Berkowitz In SG Race; Publicity Rules Altered

As the election race began to take form, a new Presidential candidate has declared himself and Student Council has revised campaign regulations.

SAB Chairman Herb Berkowitz said yesterday that he is "definitely" running for the highest SG post. Berkowitz ran unsuccessfully for the same office last term.

Acting on publicity regulations, Student Council halved maximum limits for candidates' newspaper advertising last week, while it removed a stipulation forbidding the use of mimeographed material prepared off-campus.

SAB Chmn. Herb Berkowitz

SC also modified the enforcement section of the regulations, so that offenses previously carrying mandatory disqualification penalties are now only optionally punishable.

A motion, introduced by SG Vice President Ira Bloom to forbid the student newspapers from endorsing candidates, was objected to by a Council member and removed from the floor by the necessary two-thirds majority.

In addition, individual organizations on campus will be permitted the same publicity privileges in supporting candidates now afforded student political parties and slates.

As a result of Berkowitz' entry, the SG presidency is being sought by four hopefuls. Richard Weisberg, Samuel Eiferman, and Alan Blume are the other contestants.

Blume heads the Independent Reform Party, Weisberg is running as an independent, and Eiferman heads BEST, a name which thus far signifies nothing. No platform has yet been published.

The elections will be held November 10, 11, 12 and 13, at polling places throughout the College.

Endorsements

Are your politics clean? Yes? Come. We want to endorse you. Interviews for Senior Class President and SG offices will be held Monday through Wednesday from 4:15-9 PM in Room 336 Finley. Anyone interested must sign up beforehand; no endorsements will be given without interviews.

Cafeteria Food, Service Is Termed Indigestible

If food is the way to a student's heart, the College's cafeteria is losing the battle of the bulge.

Comments such as, "Dr. Gallagher should eat here," greeted SG pollsters who ventured into the College's dispensary of culinary delights.

One gourmet classified the Lavender galley as a "dieter's delight."

Bob Atkins, chairman of the SG subcommittee investigating the cafeteria and member of Student-Faculty Cafeteria Committee, explained that the poll was held because "we knew the cafeteria needed improvements, but we wanted to find out what the students thought."

He found out that "83% of the students demand a better cafeteria" and that 25% of the students said that something must be done about the hosts and hostesses and management.

Plan To Tutor Local Students Receives Cool Response Here

By VIVIAN NEUMANN

The initial excitement which accompanied Student Council's support of a project to tutor Harlem high school students has all but disappeared.

The Harlem Tutorial Project, which is sponsored by the Northern Student Movement (NSM), is considered a means of motivating students to advance their knowledge of academic subjects and to continue their education. It has been successfully carried out both in Philadelphia and in Harlem.

SG Vice President Ira Bloom, Chairman of the Project here, announced that of the 350 applications sent out to campus groups only four have been returned.

One of the reasons he gave for the poor response was that "the so-called Northern liberals" seem to be afraid to walk around 125th Street."

Despite the seemingly poor reception, Bloom is not disappointed. "This isn't the type of project that takes two days," he said.

He noted that House Plan is including the Tutorial Project in its Community Service Project booklet.

Other groups approached at the College included Newman Club,

IFC, Sigma Alpha, CORE, and Evening Session SG. "The larger the organization, the more time it takes," said Bloom.

SG President Ted Brown
'Insufficient Publicity'

SG President Ted Brown, one of the plan's original supporters, laid the blame for the Project's inactivity on several factors.

He noted a lack of sufficient publicity, which is "partly the fault of the newspapers and part-

Additional Funds Asked For Expansion Of CU

By BARBARA SCHWARTZBAUM

More money for City University construction and doctoral programs was requested by the Board of Higher Education (BHE) from the City this week.

The BHE urged the Board of Estimate to return to its capital budget for the coming year funds for the construction of a second science building at Queens College, for a central Administration Building for CU graduate studies, and for post-graduate programs.

The request followed the City Planning Commission's slashing of the BHE budget by $50,000,000 last month, after which these and other items was deferred. The Board of Estimate passes on the recommendations of the Commission.

Speaking before a meeting of the Board of Estimate last week, Chairman Gustave G. Rosenberg, urged the body to approve all of the Planning Commission's recommendations, which included a new science and gym buildings for the College, and to add the two dropped proposals.

While approving one-fourth of the BHE's requests, the Planning Commission proposed spreading the allocation for the other projects over a five year period. The specific dates for development of these projects — science, education, and gym buildings — were not indicated by the Commission, which asked for further talks with the BHE.

Dr. Rosenberg said that postponements of the Queens College science building would delay its opening at least until 1968.

The Planning Commission also dropped a BHE proposal for a new building at Hunter College, and indefinitely postponed discussion of the new Baruch campus site.

In a meeting earlier this week, the BHE approved a record-breaking operational budget of over $70,000,000. Most of the requested funds will be used for graduate program expansion, new salary increases, retirement benefits for teachers, aid for evening session students, and the Community Colleges.

OPostnotes . . .

• The Student Activities Board will sponsor a jazz concert with Lamberts, Hendricks and Bavan on December 15 at the Baruch Auditorium, 23rd Street and Lexington Avenue. Tickets are on sale in the Student Government office, Room 151 Finley for $1.50 and $2.

• President Buell G. Gallagher will speak on "The Intellectual in a Polarized World" tomorrow at 9 PM in Room 217 Finley. His talk is sponsored by the Evening Session History Society.

• Seniors can apply for membership in Lock and Key, the honorary service society, now. Applications are available in Room 152 Finley and can be submitted until Tuesday.

• Professor Leon Lederman of Columbia University will speak tomorrow at 4 PM in Room 105 Finley on the "Evidence for Two Different Neutrinos." He is being sponsored by the Physics Department.

New Unit Lays Down The Law: Codifies Discipline Regulations

Existing publicity regulations were codified for the first time at the College last week by the newly-reactivated Student-Faculty Discipline Committee.

Committee member Richard Weisberg reported yesterday that the list of regulations was temporary, pending a general discussion of disciplinary practices by the Committee, to be followed, if necessary, by a new, revised set of recommended rules.

That list would then require approval by the General Faculty to be set in force.

The present list names those designated by Associate Dean of Students James S. Peace as empowered to request the Student Identification Cards of those requiring discipline.

These include: Faculty members, Bookstore, Cafeteria, and Custodial Supervisory personnel,

New Regulations Passed By SAB

A new regulation concerning club programs was passed by the Student Activities Board (SAB) Monday. All organizations must now register any event with the SAB before facilities are allocated.

Herb Berkowitz, chairman of the SAB, recognizing the tangle of regulations, commented, "even at the risk of creating a bit more bureaucracy, I think it's worthwhile to provide a means for coordinating the activities of the student organizations."

Money

The Board of Higher Education's most recent report reminds us of some discouraging facts.

The City, in the form of the City Planning Commission, has again pared the University's allocation request. In cutting this money from the budget, the City has also cut down its own reputation as a haven for education and culture.

Money is essential to the life of a University. And while we are still in the budding stage, we need great amounts of it. The necessity of the City University to the City, and money to the City University can no longer go unacknowledged.

Last week the Board issued a worthy plan for development of the School, yet without the money necessary for its implementation, the effort may have been for naught. It must not be allowed to reach that point.

The Board of Higher Education's Plan for the Future is to be commended in large part. An impressive, detailed document, it seems to be representative of all that is generally considered good in University development. Growth, both academic and physical, is stressed, and rightly so.

Particularly to be lauded is the recommendation that a Research Foundation be established. Faculty members and graduate students may at last be given the opportunity to pool their resources and to fill the void now left by the paradox of competent scientists with negligible research facilities. Thus may the City University be placed on the frontier of scientific progress.

Also to be commended are plans to pool the University's library resources, to increase the proportion of Associate and Full Professors here, and to begin a search for personnel, who have received their training outside the bounds of New York City.

Two points in the report, however, are subject to criticism. The first, recommending a decrease in the number of classes with under twenty students, is unfortunate. It goes against the trend of the increasing number of seminar classes for advanced studies, and would almost completely remove any vestige of individual attention.

The second, that "non-instructional" fee structures be revised and made more detailed, is undesirable. Many other tuition-free universities now charge such fees in amounts tending to approximate the cost of actual tuition. We urge that such fees be imposed only within the spirit of the free tuition recommendation contained in another section of the report.

As a whole, however, the report is to be hailed as a major step toward accomplishing the goal of a genuine University in New York City.

by the fault of the SG people involved."

"People have not yet gotten the significant part of the program. In addition to helping the students themselves, this is a way in which City College can improve its community relations," Brown said.

He noted that "both of these factors have not been driven home with sufficient emphasis."

Applications for prospective tutors are available in Room 151 Finley.

Discipline . . .

Burns Guards, and the College's Administrative staff.

Regulations codified include those governing the use of the cafeterias, Bookstore, and other facilities, those covering general decorum, and a set of rules for those issuing publicity on the campus.

The cafeteria regulations are designed basically to alleviate crowded conditions during the peak lunch period. Between 11 AM and 2 PM, lounging, studying, reading and loitering are prohibited, as is the seating of more than five students at any of the small tables.

Publicity regulations include a requirement that an SG Registration Number appear on all sheets, a prohibition against the use of the College's name off campus by individuals or groups, and restrictions on the type of material which may be included in publicity and locations where these may be distributed.

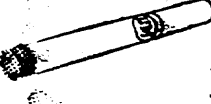

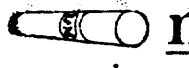

The report also summarizes the lines of authority in matters of student discipline, suspension and expulsion from the College.

Committee members indicated the report would be summarized for general student use, and published in the near future.

Castro Has New Track To Go With New Team

With the new board track freshly installed in Lewisohn Stadium, Coach Francisco Castro is busily transforming his harriers into an indoor track team.

The team has been bolstered by some talented newcomers as well as numerous returnees. The track, which according to Dr. Arthur DesGrey is "probably the best in this area," replaces one which had served the runners for fourteen winters.

Owen Masters and Gene Bartel are two particularly welcome newcomers. Masters hasn't competed seriously in several years, but he was a 48-second quarter miler. That's faster than any Beaver could manage last year.

Bartel was a frosh phenomenon two years ago, but has been ineligible since. However, he expects to be high jumping and pole vaulting again next term. Since he jumps better than six feet and pole vaults even higher, Bartel should contribute considerable points.

The boardsmen will be sorely hurt by graduation in the weight events. Vinnie Hanzich, holder of various Collegiate Track Conference titles, and Gerry Fasman are gone. Soph Paul Bronstein will try, but Hanzich is just about irreplaceable.

Coming off a highly successful cross-country season, the Beavers can be expected to do fairly well in the distance events. Mike Didyk demonstrated his endurance again Sunday by placing ninth in the National Road Runners' annual nine-mile race. Mike Lester and Bill Casey also won medals in the run.

The runners will compete in several development meets next month in preparation for the Madison Square Garden season. Later there will be the Municipal College Championships, the Collegiate Track Conference championships, and the CTC Relay Carnival.

The College Won't Pay Funeral Fees

Athletes may "do or die" for the College, but if they die the College won't pay for the funeral expenses. If they get hurt "doing" the College still won't do anything for them, but the Stein Fund will by contributing to the doctor's bills.

The Stein Fund is named after Dr. Sidney A. Stein, a graduate of the Class of '88, who spent many years giving his name and labor, gratuitously, to Beaver athletes.

Dr. Stein died in the service of the College. A great lover of sports, he passed away while sitting on the players' bench during the College-LIU football game in 1939.

So next Saturday night students are asked to pay $1 to the Stein Fund. It's back for the first basketball game of the year with Upsala at 8 P.M. in Wingate Gym.

Pinboys . . .

The College's Bowling Club won 2 1/2 games over the weekend from LIU. That's right 2 1/2. They tied the first with 926 for 1/2 a point and picked up the next two with 930 and 852. High man for the day was Mike Beckman who rolled a 246 game with a 611 series. They are now third in the league behind Iona and St. John's.

Nobody Cares So Sports Rally Dies

Eddie Donovan, coach of the New York Knicks, called the OP office to explain that his team was playing in Detroit tonight, so Richie Guerin couldn't make the Winter Sports Rally tomorrow. The City College Band declined to participate. So the Varsity Club has called off the rally.

"We figured it would be better to have no rally at all than to have a lousy one like two years ago," explained Bernie Wasserman, Varsity Club President. "We worked for a long time, but nobody really cared, no one wanted to help run it."
