Dynamite Charge Starts Construction of Library

Detonation of a small charge yesterday officially began the construction of the Raphael Cohen Library.

A Political Action Committee was formed yesterday at a meeting of the political and religious organizations representing the undergraduate membership lists by the Student Faculty Committee on Student Affairs (SFCSA). The committee, which will consist of one representative each from: Students for Democratic Action (SDA), Young Democrats, Young Liberals, Young Progressives of America (YPA), Marxist Discussion Club (MDC), and the National Association of the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), was formed for the purpose of implementing action against the lists ruling. The Hilil council which gave a qualified abstention to the attack and they would like some remuneration for the medical expenses that have been incurred. They have, however, not discussed legal action they will take at present.

Six Political Clubs Organize Committee Against Club Lists

The Political Action Committee, which gathered the support of the Colored undergraduates, and the American Federation of Students for Democratic Action and Young Democrats, signed a proposal to rescind the membership lists held responsible.

The SFCSA's disregard of the law of releasing a report on membership lists was "an infringement of the right of free association by the student body. The ruling," the report continues, "is in a form of indirect censorship . . . and it tends to install four of economic or social consequences in the minds of those who belong to organizations which support unpopular causes . . . and it would stop people from exercising their right to free speech."

The report also noted the student vote of almost 3-1 against the regulation in a referendum on last term's ballot. When the ruling was made, all political clubs on the campus with the exception of Students For Americanism and Young Republicans protested immediately, as did the Executive Board of Hillel.

Teachers May Foster Crime

A teacher's own maladjustment may be great of the greatest obstacles in meeting the question of maladjustment in schools. Professor Richard Bronson (Sociology) said yesterday in a talk before the Education Society.

He was speaking on the topic, "What Are We Going to Do About Delinquent Youth in New York City?"

Professor Bronson said that "very often the so-called maladjusted child reflects the maladjustment of his teacher." He therefore stressed the importance of forming only those who are competent not only in teaching methodology, but also in their methods of adjustment, to teach.

Several adjustments, he added, are necessary to get his way--ways of determining which will be competent teachers. He suggested the idea of having a method of selection wherein prospective teachers would be observed not only in student teaching, but also in their human relationship
Student 'Leaders'

Student Council acted in a way on Wednesday night that makes us wonder whether they think they've been chosen by the student body or by the divine right of kings. All motions that came up for a vote would have destroyed the effect of SC President Gloria Kingsley's ringing stand on Membership lists. Peeved that the Civil Liberties Committee hadn't "consulted" with the mother body before presenting their proposal, Council passed a motion to censure the committee. In case they've forgotten, they passed a ruling against membership lists themselves: "Membership on SFCSA is at least as important as that of the student body and as supportive of the student body as of the professional faculty, but so far as membership lists are concerned, that seems to us to sum up the situation. If all the students on SFCSA had voted in the best interests of the people they're supposed to repre- sent, the vote of the student body would have been a tie, if not a narrow squeak either.

Speaking of student leaders, we thing they're making quite a shoddy display of themselves on SFCSA. We are not proponents of the "student body" as against faculty theory, but so far as membership lists are concerned, that seems to sum up the situation. If all the students on SFCSA had voted in the best interests of the people they're supposed to repre- sent, the vote of the student body would have been a tie, if not a narrow squeak either.

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young engineers pioneers in design and sales of new tiny transistors

The germanium transistor—some smaller than the eraser end of a pencil and able to operate on a few thousandths of a watt—is probably one of the most promising developments in the electronics field today. It opens the way to new midget radios, TV sets flat enough to hang on a wall and many other exciting possibilities.

One of the men who helped design and perfect these tiny transistors—and the man who is now head of sales for all General Electric germanium products—is James H. Sweeney, Manager—Marketing, Semiconductor Products Department.

Sweeney's Work Interesting, Vital

As early as 1948, Sweeney was head of a group that studied the design and possible uses of germanium products. He gained national recognition for his work in developing and introducing these products to other industries, and when a new Semiconductor Products Department was formed in 1953, Sweeney was a natural choice for the job of marketing these products.

25,000 College Graduates at General Electric

When Sweeney came to General Electric in 1941, he worked in many different departments until he finally found the work he wanted to do. Like Sweeney, each of the 25,000 college-graduate employees is given the chance to grow, to find the work he likes best, and to realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed this: When fresh young minds are given the freedom to make progress, everybody benefits— the individual, the company, the country.
Soccermen Host Queens Today in Met Game

The City College soccer team, which has shattered all opposition thus far, will have the opportunity to retain undisputed possession of first place when it faces a strong Queens aggregation, Saturday, in Levisohn Stadium at 11:30.

The Beaver hooters will be placing two streaks on the line when they encounter the Knights. Brooklyn has won two straight Met League games, and Queens has scored two straight victories over the Aggies and Pratt and played to a tie with Kings Point.

Offense Hampered

The effectiveness of the visitors will be severely hampered, due to the infirmity of Queens' leading scorer, take five goals. Fokebo has been found guilty of playing outside ball with a professional team. His infraction will probably necessitate the forfeting of the Queens Point, Aggie and Pratt games.

TOMORROW'S GAMES

College to college, coast to coast, the chorus is the same: "Winston tastes good—like a cigarette should!" The rich flavor really comes through to you because Winston's exclusive filter works so effectively. Try Winston—you'll see!
