Board Seeks 9% Increase In '55 Funds

A nine percent increase in the budgets of the municipal colleges has been requested by the Board of Higher Education from the City. The increase is being asked to maintain the educational standards of the colleges, Dr. Joseph B. Cavallaro, the Board's chairman, said.

Included in the proposed budget, whose $35,264,338 total represents a $2,121,147 increase over last year's request, are funds for the operation of the Manhattanville campus and a provision to add twenty instructors to the faculty of the School of Technology. The increase is being asked to meet the thirty-four percent rise in enrollment at the School in the last two years.

Teaching Program

The Board also asked for increased funds to inaugurate new teacher preparation programs that will improve ones presently in operation on the undergraduate and graduate levels. They also proposed increasing the administrative, clerical, and custodial staff to better meet the needs of the 70,000 students that the four colleges. Four hundred thousand dollars was added to this year's budget as a result of automatic salary increases.

Small Cost

In the request Dr. Cavallaro stated, "New York in this country are so many young people trained at so little proportionate cost to the public which they later serve by the ten thousands in every capacity that touches the citizen's life."

City Tops U. of S., 87-68

By ED LIPTON

The University of Scranton '55 ran into a red-hot CCNY '2 last Tuesday night, naming Jack McGuire and Merv Shorr, as the Beaver hoopers rolled over the Pennsylvanians, 87-68, on the loser's court.

Hitting mostly on driving layups, McGuire played his finest game for the Lavender as he piled up 33 points, the highest individual performance in CCNY history.

"Thirty"... by Ed Lipton

There have been times in the past when the words just poured out and the column was done in no time at all. But this is a "Thirty" column and I find it hard to sum up four years of City College in so few words. Partially I am downhearted because I feel they do not want me to do academically at the College is to pick up a few pointers and a few ideas, rather than to spend one's time in learning. For me, the real value of my four years at City College lies not in the curriculum, but in the field of human understanding. Here I learned that the people we meet are not all as we have been led to believe, and that there are a working relationship with each other. I learned that two individuals can be so different from each other that there can be little or no common meeting ground.

I learned that there are people in this world who take any means to an end; that these people can be so differently oriented from most of us that they feel no remorse at anything they do, no matter how underhanded, nor do they feel compassion for any living creature, unless it suits their purpose. To them, compassion, decency and integrity are words to be twisted and used as they see fit, not a moral code to live by.

And I learned that there are individuals who will usually get ahead in the world. Often they are the leaders, for a few are as ambitious as they, and few will go to the lengths that they will to achieve their end.

People as self-centered, as bent upon defending their own "fair honor," as completely wrapped up in themselves, as these, cannot be anything more than a collection of the material things which when held in high esteem or detested as highly moral or who are quite willing to "cut corners" about the intangible things, such as character, the chief attributes of a modern, a leader, and about those who go for varied personal reasons.

I also learned about the majority of people at the College. Real nice people who placed their root in the earth and people who gained as cynics, and a few who fight honestly and openly for what they believe is right.

Perhaps I have gained as much knowledge of people without having attended College, but I think that at best it would have been far more effective at the College. At City College I would have learned to get from a relatively small cross-section of humanity more relevant to my interests and my own environment.

And I learned that I am neither disappointed nor elated to find that the College is but a mirror of the outside. I have gained in understanding, and that the finest people can be met at the College, and a real credit to any organization anywhere.

I hope someday to be a writer. Perhaps, accordingly, my imagination is too vivid. Perhaps also what I ought to do is to go somewhere and do something! I want something different and I want to feel satisfied. I felt restrained and hemmed in, as though I did not belong there. I have never liked being in a prison cell and I felt that I around me because I felt out of place and because in the back of my mind I always had had this notion that I could write. But not I have an understanding mind and I have often thought myself. But I've got to find out for myself. I'm sorry if what I'm writing is not interesting to you. It's interesting to me, though. Ten years from now I'll be able to re-read this and perhaps the answers to some questions:

What is the value of this column? And why did I write, this being too small? Was I being too pompous? Was I expressing false, inartistic or emotional? Is this a good idea? Should I have written this at all? And how do you see. I am writing this thirty column, in the last analysis, for myself.

But the dedication is not to myself: it is to my parents, to whom I owe for seeing me through. And my other friends who has shown me the two sides to every argument and who has helped me more than he knows. In addition, I cannot evaporate before saying:

"Wally" sends regards to Melinda and June. The "cynical" sentiment towards Mr. S'ong Ed. and Walt, wherever you are!...

Student Keeps the Pipe Fires Burning for WUS and Prize

Sparks flew in a worthy cause at the College the Thursday before Christmas vacation. A group of thirty professors, male students, and co-eds competed in a pipe-smoking contest as part of the College's month-long drive to raise funds for World University Service. The service gives aid to needy foreign students. The object of the contest was to keep a pipe lighted as long as possible. Entry fees came to $15.

Top Finisher

As the smoke cleared, J. Stanisl Axel, a graduate student, was seen to be the winner—with a puffing score of one hour and thirty-three minutes. Prof. Frederick C. Shipley (English) won out over his professorial colleagues. He kept his pipe burning for forty-five minutes. Eva Zettlin, a 19-year-old junior who had never smoked a pipe before, was the winning co-ed, with a smoking record of half an hour.

One member of the faculty entered the contest with a Turkish hookah but the glass water pipe broke under the strain. The contest was arranged by the Webb Service Society.

Naclerio received an Enameled watch for his sparkling performances.

The highlight of the forum was the Sunshine Soccer Bowl game last Wednesday night. The South Florida State College team was seen to be the winner—with lord Axel, a graduate student, as the captain of the winning team, with a smoking record of half an hour.

Joe Palese of Army was also in the starting lineup. He was co-captain of the team, and played brilliantly on the halfback line. The two Lavender stalwarts combined Monday night to help a North-South array turn back the University of Florida, 2-1. Naclerio took a pass from Trunk to tally the winning goal.

Naclerio Outstanding Player

The 90 odd all-staters participating in the forum had a special treat. Lee Arci Meriwether, Miss America, presided over the game as honorary queen.

Johnny Konstantanou, the College's all-time high scorer, was also supposed to attend the forum but circumstances forced him to pull out at the last moment. The forum included representatives from CCNY, Army, Brooklyn College, Cortland State Teachers College, Ithaca College, Springfield, Duke University, Johns Hopkins, University of Pittsburgh, Penn State, Swarthmore, Slippury Rock Teachers and Navy.

score 19-10. The Scranton team closed the gap to 21-16 but three more field goals by McGuire and a pair of fouls by Shorr enabled the Beavers to open up a 9-point margin, 29-20. Shorr scored CCNY's next eight points as the Holmammen went out in front, 37-33, but the team was unable to widen that gap before halftime. All told, McGuire and Shorr, rolled up eleven straight points. Shorr and McGuire, working nicely while Kowalski and George Jesen rebounded well. Coach Nat Holman, however, was not fully satisfied by the team's second victory in five starts. "I saw too many mistakes," he said after the game. "We were upset by the press and I was apprehensive even when we had a 12-point lead."

The team's next game will be on Thursday night against Manhattan College on the Jacoby court. The freshman teams of the two schools will clash at 6:35 PM in a preliminary contest.

Wounded...

Dean James S. Pease (Student Life) will be "raking cane" for a few days. A broken leg is forcing the dean to hobble around the school to expedite his work.

Dean Peace broke his leg during vacation when he entered a basketball game as a substitute for his son. An attempt for a driving layup resulted in a fall that caused the accident.

Team Rolls

Leading 66-53, CCNY, or rather Shorr and McGuire, rolled up eleven straight points. Shorr started the barrage with a hook shot and a tap by McGuire, lay-up and foul broke the Beaver captain's monopoly on the hoop. But Merv came right back with two free throws and a jump shot from the right baseline. With eight minutes to go the Royals began whistling away at the Lavender lead. Two jump shots by Bob Bessoir, the Pennsylvanians' captain, and Jerry Curtiss preceded a layup by Schefflan, and then the home team, paced by Bessoir's five points, moved to within 15 (79-64) of the Beavers with five minutes remaining to play.

Close Press

At the start of the second half the Royals began to press more closely. A hook shot by Frank Germani closed the gap to 10. The irrepressible Mr. McGuire sank a jump shot but a foul by Linn Jenkins and two charity tosses by Germani made the score 48-38. It stayed that close for a while, but then the Beavers opened up a 17-point margin.

With the score 56-47 Ralph Schefflan dunked two foul shots to give City an 11-point spread. After McHugh sank a foul shot, McGuire hit on a layup and Schefflan netted another brace of free throws. A foul by McGuire and a one-hander by Shorr moved the Beavers in front, 65-53. Although tired and rattled by Scranton's close guarding, CCNY entered the scoring column by Germain's jump shot, a foul by McGuire and a one-hander by Shorr, four straight points. With eight minutes to go the Lavender lead was 7-10. The team was unable to widen that gap before halftime. All told, McGuire and Shorr, totalled 61 points.

sinking two foul shots and Rose Kowalski sank a rebound to give the Beavers their final 19-point margin.

Other Standouts

Playing before approximately 1,500 spectators in Scranton's 1,500 spectators in Scranton's McHugh's basket was won by Fordham with a 21-7 rollback to take the lead. The freshman teams of the two schools will clash at 6:30 PM in a preliminary contest.

The top performer for the Lavender was Wayne Werfel who collected nine points and nine rebounds on Thursday night against Manhatten College on the Jacoby court. The freshman teams of the two schools will clash at 6:00 PM in a preliminary contest.
