Carlino Charges City Lagging In Financial Support For CU

New York City has been "lagging behind" in support to the City University, Joseph Carlino, Speaker of the State Assembly, charged Tuesday.

Responding to questions put to him by a delegation from the City University, Speaker Carlino remarked, "We think we've been giving a pretty good measure of state funds to the City University."

State Aid Doubled

According to a memorandum prepared for State Senator John Marchi (Rep., S.I.) and quoted by Mr. Carlino, 1963-64 has seen a 205.5% increase in state aid to the CU over 1958-59. This figure is opposed to a 17.3% raise in the City's share of the operating budget.

100 Year Wait

The Speaker added that the State was "not going to cut support" of the CU. "I for one am going to try and increase aid in certain categories," he declared.

Predicted Failure

Commenting on Mr. Carlino's allegation, President Gallagher said yesterday, "The State waited for nearly a hundred years to begin giving any aid. Who was lagging behind then?" He added that "we are very pleased with the increase in both State and City support."

Mr. Carlino also predicted the failure of the attempt to discharge the free tuition mandate

Marxist Seminars Begin Next Week

Marxist philosophy and a Marxist view of American Negro history will be discussed by Marxist scholars in extra-curricular classes at the College starting next week.

Herbert Aptheker and Howard Selsam will teach the bi-weekly classes which will be conducted in seminar form.

Mr. Selsam, who was dismissed from the Brooklyn College staff in the '30's for holding a Marxist philosophy, will conduct the first hour and a half of each of the five scheduled seminars. He will discuss Marxist philosophy and existentialism.

The second part of each seminar will be devoted to Negro history and will be taught by Dr. Aptheker, a specialist in the field.

The programs are being sponsored by the Marxist Discussion Club, Advance Intercollegiate Council, and the Student Committee On Progressive Education, which is the student section of the New York School for Marxist Studies. Dr. Aptheker is the director of this school.

House Plan Association is sponsoring a Student Faculty Chat with Mr. Irwin Brownstein (Student Life) on new plans for IFC and HPA today at 12 Noon in Room 327 Finley.

Classes To Start For College Profs

A Summer Institute in Chemistry will begin operations at the College this year. It is open to all college teachers.

The Institute will offer five courses, according to Professor Francis E. Condon (Chemistry), its director. An estimated forty participants in the program will receive $400 National Science Foundation stipends for the six week session.

Teachers from across the country will be enrolled in the Institute's program, and some teachers from the College will audit.

Coll. Hosting Debate Tourney; 50 Schools Plan Participation

Teams from fifty eastern United States and Canadian colleges and universities will participate in the 9th Annual City College Invitational Debate Tournament to be held here tomorrow and Saturday.

This will be the biggest tournament ever run by the College. In the varsity division, there will be some 42 teams from 36 schools. Each team will debate both the affirmative and negative aspects of the resolution.

All teams will be debating the topic, "Resolved: That the Federal Government should guarantee an opportunity for higher education for all qualified high school graduates."

Among the top competitors at the tournament will be units from the U.S. Naval and Military Academies, John Hopkins, McGill, and Seton Hall, a previous winner. Last year's victor, St. John's, is not attending.

After the second, fourth and fifth rounds, the teams will be matched against teams with similar records. This device is adopted to be sure that the eventual winner of the meet will have met the strongest teams.

Trophies will be presented to the top three teams in both the varsity and novice categories. In addition the two highest scoring varsity and novice speakers will be awarded individual trophies.

The Debating Society will also conduct an extemporaneous speaking contest with awards presented to the two best speakers.

The tournament is open to the public. It will begin on Friday evening from 6-9:30 PM, and continue all day Saturday from 9 AM to 6 PM. It will be held in the Finley Center.

School Boycott, Tuition Discussed By Council

A motion urging students to attend a meeting on the city-wide boycott of public schools was passed by Council last night 18-7.

The bill, which was introduced as a substitute motion for one which supported SG support of a March 16 sympathy boycott at the College, also provides for copies to be sent to the presidents of all campus organizations.

In another action, President Bob Rosenberg announced the possibility of entering a registered Republican to oppose Assemblyman Fred Preller in that party's primary. The Queens Republican is chairman of the Ways and Means Committee in which the free-tuition mandate is now bottled up.

Danny Katkin, SG Vice President, noted that "one of the purposes of this would be sheer nuisance value." He explained that while Mr. Preller would have to spend about $1000 hiring campaign workers, "we can get them for nothing."

The formation of a committee to plan future tuition tactics was also announced. Members will be appointed by next week.

Earlier in the meeting an appropriation for three issues of Survey at $50 each was passed 13-8. The action overruled a Fee Commission decision which would have allocated no funds to the Student Activities Board organ.

In addition, a $470 allocation to SAB Social Functions Agency for a Student Faculty dance was rescinded, and additional $60 was granted to House Plan's Contact.

Galamison to Talk On A Panel Here

The Reverend Milton A. Galamison, leader of the February 3 school boycott, will be featured in a symposium on "School Integration and the March 16 Boycott" in the Grand Ballroom March 12.

Relationship Between Schools and Colleges

It is expected that the Reverend will argue the relationship between de facto segregation at the college level and discrimination in the New York City public school system. He has previously noted that "public school segregation breeds segregation in the colleges" and has urged college students to support the proposed boycott through participation in "freedom schools" and aid in organizing drives.

Included among the speakers will be Herb Calender, Coordinator for the Bronx Chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), and a spokesman for the Puerto Rican community.

The symposium is being held under the sponsorship of the evening session Student Committee for a Sympathy Boycott, SG Public Affairs Forum, Student Peace Union, and the Marxist Discussion Club.

MDC spokesman Eric Eisenberg suggested that the speakers would also consider the relationship between the March 16 boycott and the anti-tuition struggle.

Folk Music, Dance Program Begins Tonight In Lewisohn

Juan's Pacific dances will be the initial performance in a folk music and dance series tonight in Lewisohn Lounge.

The folk program, arranged entirely by Mrs. Henrietta Yurchenko (Music), will be offered every Thursday from 7-8 PM. Folksingers Jean Redpath, Carolyn Hester, Logan English, Judy Collins, Ruth Rubin, and others are the future guest artists.

Extensive Program

According to Mr. Edmond Sarfaty (Student Life), this series is only the beginning of an extensive cultural program. The program he envisions will include both a concert series and lectures on art exhibits that are displayed at the College. These events will not be restricted to College students and faculty, but would be open to the public.

The performances in the folk series were originally intended for a graduate course in "Folk Music of the World" (Music 7108), and was later revised to include all students at the College and the general public.

A Beginning

Seventy-one Republicans voted Tuesday to support Governor Nelson Rockefeller's policy of nibbling away at City University's 117 year tradition of free tuition. Seventy-one Republicans voted against restoration of the more than one hundred year tradition of free-tuition at the State University. Approximately ten more lacked the courage to perform the simple act of expressing their views, and marked themselves "absent" by refusing to answer the roll-call. And all of this in the name of "party discipline."

Many of these "people's representatives" expressed their scorn and contempt for student efforts to convince them of the necessity of free public higher education. We were even told from the floor of the State Assembly that we might as well not have come, that the bill was not going to be forced out of committee.

To these brainless and/or spineless non-representatives, we have this to say: gentlemen, we didn't really expect to win this round. We went to Albany to see how many of you would have the guts to break party discipline to vote as your constituents' beliefs and your personal convictions would have indicated. Only one of you had the necessary courage.

And gentlemen, you will be seeing us before the next election — in your districts. The students of this state will lay this issue before the people of this state, and we frankly feel, gentlemen, that you can't afford this.

And to those of you, gentlemen, who finally hear the people's voice loud and clear on election day, and find that it speaks for free tuition and against your election, we have this to say: We WILL go to Albany next Spring; we will go to watch the men who have replaced you vote for free tuition at this State's public colleges.

This college's Student Government has been the spark-plug and co-ordinating agent for the student free-tuition campaign. Its members deserve the gratitude and congratulations of all of us for their time-consuming and often brilliant work on the district level and the organization of the Albany Convention. It must be remembered, however, that they cannot do all the work by themselves — the students of this college must decide to support this campaign much more strongly than they have up to now. To be discouraged by the vote Tuesday would be unrealistic; it should serve as an inducement to work harder, for we have just begun to fight.

One Republican

One Republican Assemblyman had the courage to vote the way he, not the Party, felt on the free-tuition issue. He was Alfred Lerner from Queens. The round of applause he received from the Democrats was perhaps of little moment to him. The cheers of the students present may have meant a little more. But his real reward was probably the knowledge that he had kept his personal integrity intact. We salute him for this.

We hope that we will be able to repay him with more than salutes in the future. We are unsure of his plans, but if he is opposed in a Republican primary, we would support him, and we hope that Student Government would do the same. We need men of Assemblyman Lerner's integrity in the legislature, and in supporting him, we are sure we would not only be helping the free-tuition fight, but helping the cause of good government in general.

The bill, introduced by Melville Abrams (Dem., Bronx) was defeated 66-71, with only one Republican, Alfred Lerner (Rep., Queens) voting in favor of discharge.

Charges Exclusion at CU
Discussing the current enrollment crisis in the City University, Speaker Carlino accused the CU of following an "exclusion policy." "I'm in favor of letting in those who don't have high grades because of background and neighborhood," he said. "I'm worried about the kid with an average a little over the 80's. He's the one who should be getting into public universities," added Mr. Carlino.

Seton Newspaper Suspended; 600 Students Riot In Protest

By RONNIE REICH

Students at Seton Hall University in New Jersey, are in an uproar as a result of an administration directive suspending The Setonian, their weekly undergraduate newspaper.

The suspension one week ago set off demonstrations which erupted into the nearby town of South Orange. The police and firemen, with low pressure hoses, were needed to drive the students back on to the campus.

The University's President, the Most Rev. John J. Dougherty, ordered the paper closed, charging that the staff had "abused freedom of expression." Other officials at the Catholic University had reportedly taken exception to the paper's satirical attacks on administration's regulations. They also considered some of the editorials offensive.

Administration efforts to reorganize The Setonian under a new staff, have apparently foundered on student opposition. Shouting "We want Rocco [Rocco De Pietro, the editor-in-chief] and the paper," about 600 students jammed into the University's auditorium to protest the suspension. When asked to support an interim co-editorship, the students responded with a resounding "No." De Pietro and his associate editors have been forbidden to rejoin the paper.

A senior at the University, De Pietro has charged the administration with being too stringent in its regulations. Last autumn, in an editorial deploring censorship in Catholic schools and supporting student protests, The Setonian said: ". . . students . . . are tired of administrators' hiding behind the word Catholic to protect their conservative views. Too many nuns and priests enforce taboos or false codes of morality where they never belong."

De Pietro also asserted that "University should be a hotbed for the exchange of opinions and ideas and," he added, "diversity is a prerequisite for this."

According to the paper's faculty advisor, Mr. Edward Trayes, the paper will probably remain closed until April, when the regular reorganization takes place.

That Was The Year That Was...

By HARVEY WEINBERG

The last time basketball at the College rose above the .500 mark was during the 1957-58 season when the Lavender hoopsters finished the season with a 9-8 record. At the beginning of this season, Coach Dave Polansky predicted that Wingate Gym would see a winning team for the first time in six seasons.

The Coach said that every so often, a good bit of basketball talent graces Wingate. He added that "this could be the year."

At the end of the ninety-four days that contained the 1963-64 basketball season for the Lavender, the Coach's reaction was that it was a "respectable season."

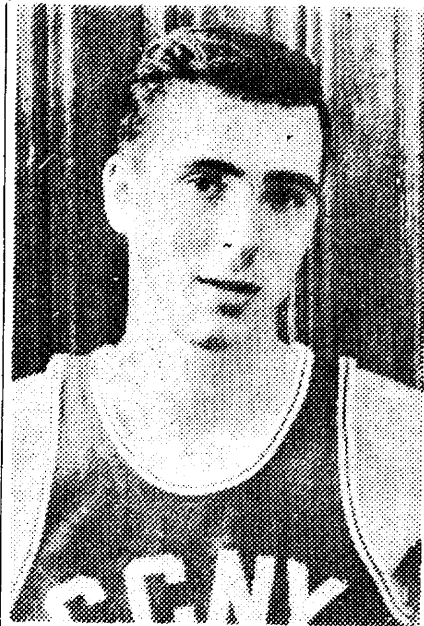

What happened to turn a potentially great season into a "respectable season?" The answer partly lies in the fact that originally the season was scheduled to end a week ago instead of last Monday. The mere lengthening of the campaign was not the trouble, but the reason is.

On December 4, the Lavender was beginning to pick up steam. After getting nipped by Columbia in their season's opener, the Beavers blasted Rutgers, Brooklyn, Upsala and R.P.I.

For the four victories, the Beavers were averaging over 85 ppg to only 57 for the opposition.

Then Mike Schaffer was killed. The psychological effect it had on the team cannot really be discerned but it was very clear that the Lavender had lost one of the men it had been counting on to lead their attack.

This was not the first time that hard luck had hit. Even before the season began, co-captain Ray Camisa was sidelined with a dislocated shoulder. It cannot be doubted that the loss of these two men contributed to the slumping of the team after they had reached the 4-1 mark.

Alan Zuckerman
Played Well In Clutch

After Schaffer's death, the team did not compete for over a month. They split their next two games, losing to Queens and beating Howard before they took another month recess for finals.

But all was not so dismal, for Alan Zuckerman emerged as a sparkplug and was a big reason the Lavender managed to salvage a .500 record. Including the Howard game in which he scored 21 points, Zuckerman averaged 12 points per game and has to be labeled as one of the bright spots of the season.

After finals, the Beavers won four while dropping six. One of those four victories was the greatest of the season. On February 1, the Lavender beat Wagner 68-65.

To the hard luck was added some disappointing performances by key men. Both Ira Smolev and Steve Golden played inconsistently. One game they would play poorly and the next game they would play great. Both came on very strongly at the end, however.

Alex Blatt, Julie Levine, and Alan Zuckerman all had good years. Blatt led the team in scoring with 15 ppg and was second in rebounds with an 11.29 rebounds per game to 12.01 for team leader Steve Golden.

Maybe when you add everything up (and do some subtraction) things even out — on the court at least. The 9-9 record seems to support this theory.

Mike Schaffer Memorial Set For Frosh Cagers

The College's basketball team has voted to award a Mike Schaffer Memorial trophy to the outstanding freshman player of the year.

The trophy will be paid for by the meal money of the players from this year's team.

For every away game, each player receives two dollars for a meal. However, since Schaffer's tragic death, the Beaver cagers have been donating their meal money to the trophy fund.

There is now enough money in the fund to provide trophies for the next nine years. The trophy will be awarded as long as a member of the 1963-64 Beaver basketball team is alive.

Each member of the varsity team who has played at least one game will be permitted to vote for the outstanding freshman player.

... And The One That Might

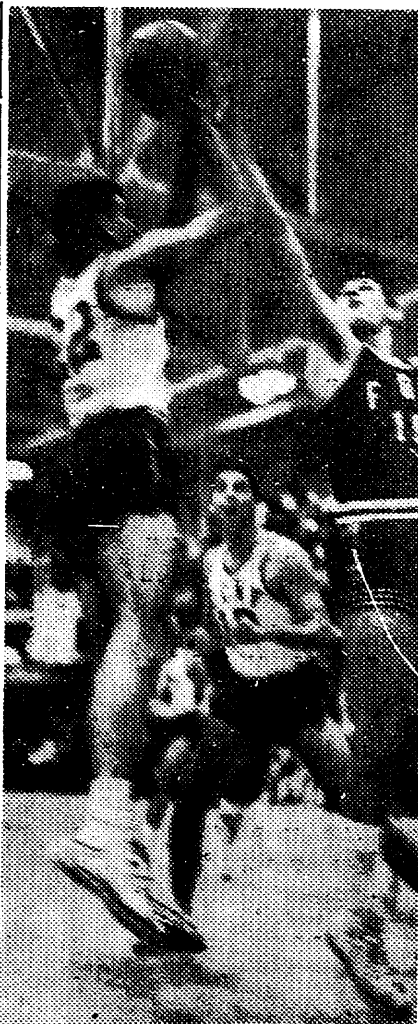

Sports writers covering the College's basketball team next year will do so without the aid of one of their richest and most lively sources.

This reservoir of knowledge goes by the name of Alex Blatt. The witty Blatt was much more than just "good copy" and a good friend. His rebounding and scoring will be missed by next year's squad.

Also absent from next year's team will be center Steve Golden. The 6 foot 5 inch pivot man had a disappointing year but when he played well, the team won. No matter what is said about Golden's performance last season, his game against Wagner was just about the number one reason that the Lavender managed to put together one of the greatest upsets of the year.

In addition to the loss of Golden and Blatt, the starting team will lose half of Ira Smolev. Actually Smolev has only one term of eligibility left so he will only see action for half the season.

Who will fill the vacancies? If all goes well, the Beaver hoopsters will once again have the services of Ray Camisa. Camisa injured his shoulder and was out for the season. All indications point to the fact that Ray will be back to the basketball wars next year.

The Lavender hopes will also rest on the improved play of Alan Zuckerman and Dave Schweid. Zuckerman had a fine year and Schweid showed a great deal of potential.

Filling Golden's spot will be Bob Kissman. Kissman has good moves and can jump well. Against LIU this year he gave an inkling of his capabilities as he pulled some fine rebounds from the always tough Albie Grant.

The Lavender backcourt should be well stocked. Leading the Beaver dribblers will be Julie Levine. Levine is an excellent ball handler and field general. With another year's experience under his belt, Julie should be even better next winter.

The 1963-64 Beaver freshman team should also provide some top talent to next year's varsity. High on the list of talent are Mike Pearl and John Clifton. Pearl could provide the relief to Julie Levine while Clifton has a good shot and is a battler under the boards.

1963-64 was the season the Lavender cagers were to win big. Maybe next year's squad can. With a little bit of luck they might.

Matmen To Compete In Mets; Hopes Ride On Miller, R. Taylor

Highlight of Saturday's Metropolitan Intercollegiate Wrestling Championships should center around the matches in the 147 pound division if the College's wrestling Coach Joe Sapora is right.

"Mark has an excellent chance to win it all," the Coach said. He was referring to 147 pound Mark Miller.

Miller has had an outstanding year. He was undefeated until his last match when he lost to NYU's Tom Bocchino. It was Bocchino who last year spoiled Miller's chance to become Met champ. In fact the Miller-Bocchino rivalry might be one of the hottest in the area.

Last year during the regular season, the two matmen fought to a 2-2 draw. A week later Bocchino won in the Mets on riding time. He duplicated his victory in the Lavender's final match of this year's campaign.

But Coach Sapora is optimistic. "Mark is a little bit better and should beat him [Bocchino] this time."

The coach is also optimistic in other areas. Ronnie Taylor will be wrestling 117 and Sapora said he wouldn't be surprised to see the soph star win.

Rounding out the Beaver lineup for Saturday's matches at the Brooklyn "Y" will be Herb Stoller (123), Paul Bederman (13), Al Leydecker (167), Al Fein (177), Jack Stein (191) and Larry Silver (heavyweight).

SPORTS SHORTS

Four members of the College's soccer team were elected to the All-State team last week.

The honored players are fullback Tom Sieberg, center halfback Mike Pesce, forward Cliff Soas, and goalie Walter Kopczuk. These are the same four players who had gained All-Met honors early last December. Sieberg had been elected to the first team while Pesce, Soas, and Kopczuk made the second team.

Kopczuk, the Beavers' star goalie, also received an honorable mention in the All-American ratings.

Both Sieberg and Pesce are seniors and have finished their College careers while Soas and Kopczuk both are only sophomores.

The College's rifle team is hoping that it can imitate last year's scalping of St. John's tomorrow as they travel to the Redmen reservation for a crucial match.

Last year, the Beaver nimrods eeked out a thrilling 1421-1420 victory over their traditional rivals.

This year, the Lavender is 14-1 in Metropolitan Intercollegiate Rifle League competition and a win over the tough Redmen would go a long way in capturing the number one slot in the loop.

After St. John's, the Beavers have only two dual meets left.

On March 13 they will face St. Francis and Newark Engineering and on March 20 they will close out the season, home against Pace and Cooper Union.

Fencers Travel To Annapolis; Plan To Get The Navy's Goat

Tomorrow at 11 AM, the College's fencing team will board a bus that will take them to the United States Naval Academy. Twenty-six hours later they are scheduled to face the Midshipmen in what might be termed a warm-up for the Intercollegiate Fencing Association championships which will also be held at Annapolis.

Actually the Navy meet is more than a warm-up. It should be warm enough to start a fire when the Beavers take on the Middies.

Last year Navy torpedoed the Lavender to the tune of 16-11, so the Beavers will be gunning for revenge.

The Lavender has looked good in their last two meets. Indeed, they have looked good all season as their 63 record indicates.

Last week's drubbing of MIT also saw the return of Ray Fields and Bob Kao to the ranks of the victorious. If these two men can keep up their winning ways, Navy might find the boat a bit leaky when the Lavender leave Saturday night.

After Navy, the parriers will compete in the Intercollegiate Fencing Assn. Championship, and on March 20, 21, the top men in saber, epee and foil will compete in the NCAA Championships.
