Queens College Pres. Explains Why Cuba-Tripper Is Barred

Queens College (QC) President Harold Stoke explained his reasons for barring Stephen Martinot, a student who went to Cuba against State Department orders, from speaking at the college stating, "Martinot is an inexperienced youth, defying the government in order to take a trip under auspices about which we are yet inadequately informed, and American Association of University Professors and the QC Student Government.

Originally Martinot had been barred from speaking at Queens by Dr. Stoke on the grounds that he was under Federal indictment.

The statement came as a shock to QC SG President, Steve Hochberg, who declared, "we now will not let the matter rest as is but are undecided as to our next course of action. We will be working closely with a faculty committee which is examining the problem."

Dr. Stoke continued his open letter stating, "It seems to me

The reply, in the form of an open letter, was in answer to requests from the QC Chapter of the

Prisoner Program Gets College Help

President Gallagher sat down to a "bologna and twenty-five cent lunch" yesterday, with City Correction Commissioner Anna M. Kross, US Labor Department officials, and representatives of industry and commerce.

The luncheon was designed to dramatize the inadequacy of present rehabilitation methods, and to announce a project, stemming from findings by the College's Institute for Community Research and Development and the Department of Correction, to remedy this social problem.

The program, dealing with a relatively unexplored aspect of rehabilitation, will go beyond the training of prisoners, and seek to guarantee employment for released youths, 70% of whom now eventually return to prison.

Council Hits DSL Policy On FBI; Blaesser Committee To Investigate

No Comment on FBI From Gallagher

President Gallagher announced yesterday the formation of a special committee to assist Dean Willard Blaesser in reviewing the College's policy regarding the utilization of Department of Student Life (DSL) files.

The committee, according to a release distributed at Dr. Gallagher's bi-weekly press conference, will be composed of Dean Samuel Middlebrook, Dr. William Finkel (Chmn., Speech), SG President Ira Bloom and John Zippert, Chairman of the Civil Liberties Committee of Student Council.

The Marxist Discussion Club charged recently that the files in the DSL were opened to the FBI. Dean James Peace, in a letter to Dean Blaesser, certified that FBI agents and other government agencies "were given all the information, if requested, in the folders."

The group's findings will be reported to President Gallagher and, subsequently, to the General Faculty Committee on Student Activities. Any change in DSL policy will have to be ultimately approved by the General Faculty.

Dr. Gallagher refused to com-

Propose Revamp Of Club Files

A resolution condemning the release of information from student folders to the Federal Bureau of Investigation was passed by Student Council last night.

Responding to an announcement Friday by Dean Peace that "the FBI is given all information if requested," in the student folders, Council stated that it is "unalterably opposed" to the opening of the files "to any external organizations without consent of the individual involved."

By a vote of 16-5, the group "deplored" what it termed the "present policies of the Department of Student Life" in releasing the information to the FBI.

The resolution, which was introduced by John Zippert Paul Hirsh, Bob Atkins, and Stan Shapiro, further proposed that no indication of individual membership in an organization be filed unless so requested by a student. Under such a system, only the names of an organizations four officers would be given to the DSL, while a faculty advisor would vouch for the other eight students presently required for a club to charter.

Another suggestion presented in the resolution would place control of the files directly under the Dean

'The Play Is The Thing'

The Musical "L'il Abner" and Jean Paul Sartre's horrifying "No Exit" are just two of the productions which will be presented by the College's theater groups. The Musical Comedy Society (MCS) is now hard at work on the musical rendition of life and times in Dogpatch. Casting is completed for the major roles, with the part of hard-pressed L'il Abner being filled by Lorin Taylor and Carol Lewis, a star of last year's "Once Upon A Mattress," as Daisy Mae, the infatuated hunter.

The musical, which is climaxed by Daisy Mae's capture of L'il Abner during Dogpatch's annual Sadie Hawkins Day, will be presented in March, and involve a cast of more than forty.

According to Director Dick Nagel, who also directed the MCS production of "Once Upon a Mattress" and "Guys and Dolls," one-fourth of the budget will be used to rent William Howard Taft High School auditorium for the performances. MCS is forced to produce the musical off campus because the College has no suitable auditorium.

The Speech Department is also preparing a musical, Rodgers and Hart's "Babes in Arms." This account of the trials and tribulations of a group of summer stock apprentices is enlivened by such famous songs as "Poor Johnny One Note" and "The Lady Is a Tramp."

Director Frank C. Davidson (Speech) is being assisted by Musical Director Isaac Patterson, who participated in a "Babes in Arms" production at the Henry Street Playhouse last Spring. Choreography will be handled by Harry Wil-present "The Granite Wall," a play by Erik Lewis, a student at the College. They have not decided what the rest of their production will liver, who was dance captain of "My Fair Lady."

Tickets for the production, which will have performances Dec. 20, 21, 22, at Hunter Playhouse, will be distributed free starting December 1. The greatest production cost was the rental of the Playhouse, which, as in the case of MCS, was considered necessary due to the lack of theater facilities here.

Dramsoc is planning a rather more somber production. They will

Anti-Tuition Drive Planned By CU's Executive Committee

City University students are once again declaring "Our Position: NO Tuition," as the municipal colleges, student governments start a vigorous free-tuition campaign.

According to Student Government Vice-President Gerard Pessis, who is a member of City University of New York (CUNY) Executive Committee, a program of constant pressure on legislators who voted against or abstained on the free tuition bill last year is being planned, possibly culminating with a rally at the State Capitol in Albany next term.

Pessis himself is now working on a State-wide conference between the City and State Universities, which will be held December 14 and 15 in either Albany or at the Cortland State College.

Pessis pointed out that one of the major problems in organizing the rally is being prepared for quick action on short notice when State Senator Joseph Zaretski (Dem., Man.) is ready to introduce his motion to discharge the anti-tuition bill from committee. In addition, the rally must be larger and better organized than last year, he declared.

The Anti-Tuition Sub-Committee, which is headed by Don Brownstein of Queens College, is also sending Susan Lohr, Hunter College Anti-Tuition Co-ordinator, to the Democratic Party's open hearing on the Party's platform.

Other parts of the program include a rally to be held December 16 at Brooklyn College, and a city-wide conference of high school student organizations. Pessis said that the high school students would be integrated into the anti-tuition campaign. "They should become aware of the problems," he added.

An Equitable Solution

Both the Administration and Student Council have acted with commendable alacrity in the face of the serious situation. Only days after the charge that the FBI is using information made available by the Department of Student Life to harass students from the College, the first steps have been taken to clarify and correct the point at issue.

At his press conference yesterday afternoon, President Gallagher announced the formation of an ad hoc committee to investigate and reappraise Administration policy. The President's action would seem to indicate a genuine desire to reach the best solution to a complex problem.

Almost as important was his decision to include two student leaders on the committee, which will be chaired by Dean of Students Willard Blaesser. SG President Ira Bloom has been working with Dean Blaesser on this very question for several weeks now; moreover, it is only fitting that the chief executive of the student body should have a say in an area which affects students so directly. John Zippert, chairman of Council's Civil Liberties Committee, is also a logical choice for the committee.

President Gallagher has also made a wise choice in picking the faculty members of the investigatory body. Both Dean Samuel Middlebrook (Liberal Arts and Sciences) and Prof. William L. Finkel (Chmn., Speech), dealt with this question when it last arose in 1959.

And last night, only hours after President Gallagher's announcement, Council passed a resolution with specific recommendations for solving the file problem. The proposal asks that no records be kept of club membership unless specifically requested by the student involved; that only the four officers of a student organization be listed in the DSL dossier; that the Dean of Students personally be in charge of such records as are kept; and that any official of the DSL who violates these policies be "summarily fired." Council's suggestions are excellent. They provide for the continuance of a system under which those students needing security clearance can be helped while those desiring privacy can be protected. Dean Blaesser's committee should seriously consider Council's recommendations.

A lot of questions remain to be answered, and it must be noted that no concrete action has actually been taken as yet. But if all concerned continue as diligently as they have begun, there is no reason why an equitable solution cannot be reached soon.

Jefferson, Not Hoover

Reprinted from yesterday's New York Times.

J. Edgar Hoover has told a youth group in New York that he would bar Communist spokesmen from college campuses because their ideals can "win the allegiance of American youth."

We think that the FBI director underestimates the intelligence of American students and seriously narrows the concept of academic freedom. . . .

"If you expect a nation to be ignorant and free," Thomas Jefferson once said, "you expect what never was and never will be."

of Students. Council then requested that any member of the DSL entrusted with the files" should be summarily dismissed" if he violated the proposed policy.

John Zippert, chairman of the SG Civil Liberties Committee, explained that the resolution was not intended to discuss an individual incident, but "the broader issue" of the relationship between "every student at the College and the DSL." Zippert said that an intimidation of the activities of college students is "an intimidation to our receiving an education."

An engineering student at the College, Barry Domber, discussed his experience with the FBI as an employee of the General Dynamics Corporation. He noted that "you can stretch academic freedom only so far."

that denying ourselves the opportunity to hear a person with these claims to our attention is not a very serious deprivation."

He further stated that, "In fact, an invitation under these circumstances could scarcely avoid the direct implication that the College condones or at least is indifferent to the kind of conduct in which the young man has been engaged."

He explained that the choice of speakers is up to the students unless they use the privilege unwisely. In that case the faculty and administration is responsible.

In the past, Dr. Stoke stated, attempts had been made to achieve a speaker policy which students, faculty, and administration could agree upon. Lacking such an agreement, he maintained that the administration is solely responsible.

Two months prior to their release, groups of 25 young men will receive intensive training in English literacy skills, partake of a counselling program from the College, and be instructed in various aspects of data processing. A number of commercial organizations have agreed to hire the prisoners upon release once they have been trained in this field despite the fact that most are high school dropouts.

Creative Thinking And ESP Studied

"You can't do good creative thinking in a boiler factory or absolute silence," Professor Gertrude Schmeidler (Psychology) declared Friday.

Dr. Schmeidler is conducting an experiment to "bracket the conditions" between these two sound extremes which best help the creative thinking process.

Subjects will "think through" a problem they choose without writing anything down. What they say will be tape recorded. Therefore Dr. Schmeidler explained, "prospective painters or sculptors" could not be subjects unless their problems could be mentally worked out.

The psychologist, who has done extensive work in the field of extra-sensory perception, believes that there may be some connection between "ESP and the creative process." Some people say that "their ideas just seem to come to them," she noted, citing poet William Blake as an example.

"The emergent creative process will take time," she continued, "requiring a full day for the experimental sessions."

Applicants should leave their name, address, and/or telephone number, and a problem for analysis in Dr. Schmeidler's mailbox.

Pickle Barrel And Irradiator Form College's Nuclear Research Center

"I wouldn't want anyone to think that we could make bombs. We can't." Professor Sherwood Menkes (Mech. Eng.) was speaking about the nuclear reactor located in the basement of Steinman Hall. "We've had it for five years," he said, rather surprised at the sudden interest the reactor has aroused.

The old "Pickle Barrel," as it is affectionately called, rests securely in a well-locked room, centered precisely over what is probably the largest drain in the school... Yes, drain. For the water.

The water is used to slow down the neutrons emitted by the plutonium 239 in the reactor. The amount of fissionable material, however, is below the "critical mass" — in other words, the reactor is incapable of producing an atomic explosion and obliterating the campus, College, and a large portion of the neighborhood.

The radiation, too, is negligible, although one might never guess from the raft of safety devices, scintillation counters, geiger counters, and the like.

Radiation Negligible

The reactor is used by, and available to, various undergraduate engineering courses, as well as students who wish to engage in approved research. The project must be okayed by Prof. Morris Kolodney, Nucleonics Program coordinator.

At its first press appearance, the reactor was slowly and silently irradiating a small piece

Atomic Reactor
Doesn't Make Bombs

of indium by bombarding it inhospitably with neutrons.

The recent acquisition by the College of a second device, an "irradiator," (which performs the same function, using gamma rays instead of neutrons), has been featured of late. This magnificent device contains at its core, well-shielded, a block of Cobalt 60, whose unshielded radiations will "kill a mouse in ten seconds, and a man in a half hour."

US Loaned Uranium

The reactor, nevertheless, possesses one rather unique attribute. The tubes nestled firmly at its center contain, on loan from the government, one hundred thousand dollars' worth of Uranium.

It is definitely the most expensive pickle barrel on campus.

The President also discussed several items concerning the enrollment crisis. According to a letter from Registrar Robert Taylor, 181 weekly teaching hours will be saved in the spring term through the increased use of large lecture courses. This, President Gallagher said, represents a three per cent gain in classroom space.

The chief savings will be in the Physics, Electrical Engineering, Psychology and Chemical Enginearing Departments.

Questioned about the rescheduling of language finals, he said that in the past certain departments had been pressured into holding exams during the regular week by teachers who liked to give exams early and then depart for "Tim-bucktoo" as much as a week before classes were scheduled to end.

The current changes, however, were based on complaints by several departments that students were so concerned with their language finals that they didn't pay any attention to other courses during the final week of classes.

Cagers Getting Ready For Opener; Play Columbia At Home Nov. 30

By HARVEY WEINBERG

Every college has its so-called "number one" sport. For the Lavender it is basketball. The College's hoopsters almost never have any trouble getting Wingate Gymnasium filled for one of its home games whether they have a losing or a winning team. This year's team will most likely be of the latter type.

The Beaver cagers have not had a winning season since the 1957-58 campaign. Coach Dave Polansky commented that every three or four years a good team materializes in Wingate. This might be the year.

After assembling a top notch team, at least on paper, the Lavender started off on the wrong foot when co-captain Ray Camisa dislocated his shoulder. This injury will keep the veteran forward on the sidelines for the whole season.

Camisa was part of the "experience" that the Beavers are depending so heavily upon. Returning lettermen include co-captain Alex Blatt, Steve Golden and Julie Levine. These men are veterans of varsity basketball competition and their knowledge and knowhow will be of great help to the Lavender.

More Plays

Last year these men did not have experience; they had to spend more time on fundamentals. Now, having another year of competition under their belts, they have been concentrating more on play-making.

Another big factor in the Beaver hoop picture is the addition of some fine new men. These men will help ease the pressure caused by the loss of Camisa. Mike Schaeffer, a standout on last year's freshman team, has just about gained a starting position. Ken Trell, who played on the JV squad last year has moved uptown and is another welcome addition to the Lavender roster.

The big bonus in the newcomer department is transfer student Ira Smolev. Smolev played with Brooklyn College and in last year's game against the Beavers, scored twenty points. Ira averaged more than twenty points per game with the Kingsmen. The Lavender has not had a twenty point man since Tor Nilsen two years ago.

Rounding out the new stars is Dave Schweid. Schweid is a nifty ball handler and will add some strength to the Lavender bench.

Talkative Coach Moves Matmen As They Get Ready For Season

By NORMAN MEISNER

"Move around. Don't just stand there. Take your man down. Pull that arm in. Half-nelson! No, under his arm not over it. Pin him. Pin him!"

This sort of encouragement is used by wrestling coach Joe Sapora, while exercising his vocal cords in an effort to exercise the College's wrestling team. The Lavender grapplers are now working hard, every day in preparation for their first match of the season against Newark of Rutgers on Saturday, November 30, at 2 PM, in Goethals Gymnasium.

The team this year will be hurt due to the loss of many good veterans, because of lack of time, marriage, part time jobs and academic difficulties. Coach Sapora said that "many of the good wrestlers from last year's squad are no longer able to participate and the pressure caused by their absence will be put on the newcomers."

The major loss from this year's team, however, is Harvey Taylor, who suffered an injury to his right knee. About Taylor, Coach Sapora said, "I think he is one of the best men that I have seen in years." He is expected to be out for at least half of the season and if possible he will be in shape by the time Christmas vacation is over.

Last year, Taylor was the best in the Metropolitan Area in the 137 pound division. He won this title in the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Championships held at the College last March. His absence is a hard blow to the Beavers.

The three key men for the Beavers this season are 169 pound Al Leydecker, co-captain, along with Taylor, 177 pound Al Fein, and 147 pound Mark Miller. They will be starting regularly and will be expected to take all the matches that they compete in if the teams is going to have a successful season.
