Wagner ...

Mayor Robert F. Wagner will be among the speakers at a testimonial dinner Tuesday honoring Dr. Joseph J. Klein, president of the City College Fund. Clifford O. Anderson, president of the College's Alumni Association will present Dr. Klein with a Centennial medal for distinguished service to the College. President Buell G. Gallagher will act as master of ceremonies.

FK Urged to Bar Aid To Segregated Schools

A conference attended by over 1500 educators and administrators last week urged President John F. Kennedy to prevent federal funds from being given to segregated schools.

The three day conference, sponsored by the Association for Higher Education, was attended by President Buell G. Gallagher, Dean Samuel Middlebrook (Liberal Arts Sciences), Dean William Allen (Technology), Sherburne F. Baruch (Liberal Arts & Science), Willie W. Engler (Dean of Administration) and Samuel R. Thomas, (Ass't Dean, Baruch School).

The resolution, passed by a 3 to 2 margin, recommends that "the federal government, either by Executive or, if necessary by Congressional action, take all measures required to assure that funds are disbursed only to those institutions of higher education which do not discriminate or exclude on grounds of race, color, religion or national origin."

The controversial Kennedy program, detailing an elaborate program of grants and loans to public institutions, has met with substantial pressures to alter or defeat it. The group, however, welcomed the prospect that government will assume a more active and responsible role in the support and improvement of higher education. It commended the President for his interest in the improvement and expansion of higher education. In other actions the association commended that a permanent council of educational advisors to the US President be established to assist in planning, formulating policy, and coordinating the government in its support and promotion

Placement Office Slightly Affected By the Recession

Unemployment in the United States is at the highest level since 1941, but the college's Placement Office has not noticed a great difference in the availability of summer jobs compared to last summer, according to Mr. Ernest W. Schnaebele, Director of the Placement Office.

He explained that it is always hard to find a job for the summer recess. "Naturally, it is going to be relatively harder this summer."

of education. "The spirit, the purposes, and the enthusiasm generated by the establishment of the Peace Corp" was unanimously commended.

The final resolution urged that publicly controlled institutions of higher education be given maximum autonomy in the management of their own operations, free from political influences and bureaucratic supervision that might affect adversely the quality of their educational services.

NYC Is 'Sovietized', Charges V. Battista

New York is the most "sovietized" city in the world, outside of Havana Cuba, Vito Battista, the United Taxpayers Party candidate for Mayor said yesterday.

Mr. Battista cited "confiscatory" taxation, one party government, public welfare programs and "un-American" public housing as leading "citizens of New York toward ... slavery"

When government enters into all phases of human activities the results have to be bad, he said.

Speaking in a half-filled room before the College's Young Republican Club, Mr. Battista said that twenty-five years of "liberal government" in New York had solved none of the city's problems.

Mr. Battista cited city planning, education, maintenance of "law and order," public housing, rent control and taxation as unsolved problems facing the city as a result of know-nothing "liberal" policies.

"Mayors prior to Wagner didn't have the answers, but Wagner doesn't even know the questions,"

Rockefeller's Revised Plan Passed By Senate, 47-7

By GRACE FISCHER

Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller's revised plan to give financial aid to college students was passed by the State Senate yesterday afternoon. Approval by the Assembly early next week is assured.

The bill was passed by a forty-seven to seven vote, with three Republicans and four New York City Democrats dissenting.

It provides for students attending public and private tuition-charging colleges to receive yearly grants ranging from $100 to $300. The exact amount of the stipend would depend on the financial need of the individual student.

The "scholar-incentive" plan gives to the Board of Higher Education full authority to decide whether or not to charge tuition at the city colleges.

This provision has been interpreted by some as opening the way for the municipal colleges to become tuition-charging institutions.

Senator Manfred Ohrenstein (Dem. Man.) voted against enactment of the plan because he is "convinced that it will eventually mean the imposition of tuition at the city colleges.

"It's (tuition) is going to happen," he declared yesterday. "The formula for state aid to the city's public colleges will be cut down, as if the students were paying tuition," Senator Ohrenstein predicted.

"It will leave the Board of Higher Education no alternative but to charge tuition," he said.

The Manhattan Democrat declined to state an approximate date when he expects such a fee to be imposed.

Senator Ohrenstein supported

Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller Plan Gets Senatorial Approval Comptroller Arthur Levitt's plan for aid to higher education which would have increased the number of Regents scholarships by 50%. He termed the Governor's plan "wasteful" because "it will help many students who aren't needy." (Although Governor Rockefeller's revised proposal includes a means test, each student receives at least $100 annually.)

"The money would be better spent in expanding the public colleges," he asserted.

Senator Joseph Zaretzki (Dem. Man.) also voiced fear yesterday that the plan proposed by the state's chief executive would lead to imposition of a tuition-fee at the municipal colleges.

"The Republicans claim they want to help the student by giving him $300, while they really intend to charge students at the municipal colleges $300," he declared.

The Senate minority leader did vote for passage of the Governor's plan, however.

"I had to vote for it," said Senator Zaretzki, because of the good features in the bill.

According to the Senator it is "rank discrimination" to provide free higher education to 42,000 students, while the 92,000 state residents who attend private colleges "get nothing."

Senator Zaretzki said he was pleased with the passage of the Governor's plan in so far as it

Frisco Student Demonstration Depicted In HUAC Film Here

By TIM BROWN

A film depicting alleged student riots in San Francisco last spring at hearings of the House Committee on Un-American activities, was greeted here yesterday by jeers, cat-calls, and a great deal of laughter by the approximately 120 students present.

Two showings were required to accommodate the overflow crowd in Room 217 Finley, with over 200 students viewing both showings.

The film, produced without credits or other indication of its sponsors, was intended to show, according to Congressman Francis Walter (Rep. Pa.), speaking in the film's introduction, "the long-time Communist tactic in which trained Communist agents incite riots against the Committee."

The Congressman cited a list of "known Communists" present at the hearings, and asserted that these persons were responsible for the disturbances that occurred.

The students at the hearings were charged in the film with inciting to riot, and specifically of having caused injuries to the Police.

In a rebuttal given after the film, by Jim Burnett, an officer of Americans for Democratic Action, the campus unit of which sponsored the film, many of the assertions made by the film were refuted, or said to be distortions of fact.

"The film deserves an award as a great piece of science fiction movie writing," he said.

Barbara Juppe, a student who was present at the San Francisco demonstration also asserted that the film was factually incorrect and inadequate.

The film began with a short talk by Rep. Walter, followed by assorted scenes of alleged Communists and agitators, some arguing or struggling with the police.

Following this, there was a speech delivered by another Congressman, asserting that the Committee "was there to get information regarding Communist propaganda activities ... as we are ordered to do by Congress." He said that several of the persons subpoenaed were known Communists.

Several scenes of general singing and chanting by crowds out-

Film Fraud

The House Un-American Activities Committee's (HUAC) film, "Operation Abolition" did well at the City College box office yesterday. It was necessary to hold two showings of the film in order to accommodate all those who wished to view it.

While the Committee may get an Oscar for doing well at the box office, in the area of representing the truth, it failed miserably.

The film presents a distorted view of the protest demonstration staged by a group of college students when HUAC held hearings in San Francisco last May.

The Committee subpoenaed newsreel shots of the riots and without permission, edited the original versions and presented the resulting distortion of the actual events as the truth.

The film attempts to show that opposition to the Committee was led and inspired by Communists or Communist dupes. Its other main assertion is that the violence which ensued was incited by the student demonstrators.

Beyond the assertion that demonstrators were "duped" by a handful of Communist agitators, no evidence is offered by the narrator of the film as proof. This is because the statement is untrue. The main body of the students who picketed were inspired only by their own valid and creditable indignation at the Committee's conduct; and they were led by students who were motivated by the desire to protect their civil rights and liberties.

The other major assertion, that the brutality and violence was incited by the students, is not borne out by the sequence of events in the film.

The narrator claimed that students attempted to rush police barricades, and this justified the brutal police use of hoses. But no photograph accompanies the commentary on this alleged student attempt. The reason for this is that there was no act of physical aggression on the part of the students.

As the 200 students who viewed the film saw, the practice of Congress's sending one or two members of an inquisitorial team trotting about the country, allegedly to gain information on subversive activities, has become a series of "Star Chamber" proceedings in which all legal safeguards of the Committee's subpoenaed witnesses are ignored.

Students watching the film observed typical Committee procedure, as they saw defendants being called upon to affirm or deny charges made by anonymous accusers, being bullied and black-guarded in the best style of Judge Jeffries, being tried without presentation of evidence, without witnesses, without cross examination or opportunity for dissent.

Students saw an investigating Committee, with the stated object of protecting national security, penalize students for exercising their fundamental rights of advocacy and association.

As much as the Committee denies it, advocacy of the abolition is certainly as American as advocacy of the abolition of slavery or advocacy of the popular election of senators or advocacy of suffrage for women. It was because changes in the form of government guaranteed by the Constitution were foreseen as vital and necessary to its perpetuation that the Constitution not only provided a mechanism for change, but also forbade Congress to prohibit the advocacy of change.

Any of these examples of the Committee's disregard for fundamental constitutional rights provides one more reason for its immediate abolition.

Rockefeller ...

Both State Senators expressed confidence that Governor Rockefeller's proposals would be adopted by the State Assembly next week.

Originally, the Governor's scholarship plan specified a flat grant of $200 for every student.

The means test was added to the original education proposals in order to quell objection to the plan on the ground that it violated church-state separation by aiding students attending parochial colleges.

The revised "scholar-incentive" plan also calls for the Board of Regents to set minimal standards of eligibility for the grants.

The Brook-Zaretski bill to combine the four municipal colleges into a city university, which was approved by the State Senate last month, is expected to pass the Assembly Tuesday, according to Representative John Robert Brook (Rep. Man.).

Assemblyman Brook said yesterday that Governor Rockefeller's desire to present an educational "package" to the legislators is the reason why the city university bill was not acted upon earlier by the lower house.

"He doesn't want the education programs to be considered piecemeal," he explained.

Concerning recent speculation that the Board of Higher Education will be expanded to include state representatives, Representative Brook declared that there is "no question but that the composition of the Board will remain the same—at least for this year."

Mr. Battista, who garnered 70,000 votes in the last New York mayoralty contest, said.

Mr. Battista charged that paying the bill for the city's "give-away" programs fell largely on the shoulders of homeowners.

"The only thing left to do to the property owner in this city is to put him up against a wall and shoot him like they do in Red China." The tax burden must be redistributed, he said.

Mr. Battista also commented on a number of other city institutions including:

- City Traffic Planning. . . "It takes the Sputnik thirty-six minutes to circle the world and the New Yorker thirty-six minutes to travel from the East to the West side of Manhattan"

- Public Welfare. . . "People are coming to New York because they think we are an easy touch."

- The Republican Primary. . . "I will win it."

- "Liberal" Republicans. . . Governor Rockefeller is the best Tammany Hall man the Democrats have.

- His Life. . . "I come from a humble background."

- The Democratic Party. . . "You can't get those bums out."

Mr. Battista asserted that private enterprise and initiative would solve the city's problems and bring about "morality in government."

"I am a conservative, and I'm proud of it," he said.

Managers ...

The Finley Center Board of Managers presents "Tell England (The Battle of Gallipoli)" on Wednesday, March 15, and Thursday, March 16, as part of the Spring, 1961 film program.

Anthony Asquith and Geoffrey Barkas directed the 1931 England film, starring Carl Hardbord and Tony Bruce. Showings are at 7 PM in Room 301 Cohen Library, and at 8 PM in Room 217 Finley Center.

I know all of you have important things to do in the morning—like getting down to breakfast before your roommate eats all the marmalade—so you really cannot be blamed for not keeping up with all the news in the morning papers. In today's column, therefore, I have prepared a run-up of news highlights from campuses the country over.

SOUTHERN RESERVE UNIVERSITY

Dr. Willard Hale Sigafos, head of the department of anthropology at Southern Reserve University, and internationally known as an authority on primitive peoples, returned yesterday from a four-year scientific expedition to the headwaters of the Amazon River. Among the many interesting mementos of his journey is his own head, shrunk to the size of a kumquat. He refused to reveal how his head shrinking was accomplished. "That's for me to know and you to find out," he said with a tiny, but saucy grin.

NORTHERN RESERVE UNIVERSITY

Dr. Mandrill Gibbon, head of the department of zoology at Northern Reserve University, and known to young and old for his work on primates, announced yesterday that he had received a grant of $80,000,000 for a twelve-year study to determine precisely how much fun there is in a barrel of monkeys.

Whatever the results of Dr. Gibbon's researches, this much is already known: What's more fun than a barrel of monkeys is a pack of Marlboro. There is zest and cheer in every puff, delight in every draw, content and well-being in every fleecy, flavorful cloudlet. And what's more, this merriest of cigarettes comes to you both in soft pack and flip-top box wherever cigarettes are sold at prices that do no violence to the slimmest of purses. So why don't you settle back soon and enjoy Marlboro, the filtered cigarette with the unfiltered taste.

EASTERN RESERVE UNIVERSITY

The annual meeting of the American Philological Institute, held last week at Eastern Reserve University, was enlivened by the reading of two divergent monographs concerning the origins of early Gothic "runes," as letters of primitive alphabets are called.

Dr. Tristram Lathrop Spleen, famed far and wide as the discoverer of the High German Consonant Shift, read a paper in which he traced the origins of the Old Wendish rune "pt" (pronounced "krahtz") to the middle Lettic rune "gr" (pronounced "albert"). On the other hand, Dr. Richard Cumberbund Twonkey, who, as the whole world knows, translated "The Pajama Game" into Middle High Bactrian, contended in his paper that the Old Wendish rune "pt" derives from the Low Erse rune "mf" (pronounced "gr").

Well, sir the discussion grew so heated that Dr. Twonkey finally asked Dr. Spleen if he would like to step into the gymnasium and put on the gloves. Dr. Spleen accepted the challenge promptly, but the contest was never held because there were no gloves in the gymnasium that would fit Dr. Twonkey. (The reader is doubtless finding this hard to believe as Eastern Reserve University is celebrated the length and breadth of the land for the size of its glove collection. However, the reader is asked to remember that Dr. Twonkey has extraordinarily small hands and arms. In fact, he spent the last war working in a small-arms plant, where he received two Navy "E" Awards and was widely hailed as a "manly little chap.") use Plan ...

use Plan will sponsor a student-faculty discussion on the topic: "The American Economy Becoming Socialized?" The panel will consist of Professors William Grampp and Howard Ross (Economics), and two students. The discussion will take place on Tuesday at 3 PM in the House Plan Lounge, Room 327 Finley. All students are invited to take part.

Other instances of the dragging and pushing young men down flights of stairs in front of the Court house, and of noses being turned on the streets.

The film concludes with an address by Rep. Gordon Scherer (Ohio), in which he says that the demonstration has been a "where students have been duped ... by a small number of Communist agitators into the enforcement of law and order."

They are toying with treason," he said.

No Actual Violence

In his rebuttal, Mr. Burnett said that "nowhere in the film do we see any student engaging in an act of violence. [Several] papers in the bay area report that police action was very brutal," he continued.

The singing and chanting heard in the film during the hearing scenes was produced "by the use of a peculiar sound track, in which sounds were superimposed upon one-another," he continued. These sounds could not be heard in the hearing room, he said.

In the question period which followed, one student asked "whether the rallies were really called by an organization at Berkeley." Miss Juppe answered that "the rally was initially called by the Students For Civil Liberties 'a liberal, democratic organization', at the college, but was later joined by many other groups."

Another asked "how the fighting started, and how many students were involved." Miss Juppe stated there was "no fighting to speak of, although occasionally a student would resist being dragged down the stairs or into the patrol wagons."

She also said that she "saw no Communist agitation at the rallies", and that singing was the accepted form of protest.

OPology ...

In Observation Post's review of the Musical Comedy Society's production of "Where's Charley?", Wednesday, Ted Warmbrand was mistakenly named as "Wilkinson" the butler. The portrayal should have been attributed to John Yavrouian who played the butler called 'Bras-set', in the show.

Student Totes Gun, Studies English; Says He's Bored by Arctic Icebergs

By BETSY PILAT

Ronald Reis, senior English major at the College, would not think of going to class without a gun.

Reis is a patrolman in the detective division and works in the Youth Squad forty-two hours a week. Since a policeman is always on duty, Reis must never be without his .38 Special gun, and his includes time at the College where he carries thirteen credits.

The twenty-six year old "flat-foot" was not always a landlubber, however. In 1953, his love of the sea led him to enroll in Fort Schuyler, one of New York State's Merchant Marine schools.

"If I had come to the College then instead," Reis speculated, "I might have become an engineer, lived in Scarsdale, and worn Brooks Brothers suits."

Reis tired of sea travel via the academic life after two years, and "ran off to sea" to see the world as a Merchant Marine seaman. First he crossed the Arctic, spent six months in Iceland and was never so bored in his life.

"Once you've seen one iceberg you've seen them all," Reis said with a dismal expression. "And in contrast to that trip, I went to Panama, where for eight hours a day I stared at a boiler gauge in 120° heat."

In 1958, the brown-eyed seaman decided to forego the sea and attend the College. Soon after his academic decision he became interested in the police force ("Don't ask me why," he said) and after being tested and investigated was appointed a probationary policeman on May 11, 1959.

Completing the customary nine months probation as a rookie, Reis was unprecedently catapulted to the designation of detective. This phenomenal promotion, which occurs in most cases after years of patrolling a beat, was based primarily on an arrest Reis made as a rookie.

"There had been a wave of hit and run accidents," Reis recalled,

Ronald Reis Ready—Aim ...

"and I happened to arrest a man who had hit three people and killed one person."

But Reis had been alert on the job from the very beginning of rookie training. The third day of police school, he and his date were just leaving a movie on 96th St. and Broadway at 1 AM, when they heard a woman scream: "STOP THIEF!"

"I ran after the man," recalled Reis, "although I didn't have a gun, and caught him with the woman's purse containing $110 in his hand."

"This arrest is not in any official archives of mine. All rookies are supposed to be in at 12 o'clock, so that my track exercise was technically an infringement of the rules," he said smiling.

Of course, this infraction didn't hinder Reis's promotion to detective, or an award he received for being the Outstanding Rookie of his probationary class. The award was the gun that Reis now carries, presented to him with an inscription from Harry Hershfield and former Commissioner of Police Stephen Kennedy.

Ronny Reis's opinion of newly appointed Police Commissioner Walter Murphy is a decidedly affirmative one: "He's got to be good; he's a City College graduate."

Now working with the Youth Squad, Reis makes approximately three arrests a month "for assaults against teachers, statutory rapes, complaints, and sometimes possession of drugs. I also spend several hours a week in court testifying," he elaborated.

Among Reis's many accomplishments (sixteen wrestling medals, painting, chess), is a varied knowledge of languages. He speaks Hebrew "fluently," German, "from visiting the country," and Russian, "after two years of study at the College." But his knowledge of Russian didn't help him much when he was posted at the Russian Embassy during Premier Khrushchev's visit to the United Nations.

"I asked a guard in Russian, when Khrushchev was leaving the United States, This was quite a strain on my vocabulary. And when the Russian guard answered, all I could do was smile in what I thought were appropriate places," he said.

The much travelled, student-detective's plans after graduating from the College in January include several alternatives. "I may want a career in the Police Force, although it feels strange to contemplate retirement in eighteen years."

"There is also the possibility of graduate school and a Master's degree in English," he continued. "I think I'm a good writer now and could become better." Probably one of the Police Force's wittier detectives, it is not surprising that Reis chooses S.J. Perlman as his favorite writer.

"But, like Jack London, I may feel the call of a sea-life again," Reis concluded.

down" in number of openings for graduate students, he said. However, the demand for really good students continues to be heavy.

Students who are willing to consider out-of-town jobs have a better chance to obtain immediate employment.

He warned that it is very "poor policy" to rely on one source when seeking employment—that includes the Placement Office.

"Students must realize the kind of competition that exists and they must utilize" as many sources as possible to find opportunities, he said.

Placement ...

fect on summer employment when economic conditions are bad," Mr. Schaebele said.

"The type of jobs that have become available" to us at this point, he continued, "are related to highly specialized degrees."

These employers are trying to interest students in returning to the job upon graduation. The competition is tremendous for these jobs, Mr. Schaebele added.

As to permanent employment, there has been a relative "let

Castro Snubs Brumel for Beavers; Delgado, Rudick in IC4A at Garden

By PAUL ASEEN

A throng of 14,368 stood motionless beside their seats at Madison Square Garden last Friday. Valery Brumel, the great Russian high jumper, was poised in the center of the floor preparing an attempt at the seemingly unassailable height of 7-5.

The varied reactions of the crowd at this point were interesting. Some avid partisans crumpled beer cans in their hands while others crushed the mammoth programs of the Knights of Columbus track meet until they resembled spitballs.

Francisco Castro, the College's track coach, was unique. He wasn't even watching.

Castro had attended the meet because the College's runners participated in one of the relay events, but their race was long since over by the time Brumel took over.

While the Russian was performing, Castro was talking to George Best, a former star at the College, who was participating in the hop, step and jump event.

"When I see something wrong, I have to fix it up right away," explained the perfection-conscious mentor, "and I saw him (Best) tightening up on his jump."

Coaching Philosophy

Castro's knowledgeable counsel apparently paid off as Best proceeded on his next jump to move into third place against the best competition in America.

The coach's reaction to Brumel's feats aptly illustrates his coaching philosophy. His interest lies not necessarily with the best, but with his own boys.

Earlier in the evening, Castro became as rabidly involved when the College's relay team placed fourth in a six-team event as the rest of the spectators did when George Kerr of the University of Illinois broke the world record for 600-yards.

Fortunately for the conscientious Castro, he will have a double interest in tomorrow night's IC4A games at the Garden.

The College's riflers, now boasting a 16-0 record, will take on Manhattan College's sharpshooters tonight in one of their infrequent matches away from home.

Josue Delgado, a member of the College's track team and Puerto Rico's national track champion, will compete in the 600-yard run. Delgado anchored the Beaver aggregate in the K of C games with a sparkling 50.2 quarter mile and figures to be in prime condition for Saturday's meet.

The other Beaver participant will be Ira Rudick who is scheduled to compete in the 60-yard dash. The versatile Rudick, who also competes in the high jump for the Lavender, will have to forego that event due to the presence of John Thomas and other such sky-rockets.

Castro is optimistic and gives both entrants a chance to reach the finals. But the presence of some of the East's best runners make a lower finish more likely.

Either way the interested eyes of Castro will be upon his Beavers, and if anyone should break a record, he will undoubtedly be looking the other way.

All-Stars

The last Tri-State basketball season was dominated by several outstanding individuals who made their respective teams more tough opponents on any given night.

Here then, based on a consensus of the Observation Post staff, is the 1960-61 All Tri-State League team:

•Sam Grossman (Yeshiva)—the 6-3 senior kept the Mites above sea level all season. He averaged 23 per game to second in league scoring and led the way to the Mites' upset of Beavers early in this season.

•Bob Hutter (Fairfield)—this 6-3 blond was the big gun for Stags in their successful defense of the league championship. 18 points per game and strong rebounding contributed greatly to Fairfield's well-balanced attack.

•Charley Rosen (Hunter)—the mammoth 6-8 junior was the outstanding pivot man in the league. He ranked third in rebounding and captured the loop's rebounding honors.

•Dan Morello (Bridgeport)—led the league in scoring with a game average of 23.4. Morello led his Knights to a first-place finish.

•Bob Jenkins (Fairfield)—a nifty playmaker, this fast-moving guard was the boy who directed the potent attack of the league's title-winning team.

Others worthy of mention included Alan Hernandez (LIU), Scheinblum (Brooklyn), Bob Brown (Fairleigh Dickinson), Sherman (LIU), Ed Cahill (Adelphi), and Tor Nilsen of Beavers.

LUCKY STRIKE PRESENTS:

DEAR DR. FROOD:

DR. FROOD'S THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: In college, it isn't who you know that counts—it's whom.

Dear Dr. Frood: I have a confession. All my life I have been trying to learn how to whistle. I just can't. Please, will you tell me how to whistle?

Puckered

DEAR PUCKERED: Watch the birds. Notice how they gather a pocket of air deep within the breast, then push thin jets of this air into the throat, through the larynx, up and around the curled tongue, and then bounce the air from the roof of the mouth out through the teeth (which act like the keyboard on a piano). Practice this. In no time your friends will be amazed at the beautiful, warbly trills that flow from your beak.

Dear Dr. Frood: I just can't seem to get in step with the rest of the students here. They enjoy parties, dancing, folk singing and dating. None of these things interest me at all. Am I behind the times or what?

Left Out

Dear Dr. Frood: What do you think accounts for the fact that college students smoke more Luckies than any other regular?

Marketing Student

DEAR MS: Collegiate Lucky smokers.

Dear Dr. Frood: Hamlet killed Polonius. Macbeth stabbed Duncan. Richard murdered his little nephews. Othello strangled Desdemona, and Titus served Tamora her two sons in a pie before killing her. Don't you think this obsession with violence would make an excellent subject for a term paper?

English Major

DEAR ENGLISH: No, I don't, and my advice to you is to stop running around with that crowd.

Dear Dr. Frood: My coach is writing this letter for me because I am illiterate. We want to know if I got to learn how to read to get into college. I am the best football player in the state.

DEAR X: Every college today will insist that you meet certain basic entrance requirements. I'm afraid you're just out of luck, X, unless you learn how to read diagrams and count to eleven.

ARE YOU READY FOR THE FLOOD? Most students today live a carefree, devil-may-care existence—buying their Luckies day to day. Only a handful have had the good sense to set aside an emergency cache of three or four Lucky cartons, wrapped in oilskin. When the dam breaks—they'll be ready. Will you?

CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change.
