Council Defeats Beanies After Hour-Long Debate

Student Council last night spent an hour and twenty minutes meeting before it finally voted to defeat the use of freshmen beanies. The motion was introduced by Student Government Vice-President, Howard V. Fleischer, and seconded by Student Government President, Marion Myers, at the opening of the meeting. The group which wins the omicron ChiEpsilon Student Government's grand ballroom, which will make an offer of a grant arms to Israel?

The motion to "object to the use of freshmen beanies" was seconded by James S. Wagner, a 29-year-old army veteran, who moved as this year's City College Fund campaign's first chairman. Jerome I. Udel.

Players Seek Acting Feline

Dramee is looking for a quiet kitten with theatrical inclinations to take an important role in its forthcoming production of John Van Denburg's "Bell, Book and Candle." No experience is necessary—only stage presence. The feline, who will be on stage most of the play, must be able to run, sit, and move into the audience. It will also need to follow commands from a person on stage. Auditions will be held in the Drama Department. If you're interested, please call the drama department at 123-4567. The audition will be held next week at 7:00 PM. Arrive promptly, as we'll be looking for a range of personalities and styles to fill the role.

The College's Extension Division has embarked on a big business idea to boost the morale and efficiency of its student aides. The idea, which has been the brainchild of the Division's student aides, is to have student aides wear blue ties. The president of the Division, Lionel Phil, has been impressed with the idea and intends to implement it across the campus.

The co-ed Modern Dance Group will meet tomorrow evening to rehearse for the 10th Annual Win-Gate. All modern dance enthusiasts are invited to come.

QUESTION: Are you satisfied with the picture on your photo-identification card?

Carolyn Edwards, LF 1: Not really. I think it's terrible. It doesn't resemble me in the least.

Martin Schnitt, UF 1: By some strange miracle, it wasn't too bad. I'm pretty satisfied.

Marie Moraghe, LSO 1: I think it horrid. It doesn't resemble me in the least.

Anta Halpern, USP 1: It's not a good picture. Aside from the fact that it's too stretched out, it's good.

Saturday Night, Oct. 20
It seemed inevitable. The day would come when I’d have to write the column—the one that would scorchingly attack the administration for stifling athletics at the College; the one that would chastize the athletically-talented students for not trying out for the College’s teams.

And so it came as quite a surprise when I realized that I couldn’t do any of those things. Because strange as it seems, virtually every action taken this semester concerning sports at the College has tended to improve and expand our athletic program.

The first notable action was incorporated in the annual report of the General Faculty Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics to the Faculty, which was released in September. The report in part acknowledged the need for more freshman teams at the College, and authorized the withdrawal of $1500 from the athletic reserve fund for the creation of a freshman baseball team. And what is equally important, it indicated that similar measures would be taken with respect to other sports at the College as soon as enough money is available.

Another program aimed at improving the caliber of our athletic teams went into effect a few days later, with the institution of Athletic Interest cards. These cards, which were filled out in all Hygiene classes, contain information concerning the students’ main sports interests and past athletic experience.

The institution of the card system is important because it shows that QFICIA is genuinely interested in improving the athletic program. But it also has begun paying off in concrete terms. The player turnout for the College’s teams this season has been the largest in recent years. This has been one of the factors directly responsible for the fact that the Bavarian teams have not lost an event yet this year, while winning six.

A perfect case in point is the soccer team. The Booters, Met Champs for the past three years, were hit hard by graduations, and had only seven men return from last year’s squad. But so many talented newcomers have joined the team that this season’s squad surpasses the ’50 edition. The Booters have played three games, and won three games. They have scored more goals (19), and allowed fewer goals (2), than any of the past three seasons’ teams at a similar stage of the season, and are virtually a sho­ in for a fourth straight championship.

Even more significant is the fact that an overwhelming majority has necessitated the creation of an unofficial JV-Freshman team. Twenty men, mostly lower classmen, comprise the squad, with an additional fifteen seeking positions. In its only contest to date, the JV shut out the Columbia Soccer Club, 4-0.

Coach Harry Karlin is planning a Van­ity-JV fracas at the end of the regular season, and has hinted that it might be close. There should also be some exci­ ries about the future.

The cross-country team also owns a 3-0 record, and although the times they have turned in have not been outstanding, they have been good enough to defeat the other three City Colleges. The prospects for the coming winter sports are also bright. The swimming team should be one of the best in the East; the swimmers will probably be tops in the Met­ropolitan area; even the Metropolitan soccer teams.

It is obvious, therefore, that the College’s athletic horizon is brightening. The need for more facultate part of the situation is that that of the student body has not begun to come out and make up the sum.
