NSA Seeking Cut in Fares For Students

A campaign for fare reductions on the subway of the New York Transit Authority (TA) for college students was initiated by New York Metropolitan Region of the National Students Association (NSA).

The fare reduction, which would probably take the form of a deposit, was being asked because the TA is now making a profit according to Bob Scheer, School Affairs Vice-President of the region and a student at the College. "We found," he declared, "that the TA is currently operating on a profit of $12 million. The students would cost at the most $2,000,000."

In the short, Scheer said, the chief objection to the reduction was that the system was losing money. "If they are going to make a surplus," he continued, "college students should be granted the same reduction high school students receive. The rationale that high school students should be made better off because they are the future citizens of the city will not work. As it is now, they are just as valid for us, especially since TA is now in the black.

Students can contact Scheer through Box G-2 in Room 191, Finley Student Center.

A committee to determine the feasibility of incorporating religious classes into the College curriculum has been established, according to President Buell G. Gallagher. The committee will be composed of four faculty members and four students.

The committee, whose formation was announced yesterday, in- cludes two representatives from the Day Session, two students from the Evening Session and four faculty members from the four schools of the College. The members are:

President Buell G. Gallagher, President of the College; David Krikun (Day Session), Alice Malloy (Vice-President of the Evening Session), William Sterng (Evening Session),4 Presidents Coin; and Daniel J. Broninstein (Philosophy).

According to President Gallagher, the committee has to consider and advise on two major issues before any courses on religion may be considered for inclusion in the curriculum. The first problem is to determine the legality and constitutionality of the courses. The President explained that since we are a public supported institution, the legal problem must be considered, according to the New York State Constitution, no public funds may be used, either directly or indirectly, to teach denominational tenets or beliefs. There are only two exceptions to this rule and neither of them may be expanded to include teaching religious courses at the College.

Dr. Gallagher also pointed out that the New York State Board of Regents will not give credit for courses on religion.

Brahms, Mozart & Co. Break Chapel Monopoly

A monopoly of the Goldmark since the nineteenth century has been broken.

Liturgical music, the only kind played in the chapel during the reign of the Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart, has been replaced by the secular music of Brahms, Bartok, Mozart, and others.

Under the auspices of the Music Department, the chapel was converted into a recital hall, and in this transformed state made its debut on December 1.

At the north end of the hall is an organ which, after eight years of use, is in need of repair according to Professor Mark Bronswick (Choir, Music). He estimated that about $2,000 will take care of the repair bill. To replace the organ would cost between $10,000-$15,000. The organ was installed in the chapel in 1875 by Odel & Company, a Yonkers, New York firm.

Untested Fencers Face NCAA Champion Lions

Seriously weakened by the loss of veteran sabreman Dick Susco, and its entire foil team, the College's fencing varsity will be facing heavy odds this Saturday at 2 P.M. when it opens its intercollegiate season at Columbia University. With this inexperienced lineup, the burden has fallen upon veteran fencers Joel Wolfe, Jon Unnas and Norman Zafman, and sabreman Marty Wertlieb and Elliot Mills.

Despite the loss of Lion captain, Barry Pariser in the saber division, the Light Blue saber team is still a threat to retain their Eastern crown. Returning veterans Jerry Kaufman and Marc Stein have been selected to fill the vacany on the saber team.

The Lavender swordsmen will face the College's Alumni fencing team in a practice match tomorrow at the Fencers' Club, 203 East 53rd Street, at 6 P.M.

The competition will be formidable, as the Alumni will field several Olympic stars.
