Budget Gives Additional Funds For Larger Freshman Class

The Board of Higher Education will get an increase of $6,872,628 for the senior colleges over last year's allocation, according to the proposed City budget released Tuesday.

Of this increase, $1 million will provide for the admission of more freshmen to the senior and junior colleges. The BHE had asked for $2 million last January in anticipation of the enlarged enrollment.

As a result of the lowered admission requirements and the budget increase, an additional 1700 freshmen will be able to enter the four-year colleges next fall.

No Honors Overcrowding:

By CAROL HERRNSTADT

This is the first part in a series dealing with the Honors Program and its students.

Despite cries of overcrowded classes, a one-to-one teacher to pupil ratio does exist at the College: every student in the Honors Program has his mentor. "The Honors Program's special advantage is individual attention for students who really have something on the ball," Professor Robert 1. Wolf (Chem., Physica) said.

Douglas Attacks Conformity In Society Before Overflow Audience In Ballroom

The series is sponsored by House Plan in honor of Professor Cohen, who taught philosophy here for 34 years.

Justice Douglas said that the American people tend to fear the off-beat, and that the status quo will try to make people "goose step" together. "We have gone farther down the line of conformity than many people believe," he added.

"The disease is spreading," he continued. "Witnesses are called just to see how many times they'll invoke the Fifth Amendment. No views are considered better than non-essential views."

"This has robbed America of her diversity," the Justice declared.

Science is even more subtle in making people conform, he stated. "But science can't give us a clue to the social future." Advantages in science have brought about the machine age, he said, "but boredom is brought by machines. Man needs burdens. That's why the American example is not revered by leaders in foreign countries. Maybe they don't want Detroit, Michigan."

"Science can explain nature," he declared. "One doctor I know worked on the ear for many years," he related. One day, the Justice, he was beginning to believe in God, and he asked him why, "God is the only possible explanation for ear-wax," he replied.

"But those who challenge the status quo face a formidable battle. Our energies, the Justice declared, must be redirected from trying to build chair-lifts on every mountain."

He castigated those who ruin nature by overlogging forests, polluting rivers, and destroying farms laid by strip-mining. "Why does the farmer have to feed hot furnaces?"

The lecture was attended by the daughter of Professor Cohen, Mrs. Ann Cohen Hopkins, who now teaches at the University of Maryland.

She described her father as a true individualist and non-conformist. Justice Felix Frankfurter is reputed to have said that he envied the students who sat at his feet, she said. "It is obvious," one of his biographers, "that he never sat there."
Mayor Wagner's new City budget includes a Board of Higher Education increase of more than $5 million over last year's allocation. One million dollars of the money will be used to increase the size of the freshman classes at the nine colleges and another two million dollars will finance free tuition at all the community colleges.

In providing for free tuition at the community colleges, Mayor Wagner has taken an important step in stepping up where the State left off. More important, by putting his belief in free higher education into practice the Mayor has demonstrated the importance of maintaining a vital tradition.

The one-million dollars for freshmen is only half of the BHE's original request and it is indeed unfortunate that the State could not provide this money. Albany, however, has not completely neglected the lowly scholar. If Governor Rockefeller has his way those who miss out. OR a college education, will have the opportunity to have their names availed themselves of the opportunity to have their names collected this fund for a Kennedy collection at our own Morris College's library, for a library (Harvard's that is) already rated among the nation's largest business organizations who have evidently well demonstrated the importance of maintaining a vital tradition.

Plains were recently disclosed to raise funds at the College for the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library at Harvard University. Stan Lowenthal, the drive's foremost proponent sees revenues of $1000 to $1500 possibly collected here during a one week period. It should be patently obvious to Mr. Lowenthal and his associates that their efforts are misdirected. It is not our intent to belittle the Kennedy Memorial effort, nor to derogate the late President's merits as deserving of such a memorial, but merely to call the sponsors' attention to the relative importance of their actions in relation to those at Harvard, and a far more impoverished institution within our own gates.

An article in the Sunday New York Times states that $5 million has already been collected for the Kennedy library with another $8 million in sight as a goal. This fund amounts approximately to at least $5 for every book now at the College's library, for a library (Harvard's that is) already rated one of the country's largest. It provides an outlet for tax deductible and publicity-wise contributions from all the nation's largest business organizations who have evidently well availed themselves of the opportunity to have their names inscribed on plaques and medallions in the new library, and our efforts in this regard will be minuscule at best. Why not collect this fund for a Kennedy collection at our own Morris College, the nation's largest college, providing the same tribute to the memory of the late President and making a few new books available to students at the City University.

In Memoriam

Monuments, albeit fitting and deserved, might well be left to those able to construct them, and otherwise unwilling to further the cause of higher education. Let us place our labors in the service of a cause which will find them significant, and which will also provide benefits to be reaped by those who cannot afford the expense of attending Harvard University, or of purchasing library privileges there. Stickmen Smash Frenchie's, 11-3

By HARVEY WINNERS

The sky was dark and gloomy and it was raining like Barma during the monsoon season but everything was bright for the Lavender lacrosse team yesterday as the Beaver stickmen won their first game of the season over Lafayette College by a resounding 11-3 margin.

Hot men for the Lavender in the mud and rain were Emil Castro and Craig Hirsch. Emil scored three goals and added four assists to give him seven points for the muddy afternoon while Hirsch ripped home five goals.

But Beaver Herbie Silkwitz opened the scoring at 2:29 of the opening period. The Beaver attackman scored un assisted on a beautiful play to put the Lavender on the top end of the score, a position which they never were to relinquish.

At 10:25, Castro got his first

NEW YORK April 14 (OP) - It was announced late last night, that the annual OP-Campus - Student Government softball game has been postponed two weeks from its original date of April 17 to May 1.

The date was pushed up for several reasons, BG spokesman, Joel Cooper, said that "This was impossible because Council has called an emergency meeting at 2:00 PM to study the enrollment crisis at Shea Stadium (at the same time the Mets are opening)."

Tennis & Track Both Washed-Out

Yesterday's rains washed away any hopes the track team had of getting back in the plus column while taking another possible victory away from the tennis squad.

The tennis team was scheduled to meet Iona on the Finney court while the cidermen were set for a trip to Adelphi.

No new dates have been set for postponed matches.
