hopefully commented, "If they would only warn them as soon as they foul . . ."

Billy Arnheiter, new right

winger, took a different point of view. "If they want to get tough let them," he beamed. "We have some pretty big guys who can handle themselves."

Riviere and Arnheiter, along with Karlin, just came off the "sick list." Riviere had an infected throat, Arnheiter a blistered heel, and the coach had a bad cold. All will be present at Saturday's match.

The Beaver mentor hopes that his squad can gain an early lead, so that he can substitute if the action gets too rugged. He doesn't want any key players to get injured and be forced to sit out the West Point game, next Wednesday.
