SC Attacks Speaker Ban, Backs 'Integration March'

Paraders Receive Council Approval

By JUDITH M. WELLS

Student Council last night paved the way for the College's youth to "march for integrated schools."

A resolution pledging support of the Youth March for Integrated Schools was passed by acclamation.

The March, sponsored by Daisy Bates, Mrs. Ralph Bunche, Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr., A. Philip Randolph, Jackie Robinson and Roy Wilkins, will take place on Saturday, October 25, in Washington, D.C.

Council called on all student organizations to support the March,

Pres. Buell G. Gallagher
Approached for Aid

and mandated the Civil Liberties Committee to implement the resolution.

Yesterday, President Buell G. Gallagher expressed his support of the March.

The Youth March for Integrated Schools Committee has asked for elementary and high school students as well as college students of all races to participate.

Bus Probable

In addition to the transportation to be provided by the March committee, there will probably be a bus for the transportation of the College's students, if a sufficient number of students display an interest in participating.

Further information on the March will be available in the Student Government office, Room 332 Finley.

Group Will Confer For Edict's Repeal

By RITA ASHKENAS

President Buell G. Gallagher has been appealed to once again by Student Council for help in rescinding the Smith Act ban.

The resolution, passed last night 15-0-4, also "mandates a committee of three to meet and work together with President Gallagher" to bring about the final repeal of this edict which prohibits speakers convicted under the Smith Act from appearing at the municipal colleges.

The three people elected to this committee were Marvin Markman, chairman of the Civil Liberties Committee and former Chief Justice of the Student Court; Peter Steinberg, Student Government Executive Committee; and Stanley Grossel. This committee will "attempt to confer with President Gallagher to decide the most effective ways of dealing with the problem."

SG President Mike Horowitz abstained from voting. "I am, however," he qualified, "in sympathy with the general statement of the resolution. But I would not want to see Council put in such a position that it would necessarily have to go through a public affair... every time the Marxist Discussion Club invited a speaker who had been convicted under the Smith Act."

Pres. Gallagher At Hillel Describes Trip To Israel

A talk concerning his recent trip to Israel, was delivered by President Buell G. Gallagher yesterday afternoon at Hillel House. Highlighted by witty anecdotes, President Gallagher's talk launched Hillel's fall series of lectures.

The occasion of Dr. Gallagher's trip was the recent dedication of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem this past spring. Invited to speak at the dedication banquet, Dr. Gallagher was the only American college president there.

Introduced accidentally by Hillel's secretary as "Rabbi Gallagher," the President began his speech by citing the criteria by which America should judge Israel. "The country should be judged primarily in terms of the opportunities for the ingathering of world Jewry," he said.

Sketching his view of Israel's economic future, Gallagher emphasized the burden of market competition that Israel will have to assume within the next decade. "The question is how long Israel can count on the subsidies of world Jewry," the President said.

Dr. Gallagher also touched upon the intellectual tone of the country and its pattern of agricultural and industrial development.

General audience approval was apparent at Gallagher's statement concerning Histadrut, Israel's labor union. He cited the organization as "the basic determining power in Israel today."

Anecdotes

The President concluded his talk by relating a few personal experiences. The one that elicited the greatest response from the audience concerned the benefit banquet. When Dr. Gallagher got up to speak, the French ambassador leaned over to the American ambassador and queried, "Gallagher, Gallagher? Is he Jewish?"

Cheers...

The World Premiere of Townsend Harris' filmed biography, "The Barbarian and the Geisha," will take place tonight at the New York Paramount. The College's Cheerleaders will cheer at the showing of 7:30 P.M.

Tickets can be obtained at the special student rate of $3 in Room 212 Finley. Proceeds of the Premiere will go to the City College Fund through the courtesy of Twentieth Century Fox.

Ten Book Thefts Reported

More than ten instances of book thefts at the College were reported by students Friday to Dean James S. Peace (Student Life).

He cited students' "lack of vigilance" as the cause of the thefts. "There will be more (thefts) unless students are alert," he added. Dean Peace alerted the stores in the neighborhood which may receive these books for resale.

Dean Peace noticed a "cyclical" pattern for the thefts. There is generally a "peak period" followed by a steady decline, he said.

Last September, a major theft of a set of encyclopedias from a faculty member occurred, in addition to numerous thefts of wallets, pocket-books, and jackets.

Plainclothesmen were stationed around the campus during the fall outbreak. "Most of last year's culprits were non-students," Dean Peace noted. It has not been determined whether this is the case this semester. —Cohen

More Than $10 Million Scheduled For Construction Of Three Buildings

Slightly more than $10,500,000 is being spent and will be spent for construction of three buildings on the College campus—the Technology, the Administration, and the Speech and Drama Instruction Buildings.

The Technology Building, which will cost $8,000,000, is being constructed at present on the site formerly occupied by the Reserve Officers Training Corps Drill Hall and the Bowker Library. It will extend from St. Nicholas Terrace north to 141st Street and Convent Avenue, and east to St. Nicholas Park.

The source of income for the new Administration Building, which will be located at the north end of Jasper Oval, is coming from a different source than any of the other buildings at the College, President Buell G. Gallagher has stressed in the past.

The President has described this as a "chance windfall" that the Board of Education appropriated the lower end of the South Campus

Supported by Student Fees

A Stirring March

Seldom does a student, deeply absorbed in his academic pursuits, find the time or opportunity to participate in the great moral debates that confront our generation.

Now students throughout the nation can voice their protests against the injustices of prejudices and intolerance outside of the milieu of their campus or Manhattan-bound "A" trains. On October 25, the real world comes to student policies and "9-5" scholars alike. On October 25, more than 1800 men and women — mature beyond their years — will march down Pennsylvania Avenue to demonstrate unequivocally that action and idealism are blood-brothers.

A Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and an organizer of the "Youth March for Integrated Schools" told Observation Post that "New Yorkers have expressed heartening interest and support" of the drive. Thirty-five busloads of metropolitan students have enlisted in what Jackie Robinson calls "the great crusade."

Student Council, last night, by a vote of acclamation, threw its support behind the March. We hope that many of the College's students will take this opportunity to march in protest to the present defiance of our nation's democratic ideals.

Ephemeral

One section of the four-page Student Government Constitution gives Student Council the right "to establish such by-laws as may be consistent with these articles to guide the Council in the exercise of its powers."

These by-laws, as revised May 18, 1956, compose a twenty-four page tome.

The constitution has been revised by student referendum five times since its inception. The by-laws are rewritten in some part at almost every meeting of Council. The danger of working within a framework which is constantly in flux must be evident, though it is true that a set of regulations such as these, dealing with specific matters, must be flexible and current.

But there is an even greater danger — that the members of Council, and indeed of the Executive, are changing the foundations of SG to suit their own needs and desires. This indeed is a betrayal of the students who put them in office.

Last term, Steve Nagler, then SG President, found it difficult to coordinate all campus activities within the framework of the then-existing Finley Center Managers Agency. From this incompatibility was born the impossibly super-structured Activities Program Board (APB), superseding all existing agencies. Three pages of by-laws were scrapped, and Nagler congratulated Council upon its perspicacity.

Last week, when Mike Horowitz asked for a copy of the by-laws for the Board, no one could produce a copy. The few copies which had existed last term were lost over the summer.

But it didn't really matter, because Horowitz had decided that he couldn't understand the subtle workings of this Board, whose by-laws he had never seen, and could never find enough people to man it. His plan was to resuscitate the old Finley Center Managers Agency, changed in a few particulars.

His premise was certainly true. The APB never gained momentum because the system for electing people to serve on the Executive Board was almost hopelessly complex. Horowitz's new agency will have only five members, and he already has volunteers. But what we must deplore is the lack of foresight of last term's Council when they created the "living monster," as it has been termed, for to destroy it all the old agencies had to be reinstated.

The greatest problem which will face the new agency will be the one that killed its predecessor: will it have the power to back up its demands for club calendars and cooperation? Without this power, it too must fail, for it has been proven all too often in the past that "requests" are virtually wasted time and energy.

Council . . .

He added that in his opinion Council could be more effective in this matter working in a "quiet way," than by constantly bringing appeals to the public.

Pres. Would Act for MDC

President Buell G. Gallagher asserted yesterday that he would act to have Benjamin Davis, Jr. speak at the College if the Marxist Discussion Club (MDC) so requested. He has not received any communication from MDC as yet.

He would "take their request to the Administrative Council of Municipal College Presidents for consideration." The next meeting of the Council is scheduled for October 14.

"I have no discretionary power," President Gallagher said, "at this point to change the ruling now in effect."

Dean James S. Peace (Student Life), acting under the Council's ruling, said Tuesday he would not permit Davis to speak at the College. The Marxist Discussion Club had invited Davis to speak here on October 16.

At his press conference yesterday, President Gallagher said the "nominal procedure not to issue an invitation until it is cleared with the Department of Student Life was violated in this case, whether by intent or not, I am not prepared to say."

(William Hinton, first of a series of speakers recently invited to the College by the Marxist Discussion Club, will speak on "The Invisible Fourth of the World" today at 12 Noon in Room 121 Finley. Hinton, formerly of the United Nations Refugee Relief Association (UNRRA), is a specialist on China.)

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH

Today begins my fifth year of writing this column, and what an eventful five years it has been! What things have these old eyes not seen! What great discoveries have rocked the world—the anti-proton, for instance, and the anti-neutron, and high-low split, and Brigitte Bardot!

In these five years it has also been discovered that American smokers like two kinds of cigarettes—filter and non-filter. The Philip Morris Company makes both kinds. I mention the Philip Morris Company because they pay me to mention the Philip Morris Company. They sponsor this column. I write it and then they give me money. Then I take the money and pay my grocer, my butcher, my gardener, and my four madrigal singers. In this way full employment is maintained and we avoid a repetition of the Panic of 1873 when bread riots killed over 98 million people in Muncie, Indiana, and millions of others were reduced to ghost-writing Ph. D. theses to keep body and soul together.

But enough of gloom. Let us get back to cheerful subjects, like the products of the Philip Morris Company. For those of you who wish filter cigarettes there is Marlboro, which now, more than ever, gives you a lot to like—a brand new improved filter and a wonderful flavor that comes breezing right through. For those of you who wish non-filter cigarettes, there is Philip Morris, a mild natural blend, flavorful, fresh, and thoroughly agreeable. For those of you who can't decide between filters or non-filters but have an affinity for packages, I should like to point out that both Marlboro and Philip Morris come in both the crushproof Flip-Top Box and the good-old-fashioned Soft Pack, and you will surely want several of each for your collection.

Speaking for myself, I smoke both Marlboro and Philip Morris in both packs. What I do is make kind of a fun thing out of it. In my bedroom I have four signs, one on each wall, which say in turn: "PHILIP MORRIS—SOFT PACK", "PHILIP MORRIS—FLIP-TOP", "MARLBORO—SOFT PACK" and "MARLBORO—FLIP-TOP". When I get up in the morning I put on a blindfold and then my faithful cat Rover spins me around six times and then, with many a laugh and cheer, I walk forward with my finger outstretched and the first sign I touch is the cigarette I smoke that day!

This little game has been a great source of merriment . . .

As you can imagine, this little game has been a great source of merriment to Rover and me, except for one untoward incident one morning. I was stumbling around in my blindfold and fell out the window right on top of a man named Fred R. Tenken, a census taker, and broke all his lead pencils. He was cross as a bear, and though I offered him both Philip Morris and Marlboro in both the Flip-Top Box and Soft Pack, he refused to be mollified. In fact, he refused to put my name down in the census, so when you read population figures of the United States, will you please add one?

But I digress. We were speaking of Philip Morris and Marlboro who will bring you this column throughout the school year. In this space I will take up vital aspects of undergraduate life, like high-low split and Brigitte Bardot, and it is my fondest hope that the column will be half as much fun for you as it is for me.

© 1958, Max Shulman

The makers of Marlboro and Philip Morris welcome you to another year of fun and games from Old Max; and another year of good smoking from us. Filter or non-filter, pick what you please—and what you pick will please you.

Chess Champs Develop Here

Chess—along with the other sports at the College—has produced its own share of champions.

An international master and world junior champion is William Lombardy, who along with Arthur Feuerstein composed half of the United States team in the World Student Tournament.

Other famous chess masters who have attended the College are Sidney Bernstein and Milton Finklestein. The former showed his ability as a quick-witted chess player when he arrived for a match with one hour and thirty-nine minutes used up on his clock. He had not been informed of the starting time.

Since the rules stated that forty moves must be made in two hours, the situation called for fast play. Bernstein took off his coat and started banging the pieces around. Forty-five seconds later the game ended in a draw.

Buildings

for construction of the John H. Finley Public School. An amount equal to the cubical content of the two demolished buildings was transferred from the Board of Education budget to this College's.

The College has applied, in its capital budget request for 1959, for funds to cover the building's architectural and planning costs. The estimated total cost of the buildings is $1,650,000.

"The only site actively under consideration," according to President Gallagher, is the lawn area in front of Mott Hall. As for the facilities the building will contain, the President has said, "It is hoped there will be adequate accommodations for a full-sized stage with galleries—the seating capacity will depend upon the architects' plans—on classrooms, labs, and listening rooms."

The John Paranos Story:

"Refugee to All-American"

By STAN SHEPKO

Yugoslavian refugee to All-American is the road travelled by John Paranos, a 22-year-old Lower Senior. Soft-spoken John, who is majoring in Geology, escaped from his native land while still in his early youth to come to the United States and eventually to the College where he was elected All-American soccer player in 1957.

Born in Metkovich, Yugoslavia in 1936, John is the only child of a well-to-do importer. His parents, Stefania and Vasilije, were able to send him to one of the few private elementary schools, for there were no public schools during the strife-worn war years; only the select few could send their children to schools.

The public schooling—actually public indoctrinations for innocent youth—brainwashed the students with the glories and virtues of Tito; history was more properly called "history of the glorious Marshal Tito."

When World War II broke out, Yugoslavia was occupied by Italy and Germany. The area in which the Paranos family lived was set up as part of the German puppet state of Croatia. Under the oppression of Hitler, the Jews and the Greek Orthodox were persecuted; John's grandfather was murdered by the Nazis. John's father escaped to the Italian zone just a few hours before the Nazis came looking for him.

Fearing that the Nazis would suspect her plans to escape, Mrs. Paranos bundled up her young child and moved further into Croatia where she gained the time necessary to plan an escape. After several weeks, she managed to flee to

John Paranos
Fled from Fear

Port Split, Italy, where the family was united.

Feeling impending danger, Mr. Paranos, was hidden aboard a friend's ship. For the second time the family was separated—this time for two years.

While John was living with his mother, who was supported by generous friends and by selling the family jewelry, he was overcome with a momentary resentment toward her. It seems that his father, knowing how much John loved soccer, managed to send the boy a new soccer ball, the first one John had ever owned. But, his mother, fearing questioning by the authorities, refused to let him play with it; he later realized that this was for his own protection.

When the time was right, Mrs. Paranos stealthily booked passage to Trieste and from there to Bari where the trio was again united for two years—this time from 1945 to 1947. Naples was the next leg of their journey to freedom.

It was here that John mastered soccer, playing with the older boys in the neighborhood, using anything they could find as a substitute for a soccer ball. John remembers distinctly that a nylon sock filled with rags provided a bounceless soccer ball.

The Paranos family now had only to wait; to be given the golden opportunity to emigrate to the United States.

Midtown Ivy League Store Owner Shines On Lavender Soccer Squad

By JOHN AIGNER

Like his globe-trotting explorer namesake, Marco "Polo" Wachter has proven himself a man of energy, ambition and talent.

A twenty-two-year-old Upper Junior, Wachter plays varsity soccer, owns his own clothing store, and is a full-time Industrial Psychology major in the bargain.

The family arrived in the United States in 1950. Mr. Wachter obtained loans and bought Jack's Clothing Store at 85th Street and Third Avenue, where he had worked.

Last summer Mr. Wachter died, and Marco became owner and manager. "I feel like two persons now," he remarked. "One with status at the College as a soccer player—and the other a businessman with a clothing store."

He has saled stalked his soccer teammates into buying jackets at the store which handles an "Ivy-type" line at a ten per cent discount to students of the College.

Of Polish descent, he and his family spent the Second World War years in Italy, where they were hounded by the Fascists and Nazis.

"We were just plain lucky," Marco recalls. "All the other Jews in the town where we lived were exterminated—or vanished."

"I'm studying Industrial Psychology because I like people," he said, laying down a collection of Chekov's short stories. "I want to learn more about people and eventually work with them in some large corporation."

Time is also taken from the store for soccer practice.
