Racial Housing 'Pattern' Criticized by President

By ROSE MARIE DAVOLI

President Buell G. Gallagher yesterday attributed integration difficulties in the northern part of the United States to segregated housing. Speaking before a capacity crowd in the lounge at Hillel House, 475 West 140 Street, he criticized the New York City Housing Authority for its handling of the General Grant Houses, a project located at 125 Street and Broadway.

Buell G. Gallagher
For Integrated Housing

The lack of an integrated renting pattern there resulted in the acceptance of a segregated group of tenants, he said, and, because of that, the project is now occupied principally by one racial group.

Dr. Gallagher said, "As far as we know the New York City Housing Authority in charge of the General Grant housing project did nothing consciously to prevent emergence of a segregated housing pattern."

He continued, "It would have been just as easy, as legal, and a better service to the city to develop an integrated pattern there." He contrasted the housing development with the privately-owned cooperative houses on 123-125 streets, pointing out that the houses will consist of an integrated tenant body because of specifically integrated renting patterns.

Segregation, Dr. Gallagher went on to say, is a "caste notion" which exists today in our society. He said, "Its purpose is to perpetuate segregation." Integration, he concluded, is the only possibility for eliminating discrimination in this country.

A former president of all-Negro Talladega College in Alabama and a member of the Board of Directors of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People since 1934, Dr. Gallagher stressed that "Integrated housing is the key to successful integration of schools in the city." He is also a member of a committee supporting passage of the Sharkey-Isaacs-Brown anti-discrimination housing bill now before the City Council.

SC Group To Sign Lists; Gallagher NSA Speech Hit

Parts of Speech Called Inaccurate

By NINA MANZI

Bob Scheer, chairman of the College's National Student Association delegation, at Student Council yesterday labeled as "inaccurate" portions of President Buell G. Gallagher's keynote address given at the NSA Ann Arbor conference this summer.

Scheer said the President alleged "infiltration" of the International Relations Agency.

Dr. Gallagher, who was in attendance, at the time the statement was made, said that he would "be willing to modify his statements if they could be proven inaccurate." He left soon afterwards.

"Bad Taste"

Later, while delivering a report to Student Council on the NSA Convention and the structure of that organization, Scheer again referred to Dr. Gallagher's address.

He said it was in "bad taste" to air City College affairs at a national conference, and that the President created a hostile attitude and an "atmosphere of hysteria" by his statements.

Bart Cohen
Asks For Suggestions

When later reached for comment, Dr. Gallagher refused to reply to Scheer's statement. He said, "Since Scheer did not make these comments while I was present, I will not comment on the statements."

Scheer also said that the NSA was a "dying organization with a fear of controversy and a tremendous tendency to compromise."

Bart Cohen, SG president, called upon NSA delegates to report to Student Council and suggest actions that SG could take to improve NSA.

Committee Set Up To Evade Ruling

By SANDRA HELFENSTEIN

Student Council, last night empowered Student Government President Bart Cohen to establish a committee for the purpose of circumventing the compulsory membership list ruling. The resolution was passed by a 12-2-2 vote.

The Committee will be composed of eight student leaders who will "sign the membership lists of all those campus organizations who wish to submit their lists to them."

This is the second time action of this type has been taken by Council. Last term, when a similar resolution was passed, Council claimed that its purpose was "to show the College administration that the present system of membership lists is not workable."

Last year the General Faculty voted for membership lists, without safeguards, for a period of one year, at which time an outside advisory committee chosen by President Buell G. Gallagher was to give an evaluation of lists at the College.

The three man committee was chosen and Friday, Oct. 4, 1957 was selected as the day that they would submit their reports. At a press conference yesterday, Pres. Gallagher declined any comment on membership lists, declaring that any action he would take would be before the end of the semester. He also declined comment on when the Advisory Committee would present its report.

Students interested in joining the eight man committee may contact Bart Cohen in the SG office for further details.

Revise Frosh Liberal Arts Requirements

The science requirement for liberal Arts students has been revised for all entering freshmen and others who have not yet begun their science requirements. Students who are credited with both Physics and Chemistry from high school are now required to take only two semesters of science courses.

For students who present either Physics or Chemistry the requirement is three courses. Four semesters of science are required for those who have had neither Physics or Chemistry in high school.

Formerly it was required for liberal Arts students to take four semesters of science subjects regardless of what they had taken in high school.

Ennui?

Are you already dreary from the term's work? Do you have freshman frown? OP has the answer for you. Lighten your burdens, throw your cares away. Come to the OP candidates class today at 12:15 PM in Room 301 Downer.

Final Salk Polio Inoculations Planned for Week of Oct. 14

The third and final Salk Vaccine injection will be available during the week of October 14 for those students who filed applications last January.

Students are asked to report to the same medical offices on North and South Campus where they received their last inoculation. To facilitate the program an alphabetical time schedule has been set up.

Inoculations will only be administered during that week. Those who do not report for this injection most get it elsewhere.

Students must present either a stamped Bursar's Receipt Card or College Photo-Identification Card. Injections will not be given without proper identification.

Applicants are also asked to wear clothes which will permit the exposure of the upper arm without the removal of the shirt.

If the applicant finds that he has an elevated temperature on the morning assigned him, he should not report for his inoculation on that morning but should arrange for a new appointment.

UBE...

The Used Book Exchange has posted a list of sold books outside Room 425 Finley. Money will be returned in Room 123 on Thursdays, October 3, 10, 17, and 24, from 12:30-3 PM.

Folk Singer

Martha Schlamme will appear in a program of folk songs from many countries in Bittenweiser Lounge (first floor Finley) today at 12 Noon. This will be the first of Hillel's "Lectures and Arts" series.

Miss Schlamme who is a native of Vienna has a repertory including Hebrew, Yiddish, Italian, Spanish, Russian and French songs. She has appeared before capacity crowds in Town Hall and the Players Theatre in London.

Plan To Alter Finley Center Sagging Wing

Plans for redesigning the southwest wing of the third floor of the Finley Student Center are being drawn up by the College's Architectural Unit, David Newton (Student Life) announced Tuesday. The area is sealed off at present.

These plans will be presented before the Board of Estimate at its first meeting, which will take place later this month. The designs, Mr. Newton said, will include a projection room which can be used for theatrical purposes.

In August, Mr. Kenneth G. Fleming, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds, declared the wing "in hazardous condition."

Now a Champ, Girls Line Up To Sip from Stanley's Cup

Ever since Stan Hendler wrote a winning jingle, he has been followed attentively by hordes of girls.

"It's great. Girls seem to be attracted to me since I became a winner instead of loser," he said.

What could make the fair sex suddenly drool whenever he walks by? Simple. Stan, a sociology major at the College, has won all the Nedick's orange drink he can consume for one year.

Stan won the beverage for his prize-winning couplet in a contest open to the listeners of the Jean Shepherd "Nightpeople" show over WOR radio.

To win, he had to complete this line:

"Nedicks, schmedicks, double bedicks, pipkins all agree."

This was Stan's contribution: "Hotdogs, mustard, burgers, schmurgers and orange drink for me."

The first day he received his Admiral of the Orange Seas card, entitling him to enter any Nedick's and drink for free, Stan downed six tall glasses of the orange liquid. "I had a hangover when I came home," he related.

He retained his senses long enough to explain that this was the first thing he had ever won. "I was always coming in second—as a matter of fact, I couldn't even win the College's Ugly Man contest last year."

- Letters to the Editor -

Dear Editor:

I read with amazement the editorial entitled "Outside Activities" in The Campus of September 24, 1957. It puzzled me how there could be such a misunderstanding of relatively simple ideas. I write it off to the fact that it must have been one of those long-nighters when thoughts expressed between yawns are hastily gobbled up as copy. Whatever the case, permit me to unravel the cryptic mystery.

There is, of course, no question of whether a council member who has taken some sort of unorthodox step is eligible to retain his seat. Naturally, since he was elected by a free and ostensibly responsible electorate, he is eligible to serve out his term. The point raised in the resolution is that he is not only eligible to continue, but that it is desirable for him to continue on Council.

It is desirable because all people, within the limit of laws have a right to free expression, to speak out, to join groups, to engage in the activities they want. Other groups will say "throw this or that man out." We say it is desirable for them to continue whatever they think or whatever they have done, because this is a political democracy where people have civil liberties.

It is one thing for someone to privately consider anyone he chooses undesirable. It is another to say "I deem him undesirable." Therefore he must lose some of his rights. This is not a legal question, which the resolution raises, it is a moral question.

Howard Schumann
SG Secretary

Dear Editor:

I should like to take sharp issue with the tone, if not the text of the recent OP editorial on the question of membership lists. Although I realize full well how extensively the issue has been flailed over the past few semesters, I still feel it necessary to express my disappointment at the editorial statement that appeared in last Tuesday's OP, calling upon the President of the College to take "no course of action other than to recommend to the GFCSA that the lists be removed."

I cannot state the following too strongly: As one of the eight students who last semester volunteered on behalf of the Student Government to sign the membership cards of all campus organizations, my opposition and that of the Student Council to the lists was, and is, solely on the basis of their being compulsory, for at no time has any real opposition to the existence of membership lists on a voluntary basis been manifested.

Indulgence in polemical exercise and abandonment of what seems to me to be the eminently reasonable position on the "lists" question that many students, the Student Council, and indeed, past editorial boards of OP have taken, is not I think, the best method of arriving at a satisfactory conclusion to the controversy during this, the week of decision.

Having expiated myself on the issue, I thank OP for giving me the opportunity to do so.

Mike Horowitz

OPinions...

QUESTION: If you had the opportunity to go to Communist China this summer, would you have gone even though you knew that the State Department might take some action on what it considered to be a violation of policy?

Alvin Geller, L Sr 1:

If it were personally beneficial to me, I would go, providing it would not be detrimental to my future in the United States. However, I think it is foolish to go just for some cheap publicity.

Bert Miller, LF 1:

I probably would have made the trip to Red China because I believe that actually seeing how other people live leads to a better understanding of their ideology. Once we can understand the motivation of other people, we can live better in peace and harmony.

Jan Loorya, LF 1:

I want to see what it's really like inside Communist China. The Reds claim the people have a good life, but refugees claim differently. I have no personal reasons to go, yet I feel the State Department's line is unfair and illogical. It is not in keeping with this country's principles.

Alan Heim, U So 1:

I am opposed to the government's view that Red China doesn't exist. Since the legality of the government's issue is in doubt, I would have gone. But I don't think it would really have been a true picture of Red China.

Elaine Askern, L So 7:

It would be a worthwhile opportunity to see something like that. I don't agree with the State Department's ban, as I feel that it only makes such a trip more enticing. People will want to go if only to find out what it is that makes the State Department take the stand it does.

Sue Blugerman, L Jr 1:

I would have wanted to see for myself what the Communists are doing and how the people react to it. I realize I wouldn't have seen what they didn't want me to see, but at least I would have gotten first hand many of the things I would never have had the opportunity to see otherwise.

Drew Dillon, L So 1:

I wouldn't want to go because I don't think I'd like China. Because I choose to be a dutiful citizen, I'd obey the wishes of the State Department.

Marilyn Bloom, LF 3:

After reading about the students in the newspaper, I think I would like to go to China. I have a cousin who went to Moscow and I heard that he was treated very nicely there. I'm very curious to see what it is like in Communist China.

John Castaldi, U Jr 5:

The students who went served as propaganda for the Communists. Moreover, they were guided around, not really seeing Red China as it is. I wouldn't have gone, and I think that those who did go should never be able to get another passport.

Stephen Torchin, LF 1:

I think I would have gone. There are many reports in the newspapers and on television concerning the life there, but I would rather see it for myself and form my own opinions, than have them formed for me by commentators and reporters.

Elliot Lorenzi, U Jr 1:

Being an American citizen, one must comply with the rules of the government. For curiosity's sake, I would like to have gone, but I would not have defied the law.

Seniors . . .

All seniors who did not receive letters concerning their photos for Microcosm and graduation, are asked to report to the Senior Class office, Room 223 Finley, as soon as possible.

Track Captains Seek Clean Slate

By RALPH DANNHEISSER

Randy Crosfield and Ralph Taylor, co-captains of the College's cross-country team, are a realistic pair of athletes. Neither foresees much of an improvement over last year's perfect record.

Within this natural limitation, though, both predict big things for the team.

The practice times turned in thus far have been extremely good for this early in the season, Taylor points out, and the harriers stand an excellent chance of going undefeated again this term.

A 19-year-old lower junior, Ralph has been on the cross-country and track squads for two years. Majoring in chemistry, he hopes to attend graduate school after leaving the College.

Ralph first became interested in track at the Bronx High School of Science. He joined the team there, he explains, after viewing the medals of a friend who was on another high school's squad. "I decided I wanted some myself," says Ralph, who now owns his share.

In addition to his participation on the team, Ralph stays busy outside school by singing in his church youth choir and working with the Boy Scouts as an assistant scoutmaster.

Randy Crosfield
Co-captain of Team

Several new men are "working hard," according to Crosfield, and he feels that the team will develop to the point where everyone on the squad breaks thirty minutes. This emphasis on working hard is natural to Randy, who has been doing just that since joining the harriers two years ago.

Switched Teams

Randy originally joined the lacrosse squad, which finishes off its practice sessions with a run around the stadium track. "I eventually got to run around the track more than practice," he recalls, in explaining his conversion to track.

Randy feels that being on the track team, in addition to giving him the opportunity to meet people and make friends, has impressed him with the need to "do things which at first hurt but pay off in the end." Summed up in this phrase is the determination which has led him to his present number one slot on the team.

Meetings...

• There will be a meeting for all members and new candidates of the track team today at 12 Noon in the squad's locker room at Lewisohn Stadium.

• Students interested in trying out for the wrestling team are requested by coach Joe Sapora to report to the Tech gym at 12 Noon today.

• New candidates for the Lacrosse squad, as well as members of last year's team are requested to report to Lewisohn Stadium today at 12 Noon.

Sturdy Gym Mentor Passes Physical Fitness Tips Along

Although the phrase, "sound body—sound mind," been greatly overworked, Professor Thomas Ierardi (Physical and Health Education) still maintains that health and physical fitness are two of the most important aims an individual can strive for.

Professor Ierardi, whose appearance proves he practices what he preaches, believes that conditioning is up to the individual—he must want to be physically fit.

"A one-mile run, twenty minutes of swimming and five minutes of wrestling daily will keep most people in top shape," he said. Dr. Ierardi has been known to make his gym classes run two miles, which he times.

There are many problems which a gym instructor must overcome. Most important is the one of poor physical shape of the classes. After a summer of leisure, new problems in conditioning students must meet and dealt with.

The ideal situation, Prof. Ierardi says, would be daily gym on a voluntary basis. In this students in poor shape and desiring supervised conditioning would be able to benefit.

Although there is no indication now that daily gym sessions become a reality, the two-mile students in Dr. Ierardi's classes, sweat out, seem to be enough for them.
