

OBSERVATION POST

OP Sponsors Gripe Meeting

"Gripes and Suggestions" is the subject of a meeting sponsored by Observation Post tomorrow at 3 PM in Room 121 Finley.

Presidents of the College's organizations and clubs have been invited to attend and express their "content or discontent with the paper," according to Jerry Eskenazi, the publication's Editor-in-Chief. He said, "This sort of meeting will enable OP to better understand the organizations' problems and to find out how we can increase our service to the clubs and the student body."

Eskenazi continued, "As an organization, OP has been through the mill. Now, that we have straightened out our own problems, we feel in a position to hold a meeting of this type."

He added, "The room, date and time are set. The thought is there. We hope all the clubs and organizations at the College will send representatives."

Tech's Week Arranged For Feb. 16-22

Professional Engineering Week, February 16-22, will be marked at the College by a special program sponsored February 20 by the Technology Inter-Fraternity Inter-Society Council (TIIC).

Podell to Speak

The program, to include an address by Howard Podell, former director of the New York City chapter of the American Professional Engineering Society, will get under way at 12:30 PM in Townsend Harris Auditorium.

Mr. Podell, vice-president of the Star Feas Company of New York, will outline in his talk the significance of the professional engineering license. He holds a bachelor of science degree in chemistry from Columbia University, and is also former state public relations chairman for the engineering society.

A forum, "How Good Is Our Engineering Education," will follow the address. Mr. Podell and five faculty members will serve on the panel.

'Prepared Engineers?'

"Is the engineer prepared for industry when he leaves college?" and "How is the engineer prepared for society?" will be two points covered at the forum, according to Max Zaslowsky, TIIC president.

Michael Simonian is program chairman.

Take Me to Your Leader

Yes, you, too, can be an OPerson. Don't be chicken — come to the OP indoctrination session today at 12 Noon in Room 121 Finley. Our handsome, dashing, debonair, man-about-campus managing editor will spread the gospel. Learn the unrevealed history of OP! Learn the mystic rites of the OPeople! Learn where we keep the liquor! Go on, we dare you! And if you can't make it at Noon, drop around to 336 Finley anytime. Remember: OP UBER ALLES!

Student Council:

Reorganizing Proposals Suggested by SG Prexy

A plan for reorganization of the Student Council electoral system will be presented to Student Government Executive Committee tomorrow by SG President Steve Nagler.

Nagler will suggest having nine delegates from each class—three from the School of Technology, three from the School of Education, and three from the School of Liberal Arts.

Another possible way suggested by Nagler for divisioning the representatives is to have four of the representatives from each class from the School of Technology, three from the School of Liberal Arts, and two from the School of Education.

"I don't feel that Council is as representative as it could be," Nagler said. "This plan would improve the representativeness of Council and would increase the number of students directly represented."

According to Nagler, three Exec members have already expressed approval of the plan.

If Exec approves the proposal, it will be presented at Student Council's next meeting on February 19.

President Steve Nagler Suggests Revision

Prior to this, on Tuesday, February 11, there will be an informal Council meeting to discuss the plan. Nagler has extended an invitation for all people who are interested to attend the informal meeting at 4 PM in Room 438 Finley.

SC Bolsters Lists Plan; Tables By-Law Revision

By RITA ASHKENAS

Campus clubs and organizations were invited to become Programming Commissions of Student Government in a resolution passed by Student Council last night.

In a further action, Council tabled until the next meeting a set of by-laws aimed at changing the basic construction of the Executive branch of SG.

The resolution inviting clubs to become SG Commissions implements a by-law enacted last term establishing Programming Commissions as autonomous units under SG. Council may make no laws concerning the commissions, their only responsibility to Council being the submission of a semestral report to the Executive Committee of their completed programs, programs in progress, and plans for the future.

In effect, this plan would enable clubs and organizations not submitting membership lists to use the name of the College and receive fee funds, since SG has not been requested, to date, to hand in these lists. Dean James S. Peace (Student Life) indicated, however, that a complete roster will be requested of SG this term.

SG President Steve Nagler, speaking for the motion, reminded the Council that they have as yet not been asked to submit lists—"When and if we are," he said, "we will take whatever action this body deems necessary." He added that it had been decided between SG and Dean Peace several terms ago that "Student Government is not an organization on the College campus."

Youth Festival Visitors Discuss 'Jewry In The Soviet Union'

A capacity crowd jammed the Hillel Lounge Tuesday as a panel of three students who attended the Moscow World Youth Festival discussed the topic, "Is Russian Jewry Maintaining Its Identity?"

Joining Jake Rosen of the College on the panel were Arbie Muslim of Brooklyn College and Millie Masters of Queens College.

All three were impressed by the attention given them by the Russian people, and also noted that the Israeli delegation was besieged by large crowds at their hotel. However, they saw no evidence of any desire on the part of the Russians to emigrate either to Israel or America.

Zionist Cradle

Although according to Rafi Horowitz, moderator of the discussion, Russia was the cradle of Zionism 70 years ago, the panel informed the audience that there is no Zionist movement in the Soviet Union at this time.

Both Rosen and Muslim pointed out the Moscow has three synagogues, but that the majority of Jews in attendance are past the age of fifty. The younger Jews, they pointed out, speak no Yiddish but did read Jewish cultural material translated into Russian. Rosen said that an attempt is being made by the Writers' Union to get permission to print journals in Yiddish instead of Russian.

There is a school for the rabinate with thirty students, but there is no other secular Jewish education, the panel reported.

Square Dance Scheduled for 'Doomed' Hall

The last social affair to be staged in Drill Hall will be Hillel's Semi-Annual Square Dance Saturday night.

Hillel's traditional first event of the term has been held in the hall since 1949. Sometime this term the fifteen-year-old Drill Hall will be torn down to make way for a Technology Building scheduled to be constructed on the site.

Hall 'Ideal'

"The Drill Hall has always been ideal for our purposes," said Hillel President Morty Shapiro. "Its size enables more people to attend, and its proximity to Hillel gives us the opportunity to the House for folk singing after the dance."

At 8:30 Saturday evening, the first square dance will be called by Irwin Harris. The admission price for Hillel members is fifty cents; non-members will be charged $1.50. All new members, including those who join at the door, will be admitted free.

A Fair Shake?

In the last Student Government elections the students decisively defeated a referendum proposing a student activities fee increase. It was Student Council that placed this referendum on the ballot. Now the very same Council has brazenly and inconsiderately recommended such an increase to the administration.

Perhaps Council is only doing what it feel is best for the students, but then why do Council members, being students themselves, have the greater wisdom to decide this.

It may have been true, as one Council member said, "that the students were not well enough informed to know the reasons for the [proposed] increase." And though this may be a valid point, the job of informing the student body of the reasons and justification for the referendum rests with the Council and only with the Council. Thus, Council must take the blame. It cannot excuse itself by saying, in effect, that since it neglected to fulfill its obligations in the area of publicity, it can sidestep its other obligations. The claim that the students didn't really know what they were doing when they defeated the referendum makes little real difference.

When the members of Student Council place a referendum on the ballot, we must assume that they wish to know the desires of the students and intend to abide by them.

Steve Nagler, Student Government president, has claimed that this would reduce the members of Council to nothing but marionettes; but we cannot see how a sensitivity and response to the manifest desires of the student body can ever reduce a representative Council to a puppet organization.

To date, Student Government has usually been an eloquent voice of the students. But suddenly this voice has spoken in contradiction, rather than in concert.

We of the Observation Post are for a fee increase. The College's extra-curricular program is one of the largest in the country, yet for this we pay one of the smallest prices. Costs in recent years have spiraled while the fees have risen only slightly.

But we are not for a fee increase under such circumstances.

We are not for a fee increase—if it violates the philosophy of representative government.

We are not for a fee increase if it violates the mandate of the majority of voters.

We are not for a fee increase if Council members represent themselves and only themselves on this vital issue.

We are not for a fee increase when decisions are directed from the top down, rather than from the bottom up.

We are not for a fee increase if it threatens representative democracy in the College community.

En Garde

Student Council has accepted the challenge thrust in its collective face by the Department of Student Life.

The DSL has declared that all committees, agencies, and committees of Student Government will have to submit lists, thwarting SG's plan to have clubs and organizations seeking to evade lists-signing gain immunity by becoming SG Programming Commissions.

The Council decided last night not to hoist the white flag but to continue with its plans to form the commissions. Its open invitation to all clubs and organizations on campus to come under the protective wing of SG Programming Commissions is a declaration that it has not lost sight of the basic issue of lists despite extreme pressure.

It is apparent that Council is attempting to keep the issue alive. This is imperative in order to defeat the dictated list.

We are unequivocally against lists, and we must continue to protest till we have won what is our democratic right.

C'mon

Tomorrow at 3 PM in Room 121 Finley, Observation Post will hold a meeting to air "gripes and suggestions" of the clubs and organizations at the College.

We want to be in a position to be of better service to the College community.

We want to put out a better paper.

What we need is help—your help. Please be there.

The Misnomer

By STANLEY K. HENDLER

A statue of a beaver is standing in a clump of trees behind Finley Center. It is five-feet high and contains one and a half tons of feldspar. If you don't know what feldspar is, any Geology major will tell you it is the most common mineral on the Earth's crust.

Fortunately, it is only occasionally found in chunks large enough to make five-foot rodents. Even more rarely are such chunks found in a solid color that can euphemistically be described as off-brown.

Another factor operating against the beaver is its spacial orientation. The CCONY Beaver has always been portrayed in a horizontal position with all fours on the ground, eagerly charging onto the field of athletic endeavor. Our new arrival, however, stands on his hind legs, hiding behind his shield with a sheepish, buck-toothed grin.

And since when do beavers grin, or, for that matter, carry shields? Granted the beaver is an intelligent (forgive me, Prof. Tomars) and industrious animal, but this is stretching it a little too far. I've seen beaver dams, but never beaver steel mills or beaver munitions factories. The Class of '56 was thoughtful and generous in giving us the statue, but they would have done much better to have the sculptor drop the shield and have their name engraved on the base.

But even with all its shortcomings, the statue is ours; and we would gladly welcome it but for one thing—its name. Without the name of "Benny," the beaver might even be regarded as a cute, cherubic little fellow. "Benny" is as upstanding a name as any. It is appropriate for fruit peddlers, labor leaders, fathers of our country, and the King of Swing. But it is not an appropriate name for the College's beaver!

"Benny" had its origin a few months ago in the office of Main Events. The Evening Session newspaper was preparing a special edition to herald the coming of the beaver. Looking for a short name for the College's new acquisition, the prosaic "Benny" was chosen, apparently in a weak moment.

Main Events compounded its error by proclaiming in huge headlines, "BENNY IS HERE!" Thus was inculcated in the minds of the College population the trite and revolting phrase, "Benny the Beaver." Why didn't they call it "Beauregard", or "Belvedere," or just plain "Bob?" Anything but "Benny."

It is not too late to correct the situation our Evening Session friends have wrought. A new name must be found for the feldspar beaver if he is ever to attain the place in Lavender tradition that is rightfully his.

The beaver would make an excellent mount for the Big Brother to straddle as he leads a Pidookie rally, and once an enterprising fraternity carefully sprays him with Lavender paint, he'll be just fine—assuming he has a different name by that time.

To assure the noble beast a tradition that should be his already, Observation Post is sponsoring a contest to name him properly. Names needn't start with "B," though they should be suitable to the Beaver and the great tradition which he will manifest.

I think the beaver statue

Miss Syd Skolsky, a folk singer, pianist and author of several books on music, will appear in a series of Friday afternoon music programs entitled "Musical Fun for the Spring Semester." Miss Skolsky will give an introductory performance Thursday, from 12:15-1:30 P.M., in the Grand Ballroom of the Finley Student Center. Thereafter, Miss Skolsky will perform in the Grand Ballroom from 4-5:30 P.M. Fridays.

Madison Ave., HP Merger?

The latest in Madison Avenue techniques will be employed at a House Plan Conference, scheduled for Wednesday of next week, Lincoln's Birthday, at 12:30 P.M. in Finley Student Center.

The Conference will feature a "brainstorming session," in which nearly 200 delegates from all the Houses will split up into groups of ten and voice all thoughts that happen to come into their minds about House Plan, no matter how irrelevant or unimportant they may be.

Greater Unity

There are two objectives of the Conference—to establish greater closeness and unity among House Plan members, and to examine the more specific shortcomings of the organization.

Hey, Cuties!

Say, girls, how do you stack up against our silhouetted friend above? Well, if you'd like to see your photo in this paper, just drop around to the OP office, Room 336 Finley, and tell whoever's leering at you you'd like to enter the OP Cuties Contest. We will publish a Cutie once a week for ten weeks. At that time, the judges will dub "The OP Cutie."

Finley's Sagging Section Set For Reconstruction

Plans have been drawn up for reconstruction of the Finley Student Center's sagging southwest wing by the College's Architectural and Planning Department, Mr. David Newton (Student Life) said yesterday.

The plans, which are subject to approval of the Board of Higher Education (BHE) and the New York Budget Office, call for construction of a twenty-five-by-one-hundred-foot hall and numerous smaller rooms.

"Multi-Functional Area"

According to Mr. Newton, the hall will serve as a "multi-functional area" and will occupy half the space of the wing. The other half, which include Rooms 301 to 307, will be used for student offices.

Space will be provided for meeting rooms and film screenings rooms.

The hall, to be equipped with ping pong and other table game equipment, will have portable partitions which will enable the room to be divided into smaller areas.

Veep Genen Is Chosen As Delegate to NSA

Student Government Vice-President Arthur Genen has been chosen to represent the College at a National Student Association (NSA) conference on integration this weekend.

Genen was chosen by NSA and the SG Executive Committee.

Brownell Speaks

The conference will take place at Swathmore University in Pennsylvania. Genen estimates that "over 500" representatives will attend the conference. Former Attorney General Herbert Brownell and Professor Kenneth Clark (Psychology) are slated to speak.

"I intend to learn the problems which at the present time are facing colleges," the SG Vice-President said, "and contribute any thought I may have on the topic."

Genen has worked with the NSA in the past and was a delegate to an NSA conference which took place at Michigan University last summer.

Attire...

All seniors must rent caps and gowns in Room 223 Finley before February 28, in order to attend commencement. The cost is $4.25 with a class card, $5 without. Full payment is required at time of renting.

Israeli Speaker...

Dr. Zvi Prihar, first Postmaster General of Israel, will speak on "Science and Engineering; Education and Opportunities in Israel" at Hillel's Student Zionist Organization meeting. It will take place Tuesday, February 11 at 4 PM in Hillel House, 475 West 140 Street.

Dr. Prihar organized Israel's postal, telegraph, and communications systems. Before Israel's statehood he was a tele-communications expert for a large Middle Eastern oil company.

Letters...

To the Editor:

It is interesting to note how the Student Government can, in good conscience, at one moment callously disregard the opinion of the student body, and at another time loudly proclaim the inherent wisdom in the decision of that august body. I am referring to the action of the Student Council in requesting an increase in the student activities fee—against the wishes of the student body as expressed in the recent elections. Apparently, the SC believes that the student body was not "well informed enough" as to the "facts" of the fee increase referendum. There may have been uninformed voting. But we must carefully distinguish between being "uninformed" and being "unindoctrinated." In my opinion, the SC is using the former, whereas it really means the latter.

I maintain that the student body may well have had good reason to reject the fee increase: some, perhaps due to financial difficulties, and others that felt their dollar could be put to better use elsewhere than in student activities. But, regardless of what the student body's reasons were for rejecting the fee increase, it is the duty of the SC to abide by the decision.

It seems that when a referendum consistent with the views of the SC is approved by the student body, faith is at once restored in the democratic process. In one breath, the SG pleads with the faculty and administration to observe the views of the student body on membership lists; in the next sour breath, it retreats and arbitrarily chooses to slight the views of that same body on the issue of the fee.

The Student Council would do well to make up its mind as to its faith or lack of faith in Jeffersonian democracy. It should abandon its present course of hypocrisy, which makes a shambles of referenda and democratic processes.

Matmen Meet Teachers In Saturday Struggle

The College's wrestling team will meet East Stroudsberg Teachers this Saturday in quest of win number four.

The grapplers have been improving rapidly and, before their loss to a very strong Wilkes squad, had run off three straight wins.

When they leave for East Stroudsberg, Pennsylvania, the matmen will have an added asset in the person of Ronny Reese, a 130-pound sophomore. Reese has just returned to the College, and, according to Coach Joe Sapora, "has the potential to become a star."

Future Undecided

The future for the matmen is neither black nor rosy. East Stroudsberg, whose performance against Wilkes was comparable to that of the matmen, will be the first of three teams on a par with the grapplers. The other teams are the New York Maritime College and NYU.

"Anything can happen in our final three matches," said Sapora. "All the boys are ready to do their best."

Mermen Face B'klyn Squad

The Lavendar Mermen, posting a mediocre mid-season record of one win and four losses, is preparing to take on Brooklyn College tomorrow afternoon at the Wingate pool.

Plus One

The Beavers' lone victory was against Brooklyn Polytech by a score of 45-41. They have been set back by Manhattan, Columbia, Fordham and King's Point, in that order.

The Swimmers have been hampered by several adverse factors.

Coach Jack Ryder Undergoes Operation

Lack of experienced men has been the main problem so far. As of now, there are only six who are eligible to compete in the numerous events of meet. Another obstacle has been the absence of Coach Jack Ryder for the past few weeks. Professor Ryder underwent an operation. Filling in during his absence is the coach of the soccer and tennis teams, Harry Karlin.

Said Coach Karlin, "if the six who are eligible for the team can live up to expectations, then there will be high hopes for a Beaver victory."

SPORTS

• There will be a meeting of the Varsity Club next Tuesday, at 6 P.M. The meeting will be held in Room 421 in Finley Center. Topics for discussion will be: dances after the basketball games, Booster squad, and Cheering squad. Because of its expanded program, the club needs more members than ever. Attendance is extremely important.

• The Tennis team will meet for the first time this term next Thursday, from 12-2 P.M. in Wingate 105. Another meeting will be held at 4 P.M. at the swimming pool for those who cannot attend.

Fencers to Engage Harvard; Parriers Seek Third Victory

The Beaver fencers will attempt to climb over the .500 mark and achieve its third win of the campaign Saturday at 2 p.m., when they tangle with Harvard at the Wingate Gymnasium.

Although Dick Koch (sabre) is recovering from an appendectomy and will not be able to compete, Coach Edward Lucia, still believes the sabre team will perform best in the contest. "Despite Koch's loss, sabre continues to be our strongest weapon," he said, "and I'm counting on a fine showing from that quad against Harvard."

Two Hopefuls

The mentor bases his high hopes on the addition of Andrew Kemeny to the sabre team this term and the fine play of Manny Fineberg. Kemeny is a freedom fighter from Hungary who has tutored at some of the finer training clubs in Budapest, and Fineberg has won his last six matches in a row.

"Our match against the Crimson will be a difficult one," said the coach. "I often feel the best way to judge the caliber of a team is by noting the ability of their coach, and, although I am not familiar with the quality of Harvard's squad, I do know they have an excellent coach."

"This meet will serve as a test for the boys and will help me determine the individual starters in the Intercollegiate Fencing Association Championships in March."
