

Powell Talk Postponed

By ED MARSTON

Representative Adam Clayton Powell has cancelled his engagement to speak at the College Monday. His secretary said that he was unexpectedly called to Washington and will not be in New York that day.

Powell, who was invited to speak by the Conference of Democratic Students (CDS), will appear at the College some time in the near future, according to Allen Ferman, CDS President.

The subject of Powell's speech was to have been, "Segregation in New York City Schools."

"Representative Powell is a very outspoken speaker," said Ferman, "and I believe his speech will be very enlightening."

Tammany Hall Leader Carmine DeSapio, who was also invited to the College by CDS, has been scheduled to speak on Wednesday, March 18. Ferman said, "DeSapio has spoken at other colleges and

Music Makers Offer Comedy in Pajamas

"The Pajama Game," the seventh longest running musical in Broadway history, will be presented by the Musical Comedy Society, for a two night stand this weekend at the William Howard Taft High School Auditorium.

All seats are reserved. Tickets at $1.10 and $1.50 for tonight's and tomorrow's shows can be purchased at the Finley ticket booth or at Taft, 172nd Street and Sheridan Avenue, the Bronx.

The plot of "The Pajama Game" comes from George Bissell's novel "7½ Cents," a tale of love and labor union politics in the Sleep Tite pajama factory in Iowa.

Jack Ross, a member of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, is the Director of the College production. Tony Calabrese is Student Director.

David Weiss, a senior, is cast as Sid Sirokin, the amorous superintendent of the pajama factory. Babe Williams, a machine operator, is played by Stephanie Solow.

Bud Blake, portrays Hinesie, a time-checker, who alternately pops in and out of the story with a friendly smirk, a ludicrous tussle with the zipper of his pants and some knife throwing. The part of Gladys, the boss' secretary, is played by Vivian Leventhal.

The employees are represented by a one-member grievance committee in the form of Babe Williams. Sid, the shop foreman, falls in love with Babe.

When the employees go on strike for a wage increase, foreman Sid and grievance committee Babe—former lovers—are forced to fight each other to defend their cause.

Thus, a pajama factory provides an unusual setting, for the efforts of the Musical Comedy Society.

The Musical Director is Richard Doren. The choreographers are Miriam Calhoun (Physical Education) and Barbara Randall (Physical Education).

Sixty-three members of the Musical Comedy Society are participating in the production. The dancers are imported from the Modern Dance Society.

The "Pajama Game" songs include "Hey There," "Hernando's Hideaway," "Steam Heat" and "Once A Year Day."

Queens College Professor Reviews Soviet Education

A Queens College Professor, who visited Russia for five weeks last semester as a representative of the Comparative Education Society, cited the Soviet emphasis on educational "frills," such as driver education.

Speaking on "Contemporary Russian Education" before the Education Society, yesterday, Dr. Lucille Linberg said that "In many cases a higher proportion of the education budget is spent for extra-curricular activities than for academic education." As a case in point, she mentioned the magnificently equipped Pioneer Palaces in which students can participate in ballet, music, and painting groups.

Dr. Linberg described a new goal in Russian education of integrating the work of school and factory. The philosophy behind the program is that Russia "is a workers' republic and people must learn first to love labor, and work with their hands," she explained.

Concerning Russia as a whole, Dr. Linberg declared "it is the most religious country I've ever been in. It is a new religion, with a new God, and a new promise."

She went on to tell of the larger-than-life statue of Lenin that stood in every school she visited; the tombs of Lenin and Stalin which thousands of people would line up to see each day, weeping as they viewed the well-preserved bodies. They even sell medallions of the baby Lenin, she remarked.

"The Soviet Union is building towards a perfect society with each child educated to serve that society," Dr. Linberg said. However, she emphasized that she would not trade what she sees in New York for what she has seen in Russia. "With all our bumbling along, we have a vitality springing from an awareness of differences," she observed.

"If we would spend as much time teaching democracy as they devote to teaching communism, we would have nothing to fear," Dr. Linberg said. "There is the challenge."

Roth Letter Requesting Support for State Aid Received by Governor

By RENEE COHEN

Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller now has in his possession a written plea for state aid to the municipal colleges from Student Government President Renee Roth.

"I urge that you give your support," she stated in the letter, "to measures which would provide generous state aid to the municipal colleges."

Miss Roth said that she would speak with chairmen of the proper State Legislative committees in order to have hearings and testimony on the necessity for financial assistance initiated.

"If hearings are scheduled," she said last night, "we shall make every effort to be represented, in order that we may give testimony regarding the compelling need for increased State assistance at the present time."

Miss Roth said her letter spotlights the problem presented by the increased number of high-school graduates seeking admittance to institutions of higher learning. Increased tuition fees and endowments to the private schools have not sufficed to meet this demand, she explained.

The responsibility rests in the hands of public colleges, Miss Roth observed. "They must provide enrollment," she stated, "without at the same time providing diminishing quality."

According to Miss Roth, New York City provided almost the entire income of the municipal colleges for almost a century. In 1949, the State began to pay "a substantial portion" of the costs of teacher training programs.

Despite possible upstate dissent, Miss Roth emphasized that the matter of financial aid must be taken seriously "not only by those who live in this city, but by all who reside in the State."

"Budgetary cuts" which result in increased class size, decreased enrollment, stricter admission requirements, and "lowering of educational quality," will definitely affect all New York State citizens, she said.

In the conclusion of her letter, Miss Roth declared, "I have read that the motto of the State University of New York is 'Let Each Become All He is Capable of Being.' Let city and state join together, so that the capability of our citizens becomes a reality."

Tuesday Deadline For Driving Plan

The deadline for filing applications for the Driver Education Program is Tuesday. On Friday at 5 p.m. the first two hours of a ten hour lecture program will be given.

A fifty dollar program will include ten hours of driving experience and five hours of observation.

A thirty-two dollar course will include six hours of actual driving experience and three hours of observation.

Applications are available in the Student Government Office, Room 332 Finley. They must be returned to mailbox S-3 in that office.

One Against Many

Joe Tamargo, a junior, captured twenty-two victories and lost two matches in a tournament held yesterday by the Chess Club.

In the tournament pictured above, the competing players formed a circle around Tamargo. He moved from board to board, usually deciding on his move immediately.

Tamargo placed third in the Intercollegiate Rapids Tournament held last year. Sandy Green, who is also a Chess Club member, placed first in that tournament.

The Chess Club will hold a student-faculty match Thursday in Room 438 Finley at 12:15 P.M. The Chess Club will be captained by Ken Blake while Dr. Kurt Spielberg (Physics) will lead the faculty team.

Other members of the faculty who will compete are Professors Egon Breaner and Robert Stein (Electrical Engineering), and Professors Alexander Mintz and Gertrude Schneider (Psychology).

Francais . . .

A lecture on the most recent developments in Higher Education and Student Government will be given by Dr. Babin, President of the University of Strasbourg, France, next Tuesday at 12 noon in the Aronow Auditorium. The talk will be conducted in French.

Another Contribution

For the umpteenth time state aid to the municipal colleges is in the news. The reason for the most recent public mention derives from calculated omission in the Governor's budget of any publicized reference to such allocations. Apparently, Miss Roth, the SG President, has decided to act now in a manner paralleling the protestations of the Presidents of the Municipal College Alumni Associations. Her action is most timely. If the Governor has really decided to forego any direct funds to supplement New York City's support of higher education, then no avenue or possible medium for registering complaint must be disregarded.

A letter in itself hardly seems to be a powerful or influential force. But it serves as a useful symbol of the unity which underlies almost every phase of the city colleges' campaign. Alumni associations concentrate the unspoken power of thousands of graduates. College presidents and other re-known educators in pedagogical and administrative capacities have outspokenly expressed their positions favoring State backing.

In the great volume of correspondence the Governor is deluged with every day, Miss Roth's dissent may not completely disconcert the legislative process or upset Governor Rockefeller's equilibrium, but it is a noteworthy addition to the determined drive towards a goal no one seems ready to oppose.

Valuable Delay

The postponement of Adam Clayton Powell's talk, scheduled for Monday, is actually a fortunate occurrence. It allows the College press more time to publicize the event and it permits the student body to appropriate some of its valuable Monday afternoon ping-pong time.

Rev. Powell will probably appear on Monday, March 16. Politically-minded undergraduates will have ample opportunity to attend.

Allagaroo

The College's basketball team finished the season with a 6-12 record. In this case, however, the figures belie the facts. The hoopsters got off to a slow start but found themselves in mid-season and played fine ball the rest of the schedule.

Even against such powerhouse teams as NIT-bound St. John's and NYU, the Beavers stayed in the contest and at times played a superior brand of basketball.

A considerable factor in the team's resurgence was the return of Joel Ascher to the line-up. Ascher had been sidelined by injuries. It was, however, Marty Groveman and Hector Lewis who kept the team going through most of the season, without much rest.

Although this year's squad didn't set any records, they deserve praise for their heads-up playing and the hustle they displayed time and time again.

DISSATISFIED

Dear Editor:

In the March 4, 1959 edition of Observation Post, an article based on an interview with me was published. The caption "Tight Control Sought On Fraternity Houses" as well as the subsequent quotation attributed to me were pure fabrications. The comments and opinions I am supposed to have expressed were so misconstrued as to seriously threaten the Inter-Fraternity Council program for this semester as well as the very existence of the organization.

This is certainly not the first such case of such journalistic negligence, for example the "Horowitz stories" during the Fall Semester, 1958, and does raise doubts as to the value of our student press. In this connection I seriously question, as I.F.C. President representing 700 fraternity students on the uptown, day session, campus, whether student newspapers supported by approximately 1/2 the total student fees should continue to be so lavishly supported without some responsible control.

I.F.C. does not seek to "control" fraternity houses. Fraternities enjoy a unique situation of being sufficiently outside of direct school supervision as to successfully develop self-reliance and maturity necessary for any college fraternity. However, some feeling has arisen to show supervision is not necessary, but rather will be repitious. The purpose of the I.F.C. plan is to establish house criteria in accord with Dean Peace's "Code of Ethics" and the New York City regulations and ordinances. Reports on the fraternity houses are to be kept to prove that fraternities not only live up to such regulations, but further, exceed them.

About the statement I am supposed to have made, I can only say I had never said it, nor intended to give any such impression.

I realize such construction of a story made it a more appealing article to the press but it is not a factual representation of the story.

Sincerely yours,
Bob Bisoff
President, Inter-Fraternity Council

Portrait of the Artist:

Bronx Grandma Dabbles in Paint

True art often springs from humble origins and no one knows this better than Professor Jacob Landy (Art) whose mother has earned the picturesque title of the "Grandma Moses of the Bronx."

Eight years ago, Mrs. Landy, with little previous experience, took up crayon and pencil sketching as a pastime. For the sixty-year-old housewife, drawing was then no more than a nostalgic return to her days as a dress designer.

But, Prof. Landy, always on the lookout for "fresh new talent," recognized considerable promise in his mother's sketches. He bought her a set of oil paints and became the catalyst for a career which climaxed in her being designated as "Grandma Moses of the Bronx" in a recent article in the New York Post.

Mrs. Tillie Landy

In fact, Dr. Charles Keller, the discoverer of the original Grandma Moses, bought one of Mrs. Landy's paintings after a visit to her home, praising her talent and encouraging her to continue her work.

But the talented grandmother of four, needs little encouragement. She is overflowing with enthusiasm for her current avocation. "I get so engrossed in my painting that I don't even hear the phone ring," Mrs. Landy said.

However, her painting is not merely an idle hobby. Her efforts have been exhibited in neighborhood banks, and more recently, at the Bronx River YMHA on Boynton Avenue.

A series of three oil panels which were on exhibit earlier this year will be enlarged photographically and incorporated into a mural to be exhibited at the Local "Y." Black-and-white reproductions of the work will be placed in other banks throughout the Bronx.

Mrs. Landy is proud of the constant encouragement she receives from her children.

"My children bought me a professional type easel for Mother's day and also bought me my first set of oil paints, they have never stopped encouraging me," she fondly reminisced.

Mrs. Landy's entire apartment is filled with her artistry. She arises at 6 AM and paints three or four hours every morning.

Powell . . .

the student reaction to his talks was very favorable.

"I believe that his talk will be particularly interesting in view of the fact that he is currently engaged in an inter-party battle. A group headed by Eleanor Roosevelt and Thomas K. Finletter, former Secretary of the Air Force," Ferman said, "has charged DeSapio with using 'boss-like tactics' at last year's Democratic convention."

Dudley Franklin, President of the College's chapter of the NAACP, said, "I am very pleased that CDS has invited such interesting and timely speakers to the College. CDS, by inviting Powell and DeSapio to the school, is performing a much needed service."

"It has been a long time," said Franklin, "since political speakers of the caliber of DeSapio and Powell have appeared at the College."

North Campus on Wheels As Tech Men Roll Along

By Lewis Freedman

Stan Strauss and Bob Erenberg exemplify engineering ingenuity. They make the trek from North to South Campus as easy as rolling over a barrel. Saves time, saves shoe leather. Some may doubt their sanity, but merrily they roll along — always in time for class, and with a negligible number of casualties.

Roller derby came to the College this week.

Two resourceful techmen have begun a campaign to put the School of Technology on wheels. They have licked the North-to-South campus commuter problem by using roller skates.

Upper freshman Stan Strauss gives all the credit for this discovery to his classmate Bob Erenberg. "Bob first suggested this for kicks," Stan said. "We soon found it a very practical way of beating the Convent Avenue crowds. Every day we go from Mott to Shepard and our teachers are sticklers for lateness."

The engineers also claim that their "stunt was done to pep up the sleepy campus. This school seems to be dozing off with monotony. It's about time the College awoke and laughed a little," Strauss said.

Instructors and other observers have had varied reactions to the roller derby. "Some teachers are indifferent," declared Strauss. "Others doubt our sanity, while still others have confessed to us that they would like to try it themselves, if they only had the nerve."

"The Burns guards seem particularly surprised. As we skate by all they do is look and look," Strauss observed.

So far only one technical snag has bogged down their "commutation innovation." "We've had only one accident," said the skater; "that occurred yesterday when Bob lost his nut and the wheel of his skate rolled off."

The engineers' plan to mobilize tech men is beginning to gather momentum. Another upper freshman, Mike Morganstern, has turned in his pedestrian license and has taken to the road. Already one girl has been reported skating in the Shepard cafeteria.

"It looks like the tech men have taken the challenge of "catching up to Russia, literally," one observer remarked.

Student Council will hold elections to fill three open positions in its ranks on Wednesday at 4 P.M. in Room 121 Finley. One senior from the School of Education, and two freshmen from the School of Technology must be elected.

Mermen Enter MSC at NYU

The College swimmers will enter the Metropolitan Swimming Championships tomorrow at NYU with little hope of capturing the team title but with a good chance of winning the dive.

Nick West, who completed an undefeated season this year, will be trying for his first Metropolitan diving championship.

The teams opposing the Beavers will be New York University, Manhattan, Fordham, Kings Point, Long Island University, Brooklyn, Brooklyn Poly, and Hunter. During the regular season the Mermen defeated LIU, the Kingsmen and the Engineers.

While Beaver coach Jack Rider was not overly enthusiastic, his predictions were at least realistic. "I believe NYU has the best chance of placing first," admitted the Lavender coach, "simply because they went through the season undefeated. But we have a chance to finish fourth."

Rider is depending heavily on Joel White, Carl Ross, Mike Bayuk and Nick West. He expects all of them to "place in the finals."

"I'd give Nick an excellent chance to win the diving contest. He has already faced and beaten all of his opponents during the regular season except for the dive on LIU who isn't on our schedule," Rider said.

Last year the College did not get past the trials, placing seventh, but the coach is confident of a better showing this year.

This meet will mark the end of the Metropolitan Swimming League season but will not conclude activities for the Mermen. They will compete in the Eastern Collegiate Championships the following weekend.

At the end of the month the swimming season will be concluded when Nick West journeys to Ithaca, New York.

Matmen To Engage 8 Foes In First Met Championship

The postman rings for the second time for the College wrestling team Saturday when the Beavers will be given another crack at the Merchant Marine Academy in the first annual Metropolitan Wrestling Championships.

The Kings Pointers are the only team of a quartet of seasonal opponents who can boast of defeating the Lavender. They soundly set back the College in a one-sided affair, 26-5, last February 13.

Only one Beaver, Gerry Horowitz, defeated his opponent in that meet. Coach Joe Sapora doesn't expect the Mariners to get off as easily this time though, since Phil Rodman and Myron Wollin, both of whom were injured at the time, will probably start Saturday.

Appearing with the Lavender and the Mariners will be Stevens Tech, Rutgers (Newark), C W Post, New York University, Fairleigh Dickinson and Brooklyn Poly. The Colleges will be facing the latter three for the second time this season.

The grapplers looked good in beating Fairleigh Dickinson 23 earlier and the only trouble anticipated from FDU will again come from their still undefeated captain Eric Rudolph, at 147 pounds.

NYU bowed to the team in the final season match by 19-9. T Violets who are expected to be difficult to hold down are Joe Bernhard and Al Bevalacqua, 130 and 137 pounds respectively. Both emerged victorious in the encounter.

Sapora expects to field his

Nimrods Meet Tonight

With the National Rifle Association Championships and the Stevens Johns Invitational Tournament looming close, the College's rifle team on the Newark College of Engineering at the Newark Armory tonight at 6.

The nimrods have accumulated nine victories in ten Met league contests this season and are fresh from the second place finish in the 27-college field of the Coast Guard Academy Tourney, held last Saturday.

Walt Venberg, Ed Mahecha, and Bob Helgans are all firing in the high 280's for the College.

The Beavers should have little trouble with their Jersey opposition. "No sweat," is the way Venberg put it.

Next Saturday the Lavender travels to Kings Point to compete in the NRA championship.
