

Going, Going . . .

Services beyond the call of duty will be offered on the South Campus lawn next Thursday by several of the College's professors. The professors and their services will be auctioned off to the highest student bidders, and the proceeds will go to the Multiple Sclerosis Fund.

Mr. Ronald Garretson, Bookstore Manager, will allow the lucky student who wins him to buy books for the fall term without waiting in line. The winner of Dr. David Newton (DSPS) will have a blind date arranged for him. Professor Bailey W. Diffie (History) will take his winner to lunch, and various language professors will give a half hour free translation service. The auction will be held from 12-2 PM and is being sponsored by Sis Dean '64.

ME Editor's Suspension Upheld By President

By GRACE FISCHER

President Buell G. Gallagher yesterday denied the appeal of Irwin Becker for reinstatement as editor of Main Events.

A three-page statement issued by the President declared that "Mr. Becker has knowingly and intentionally disregarded the established rules of eligibility for participation in the managing and editorial boards of student newspapers."

"Of the eight persons carried on ported dissatisfaction among Evening Session students with these aspects of his performance."

Any future arbitrary action or violation of freedom of the press, Pres. Gallagher said, could not use this decision as a precedent. "It doesn't smack of censorship of the press."

Contacted yesterday, Becker said that he had expected the President to uphold his suspension.

He reaffirmed his contention that the action represents a form of censorship and declared that "the power of the Evening Session Administration is such that it is hard to do a lot of things."

Action Against Protesters Hit By Nat'l. Faculty Unit

By BARBARA RABINOWITZ

A resolution condemning College disciplinary action against student protesters supporting controversial causes was unanimously passed Saturday by a national organization of university professors.

This statement "definitely had in mind civil defense demonstrations" according to one of the College's delegates to the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) national policy-making conference.

The resolution, passed unanimously by 300 delegates, is binding upon 42,000 AAUP members throughout the country, including 220 members at the College.

It "deplores the imposition of penalties by university and college authorities against those who participate in peaceful demonstrations on or off the campus in support of causes which may be controversial in their communities."

"These demonstrations have been concerned not only with the elimination of racial segregation, but with such matters as compulsory military training, and alleged abuses of power by legislative committees," the resolution states.

Professor John C. Thirlwall (English), who attended the AAUP conference, will participate in the CD protest tomorrow and will submit his identification card.

"My conscience forces me to oppose a fantastically old-fashioned and futile take to the caves. Our energies might better be diverted to making nuclear war impossible or illegal," he said.

"Abuse of Authority"

The resolution continues "punitive action against the demonstrators constitutes an abuse of authority by administrators and governing bodies," and urges college and university authorities "not to be misled by public pressures into punitive action which impairs the learning process and destroys the civil liberties of students and faculty alike."

President Buell G. Gallagher said at his press conference yesterday that he is "legally obligated" to comply with an Executive Order, issued by Mayor Robert F. Wagner, urging the heads of all City departments and agencies "to perform the specific duties pertaining to civil defense consistent with and conforming to the plans, regulations, and orders" of New York City and State.

The method of placing notations on final records as a disciplinary measure and as a means of carrying out these legal obligations "looks like a good one to me," he said. The President stated that he would not call in the police if requested to do so to take action against civil defense protesters.

An SG resolution calling for the New York City police to intervene in tomorrow's civil defense protest, was defeated by a roll-call vote of 3-18-3 last night.

"Reason" Urged

A ten-member committee opposing civil disobedience issued a statement last night entitled "An Invitation to Reason" urging "all students—whether they are opposed to or in favor of civil defense drills—to reject the use of illegal procedures and to refrain from going out on the lawn during the forthcoming drill."

Professor David Lewis (Chemistry) was one of the two delegates at the AAUP convention. The College's AAUP chapter meets today at 1 PM in Room 105 Shepard. The resolution entitled "The Abuse of Disciplinary Power by Institutional Authorities," "binds our local chapter and doesn't need to be voted upon," said Prof. Thirlwall.

Dean James S. Peace ME Decision Upheld

the most head of Main Events . . . he was the only active and eligible person," it states.

The printing of an untruthful story by the Evening Session publication last month, as well as the previous April, "with no indication at any point in the paper that the edition was intended as an April Fool's issue" was also cited by Pres. Gallagher as a basis for his decision.

The President's statement implied that the former student editor had violated the trust assumed by his high position.

Becker, who was suspended as Editor-in-Chief of Main Events by Dean James S. Peace (Acting Dean of Students) on April 10, appealed the Dean's action to the President who held a hearing on the suspension Friday.

Pres. Gallagher denied Becker's charge that the suspension constitutes a form of censorship. "There is no issue of freedom of the press involved in this hearing," the statement asserts.

"Becker's news and editorial policies are not the basis of his removal from office, despite re-

Thomas to Speak Here On UN and World Crisis

Socialist Party leader Norman Thomas will speak at the College today on "The United Nations and World Crisis."

The six-time Socialist candidate for President will be sponsored by the College's Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action in conjunction with the Collegiate Council for the UN. He will speak at 12:30 PM in Room 217 Finley.

The seventy-seven year old Mr. Thomas is a member of the executive committee of the Socialist Party-Social Democratic Federation, the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy and the Post World War II Council for Peace.

When speaking at the College last term, Mr. Thomas called for universal disarmament down to the police level as the first step in "abolishing war by the policies of a decent peace."

"Our politicians must be made to realize that they're dealing with human lives, not chessmen," he said at the conclusion of his speech.

Professor Hans Kohn (History) will continue the College's participation in UN week with a talk tomorrow at 4 PM in Room 217 Finley on the "Historical Perspective of the United Nations."

The High School Council for the UN will present a model Security Council and model Congo Commission, Saturday at 10 AM in Room 101 Finley.

Student-Faculty Conference To Discuss Tenure Policies

By BETSY PILAT

The Academic Affairs Committee of Student Council is sponsoring a student-faculty round table discussion of tenure policies to be held Monday.

Monroe Wasch, committee member, said Tuesday that "department chairmen and Deans have been issued formal invitations, and responsible and interested students are also urged to come."

"This is a forum on tenure open to all," he added.

Chairman of the Committee Peter Steinberg reported that among others, Dean Leslie W. Engler (Administration) and Professor Samuel Middlebrook (English) have accepted the committee's offer to participate.

According to the invitation, the purpose of the round table discussion is not to "deal" with the "questions of faculty appointment, promotion, and tenure policies."

"Its purpose is, instead, to promote a clear understanding between those who bear the responsibility for carrying out these policies and those who are inevitably most concerned with them—the students."

The discussion of tenure procedures on Monday will be held at 4 PM in 423 Finley.

Path To Survival

Air raid sirens will ring tomorrow at 4 P.M. Traffic will stop in New York; Times Square will be deserted; some classes at the College will march quietly into a corridor; and a number of students at the College will gather on South Campus Lawn to read, and silently proclaim that "Civil Defense is no defense."

War—the senseless killing of other human beings—is indeed reprehensible to a majority of people. But, never before has man himself had the power to destroy all life on earth. Now, with the advent of thermonuclear weapons, such destructive force is within his grasp.

To argue about the degree of demolition caused by an all-out thermonuclear attack can, perhaps, be equated to speculations of how many angels can stand on the head of a pin. Both are in the realm of fantasy. The effects of one atom bomb were recorded by the thousands of people who died in Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Multiply this by thousands, and the results of a thermonuclear war can be determined.

Laboratory analysis cannot be relied upon in a case where such a vast and extensive reaction is to be considered. Indeed, it would be naive to assume that only one bomb would be used against us. Many would be dropped at once to guard against the possibility of retaliation. The span of destruction is incomprehensible.

It is deceitful to substitute mechanical defense drills and similar preparations, for earnest, concentrated efforts to attain nuclear disarmament. Civil defense gives people a false sense of security, while simultaneously making them conscious of imminent war. It veils the truth that thermonuclear war will result in the extinction of humanity.

Shelters with all the conveniences of home are being perfected to house people during a bombing. But how long can human life exist in a subterranean world? And when would man be able to come out of his home in the ground? How long will the radioactive fallout, man's invisible foe, remain stagnant in the atmosphere?

Civil defense is an escape. Is it logical to work on programs for disarmament while making preparations for war? How can the people ever rally behind the forces (supposedly the government of the nation) pushing for disarmament, when they are told that they can survive the next war? False security like this can only lead to flippant considerations of the consequences of war.

Some will say that peace results from the deterrent effects of the bomb's existence and its possession by some five nations—mainly the United States and the Soviet Union. But what kind of peace is one based on mortal fear? To refer to the tense and temporary absence of war as "peace" is indefensible, for peace is not only lack of combat and warfare, but it is essentially an atmosphere devoid of apprehension; it is freedom from fear.

Many people oppose the concept of civil defense and challenge its values. Some object in conscience; others will object by joining one of the many protests which will be held in New York tomorrow.

However, it is wrong to assume that there is only one way to protest. Simply standing on the South Campus Lawn or in City Hall Park for ten minutes once a year will not provide an effective demonstration against civil defense. Letter-writing campaigns, debates, and educational programs must accompany and follow such rallies.

The corollary debate which has been fought at the College for the past two weeks about civil disobedience has, perhaps, obscured the question of civil defense itself. But the necessity for civil disobedience in this case is indeed obvious. The right of people in a democracy to peacefully protest against a law which they feel is wrong cannot be denied—if these people are willing to accept the punishment meted out by the society which produced the law.

Many people who are opposed to civil defense are also opposed to civil disobedience. But for our part, we continue to urge those students who believe as we do that peace is the only defense, and who believe in civil disobedience, to join us on the lawn tomorrow at 4 P.M.

LETTERS

STUDENT PRESS

Dear Editor:

The recent Student Faculty Committee on Student Activities resolution, which I sponsored, empowering Student Council to require the newspapers to print factual corrections taking the form of corrections or letters, which Council believes to be valid, brings to the surface one of the most complex problems in the field of extracurricular activities — what actions, of any, should be taken by the student body, or its representatives, to insure a responsible student press, while at the same time not encroach upon the freedom of this press, which the student body owns and supports by a mandatory activity fee.

Basic agreement can be found as to what the student body has a right to expect. The National Student Association (NSA) maintains that the press must be concerned with "accuracy in all presentation; accuracy and impartiality in all news stories," while Neal Johnston, former editor of the University of Chicago's Maroon states that "we expect a paper to be honest, accurate, fair, loyal, compassionate and to have some cognizance of individual desires for privacy."

But the subject of control, even student control, excites hot and furious debate. One of seven principles of an NSA resolution which I voted for believes in the principle "that although the student press is often formally owned by an organization other than itself, it is essential that the press be free from control stemming from ownership if it is to function well... it must be permitted to function free of all student or non-student administrative devices," while the Report of the President's Advisory Committee on Student Government (The Feingold Report) commented, "to what extent, if any should they (the papers) be subject to the control of Student Government?... if the cry of 'free press' is raised when we ask these questions, we will respond that it is not entirely appropriate. A truly free press is one which is freely bought." Implementation of various philosophies have led to complete freedom in some schools but to some sought of control, partial or even whole, by student courts, student governments, student faculty committees, faculty advisers, or publication boards in most other colleges.

I think we must be on our guard against solving any problems by inflicting censorship or by stifling editorial ideas or opinions. I concur with President Gallagher when he says, "free and open criticism, free and frank controversy, are the hallmarks of academic and journalistic freedom." In fact, to avoid any possibilities of censorship in the future, we should consider financing the newspapers by an independent method such as giving them a certain percentage of the activity fee.

Given this commitment we should not however, assume that every regulation concerning the papers smacks of censorship, control or dictation of editorial policy. I was glad to see that the editorial board of Campus, which strongly opposed the SFCSA resolution, felt that it was "seconda-

THE DEAN YOU SAVE MAY BE YOUR OWN

Now in the waning days of the school year when the hardest heart grows mellow and the very air is charged with memories, let us pause for a moment and pay tribute to that overworked and underappreciated campus figure, your friend and mine, the dean of students.

Police man and confessor, shepherd and seer, warden and oracle, proconsul and pal, the dean of students is by far the most enigmatic of all academicians. How can we understand him? Well, sir, perhaps the best way is to take an average day in the life of an average dean. Here, for example, is what happened last Thursday to Dean Killjoy N. Damper of Duluth A and M.

At 6 a.m. he woke, dressed, lit a Marlboro, and went up on the roof of his house to remove the statue of the Founder which had been placed there during the night by high-spirited undergraduates.

At 7 a.m. he lit a Marlboro and walked briskly to the campus. (The Dean had not been driving his car since it had been placed on the roof of the girls' dormitory by high-spirited undergraduates.)

At 7:45 a.m. he arrived on campus, lit a Marlboro, and climbed the bell tower to remove his secretary who had been placed there during the night by high-spirited undergraduates.

At 8 a.m. he reached his office, lit a Marlboro, and met with Derther Sigafoos, editor of the student newspaper. Young Sigafoos had been writing a series of editorials urging the United States to annex Canada. When his editorials had evoked no response, he had taken matters into his own hands. Accompanied by his sports editor and two copy readers, he had gone over the border and conquered Manitoba. With great patience and several excellent Marlboro Cigarettes, the Dean persuaded young Sigafoos to give Manitoba back. Young Sigafoos, however, insisted on keeping Winnipeg.

At 9 a.m. the Dean lit a Marlboro and met with Erwin J. Bender, president of the local Sigma Chi chapter, who came to report that the Deke house had been put on top of the Sigma Chi house during the night by high-spirited undergraduates.

At 10 a.m. the Dean lit a Marlboro and went to umpire an intramural softball game on the roof of the law school where the campus baseball diamond had been placed during the night by high-spirited undergraduates.

At 12 noon the Dean had a luncheon meeting with the president of the university, the bursar, the registrar, and the chairman of the English department at the bottom of the campus swimming pool where the faculty dining room had been placed during the night by high-spirited undergraduates. Marlboros were passed after lunch, but not lit owing to the dampness.

At 2 p.m., back in his office, the Dean lit a Marlboro and received the Canadian minister of war who said that unless young Sigafoos gave back Winnipeg, Canada would march. Young Sigafoos was summoned and agreed to give back Winnipeg if he could have Saskatoon. The Canadian minister of war at first refused, but finally agreed after young Sigafoos placed him on the roof of the mining and metallurgy building.

At 3 p.m. the Dean lit a Marlboro and met with a delegation from the student council who came to present him with a set of matched luggage in honor of his fifty years' service as dean of students. The Dean promptly packed the luggage with his clothing and Marlboros and fled to Utica, New York, where he is now in the aluminum siding game.

To the dean of students and all you other hard-working academic types, here's the new word in smoking pleasure from the makers of Marlboro—king-size unfiltered Philip Morris Commander. Welcome aboard!

to the basic principle of freedom from censorship," and did not use it on this ground.

Let us ascertain what the resolution does. It does not say to a student that when an opinion such as "civil disobedience is an inalienable right in a democracy" is expressed that Council can examine this statement for its correctness and require all opposing articles to be printed. For this is only a matter of opinion and any decision would be wrong. The resolution only applies to a situation where someone's statement has been erroneously reported and the newspaper refuses to stand corrected. Now, an individual can refer his case to Student Council. Freedom of the press is a valid cry. Let the Press not use it as a shield. Council has not been made censor nor was it given powers which it can encroach upon the freedom of the press; we are saying that an individual has a right to have his remarks correctly reported. Unfortunately, you mislead your readers into believing that we disagree in principle more than is the case. I agree when you say that "if there is any dispute between an individual and a College organization, the proper body by which it should be considered is not SFCSA, not SC, but a Student Court." On the one hand you hold that the resolution "constitutes a violation of the basic principle of freedom from censorship" and that no body should have this power, and on the other hand you are willing to let a Court have such power. Evidently you don't really believe the resolution to be censorship or you are willing to let a Court become a censor. I dissent if the latter be the case. I view the resolution not as censorship but as protection for the individual which in the absence of a Student Court should fall under the duties of Student Council.

To those who argue that many corrections are being printed now, I say, if they are, fine. But any form of self-government must be based on law and regular procedure and not on the willingness or unwillingness of editors to print corrections, no matter how well intentioned these editors may be.

Bob Saginaw,
SG President

Papers Awarded Journalism Prizes

Three College newspapers have been granted awards in the 1960-61 Undergraduate Journalism Award Competition of the City College Alumni Association.

Observation Post received the award in the News category for a story by Peter Steinberg on the Heald Committee recommendation that a tuition fee be instituted at the city colleges.

The Campus received awards in the Features and Editorial categories. The winning feature story by Francine Pike was "Alone in a Strange Land," which dealt with the problems of foreign students at the College. The editorial, "Free For All," dealt with the threat to the free tuition policy of the municipal colleges.

The Ticker, the Baruch School newspaper, received the Special Features award for two "literary supplements". No award was made in the Photography category.

Brooklyn Game Postponed by Rain; Beavers Bow to St. John's Tuesday

By LARRY BORTSTEIN

You remember what kind of day it was yesterday? Sure you do. The temperature was well over sixty degrees, the sun was shining, and, although it was a little on the breezy side, it seemed like a perfect day for a ball game.

The Beavers were seeking to clinch (if the term can be used here) seventh place in the Met League, what with right-hander Murray Steinink supposedly back in shape, and Brooklyn College's Kingsmen supposedly able to provide very little opposition.

So what happened? The short but sad tale goes like this:

It seems that it rained most of Tuesday night and on into yesterday morning, and the Maccombs Dam Park officials were unable to get the field into playing shape by 3 PM.

So no game. Brooklyn (bless their courageous souls!) immediately saw to it that the game was re-scheduled for next Thursday, May 4. Same place, same time, but no promises.

Tuesday at the Park, the rain had no decisive effect on the outcome of the game with St. John's, except for the fact that it came a little too late.

By the time Bill Lage skied to left for the final out, the rain was pouring down, and the Beaver nine raced off the diamond, a 7-2 loser.

But they were almost lucky enough to avoid defeat.

The rains had started as the Beavers took their turn in the last of the eighth, having just seen a 2-2 tie broken by three unearned Redmen runs in the top of the inning.

Had the downpour reached stentorian proportions at that point

Howie Friedman Goes the Route

forcing a stop to the action, the score would have reverted back to that of the last complete inning.

But you couldn't expect that kind of luck, after what happened in the first part of the eighth.

Howie Friedman, who went all the way for the fifth straight time, was victimized by more bad breaks in one inning than most pitchers see in a month. A less hardy personage might have transferred to Hunter on the spot.

Joe Kepics, St. John's catcher, started it off with a legitimate single to center.

Next was Rightfielder Hank Beckman, who was to seal the coffin shut in the next inning, but this wasn't a coffin-sealing situation.

Beckman bunted back to Friedman—so the left-hander elected to go for the sure out at first. But alas and alack, no-one took the trouble to cover first for Friedman's proposed throw, so all hands were safe.

Dick Bertadotti, St. John's huge first baseman, who looks like a hitter, but isn't, also bunted to the mound, and this time things went smoothly with the subsequent advancement of Redmen from second to third.

Max Dente, the second baseman and eighth man in the order, came next. He was pitched to rather than walked intentionally (because) pitcher Pat Gannon was on deck, and Friedman momentarily had Dente struck out, when Max seemed to miss an attempted bunt on third strike. But Mr. Umpire saw things differently, and let Dente (possibly a relative?), stay up.

The Clincher

Upon which Max rapped the next offering to short. George Lopac went home with the ball and had Kepics attempting to score from third, out at the plate.

But catcher Bill Botwinik lost the handle—not to mention the ball, and by the time Bill could dig it out, both base-runners had scored and old Max was striding atop third base, whence he scored seconds later on Gannon's fly ball.

Beckman wrapped it up with a two-run home-run in the ninth.

Johnny Francesconi uncorked a single and a triple to drive in both Lavender tallies.

All Sports . . .

The sixteenth annual All-Sports Dinner will be held tonight at the Prince George Hotel in downtown New York. Thirty awards will be presented to the College's outstanding performers.

Jackie Robinson will be the guest speaker at the dinner which starts at approximately 8 PM.

Racquetees Topple Maritimers Handily

By PAUL ASEN

The College's tennis team yesterday accepted a kindly invitation from the New York State Maritime Academy to escape the City's heat and visit the sea-farers' home at Fort Schuyler on Long Island Sound.

The Beavers obliged by pulverizing the Maritimers, 7-2 for their fourth triumph in five outings.

Coach Harry Karlin's racquetees proceeded with all the facility of the United States Davis Cup Squad opposing Burma, as they clinched the match in the singles competition for the second straight time.

Stan Freundlich, the number-one Beaver, took a few deep breaths of the cool sea-side air and punished his opponent, Richard Campanaro with a 6-1, 6-3 shellacking.

Joe Borowsky earned the number-two position partially by virtue of his undefeated record in single play, and partially because Co Captain Al Smith did not compete. Borowsky polished off Phil Preeg in the first set, 6-1, and was all set to relax. Twenty-five games later the match had not been settled, but Borowsky finally prevailed, 14-12.

Nelson Paler went down to the only legitimate Lavender defeat when he bowed to Bob Wheeler 6-3, 6-1.

In the number-one doubles event the Beaver team of Freundlich and Harris Saney and Maritime representatives, Campanaro and Wheeler were tied at one set apiece when a Freundlich blister abruptly ended the match.

The Maritimers gallantly accepted the forfeit instead of politely allowing the match to be called a draw.

In all other events the Beavers triumphed handily.

Bernie Wasserman, occupying the number-four slot, topped Al Cherfetz 6-3, 6-3.

Larry Goldhirsch, the red-headed basketeer, demolished Dave Pent 6-3, 6-1.

Lester Gerhardt provided the clincher with a 6-1, 6-2 rout of Ken Bruce.

In the doubles events the Beavers returned to the courts with an air of frivolity and with the exception of the Freundlich tragedy, scored easily.

Paler and Wasserman defeated Cherfetz and Bill Louie 6-1, 6-4, and Goldhirsch combined with Jay Bochner for a 6-3, 6-1 triumph.

Lacrosse Forces Entertain Stevens

The College's Lacrosse team, whose fortunes of late have been happily in keeping with the spirit of spring, will entertain Stevens Tech this afternoon at 3 PM in Lewisohn Stadium.

Coach George Baron's charges boast consecutive victories over Wesleyan and Drexel in their last two outings.

The Beavers record is now 5-2, and considering Coach Baron's pre-season problems, their performance has been excellent.

The Lavender attack has started to jell and the hosts should face considerably better than they would have had the game been played on schedule.

The game was originally scheduled for Monday April 10, but rain forced its postponement.
