Council To Start Drive for Monroe;
Moves Deadline for Hillel Charter

By JOE LOWIN

Student Council approved last night a resolution giving Hillel a two-week extension of the deadline for filing a constitution.

The Council motion, introduced by Sal Favia, '62, was approved by a vote of 13-7-2. The resolution, approved by the SG Executive Committee Friday, set November 1 as the new deadline. It had previously been October 13.

The reasons given by Leonore Lieblein, President of Hillel, for the need of the extra time are three:

1. Hillel was notified only last Wednesday that they had to submit a constitution.
2. Hillel council usually meets on Mondays, and the last two Mondays have been Jewish holidays.
3. The constitution must first be submitted to the National Hillel Brit Foundation in Washington, D.C. for approval.

"We would like to apply a complete, honest constitution to SC," concluded Miss Lieblein.

Leonard Machtlinger
Opposes Extension

Ed Beterer, '62, attacked Miss Lieblein's arguments. "I deny," said the council representative, "that Hillel was asked last Wednesday. Every club was notified last year. They were notified in the student press.

"I would like to point out a complete, honest constitution to SC," concluded Miss Lieblein.

By BARBARA BROWN

A motion initiating a drive to collect food, clothing, and money for the Negroes of Monroe, N.C. was passed by Student Council last night after prior debate.

The final resolution was passed 16-0-9 after prolonged effort on the part of some Council members to show that such a question did not affect "students as students."

Before debate began however, Council was addressed by the Chairman of the Monroe Defense Committee who spoke in favor of sending aid to the Negroes there in their fight for civil rights.

Mr. Calvin Hicks summarized the situation in Monroe, including the harassment of Robert Williams, head of a group picking a segregated swimming pool there, and the outbreak of rioting in reaction to that same group.

"I appeal to you on a humanitarian basis, because there are people who have been deprived but a racial basis are victims of economic deprivation," Mr. Hicks told Council.

A motion introduced by Mel Pell, representative of the Class of '63, started the lengthy discussion on whether the issue concerned "students as students."

Opposing view was taken by SG President Irwin Pronin who said "the student body's position clause is not meant to restrict the Student Council. Its purpose is to prevent the body from taking partisan political positions."

The previous Council decisions on the 'basis of sex with regard to fraternity' and 'basis of race except in the case of Hillel' show that it is a very rubbery and elastic clause.

The "second-class citizenship affects every field of student activity. If one requires the remote connection with students as students—the entire Southern integration movement has been led by students," Pronin concluded.

Pell's motion was ruled out of order by a vote of 8-15-2.

The final version of the resolution states that Council's action is "in an attempt to economically help the citizens who have been deprived their legal rights. The drive will"

(Continued On Page 3)

Hillel's Non-Religious Structure Peculiar Among Credo-Cultural Clubs at College

By ELLA EHRICH

This is an OP analysis to clarify the status of the religious-cultural clubs at the College.

Hillel is unique among the College's cultural-religious clubs in that it does not register as, or consider itself, a religious organization.

Aside from Hillel, "the Jewish Student Community" at the College, there are three religious societies on campus: the Newman Club, for Catholic students; the Christian Association, and the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship.

The latter three groups register as religious organizations, and as such they are allowed to discriminate according to Student Government by-laws.

The by-laws state that charter members of all registered organizations must contain a clause "barring discrimination against any applicant for membership or office in the organization because of race, color, religious belief or nonbelief, national origin, sex or political beliefs except in the case of religious organizations." Only Hillel and the Christian Association request members to sign a "Pledge of Belief."

In the case of Hillel, students are asked to affirm their identification with the Jewish People. This "consti-

(Continued On Page 3)
A machine that played a key role in World War II bomber operations can be found in the basement of Townsend Harris.

The machine, a nitrogen dilution chamber, was used to simulate conditions of pressure encountered in long-range, high-altitude flights.

Professors Joseph E. Barmack and Joseph L. Woodruff (Psychology) were approached with a problem by the Aviation Medicine Committee of the National Research Council, and from there to Prof. Barmack.

A deficiency of oxygen, as occurs at high altitudes, impairs the thought processes because the metabolic rates, dependent on oxygen, is slowed down.

The problem lay in finding a stimulant strong enough to overcome the hypnotic effect of flying, thereby reducing accidents, but with an effect short enough to permit the pilots to sleep at night. Benzedrine, coffee, and decaffeinated coffee were tested, while hot water was used as a control.

"It was found that benzedrine and coffee both had relatively long-lasting counter-leader effects, whereas the decaffeinated coffee would only last about fifteen minutes," recalled Prof. Barmack.

The nitrogen dilution chamber was kept pilots awake at night, so coffee and decaffeinated coffee were finally chosen as standard equipment for long-range missions.

The amount of oxygen that can be used by man depends on the pressure at which it is forced into the lungs. At sea level, there is a twenty percent oxygen concentration in the air. At high altitudes, both pressure and oxygen concentration are decreased.

The machine, a nitrogen dilution chamber, was used to simulate conditions of pressure encountered in long-range, high-altitude flights.

Professors Joseph E. Barmack and Joseph L. Woodruff (Psychology) were approached with a problem by the Aviation Medicine Committee of the National Research Council, just before the war.

"British bombers," claimed Prof. Barmack, "were coming back safely from missions. Their pilots, however, were doing foolish things and crashing."

"Due to the high frequency of crashes, the British felt that there was some major cause for the accidents," he explained. "They thought that it was a problem of letdown or boredom." The problem was transmitted to the National Research Council, and from there to Prof. Barmack.

A deficiency of oxygen, as occurs at high altitudes, impairs the thought processes because the metabolic rates, dependent on oxygen, is slowed down.

The problem lay in finding a stimulant strong enough to overcome the hypnotic effect of flying, thereby reducing accidents, but with an effect short enough to permit the pilots to sleep at night. Benzedrine, coffee, and decaffeinated coffee were tested, while hot water was used as a control.

"It was found that benzedrine and coffee both had relatively long-lasting counter-leader effects, whereas the decaffeinated coffee would only last about fifteen minutes," recalled Prof. Barmack.

The nitrogen dilution chamber was kept pilots awake at night, so coffee and decaffeinated coffee were finally chosen as standard equipment for long-range missions.

The amount of oxygen that can be used by man depends on the pressure at which it is forced into the lungs. At sea level, there is a twenty percent oxygen concentration in the air. At high altitudes, both pressure and oxygen concentration are decreased.

To duplicate these conditions, that is, to produce low oxygen absorption, it was necessary to decrease the oxygen percentage of the air below twenty percent for the subject in the machine.

Funds for the project were furnished by the Josiah Macy Jr. Foundation.

The problem lay in finding a stimulant strong enough to overcome the hypnotic effect of flying, thereby reducing accidents, but with an effect short enough to permit the pilots to sleep at night. Benzedrine, coffee, and decaffeinated coffee were tested, while hot water was used as a control.

"It was found that benzedrine and coffee both had relatively long-lasting counter-leader effects, whereas the decaffeinated coffee would only last about fifteen minutes," recalled Prof. Barmack.

The nitrogen dilution chamber was kept pilots awake at night, so coffee and decaffeinated coffee were finally chosen as standard equipment for long-range missions.

The amount of oxygen that can be used by man depends on the pressure at which it is forced into the lungs. At sea level, there is a twenty percent oxygen concentration in the air. At high altitudes, both pressure and oxygen concentration are decreased.

To duplicate these conditions, that is, to produce low oxygen absorption, it was necessary to decrease the oxygen percentage of the air below twenty percent for the subject in the machine.

Funds for the project were furnished by the Josiah Macy Jr. Foundation.
Hilliel... (Continued From Page 1) is reasonable, because Hilliel has to do way soul-searching than other groups on campus."

"If there's something we (SC) don't approve of, they're not going to get it passed no matter what the national will say," Leonard Machtlinger declared. "But they hand it in, they can get money, they can re-open school facilities. Then they can amend it if the national says something of value."

"We're not trying to dodge or circumvent SC or SG," Miss Lieblein interjected. "The constitution will be inadequate, and more of counsel's time will be required, she said, "if we have to hand-in the constitution October 13."

Monroe... (Continued From Page 1) help remove the barrier of poverty confronting these people and will help sustain them in their broader fight for civil rights. A motion supporting a rally hold by the College's Chapter of the Congress on Racial Equality (CORE) in behalf of the Freedom Riders was quickly passed by a vote of 17-3.

The resolution, introduced by Leonard Machtlinger '62, states that, "We... strongly support these individuals who have taken upon themselves the task of bringing equality to the transportation facilities of this nation."

"We... extend our fullest support to the CORE rally to be held on Friday, October 13, from 7:30-7 PM in the Grand Ballroom and request all students to contribute to the CORE fund drive so that these Freedom Riders can continue.

College's Studies Architecture Filled to Capacity

The new Architecture program at the College appears to be more popular than its predecessors anticipated. Professor Frank A. Rappolt (Arch. Architecture), said on today that courses leading to degree of Bachelor of Architecuture, initiated this term, are already crowded. I had not expected the pressure to be filled, but as it hap­ened, more students registered than were expected, Professor Rappolt said, however, to shorten the curriculum by establishing it as a part of the School of Technology, thereby reducing the number requirements, Professor Rappolt said.

The State Board of Regents sur­prised the College to give the Freehahn's number of students. The National Architect's Accrediting Board will not award the College its degree in his major.

Fall Concerts...

- The Department of Music is offering the first in a series of concerts at the College on Thursday, November 7th, at 8:30 P.M. Works by Mozart, Schubert and Stravinsky will be featured. Admission is free. Six additional programs will be presented at the College this fall.

SIGNMA TAU DELTA SORORITY INVITES YOU TO ATTEND THEIR ANNUAL FALL OPEN RUSH THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1961 - 12:30 P.M.

SIGMA TAU DELTA SORORITY...
Student Unity

Last spring, after the HEAD Committee report on higher education was released, students at the College rallied together for one of the first times since the thirties. They were a firmly established institution. On the whole, however, their clothing, and financial aid to the Negroes of Monroe, Tennessee, were efforts made to directly benefit themselves.

Student Council last night initiated a drive to send food, clothing, and financial aid to the Negroes of Monroe, Tennessee. The area is ravaged with economic distress based on racial lines. The need for aid cannot be overestimated.

In addition, SC endorsed the CORE rally in support of the Freedom of students' proper action in such cases has been rehashed many times. The "students as students" principle found in the SG constitution has been debated. But, in both of these cases we must act in our capacity as citizens and as students.

The organizations at the College, be they fraternities, sororities or discussion groups, must realize that it is up to them to make the drive and the CORE rally effective and meaningful.

Students at the College must understand and accept their responsibility in these instances.

Clarification

Hillel calls itself the "Jewish community" at the College. It does not classify itself as a religious organization. It does require members to adopt official policies that touch on the identification with the aims of the Jewish people.

The charges and countercharges that have been hurled at and from Hillel in past days have become an issue. As the following statement from the Administration indicates, a clear policy has been arrived at.

Whether or not the statement of support with the Jewish people contains a religious test is open to conflicting interpretation simply because the wording is vague. If we ask where the line may be drawn between Jewish people and the Albert Einstein Medical College and the Albert Einstein Medical College of the Yeshiva System in Room 105 Wagner. All are welcome.

MEETINGS AND DINNER SOCIETY

Meet in Room 107 Wagner at 12:15. All are invited to attend.

HOUSE PLAN ASSOCIATION

Meet in Room 115 Wagner. All are invited.

HOUSE PLAN ASSOCIATION

Meet in Room 115 Wagner. All are invited.

ITALIAN CLUB

Invites all members to Room 101 Downer for coffee & cake. New members are welcome.

JUNIOR CLASS COUNCIL

Will hold its fall meeting and will fill vacancies at 12:15 sharp in Room 394 Finley. All JCL members are invited to attend.

MATHEMATICS SOCIETY

Meet in Room 394 Finley at 12:30. Music

MUSICAL COMEDY SOCIETY

Will vote for a director for "Guys and Dolls" in Room 220 Shepard. All members are welcome.

NEWFRON SOCIETY

Presents a new film series in Room 211 Finley. All are welcome.

THE ACHIEVEMENT OF THE ZETA BETA TAU FRATERNITY INVITE ALL UNDERGRADUATES TO ITS 63rd Annual Smoker FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1961 AT FINLEY STUDENT CENTER — ROOM 438
An American living abroad is dismayed by the picture the United States gives in the foreign press,” Professor Wayne Nicholas (Speech) remarked Tuesday.

"After a dearth of news, or articles on page ten, the story of the integration crisis in the south last fall appeared on the front pages of Italian papers with banner headlines and photographs."

Dr. Nicholas deplored the misrepresentation by default which the US suffers abroad.

"One always has the feeling that the real American story should be told. With the Russians spending millions of dollars a year in information programs, or in jamming ours, we must be more energetic and resourceful than we have been," he declared.

The soft-spoken teacher spent the greatest part of the year in the Italian island of Sicily. He was impressed both by the kindness of the people and the drama of the countryside.

Professor Nicholas and his family stayed at the foot of Mt. Etna in the town of Catania, which has been destroyed eight times by the still-active volcano.

Most of the original site of the city is covered with from thirty to fifty feet of lava, he related. "The Cantonese call it 'the city of jamming ours, we must be more active, venture, and follow Jesus; to develop and follow Jesus; to develop a Christian personality; and to aid in building a Christian society by the maintenance of such activities and services as contribute to physical, social, mental, and spiritual growth.”

The purpose of the Christian Association “is to establish a fellowship of student and faculty members who wish to lead a more creative life; to seek to understand and follow Jesus; to develop a Christian personality; and to aid in building a Christian society by the maintenance of such activities and services as contribute to physical, social, mental, and spiritual growth.”

None of the three Christian groups has taken an official stand on this recent Hillel controversy. The controversy arose over Hillel’s procedure requiring all officials to sign the affirmation of identity even though they do not register as a religious organization.

“Our group caters to the College and Social Speaker, the Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship, besides having social and educational functions “will occasionally hold a religious service off campus,” said Wenerman. "However, they are usually held only for Christmas and Easter.”

The consensus, after the second meeting of the semester, was one of pleasant surprise in Pronin’s leadership capabilities.

The meeting ran too long, people talked too much, but dignitaries managed to prevail (which was not always the case with previous SCs)."
Students Discover Many Ways To Use Thursday's Free Time

By LENA HAIN

It was Thursday, the first week of the first term of the City University. It was twelve noon—Club time.

The bright green of the lawn was strewed with leaves, people and stray editions of The Campus. Four freshman cooks, sitting on the latter, said they were on the lawn "to take advantage of the sun before the snows come." Villa min, D. you know.

Some folk-singers and guitar strummers were on the lawn, apparently oblivious to the sun or the clouds, "sitting on the lawn and getting their hair sunburned or going inside and freezing outside."

And where were the freshmen? All over both North and South Campuses. Exiting, talking, sitting, walking with friends and joining organizations. Their upper-classmen counterparts stood by and whistled in a sophisticated manner or tried to pick up freshmen (the boys did, anyway; the girls sat among themselves and compared engagement rings).

Finley Center, was in the midst of all the activity. People were to be found in, around and outside the common rooms. The sun shone and the wind blew so that girls had the choice of sitting on the lawn or getting their hair mussed or going inside and freezing.

No Ping-Pong

The third floor of Finley Student Center was buxom except for the unopened ping-pong area. The few disheveled paddle addicts and billiard fanatics stood outside, talking and eating.

Room 360 had a movable blackboard outside it which read: "Beta Lambda Phi Sorority" and under that, "All Coeds Welcomed." Several unopened books had been lain inside the room.

A College Sorority

"I'm going to join one of the undergraduate student newspapers," Observation Post. "It's a very good paper," she said.

The halls on the fourth floor were comparatively empty. A few members of the Christian Association were to be found in their room, working on sandwiches. Prospectus members of the Musical Comedy Society as well as the old NAT's sat in a large circle of chairs and kidded and drank cakes in Room 47. The Placement Office — Room 624 — was closed.

Room 427, greasy, boasted a wall of yellow and orange dried-omeriscus, but no people, freshmen or otherwise.

Brass Polishing

The door to Webb Patrol, a military fraternity, was locked. Brass polisher dared to open the Pershing Rifles (another military fraternity) door, found one person, Mr. Pagliaro, a senior and vice president of the organization, all alone.

This will be large room, polishing his brass.

In spite of it being the usual lunch hour, the snack Bar on the second floor was comparatively un-crowded. Tables could be had for the siting, although some were occupied by students of all types, talking and eating.

Peter Stein, a lower freshman, was there, drapped around a table with three of his friends. "No, he answered "I'm not doing anything. I'm just sitting. I've only had a week to become enthusiastic."

At a nearby table, sitting "thoughtfully," one freshman girl turned to her friend and asked, "I wonder what Paper makes you do on the fourth floor of Harris? Somebody asked me today if I would want to be excepted on it."

In juxtaposition to the bright fall atmosphere and music in room 217 Finley, the campus gray of the room walls made us feel another visitor. The silent listeners as David Morton spoke of his experiences as a freedom rider. And on the first floor of Finley with people constantly walking and running to their varied destinations in the building, there were people to be found who did not take part in Thursday's activities. These people were paid $1 an hour to aid the students in the building.

Framed in the high oval and distant noise, the men who made up the cock crew area, was Bob Leokwitz. He would vote for to the campus mayoral election contest, he said, but he can't vote as yet. "I think I'm junior, he declared, "but I'm not sure."

Even while Leokwitz was checking coats, dark-haired Alice Metzger was in room 152 answering questions. Room 125 is the Information Office. The location of the Goldmark Wing and Downer Hall are the most confusing for the freshman," Miss Metzger, a lower sophomore, explained. "And just before someone come in to ask the dark room activities begin," she continued. "People are asking the oldest questions!"

Out on the lawn in front of the Dietrichson Trails, people were gathering in ever-increasing numbers. Laid in a quagmire placed outside. "We don't discriminate — against freshmen," he insisted.

Away from it all the pinging, gossiping, socializing and fate machine surrounding — was one lone person, Alfred Mielke. The boy, a blond-haired freshman and engineering student, was sitting by the side of the path near Most Hall. He was reading "The Man of Honor."

"I'd rather study now," he said quietly. "You can't have any fun if you shirk out of college. I see nothing but a few minutes, hut today it is raining."

In the classrooms and in the lounges, the radiators are crackling and coughing as the first rays of artificial heat are sent up through the pipes.

There will be still a day or two when the sun will alight and the air will be mild enough for students to sit in the law and talk together for a few minutes, but today it is raising. There is little time for dreaming new, or all have a job to do, or leave undone. The end of summer has come.

Prof. Clark Participates in Project to Coordinate the Foreign Service

Professor Kenneth B. Clark (Psychology) has been elected to participate in a project to find ways to "coordinate and integrate" the United States Foreign service program.

The project consists of a twelve-member committee, to be headed by the Secretary of State, Christian Herter.

The purpose of the Committee, as stated by Professor Clark, will be to "evaluate the needs of the foreign service over the next five years or so and to determine our most efficient ways of meeting our commitments."

Established by Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, the Committee met twice before the first time, in Washington, D.C.

"One of the many problems with which the committee is concerned," Dr. Clark said, "is the fact that the Foreign Service operations of the United States Government now come under the jurisdiction of many agencies, each of the State Department, United States Information Agency, State philanthropies, each of the foreign service personnel."

"My particular area of concern," he continued, "will be the problems of integration and cooperation, effectiveness, and quality of our foreign service personnel."

He will be the only psyplan on the Committee, which includes educators, diplomats, businessmen and others.

c

Alpha Mu Phi

Fraternity invites you to attend

SEMI-ANNUAL RUSH SMOKER

Friday night OCT. 6 at 8:30 P.M. at our Frequency Hall located at 124 Dyckman Street

ARE YOU IN PHIL-EP?
NICK ANTICHRISTAMOS WORLD TRAVELER IS IN STEP,... WISH IN

PHIL-EP

c

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1954

When Winter Comes...

In the classrooms and in the lounges, the radiators are crackling and coughing as the first rays of artificial heat are sent up through the pipes.

There will be still a day or two when the sun will alight and the air will be mild enough for students to sit in the law and talk together for a few minutes, but today it is raising. There is little time for dreaming new, or all have a job to do, or leave undone. The end of summer has come.

c

PETE SEEGER

School of Business Administration News

For the benefit of students who think in business terms, classes are scheduled to begin in the new Business Administration building. The building is located at 124 Dyckman Street and will be opened soon.

University News

The University of Chicago will hold its 8th annual University of Chicago's World's Fair in November. The Fair will feature exhibits from all over the world and will be open to the public.

Pete Seeger

Pete Seeger is a well-known American folk singer and songwriter. He was born in New York City in 1939 and has been active in the folk music scene since the 1950s. Seeger is known for his social and political activism, and his music often addresses themes of peace, justice, and social reform.

Pete Seeger has performed at numerous events, including protests, parades, and benefit concerts. He is a member of the folk band The Weavers, and has recorded many albums of his own. Seeger is also known for his collaborations with other artists, and has worked with many famous musicians throughout his career.

Seeger is a prolific songwriter, and his songs have been covered by many other artists. His most famous songs include "Where Have All the Flowers Gone?" and "If I Had a Hammer." Seeger is a passionate advocate for peace, and his music has been a powerful tool in promoting social change.

In conclusion, Pete Seeger is a distinguished figure in the world of folk music, and his contributions to the genre have been invaluable. His music continues to inspire and motivate people around the world, and his legacy will undoubtedly continue to be celebrated for years to come.
Wrestlers? Well, Sapora Figures His Boys Are Strong to An Extent

By STAN KOPT

Wrestling, despite the likes of Bearcat Wright, The Mexican Bull, and The Kangaroos, is not a sport exclusively for animals. It consists of perfect body balance, pin-point timing, and a great amount of finesse.

For the benefit of TV wrestling fans, chairs, fire extinguishers, and fifty pound crowbars are not part of a wrestler's paraphernalia. Nobody is more aware of this than Coach Joe Sapora. For three decades he successfully coached the College's boys in the fine art of wrestling. Hoping to improve last year's 1-6 record, Coach Sapora will have his work cut out.

The loss of such fine lettermen as Barry Goldlust, Bob Hamilton, Harvey Taylor, Phil Kodatin, Marv Chasin, Dave Cohen Al Fein, Jerry Robinson and Mal Shwartz.

Coach Sapora's eyes gleamed and his familiar grin appeared. "We'll do okay" he said.

The eight-match schedule will pit the Beavers against stiff competition.

Columbia presents the first test Dec. 2, at the Lions' gym, Kings Point, N.Y.U., Drewel, Fairleigh Dickinson, Yeshiva, Temple, and Montclair State Teachers.

The College Pre-Medico Society will hold a tea in the Faculty Lounge on the fifth floor of Shepard Hall. All applicants must attend.

The Metropolitan championship, in which the Beavers gained fourth place last year, will probably be held at C.W. Post College in March. The graduates from the team particularly distinguished themselves in this competition last March at East Stroudsberg.

All those desiring to try out for the squad should see Coach Sapora at practice in the Goethals Gym on Mondays Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, from 3 PM to 6 PM, or on Thursdays, between 12 Noon and 2 PM.

And underclassmen, don't believe the rumors that you must wrestle a whale, two she-wolves, the Abominable Snowman, and Antimonio Rocca to make the squad. Knowledge: See this page! Gorupus, hah? Who do you think gets it out—just a couple of your fellow classmates, that's all. Of course, the difference between them and you is the know, and you—yell, no one's stopping you, buddy. Don't let your college years go to pot. Join OP's Sports staff and swing with the thing. See our Sports editor instantly in Room 336 Finley—be the nice looking one in the back.
Soccer Team Wins Opener, 7-0; Romp Over NYS State Maritimers

Negovetti Boots Four Goals Home

The new look was on view at Lewisohn Stadium yesterday, but the College's soccer team showed the fire of old as they scored a 7-0 victory in the opening game of the season against the New York State Maritime Academy.

Coach Harry Karlin's lineup, studded with sophomores, added four second-half goals by newcomers to three opening-half goals for the walk-away victory.

Tony Negovetti, in his first varsity contest, out of the center-forward slot, scored four goals, three in the second-half.

Henry Windischmann, another soph, who scored twice in last Saturday's contest against the Alumni, scored another yesterday, and in addition, assisted on two of Negovetti's threes.

Negovetti was another "newcomer" expected to contribute importantly to the Beaver cause this fall, having scored four goals in the opening two-thirds of the season.

To and give the veterans their due, Early that evening, second-half scorer on last year's squad, scored in the closing minutes of the first half.

Goalstopper Andy Houtkruyer, beginning his final campaign, played just three quarters and saw no action.

The Maritime Academy players continued to keep the ball out of danger and the little captain, after those restful sessions in the goal-mouth, rested himself on the bench.

Highly-touted sophomore Howie Cohen took care of the goal-guarding chores during the final quarter and conducted himself with all the aplomb of an experienced man as the Maritime attack, which had sputtered along to begin with, lost its gears completely.

Coach Harry Karlin, having seen his charges grab their first league victory in what he figures will be a season to rank with the best Beaver annals was not unhappy.

"I thought our defense played a wonderful game," he observed, noting the handful of times that the operation worked the ball across mid-field.

The defensive work of senior Bill Petralos and soph Neville Rivera was highly commendable out of the fullback positions.

Wolfgang Scherer, at center halfback, put on a show of offense and defense to begin his second year as a varsity player.

Erwin Fox, only a soph, showed very fine work shuffling between the two halfback spots.

"I don't want to take anything away from them (the Maritime's)." Karlin commented — it doesn't seem likely that the Maritime had much to start with — "but I think our boys are only starting to get into form. I saw a couple of mistakes that will be corrected after we play a couple of games."

"The new boys seem to know something about it already, though, huh?" he grinned.

They did, and it was two new Beaver stars who took care of the opening-period scoring.

After nearly twelve minutes of fiddle-faddle on both sides, the tall Windischmann, at inside right, sent a pass to Negovetti, moving in from the left side. The stocky blond lost no time in breaking the hapless Maritime goalie Lou Rivera, like Houtkruyer, didn't play the whole game. Herb Rich replaced him at the 12-minute mark of the final stanza, and was jarred for the Beaver's final score, another piece of work by Negovetti at 16:30.

With Negovetti having broken the ice with his first goal, Windischmann took the cue and did a solo less than five minutes later to nudge the count to 2-0.

Searle pierced the Maritime net late in the second period. His goal.

The scene: New York City. The time: always.

Okay, so you're studious. You're busy with homework. You have not time for sports. You're really busy with that homework. Wasn't that you at the dance the other night? You have to let go sometimes, yeah.

"Look, man, don't kid around. These profs have me going, man. Like you won't even give you a second thought — they're sweating it big out there and guys like you won't even give you a second thought.

Okay, so you're studious. You're busy with homework.

"Yeah, I suppose I could go — I could knock off my homework in the morning. But I don't want to take anything away from them (the Maritime's)."

Lucia Wonders About Team, Enthusiasm

Relegated annually green teams and rough schedules, fencing coach Ed Lucia, veteran of ten years the Beaver helm, is pinning the future of this year's team on a somewhat heavy heart.

It is obvious that there are heavy losses. It is also obvious that there are important points of the season.

What is most obvious of all, though, is that there is still hope.

And of course, the redoubtable national champions of New York City are still not going to spell trouble for us.

But the good side of the picture and there is one — there are many of the same points.

Lucia can be contacted through the schedule, always in the Athletic Association Room 2 Lewisohn.