General Faculty Passes Resolution Asking for Repeal of Speaker Ban

By SANDRA HELFENSTEIN

In a fifteen-minute session yesterday, the General Faculty approved a resolution urging the municipal college Council of Presidents and the Board of Higher Education to rescind the ban prohibiting Smith Act violators from appearing on campus. The resolution, as proposed by Professor Henry H. Villard (Chmn., Economics) at the Faculty's meeting of Noember 22, requests the elimination of "all restrictions on speakers who can be invited to the City College except those arising in paragraphs twenty-one and twenty-two of the President's report."

Prohibition

Paragraphs twenty-one and twenty-two prohibit from appearing on the campus "members of the faculty, student body, or administration who have been suspended or were dismissed from College" and those persons "convicted of violating public decency or involved in a morals charge."

The next step if the Smith Act ban is to be rescinded must be taken by the municipal college Council of Presidents. The ban was instituted by the Council in March of 1957.

Gates Barred

The Smith Act ban controversy arose when John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, was invited to speak at Queens College. Provost Thomas V. Garvey of Queens College overruled the Faculty Committee on Student Activities and prohibited the appearance of Mr. Gates.

An invitation was then extended to Mr. Gates by the College's Student Government Public Affairs Forum. Immediately following the invitation, the Council of Presidents issued their decision refusing "to extend campus courtesies to persons convicted under the Smith Act."

Invitation Denied

The controversy was rekindled this term when the College's Marxist Discussion Club invited Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, a candidate for the City Council in last November's elections, to speak at a meeting. Miss Flynn, who had been convicted under the Smith Act, was denied the privilege of speaking.

Accept Recommendations

At the second General Faculty meeting of the semester, President Buell G. Gallagher's recommendations concerning visiting speakers were accepted. The recommendations urged that "no ideological or organizational restrictions" be placed on visiting speakers.

The General Faculty meeting of December 4 which was held to discuss the revocation of the Smith Act ban was postponed because of lack of quorum.

Paranos On All-American First Team—Only Booter Named in CCNY History

By PETER FRANKLIN

An OP Exclusive

John Paranos, a 22-year-old junior and second year man on the College's soccer team, has been named the top center halfback in the country.

Chosen by the National College Soccer All-American Selection Committee at their annual meeting in Manhattan last night, Paranos is the first City College athlete to win a place on any All-American first team.

Two years ago, inside left Wolfgang Westl received a berth on the squad's second team.

Scan 500 Teams

According to A. Huntley Parker Jr., chairman of the committee and coach of the Brockport State Teachers eleven, the committee has been in session for the last three days picking the All-Americans from approximately 500 soccer team schools in the country.

A tall, well-built athlete, Paranos was overjoyed upon hearing the news. "I am extremely happy," he said, "but I feel there ought to be more CCNY players on the All-American squad. We've always played a team game and any honor I receive should be given to the team as well," he continued. Paranos felt that he "could not have gotten the honor without the great work of my fellow players."

John came to the United States in 1949 after escaping with his parents from Yugoslavia.

In his two years at the helm of the Beaver Booters' defense, he has scored 13 goals, 9 of them penalty shots.

Scorer

He holds the honor of being the highest scoring defenseman in the College's history in addition to the All-American laurels.

Regional directors for the committee are, Roy Dath, Trinity College, New England area; Jack Corkery, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, New York State; Alden Burnham, Delaware State Teachers College, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware area; James Bly, Duke University, Southern area; Joe Guenel, Indiana University, midwest region, and Art Bridgeman, San Francisco State, Far West area.

Awards Given At SG Dinner

Student Government major and minor awards for the Fall 1957 semester were presented at the semi-annual SG Inaugural Dinner Wednesday evening.

Major awards for outstanding leadership and service to the extra-curricular activities and the College community were awarded to: Bart Cohen, SG President; Harold Klein, THC President; Ellen Moncrieff, President of the Art Society and Editor of the Society's publication, Impressions; Steve Nader, SG President-Elect; Maurice Pollock, Editor of Microcosm; Howard Schumann, former SG Secretary.

Minor awards for outstanding service were presented to: Marvin Adler, Len Appel; Marvin Binstock; Peter Franklin, Hank Gasser; Karen Gordon, Stanley Hendler; Ronald Kawesch, Dave Margolis; Jack Monet, Ken Regenbaum; Phillip Spiegel; Bob Steinberg; Richard Trattner and Maurice Zaslowsky.

OPicks...

Gerald Eskenazi, an upper junior, has been elected Editor-in-Chief of the Observation Post for the spring term. Others elected to the Managing Board are Jay Carr and Ralph Dannheisser, Associate Editors; Peter Franklin, Managing Editor; Marsha Cohen, Business Manager; Steve Ludwig and Sandra Helfenstein, Co-News Editors; Jerry Bielawski, Features Editor, and Lou Egol, Sports Editor.

No Action Yet On Austin Plea

Dr. Warren B. Austin (English) must decide within the next six days whether he will appeal to the Commissioner of Education for reinstatement.

The deadline for filing an appeal to the Commissioner is Thursday. If Dr. Austin wishes instead to appeal to the State Supreme Court, he must do so within the next three and a half months.

"No action has been taken on the appeal at this point," Dr. Austin said yesterday. "The decision will be mine in consultation with my attorney [Mr. Ephraim S. London]."

Accusations

Dr. Austin was suspended from the College without pay on May 21, 1957. The day before, a special committee accused the professor of having falsely denied having ever "been a member of the Communist Party or of any unit or group of the Communist Party," or having "ever attended or participated in any meetings of the Communist Party or of any group thereof." Dr. Austin was charged with "misconduct" because of the allegedly false testimony.

The Board of Higher Education (BHE) notified Dr. Austin on December 16, 1957 that he was dismissed from the College, acting upon the recommendation of its trial committee which investigated the charges brought against Dr. Austin.

Committee Members

The members of the committee were: Dr. Charles H. Tuttle, chairman; Mr. John J. Morris and Professor Arleigh B. Williamson.

At the hearings, Dr. Lewis Balamuth, a former Physics professor at the College and an admitted ex-Communist, identified Dr. Austin as having been a Communist from 1939 to 1942. The trial committee stated in its report on the professor's case that "Balamuth's testimony as to Austin is amply corroborated."

I apologize to all Pidookies for the inability of all assistant Big Brothers to hold a rally in my absence following the resounding victory over Brooklyn College last Friday night.—Stan Heidler, Big Brother.

'Thirty'

By Dave Gross

What we will remember longest about college life will be the incidents scattered throughout our four or five year stay here that kept the sometimes dreary routine of classroom lecture and recitation from encasing us in a cloak of college sanctity. And it will be these vignettes that we will chuckle over or curse a little when we look back through these college years.

Having spent three of the four and one-half years I have been enrolled here working for and involved with Observation Post, I will take with me, for the most part, memories tied directly or indirectly to this publication.

The adventures of all-night vigils at the printers, and the copy nights continued after midnight in the Emerald Bar or, more recently, in the Hi-Lite, have already been set down by editors better equipped than myself to manipulate English. But these are the incidents for me, at least, that have made my stay here more than just a march through a succession of classrooms.

It is the last two semesters, however, that will stand out most clearly—mainly because of our demise last semester and the events arising from it. For one, I became Editor-in-Chief of OP after an anticipated collapse of the Managing Board. For another, the really unexpected rebirth of this newspaper, with the knowledge that within a year it will again be the best publication on campus.

These achievements in themselves are tremendously gratifying. But digging beneath the surface, I find something even more gratifying, a fundamental lesson not to be lost. Simply stated, if indeed it can be put simply, it is a feeling of achievement, even on this small scale, of working as part of a group within an organization producing something worthwhile and still retaining one's individuality. This feeling of achievement is worthwhile not only from the standpoint of publishing a newspaper twice a week, but also with the view of learning and understanding camaraderie outside of the mere physical sense.

This can be said about most extra-curricular activities on campus, and, indeed, it is our education outside of the academic areas which comes to have the most meaning for us.

The College's only real contribution to our education is to alert those of us, who are at least half awake, to the multitude of ideas and facts that will never reach us in the classroom. The value of these four years, then, lies not in our ritualized classroom lessons, but in the freedom we enjoy during these years of selecting and garnering experience outside of the College's walls. Four years on an undergraduate level provides us with, perhaps, the only period of life when we are particularly free from responsibility and can think, almost without fear, along a variety of lines.

It is not what we learn here, or even what we do here, since our actions are on a trial and error basis, that is important. But it is how we use the time college provides us with the excuse for, and the boost the College gives us to arrive at a higher plane of thinking, that will ultimately set the pattern for our future acts.

When we compare the College with other colleges and universities in the United States, solely on academic record, we are proud of the mark this institution has made. Yet even here we are faced with the mediocre. But perhaps this is an unfair judgment since the standards are dictated by the educational system which is geared to the median. Perhaps it's unjust because this is a free institution and anyone who meets the minimum requirements cannot be denied entrance. Still we would expect more of this College.

The mediocre could be disposed of during the first year and even before that if the minimum standards were to be raised above what they are now. When this is done, it would be possible to raise the standards of the curriculum itself. A method suggests itself at once. And that is the division of the year into quarters instead of the present system of two semesters. This method would make the courses more concentrated and, at the same time, reduce the pressures of taking sixteen credits and more each semester.

But this is not the only area in which we can presume to criticize. There are too many instructors here who are so convinced of their own genius that they think it too small an affair to teach. In my own experience, I have had only a handful of instructors who have had the intelligence, sincerity and wit to use every minute of classroom time to reveal to the student all the intricacies and information of his subject. If it were not for the Landys and Halkins, the Rosens, Bierstedts and Nolands, the College would be reduced in rating even in comparison to other institutions.

In my own way of thinking, I should be, perhaps, one of the last to criticize this institution, since I should surely be swept away with the mediocrities in that first year. Yet we get this opportunity so infrequently that it should not be wasted.

We come to the last lines of lead not knowing really what we have learned or failed to learn, what we have understood or failed to understand, theorizing only, and yet there is not even time to pause.

"We must look at ourselves and decide what should be done," she continued. "We must know what we want to defend, and how we want to defend it."

One major problem in the United States, she felt, was the tendency for Americans to take many of their privileges for granted. "I don't believe," she said, "that there is two percent illiteracy in the Soviet Union today."

Mrs. Roosevelt asserted that she met no people of College age who could not speak two languages besides their own. Every large city has a language institute, she continued, and even engineers are required to take language courses so that they can speak fluently the language of the people with whom they will work.

No Rest For Beaver Teams: Nine Games During Vacation

The College's athletic teams will be busy as ever during intercession, playing nine games while other students recover from final exams.

The first team to see action will be the fencing squad. The parriers trade pencils for weapons when they play host to Princeton on Saturday, January 18. They will go into the contest with a 2-1 record. The Tigers will be looking for revenge after last season's 14-13 Beaver triumph.

Grapplers Busy

Except for the basketball team, the wrestler's will be the busiest squad during intercession. On Saturday, January 25, they grapple with Fairleigh Dickinson in the latter's gym. The Matmen play host to powerful Wilkes on the following Saturday. So far this season, the grapplers have a 2-1 record with two victories in a row.

Both the swimming team and the Women's Basketball team will see action during the two-week period. The Mermen will meet the United States Merchant Marine Academy on Friday, January 31. The Cagerettes will trade baskets with Hunter College on Tuesday, January 28. Both contests will be held at the College.

Jasper Tilt Heads Hoopsters' Sked; Hunter, Alumni Games Also on Tap

By PETER FRANKLIN

In the midst of the chaotic period between final exams and registration, the College's basketball team will meet four opponents—the Alumni, Fairleigh Dickinson College, Manhattan College, and Hunter College, respectively.

Sporting a record of 6 wins and 3 losses, Manhattan will probably prove to be the big trouble for the Beavers. Leading scorer for the Jaspers is John Powers, 6-1, with a 17.7 average. Although Powers is the only returning letterman from last season, the team is a well co-ordinated squad. Rounded out by Dick Wilbur, 6-3, John Clegg, 6-0, Donald McGorty, 6-1, and Bob Nealy, 6-6, the Jasper five has been shooting the ball at a 53% clip.

Set for Wednesday, January 29, in the Wingate Gym, the tilt will give the Beavers the opportunity to revenge last season's 72-68 defeat.

Breathing Spell

The Fairleigh Dickinson match should prove to be an easy one for the Beavers. Last season the College defeated the Knights, 90-71.

Schedule

- Sat., Jan. 18 . . . Alumni . . . Wingate Gym
- Sat., Jan. 25 . . . Fairleigh Dickinson . . . Rutherford, N. J.
- Wed., Jan. 29 . . . Manhattan . . . Wingate Gym
- Sat., Feb. 1 . . . Hunter . . . Wingate Gym

With a starting five of Conrad Kaker, 6-5, Henry Hugo, 6-4, Theodore Kornegay, 6-5, John Quigley, 6-2, and John Walsh, 6-0, the Knights have set a 3-5 record to date.

Possible Troublemaker

A possible troublemaker who might upset the appl-cart, however, is Kaker who has been shooting a 17.6 average. He has scored

Mermen Drop Meet to Rams

The College's swimming team was defeated by Fordham University, 54-31, Wednesday.

The Mermen's record is now 1-3—they have beaten only Brooklyn Poly.

The Beavers started off on the right foot by winning the 400-yard medley relay. The team of Jerry Lopatin, Karl Schmidt, Dave Grossman, and Dave Alneu completed the course in 5:07.6.

141 in the last eight outings of the squad. The game will be on Saturday, January 25 at Rutherford, New Jersey.

Who Knows?

The big question is the Hunter game. After the 52-50 loss earlier in the season by the Beavers it is dangerous to even try to predict.

Leading the Hawks this season has been Barry Falk, 5-8, with a 16.7 average. The Hunter record is 4 wins and 4 losses.

Continuing a thirty year tradition, the varsity will meet the alumni squad on Saturday, Jan. 18.

Probable Alumni Lineup

Probable players for the alumni will be, Syd Levy, a member of the 1956 All-Met team, Jerry Domershick, member 1954 All-Met team, Howard Buss, Jack Cheudnoff, and others.

Beaver Five

Throughout all four games the Beaver five will most likely consist of Hector Lewis, 6-5, Bob Silver, 6-5, Len Wallit, 6-2, Joe Bennardo, 5-9, and Marty Groveman.

Joel Ascher will be leading the Beaver reserve list.

Sportnotes . . .

• President Eisenhower's report on physical fitness in the United States, published last year, has prompted the National Collegiate Athletic Association to press plans for a national soccer tournament. If the plan becomes a reality, it may afford the Beaver Booters a chance for national recognition.

• Athletes are to make appointments for medical examinations from January 13 to January 27. Male athletes are to make appointments in Room 109 Wingate, from 9 AM to 5 PM, Monday through Friday. Women make appointments in Room 07 Park, from 9 AM to 3 PM, Monday through Friday. Athletes will not be eligible for competition if they fail to report for a medical examination during this period.

PENN R. POST received his B.S. in engineering from U.C.L.A. in 1956. He is now in the second year of General Electric's Technical Marketing Program, in the Company's General Purpose Motor Department.

"In a growing industry, there's room for me to grow"

"Here at General Electric," says Penn R. Post, 24-year-old marketing trainee, "you hear a lot of talk about the future—even as far ahead as 1978. In fact, I've discovered that planning ahead for America's needs 10 and 20 years from now is characteristic of the electrical industry. And, what's important to me, General Electric's long-range planning takes my future into account. I'm now on my fourth assignment in the Company's Technical Marketing Program—all planned steps in my development."

"I'm pretty confident about the electrical future, too. For one thing, America's use of electricity has been doubling every ten years. And it will increase even faster as our population grows another 65 million by 1978—and as research and development lead to new electrical products that help people live better. The way I look at it, the technical, manufacturing and marketing resources of large companies like General Electric are important factors in the growth of the electrical industry. And in a growing industry, there's room for me to grow."

Young people like Penn Post are an important part of General Electric's plans to meet the opportunities and challenges of the electrical future. Each of our 29,000 college-graduate employees is given opportunities for training and a climate for self-development that help him to achieve his fullest capabilities. For General Electric believes that the progress of any industry—and of the nation—depends on the progress of the people in it.
