Council to Discuss SG Reform Plan

A plan calling for changes in the government's structure will be the major topic of discussion at tomorrow's Council meeting.

The reorganization plan, which is supported by Dean William A. Proctor, Irwin Brownstein (Student Life), and many members of SG, calls for yearly elections of SG executives and student election of three executive vice-presidents with specific programming responsibilities. These vice-presidents will take over the functions of the present committee chairmen, who are elected by Council.

One of the three vice-presidents will be in charge of the Office of Educational Affairs, which will direct programs on course evaluation, freshman orientation, and other academic matters. In addition there will be a Campus Affairs and Community Affairs vice-president.

The plan, the final draft of which was written October 15, was drawn up by the present President Israel Bloom, Vice-President Gideon Peres and Howard Simon, class of '68. Bloom said of the plan that it "presents Council with an opportunity to get away from the internal political wrangling and do some substantive programming."

According to the SG Constitution, the reorganization plan must be put on the ballot as a referendum before any substantial change is made.

If the plan fails to achieve this, the reorganization plan must be put on the ballot as a referendum before any substantial change is made.

(Continued on Page 2)

Enrollment Poll Shows Small Classes Favored

By DON WEINGARTEN

Students at the College fear large lectures and lower standards, above all else, as by-products of President Gallagher's solution to the enrollment crisis, according to an SG poll.

A questionnaire circulated by the President's Ad Hoc Committee Of Students On the Enrollment Crisis revealed the consensus to be that larger classes and greater admissions would tend to "lower standards, and diminish the student-teacher relationships" which now exist.

Seventy-four per cent of the approximately two hundred students polled felt that "the use of large lecture halls could not adequately replace classroom recitations." Those who did favor the replacement of certain recitations by lecture classes cited such courses as Art I, HNCR III, and IBE 1.

In a more generally phrased question, eighty-two per cent of the students felt that the use of the lecture method was "harmful to the development of the education of the student."

Upton Sinclair to Talk Today; Returns Here After 66 Years

Upton Sinclair, Class of 1897, returns to the College today to discuss "The Art of Changing America." He will speak in Arnow Auditorium at 3 PM.

Following his address, a birthday birthday party will be held in Battenweiser Lounge for the alumna who was eighty-five September 20.

The winner of the 1946 Pulitzer Prize for his novel "Dragon's Teeth," Mr. Sinclair is best known as the author of "The Jungle," an expose of the harsh working conditions in the Chicago meat packing industry. In this book he poses "human" as the only solution to labor problems, a theme which is carried on in his later works.

According to the SG Constitution, the reorganization plan must be put on the ballot as a referendum before any substantial change is made.

If the plan fails to achieve this, the reorganization plan must be put on the ballot as a referendum before any substantial change is made.

(Continued on Page 2)

A Briton's Eye View:

NYC Park and Paveement

The author is a 21-year-old British student at the College who has been in the United States for six weeks and is now a candidate for OP.

BRENT A. THURSTON-ROGERS

Ridiculous though it may seem, my main impression of New York was, and still is to some extent, one of physical fear. Perhaps it was because Central Park was temptingly near my first American address, the 63rd Street "Y." A few hours after my arrival, having taken a shower and unpacked my bags, I changed into something comfortable and rushed to savour the famous Manhattan landmark.

I behaved like a five-year-old, leaping and grabbing at branches, and scuffling through the carpet of dead leaves like a squirrel. Sometimes I cowered about, oblivious of my surroundings, and sometimes I stopped and gazed at the flashing messages from overhead lights, the cars, and General Motors reeling off a list of exotic-sounding cars, and then politely informing me that it was 9:53 PM and I wasn't invited.

Suddenly I was talking to a policeman and found myself trying to answer such stupid questions as: why was I jumping about? was I drunk? Did I take drugs? and was I carrying a knife? I said I was carrying a nail-file and a very ordinary boot knife. He then refused to do so after the lack of cooperation on the part of Student Government, the Student

President's Ad Hoc Committee of Student Government.

In her resignation Editor Lucy Ehrlich stated, "It is physically impossible to continue putting out weekly issues of Survey under the present conditions. We have a lack of cooperation on the part of Student Government, the Student

(Continued on Page 3)

Weiss Tops 135

On "Dean's List"

A total of 135 students have been named to the Dean's List for second-year honors, President Bess G. Gallagher has announced.

Richard Weiss, a liberal arts major, maintained an academic average of 94.1 percent to head the list of graduates who have completed their first two years with superior grades.

Weiss Tops 135

On "Dean's List"

A total of 135 students have been named to the Dean's List for second-year honors, President Bess G. Gallagher has announced.

Richard Weiss, a liberal arts major, maintained an academic average of 94.1 percent to head the list of graduates who have completed their first two years with superior grades.

Robert Canavan, a history major, named a "Dean's List" student, was the highest named graduate in his major.

The South Campus lawn has a prevailing effect, according to the Inter-Collegiate Socialist Society, which is founded by him at the College in 1940. He was the Democra- tical yesterday and is now a candidate for OP.

According to the SG Constitution, the reorganization plan must be put on the ballot as a referendum before any substantial change is made.

If the plan fails to achieve this, the reorganization plan must be put on the ballot as a referendum before any substantial change is made.

(Continued on Page 3)
One genuinely new idea has turned up amidst all the study and commentary evoked by President Gallagher’s enrollment proposals. Suggested by a sub-committee of the Political Science Department, the plan has two points:

1. Increase social science courses to four credits. The existing credit would allow a conference hour to discuss additional readings and papers.

2. Allow students to choose among the courses, those specializing in language and literature would pick four of nine courses. Thus the student would earn approximately the percentage of sweaters along Park Avenue. The message: BAN social science courses.

The plan is well worth considering. In the first place, it would decrease the number of hours spent in class, thereby increasing available classroom space. It was in this context that Professor: Samuel Hendel, chairman of the Political Science sub-committee, offered the plan—as one solution to the enrollment crisis facing the College.

But Professor Hendel’s suggestion should be considered in other lights also. A conference hour plus time for additional readings and papers would greatly increase the value of social science courses. It would offset some of President Gallagher’s proposals which tend to make the College an assembly hall available to student groups holding programs. The practice has been to use the Hall only for the College’s official functions.

Bigger AND Better

One genuinely new idea has turned up amidst all the study and commentary evoked by President Gallagher’s enrollment proposals. Suggested by a sub-committee of the Political Science Department, the plan has two points:

1. Increase social science courses to four credits. The existing credit would allow a conference hour to discuss additional readings and papers.

2. Allow students to choose among the courses, those specializing in language and literature would pick four of nine courses. Thus the student would earn approximately the percentage of sweaters along Park Avenue. The message: BAN social science courses.

The plan is well worth considering. In the first place, it would decrease the number of hours spent in class, thereby increasing available classroom space. It was in this context that Professor: Samuel Hendel, chairman of the Political Science sub-committee, offered the plan—as one solution to the enrollment crisis facing the College.

But Professor Hendel’s suggestion should be considered in other lights also. A conference hour plus time for additional readings and papers would greatly increase the value of social science courses. It would offset some of President Gallagher’s proposals which tend to make the College an assembly hall available to student groups holding programs. The practice has been to use the Hall only for the College’s official functions.

HAPPINESS CAN’T BUY MONEY

With tuition costs steadily on the rise, more and more undergraduates are looking into the student loan plan. If you are one such, you would do well to consider the case of Leonid Signeaux.

Leonid, the son of an unemployed bean gleaner in Straightened Circumstances, Montana, had his heart set on going to college, but his father, also, could not afford to send him. Leonid applied for a Regents Scholarship, but his rendition was, alas, not very rapid—three words an hour—and before he could finish the first page of his exam, the Regents had closed and Leonid’s heart and his hope gone. Leonid, then, applied for an athletic scholarship, but he had, alas, only a single amino acid on his belt, and, it was, alas, aroused only fleeting enthusiasm among the coaches.

And then—happy day!—Leonid learned of the student loan plan: he could borrow money for his tuition and repay it in easy installments after he left school!

Happily Leonid enrolled in the Southeastern Montana Col-
The Beyond the Gates

The Beyond the Gates column, which usually contains news from other campuses, will this issue be devoted to editorials selected from the students of the metropolitan area. The Colorado Daily (University of Colorado) . . .

Defenders of University traditions too often argue on the shaky basis that traditions are part of a heritage, living and continuing characteristics of the institution. To preserve tradition, some students of the University, contend. To let the traditions wilt and die is to open a gaping chasm in the University way of life. When an institution is so defended that evaluation and logical reasoning are purportedly preferred methods of thinking, this is a true indication that someone might not be paying attention.

So let's be honest. Home house playing, theatrical musical productions, parties, crew competitions and other traditional festivities are not justifiable just because they are traditions. They are fun and they are lucrative.

Daily Californian (Berkeley) . . . it would be a bad thing to have political campaigns with a full complement of political opinion represented in the University's counterparts of "grownups," to which the College students can confine themselves to candidates running on campus issues that are not the young Republicans? Or the Socialist party's youth group? Or organized independent candidates? And just as certainly, to which a majority of University students are old enough to vote, and have presumably registered a party affiliation, are they still too immature to vote in a campus election for those candidates who represent the aims of outside parties translated on the campus environment? We think not.

The Ionia (Iona College) . . . What is the "student body" of Iona College? Is there any institution that can claim to represent the "student body"? There are several institutions at Iona that purport to represent the students. One of these is the Iona College Student Senate, which, as a majority of its members is comprised of University students and is elected by them.

The editors of the college's "official undergraduate newspaper of Iona College," obviously, all the students' views are not found here. The sanctions can attempt to reflect the work of the students, but how many of them work for the editors?

The administration of Iona can only suggest what it would like student opinion to be. It also cannot speak for the entire enrollment. Where does this leave us? We are found to be a school without ideas, opinions or a "heartbeat." It is the time for the men in this institution to formulate a character for Iona. It is time for the men of this institution to examine the direction of their Alma Mater. We open this topic to excursion by students and faculty alike.

The Hofstra Chronicle (Hofstra University) . . . The Adelphi University student newspaper, The Delphian, last week published a front page editorial calling for student support against a State Council of Higher Education bill which would not protect the students' rights.

We are sure that a school such as Adelphi cannot really condone this legislation. As students, we have the moral right to dictate editorial policies to its student voice — The Delphian — for the first time knowing what it's like to be in a minority. Some of us may not tell them what we feel, but we get along pretty well. The neighbors have been nice on other campuses but I just can't figure out what the people presently active on the paper are willing to underawe the responsibility.

The Ionian (Iona College) . . . What is the "student body" of Iona College? Is there any institution that can claim to represent the "student body"? There are several institutions at Iona that purport to represent the students. One of these is the Iona College Student Senate, which, as a majority of its members is comprised of University students and is elected by them.

The four most commonly advanced solutions were increased course offerings, expanded facilities, increased faculty, and the abolition of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"We are disturbed with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the applanens admitted in coming terms than the number recommended by Pres. pins for student enrichment, and the abolition of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"There were discussions with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the applanens admitted in coming terms than the number recommended by Pres. pins for student enrichment, and the abolition of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"We are disturbed with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the applanens admitted in coming terms than the number recommended by Pres. pins for student enrichment, and the abolition of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"There were discussions with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the applanens admitted in coming terms than the number recommended by Pres. pins for student enrichment, and the abolition of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"We are disturbed with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the applanens admitted in coming terms than the number recommended by Pres. pins for student enrichment, and the abortion of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"There were discussions with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the abortion of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"We are disturbed with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the abortion of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"There were discussions with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the abortion of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"We are disturbed with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the abortion of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"There were discussions with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the abortion of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"We are disturbed with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the abortion of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"There were discussions with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the abortion of such courses as music, art, and gym.

"We are disturbed with applanens in their major fields of study — only a handful of the "official welfare of the campus, and the abortion of such courses as music, art, and gym.
The Booter Who Never Scores

By HARVEY WEINBERG

Tritium, the instructor gets the nickname "Klutsch" when he plays on the freshman team. Last year, the funny thing is that he did not acquire it because of his superhero goal-tending as might be expected. There is a cartoon character called Klutsch Carga who brawls with large jaw bones. The 5 foot 10 inch Kopczuk bears a slight resemblance to the celluloid hero on this count. But even Klutsch Carga, with the aid of all his artist's imagination, could not make some of the saves that Kopczuk makes during the course of a Lavender soccer game.

Walter has been too amazing for words so far this year. His diving, leaping, sliding saves

Walter shows how to grab the line drive shots against Adelphi.

Kopczuk added that he hopes when players see his clients coming to them, it will have the same effect those who have in baseball, mainly opposing players will tend to shy away, thereby making the save easier to be made. When asked if he was bothered by playing in the combination dust, glass and rocks that makes up Laveston Stadium, Walter replied negatively that "the player makes the field; the field doesn't make the player.

Kopczuk makes saves with almost an utter abandonment for life and limb. Asked if he was ever worried about injuring himself, the outspoken Kopczuk remarked that he'll "begin to worry when I'm no longer coming out of 300, go by." In the two most recent Lavender games, Walter has been shaken up by severe jolts to the head. Two days after getting kicked in the forehead while playing against Bridgeport, Kopczuk was back competing against the Merchant Marine Academy. Leaping high to make a save, the black-clad Beaver net-minder was clipped in the face by a high kicking Mariner. The injury made the save more spectacular, but he was forced to leave the game. A short while later he was back. However, while he was out, the Mariners scored. The Beavers eventually lost 3-2.

A physical education major, Kopczuk gets good practice in intramurals this year's freshman goalie on goal tending techniques. In practice, freshman coach Les Sobol will ask Kopczuk to "give his goalie a workout." Walter takes the Freshman net-minder aside, and puts him through a series of exercises designed to make a goalie out of a "non-goalie. Kopczuk is practically an expert on picking out flaws and showing how it should be done.

The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement.

Pretty soon people will forget the original reason behind the nickname "Klutsch" and take it for what it commonly denotes.

Mendenhall Is New Nimrod Coach; Hopes For Another Good Season

The College's Rifle team has two things in common with the New York Yankees. They are both perennial champions and they both have new mentors. It was announced last week that Sergeant Terry Mendenhall has been named to succeed Sergeant Bernard Kelly as coach of the Lavender sharpshooters.

As a matter of fact, last year's Lavender nimrods were even better than the Yankees as they went undefeated during their 19 game season. Their 19-0 record was good for first place in the Metropolitans Intercollegiate Rifle League (MIRL) and fifth in the nation. This year, despite the loss of some star veterans from last year's team, the nimrods give every indication of repeating at MIRL championships. They will do it under the guidance of new coach, Sergeant Terry Mendenhall. Sergeant Terry Mendenhall, Sergeant Bernard Kelly, Beaver coach for the past 8 seasons, has been promoted to Master Sergeant and in turn transferred to NYU. Sergeant Mendenhall is expected to succeed Kelly.

Kelly received his degree 8 years ago and returned to the States to block the pass and break my wrist. "Actually I was scared," the goalie on goal tending techniques.

"The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement.

Pretty soon people will forget the original reason behind the nickname "Klutsch" and take it for what it commonly denotes.

Mendenhall Is New Nimrod Coach; Hopes For Another Good Season

The College's Rifle team has two things in common with the New York Yankees. They are both perennial champions and they both have new mentors. It was announced last week that Sergeant Terry Mendenhall has been named to succeed Sergeant Bernard Kelly as coach of the Lavender sharpshooters.

As a matter of fact, last year's Lavender nimrods were even better than the Yankees as they went undefeated during their 19 game season. Their 19-0 record was good for first place in the Metropolitans Intercollegiate Rifle League (MIRL) and fifth in the nation. This year, despite the loss of some star veterans from last year's team, the nimrods give every indication of repeating at MIRL championships. They will do it under the guidance of new coach, Sergeant Terry Mendenhall. Sergeant Bernard Kelly, Beaver coach for the past 8 seasons, has been promoted to Master Sergeant and in turn transferred to NYU. Sergeant Mendenhall is expected to succeed Kelly.

Kelly received his degree 8 years ago and returned to the States to block the pass and break my wrist. "Actually I was scared," the goalie on goal tending techniques.

"The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement.

Pretty soon people will forget the original reason behind the nickname "Klutsch" and take it for what it commonly denotes.

Mendenhall Is New Nimrod Coach; Hopes For Another Good Season

The College's Rifle team has two things in common with the New York Yankees. They are both perennial champions and they both have new mentors. It was announced last week that Sergeant Terry Mendenhall has been named to succeed Sergeant Bernard Kelly as coach of the Lavender sharpshooters.

As a matter of fact, last year's Lavender nimrods were even better than the Yankees as they went undefeated during their 19 game season. Their 19-0 record was good for first place in the Metropolitans Intercollegiate Rifle League (MIRL) and fifth in the nation. This year, despite the loss of some star veterans from last year's team, the nimrods give every indication of repeating at MIRL championships. They will do it under the guidance of new coach, Sergeant Terry Mendenhall. Sergeant Bernard Kelly, Beaver coach for the past 8 seasons, has been promoted to Master Sergeant and in turn transferred to NYU. Sergeant Mendenhall is expected to succeed Kelly.

Kelly received his degree 8 years ago and returned to the States to block the pass and break my wrist. "Actually I was scared," the goalie on goal tending techniques.

"The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement.

Pretty soon people will forget the original reason behind the nickname "Klutsch" and take it for what it commonly denotes.

Mendenhall Is New Nimrod Coach; Hopes For Another Good Season

The College's Rifle team has two things in common with the New York Yankees. They are both perennial champions and they both have new mentors. It was announced last week that Sergeant Terry Mendenhall has been named to succeed Sergeant Bernard Kelly as coach of the Lavender sharpshooters.

As a matter of fact, last year's Lavender nimrods were even better than the Yankees as they went undefeated during their 19 game season. Their 19-0 record was good for first place in the Metropolitans Intercollegiate Rifle League (MIRL) and fifth in the nation. This year, despite the loss of some star veterans from last year's team, the nimrods give every indication of repeating at MIRL championships. They will do it under the guidance of new coach, Sergeant Terry Mendenhall. Sergeant Bernard Kelly, Beaver coach for the past 8 seasons, has been promoted to Master Sergeant and in turn transferred to NYU. Sergeant Mendenhall is expected to succeed Kelly. Kelly received his degree 8 years ago and returned to the States to block the pass and break my wrist. "Actually I was scared," the goalie on goal tending techniques.

"The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement. The observant goalie is not only eagle-eyed when it comes to goal tending. Recently Walter noticed a minute eye movement by Sieberg which indicated part of the goal he would be aiming for. After stopping a few shots, Kopczuk told Sieberg about his eye movement.

Pretty soon people will forget the original reason behind the nickname "Klutsch" and take it for what it commonly denotes.