Rivlin Advocates Slum 'Internship' For New Teachers

A plan to prepare teachers for the problems of urban slum schools was outlined last week by City University Dean of Teacher Education, Harry N. Rivlin.

Dr. Rivlin, who served last year as acting president of the College suggested a program of community service and "interning" for new teachers, to acquaint them with conditions in underprivileged schools.

The need for the program arises, he said, from the emphasis most education courses put on conditions in "comfortable suburbs." "They use laboratory schools stocked with . . . a selected few of the community at large," and result in "ill prepared teachers," Dr. Rivlin said.

Dean Harry N. Rivlin Criticizes Laboratory Schools

One of Dean Rivlin's major proposals would establish 2-man "teaching teams" of veteran and inexperienced members of a school faculty to help train the young teachers for difficult classes.

Civil Rights

How will his dilemma be solved? To answer this and other questions Hillel will present a discussion of the civil rights controversy between the Howard Johnson "chain" and the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) in the Hillel Lounge today at 4 PM. Hillel has invited a speaker representing Howard Johnson's and a representative from CORE to participate in the program, the purpose of which is to hear both sides of the controversy. Hillel is located at 475 West 140th Street, between Convent and Amsterdam Avenues.

Graduation Isn't In The Cards For One Out Of Two Freshmen

By CAROL HERNSTADT

The girl playing guitar on the lawn, the boy running from Mott to Shepard, or you yourself may not graduate from the College. Nearly one out of two entering freshmen over a six year period do not.

The reasons for the College's forty-five per cent drop-out rate vary as much as the heights and widths of the individual students. The figure however has been consistent for several years and according to Registrar Robert L. Taylor, "there is nothing unusual about it."

A student's academic standing is decided on the basis of his total record. Thus the highest drop-out figure is after the freshman year.

Before being dropped for academic reasons, a student is put on probation if his average drops to minus fifteen. In order to be taken off, he must take twelve credits and obtain a C+ average. If he goes minus again he may be automatically dropped from the College.

Some drop-out students felt that they "weren't getting anything out of college."

My classes were about as stimulating as novocaine," commented one student who left.

Baruch School Dean Feels 'On His Own'

This is the fourth part in a series on the College's Deans.

Here, at what he calls the College's "Harlem Annex," Emanuel Saxe is only one of a number of Deans, but at the Baruch School he is almost President.

The original site of the Free Academy, the downtown center is physically a separate entity and Dr. Saxe admits he feels "more like a College president than a Dean."

Supervising the Business and Public Administration Center from changes in curriculum, to the care and replacement of broken windows, Dean Saxe is "in command" at the Downtown school. "We're pretty much on our own here," he says.

So much so, that the Dean accuses uptown students of forgetting that he and the downtown center exist.

"We hold one-fourth of the College's enrollment," he said Friday, "but very few students uptown know anything about me or our school."

The Dean's bulky form is a familiar sight at his downtown base of operations, where he prides himself on knowing most everyone by name and where his immortality is assured. (One of the center's House Plan dynasties was named after Dr. Saxe.)

"I take an interest in my youngsters," the Dean says, and notes that the door of his modern four room office "is always open."

From the brim of his almost Talmudic looking hat to the thick rubber soles of his shoes, Dean

Morgenthau Speaks At The College Tomorrow

Robert M. Morgenthau, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, will speak here tomorrow in the Grand Ballroom. The topic for discussion has not been disclosed.

The talk, to take place at 12:15 PM, is jointly sponsored by Lock and Key, the College's honorary leadership society, and the American Association of University Professors (AAUP).

Despite an attack of influenza, Mr. Morgenthau "is following his schedule as closely as is physically possible," Democratic campaign headquarters said last Monday.

"His campaign manager explained that he could find no one to replace Governor Rockefeller on the platform with Mr. Morgenthau," Professor Henry Semat (Physics), president of the College's AAUP chapter commented.

A temperature above 101 degrees forced Mr. Morgenthau to cancel a luncheon appearance before the New York State Associated Press Association Monday in Albany. However after his temperature dropped, he appeared on the National Broadcasting Company's "Searchlight" program.

Governor Nelson Rockefeller also invited to speak here, declined, commenting last week that "there is no voting population at the College."

Robert M. Morgenthau Topic Undisclosed

The Republican candidate also refused to appear on the television program because of heavy campaign commitments.

During the program the Democratic candidate attacked the Governor for again refusing to debate him on campaign issues face-to-face. The challenge was repeated by him Monday in newspaper advertisements and in a statement issued by his campaign headquarters in the Hotel Commodore.

"I say that Governor Rockefeller in refusing to debate me on the issues is not acting as a responsible public official should act," the statement asserted.

"In ducking a face-to-face debate with me, he is again placing personal ambition above public trust."

In answer to such allegations Governor Rockefeller said Monday night that Mr. Morgenthau "doesn't have the information to discuss the issues." On the program the Democratic candidate termed that stand "sheer arrogance."

OPostnotes . . .

• The National Student Association Committee here is seeking volunteers to help with its programs. Those interested should apply in the Student Government office, Room 151 Finley.

• The Physics Review is accepting articles of interest to the physics community for its Fall issue. The deadline for outlines is today, and for articles, October 30. Articles should be submitted to Room 102 Shepard.

• Microcosm will have photographers on North Campus next month, to accommodate students there. Appointments must be made today and tomorrow in the Knittle Lounge, from 11 AM-3 PM.

Election Dispute and CORE Come Before Council Tonight

The University of Pius XII, the recent CORE picket of Howard Johnson's Restaurants and last week's elections will probably be discussed by Student Council today.

The University, in Basutoland, Africa, sent an appeal to Student Government President Ted Brown requesting that students here donate money to keep it from passing out of existence. The School claims to be the only non-governmentally operated institution of higher learning in Africa. Brown said the request would be referred to either the Civil Liberties or Academic Affairs Committees.

The legislation concerning the CORE action would criticize the recent pickets for being "a secondary boycott," according to the SG President. But the chances of this measure coming out of committee, he said, are dim.

Six victorious candidates in last week's election to fill Council vacancies will be installed in their positions following acceptance of a report by the Elections Agency. Two unsuccessful candidates, Eric Eisenberg of the Class of '64 and Adam Schweig of '65, may be disqualified "as a matter of principle," according to Brown, for violating publicity regulations.

Thought

Tomorrow Robert M. Morgenthau, Democratic candidate for governor, will address the College on an undisclosed topic. We respectfully offer the following as a suitable subject for thought.

We are living in a complex age in which education is of the utmost importance. More students should study; more students should study more. To fulfill these objectives we must again reiterate our advocacy of the continuance of the free-tuition tradition here and an adequate allotment of funds to the City University's graduate program.

We can think of no better opportunity for Mr. Morgenthau to declare himself in favor of these worthy objectives. Governor Rockefeller's refusal of a similar speaking invitation has stymied the last hopes of those who thought he might reverse or modify his position in light of campaign expediencies. And yet it was just these campaign expediencies which prevent the Republican candidate from appearing here; "there is no voting population at the College," his representative declared.

Last fall Governor Rockefeller indicated his position on the tuition question in his usual subtle manner. At that time a group of City University students went to Albany to lobby for the restoration of the free-tuition mandate to the State Education Law. The Republican candidate intoned "Well, you're not going to get it young man," in answer to a query of the Student Government Vice-President.

Thus is Mr. Morgenthau faced with the opportunity to present the voters with a real difference between him and the incumbent. At least one prominent New York City Democrat, Comptroller Abraham Beame, has recognized the intentions of the Republican leaders in the State Capitol for what they are. "Sabotage" is a strong word; sabotage aptly describes their actions.

The state legislators are elected from districts gerrymandered to favor conservative majorities, to accentuate Republican strength, and to give rural areas a disproportionate voice in state matters. Thus when they deny adequate funds to graduate programs and fail to restore the free tuition guarantee, it is at least understandable, if undesirable.

When, however, the governor of the State—the tribune of the people, the representative of urban majorities—takes such a stand, it is indefensible. We can only hope that Robert Morgenthau, as the Democratic candidate, will take a strong position in favor of the City University objectives. If elected, we hope that he would uphold the same in the face of strong Republican majorities in the House and the State Assembly.

ENDORSEMENT

Dear Editor:

While I appreciate OP's endorsement of my election to a third term on Student Council (Oct. 9 issue), I should hasten to correct an inaccurate statement included therein — "Levine (says he has split) from Alan Blume and the slate on which he ran last term." Insofar as Mr. Blume and the other members of the Independent Reform Ticket seek to achieve a Student Government primarily concerned with the on-campus interests of City College students, I shall irrevocably support them.

Dropouts . . .

A girl who left the College said that "college was a way of marking time. I felt that I should be working and earning money, although this was not a necessity. I have matured since leaving school."

"Each student has a unique situation," Dr. Louis Long, Chairman of Student Services, commented Thursday.

If the problem is financial, student may go to Dr. Arthur Taft, director of financial aid. "There's plenty of loan money around to keep a youngster in college," he stated. $160,000 is obtained from the federal and state governments each year; funds are also gotten from the New York Higher Education Association Program and the Student Aid Association. "Students who apply here rarely drop out for financial reasons," said Dr. Long.

WHAT TO WEAR TILL THE DOCTOR COMES

Now that you have enrolled and paid your fees and bought your books and found your way around campus and learned to hate your roommate, it is time to turn to the most important aspect of college life. I refer, of course, to clothes.

What does Dame Fashion decree for the coming school year? (Incidentally, Dame Fashion is not, as many people believe, a fictitious character. She was a real Englishwoman who lived in Elizabethan times and, indeed, England is forever in her debt. During the invasion of the Spanish Armada, Dame Fashion—not yet a Dame but a mere, unlettered country lass named Moll Flanders—during the invasion, I say, of the Spanish Armada, this dauntless girl stood on the white cliffs of Dover and turned the tide of battle by rallying the drooping morale of the British fleet with this stirring poem of her own composition:

*Don't be gutless,
Men of Britain.
Spring your cutlass,
We ain't quittin'.
Smash the Spanish,
Sink their boats,
Make 'em vanish,
Like a horse makes outs.
For Good Queen Bess,
Dear sirs, you gotta
Make a mess
Of that Armada:
You won't fail!
Knock 'em flat!
Then we'll drink ale
And stuff like that.*

In 1589 she invented the laying hen

As a reward for these inspirational verses Queen Elizabeth dubbed her a Dame, made her Poet Laureate, and gave her the Western Hemisphere except Duluth. But this was not the extent of Dame Fashion's service to Queen and country. In 1589 she invented the laying hen, and she was awarded a lifetime pass to Chavez Ravine. But she was not to end her days in glory. In 1591, alas, she was arrested for overtime jousting and imprisoned for thirty years in a butt of malmsey. This later became known as Guy Fawkes Day.)

But I digress. Let us get back to campus fashions. Certain to be the rage again this year is the cardigan (which, curiously enough, was named after Lord Cardigan, who commanded the English fleet against the Spanish Armada. The sweater is only one product of this remarkable Briton's imagination. He also invented the glottal stop, the gerund, and the eyelid, without which winking, as we know it today, would not be possible).

But I digress. The cardigan, I say, will be back, which is, I believe, cause for rejoicing. Why? Because the cardigan has nice big pockets in which to carry your Marlboro Cigarettes—and that, good friends, is ample reason for celebration as all of you will agree who have enjoyed Marlboro's fine, comfortable, mellow flavor and Marlboro's filter. So why don't you slip into your cardigan and hie yourself to your tobacconist for some good Marlboros? They come in soft pack or flip-top box. Cardigans come in pink for girls and blue for boys. © 1962 Max Shulman

Cardigans or pullovers—it's a matter of taste . . . And so is Marlboro a matter of taste—the best taste that can possibly be achieved by experienced growers and blenders—by science, diligence, and tender loving care. Try a pack.

As a teacher Dr. Saxe was no less concerned with student welfare. "In one class I had," he recalls, "a girl in the back row kept making cow's eyes at a student in the front row." The Dean moved the girl to the front row. "I don't believe in standing in the way of nature," he said.

the author of several books on accountancy, Dr. Saxe asserts that the secret of administration is organization. "You have to make time count."

Dean Saxe becomes annoyed at people who down-grade business education and strongly refutes the college maxim that the best downtown students come to the Harlem branch and the worst uptown students go to the Baruch school.

The general public, he said, mistakenly compares the Baruch Center to the College of Liberal Arts and Science in the same way they would compare a commercial high school course to the academic course. Dr. Saxe points out that one-half of the Baruch School curriculum is in Liberal Arts.

"We're just as interested in the quality product," he added, "as they are uptown."

Unique Baby-Sitting Practice Featured in Baruch Program

"I am glad Mommy comes to school with me because I couldn't teach her by myself." This was the way one eight year old student reacted to the parent-child courses being offered at the Baruch School on Saturday mornings.

The courses, in Spanish, French and Art, were originally intended to permit parents with young children to attend classes, but have now shifted their emphasis to family learning.

The language classes stress conversational ability, much as the successful Berlitz courses. With grammar unaccented, dialogues between parent and child, such as "Quelle heure est-il Maman? Il est tard et le déjeuner est prêt." Play a large part in the classes. A familiarity with the new language soon permits its frequent use at home.

Apparently, the children have an easier time of it and often come to the aid of their parents. Agreeing with this, the French instructor replied that the children "learn more easily than their parents."

The small art class, under the direction of Mr. Arthur Sherrod, is designed to enable the parents to watch the weekly development of their child while providing an outlet for their own expression. Working in the simplest media, parents and children learn the fundamentals of rhythm, balance and design. Mr. Sherrod said recently that it is "of special value to have the parents guide the artistic experiences of the child."

The parents have given the courses their unreserved approval. They praised what one mother termed "the learning together experience." Another mother said she could now "appreciate the problems of (her) child's school teacher." The parents beamed at the success of their children. As one father proudly put it, "It is thrilling for Paula (age 7) to learn a new language."

Among the children there was a high degree of enthusiasm. Donna, a little seven year old, wanted to learn Spanish so that she could speak to her Cuban father in his native language, while Bobby, an eight year old was learning French so that he'd have a head start in school. But with a little bit of luck, the parents should be able to keep up with the kids.

Hill 'n Dalers Whip KP, 26-32; Didyc Captures Beaver Top Spot

By RICHIE COE

The College's Cross-Country Team defeated the United States Merchant Marine Academy 26-32, yesterday at Van Cortland Park. Showing the great depth that is becoming traditional on Coach Francisco Castro's team, the Beavers won despite Mariner Bill Sargent, whose 27:44 took individual honors.

The King's Point strategy became obvious as soon as the gun was fired. Led by Ray Taylor they sprinted out setting the early pace. But the Beavers refused to be pushed and let them go.

As the runners disappeared into the hills, Taylor, with Sargent and Kevin Powers on his heels, had opened up a fifty-yard lead.

In the hills though Taylor and Howard began to drop back. Mike Didyc moved into second place behind Sargent. Beavers' Lenny Zane, Mike Lester, Paul Lamprinos, and John Bourne clustered

The last two men from King's Point had fallen back to eleventh and fourteenth places, respectively.

There was little change thereafter. Powers put on a fine closing surge to take over third place, but
