CITY COLLEGE

City U Sets 'Higher Horizons' Point For Disadvantaged HS Grads

Two experimental programs that will admit more students from disadvantaged groups to the City University without lowering its standards were announced yesterday by the CU.

Both plans are designed to raise the academic achievement of the students involved. The students will be selected, in part, on the basis of "evidences of strong motivation and qualities of leadership and creativity" not reflected in their high school grades.

These centers will be primarily for selected students "who had not thought of going to college." The two-year program of these "schools within a school" would stress reading, writing, study skills and speech.

All students who successfully completed the center's program would be admitted to the City University.

None of the students participating in either plan will pay tuition. The Chairman of the Board of (Continued on Page 3)

A Proclamation . . .

WHEREAS it has been brought to the attention of the writer that the City University is facing a severe enrollment crisis as a result of the post-war baby boom, and

WHEREAS the freshman class, as the largest in the school, is most urgently in need of depletion,

THEREFORE, I, by the power vested in me, do hereby order and direct all freshmen to report during the club period today, to Room 301 Downer, there to be escorted to a place undisclosed and shot.

ONE SINGLE MEANS of relief, by constitutional law, is ordained; it shall be as follows:

ALL YE who desire to save yourselves may enroll post haste in the ranks of the staff of Observation Post in Room 336 Finley.

Anti-Tuition Canvassing Mapped By 6 Colleges

Final preparations for the free tuition drive in the Queens districts of Assemblymen Fred W. Preller and Anthony Savarese were made at Student Council's meeting last night.

Students from the College will be joined by students from Queens, Hunter, Bronx Community, and possibly other colleges of the City University in the Washington's Birthday effort.

[In a separate action, the Inter-Fraternity Council last night pledged a minimum of 100 canvassers to the drive].

Student Government has chartered eight busses to carry students from the main gate of South Campus to Queens College, which will operate as command center for the operations. The busses will leave the College at 11 AM.

SG President Bob Rosenberg urged students to attend, "since we've seen that the campaign in Assemblyman Curran's district was a success, we hope as many or more people will show up Saturday to continue pressuring legislators who are now being swayed."

Rosenberg's appeal was echoed by Queens College SG President Steve Hoshberg who declared, "this type of political activity, which is new on the part of CU students, will be a meaningful force in restoring the free tuition mandate."

Students who use other means of transportation will join students from the College in the main lounge of the Queens College Student Center at 12 Noon.

Vacancy Filled

Council also elected SG Vice-President Daniel Katkin to a vacancy on the Finley Board of Advisors.

It was also announced at the Council meeting that the committee investigating the Student Activities Board will hold public hearings on four afternoons next week: Monday from 4-6 PM, Tuesday from 5-7 PM, Wednesday from 3-4 PM, Thursday from 5-7 PM.

Garbage Bin Fire Squelched Quickly

Flashing red lights brightened up the North Campus Quadrangle last Tuesday as three Fire Department companies attempted to extinguish a garbage bin blaze.

The engines began to arrive at 5:45 PM, but within five minutes all but a hose, and hook and ladder truck, both from the 125th St. Station, had left. The all metal container precluded any danger of the fire spreading, but the garbage, consisting of old venetian blinds and ROTC pamphlets, was piled so high that firemen worked on it for twenty-five minutes.

Senior Custodian Foreman James Brown (Buildings & Grounds) said he was sure the blaze could not have started by itself, because of the nature of the material and the temperature outdoors.

Annual Alumni Cocktail Party To Host 30 Republican Solons

More than thirty Republican legislators have accepted invitations to an Alumni Association cocktail party to be given in Albany next week. A Republican throng of three turned up at a similar event last year.

It is felt that the increased number of Republicans who plan to attend is the result of the free-tuition campaign students and alumni have been carrying on this year. Among those who have accepted invitations are every Republican Assemblyman and State Senator from New York City.

A spokesman for the Alumni Association warned, however, that the Republicans may just want to pay tribute to Alumni Association President Max Greenberg, in whose honor the party is being given.

The Democrats, who last year outnumbered the Republicans, by a considerable margin, is also expected to have increased attendance.

Plan State Anti-Tuition Confab; Hope To Show Unified Front

Student Government Vice-President Danny Katkin revealed Tuesday tentative plans for an Albany convention of student leaders from the City and State Universities. The purpose of the convention would be to present a unified statement of student views before the State Legislature votes on the restoration of the free-tuition mandate. If the mandate were restored, no tuition fee could be charged at either the City or State University.

Katkin noted that while several State colleges, including Buffalo, New Paltz, and Oneonta, were certain to lend their support to this effort, the rest of the upstate situation was unclear.

He also announced that Mayor Robert F. Wagner, Republican Representative Robert V. Lindsay and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Anthony Celebreze, had been invited to speak at the Convention, which would be held about March 2, 1964.

SG President, Bob Rosenberg, said that those upstate student leaders who could not or would not attend the convention would be asked to get in touch with their Assemblymen. It is hoped that such a move would convince the Leg-

B. Malamud Reads From His Works Today; Robert Graves To Give Lectures Next Week

Two celebrated authors, Robert Graves and Bernard Malamud, have accepted invitations to appear at the College.

Bernard Malamud, the winner of the National Book Award for fiction in 1959, will read selections from his works today.

Robert Graves, British poet, novelist, critic, and mythologist, is scheduled to deliver the second series of the Jacob C. Saposnekow Memorial Lectures, next week.

Mr. Malamud is well-known for such books as "The Magic Barrel," "The Assistant," and "A New Life."

Mr. Malamud, whose appearance is being sponsored jointly by the English department and the Alumni Association, will speak at 12:45 PM in Room 200 Shepard Hall. The three lectures to be given February 24, 26, and 28, by Mr. Malamud are entitled "Moral Problems of Translation," "The Meaning of Mammon," and "New Poems lished poems. Mr. Graves, a Professor of poetry at Oxford University, is also known for his historical novels and critical works. His autobiography is contained in "Goodbye to All That" and "Occupation Writer," and his poems have been published in numerous separate volumes.

Mr. Graves, professor of poetry at Oxford University, is author of several historical novels, including "I Claudius," and "Claudius and God," works of criticism such as "Poetic Unreason," and books on mythology including "The White Goddess" and "Greek Myths."

The lectures will be given at 3 PM in Aronow Auditorium.

The Jacob C. Saposnekow Lectures are named in honor of a 1916 alumnus of City College who was professor of sociology at the University of Virginia until his death in 1956. The fund for the lectures is a bequest of his surviving sisters, Miss Rebecca and Miss Sadie Saposnekow, of New York City.

See You There

It worked. The three hundred students who invaded Assemblyman Curran's district on Lincoln's Birthday accomplished what they set out to accomplish: Mr. Curran and his Republican colleagues are worried. The Republicans, naturally, have declined to comment, but from the Democratic end of the Assembly chambers come reports that Mr. Curran & Company have been noticeably disturbed. (They ought to be; he received over 800 postcards from constituents.) There was another indication also. The College's Alumni Association sent each legislator an invitation to a reception it will be holding at the Capitol. At a similar function last year only three Republicans showed their faces and at that for only a few minutes. This time every New York City legislator and even numerous upstate Republicans have already sent in acceptances. The free tuition campaign is obviously making itself felt in Albany.

A move to extricate from committee the bill restoring the free tuition mandate will be made March 3 — less than two weeks from today. In the interim it is imperative that those legislators who are now wavering under pressure be subjected to a continued and even increased pressure. The Alumni Association will continue to hold the fort in Albany; a small delegation of student leaders are making a trip upstate this weekend; you must do your part too.

The canvassing attack on Assemblyman Curran will be repeated Saturday in the Queens districts of Messrs. Anthony Savarese and Fred. W. Preller. Assemblyman Preller chairs the Ways and Means Committee which has refused to report out the free tuition bill. Mr. Savarese voted against the motion to discharge the bill last February. Their constituents should know this.

Student Government has chartered buses to transport students from the College to Queens (translation: you can't beg off on the grounds that you are ignorant of the geography of that borough). There are two districts to be covered this time (translation: twice as many canvassers would be just about the right number). See you at the College at 11 AM Saturday (translation: be there!)

Rally Riddle

As the saying goes "a house divided against itself cannot stand. "Experience teaches" is another old saw which might aptly be applied to the current tuition tactics split.

Evening Session President Bob Croghan charges that by not going along with the majority of the City University of New York Executive Committee, the College's SG is putting the free tuition fight in jeopardy. He seems to be functioning without full knowledge of the situation. Of prime importance is the fact that the State University would not support any "picket — slogan — buttons"-type rally in Albany. Without upstate support from those students who have already felt the effects of tuition payment, any rally — no matter how heavily attended by CU students — would have little if not an adverse effect on State legislators. SG leaders from Queens, Brooklyn and this College, schools which have been most active in free tuition work, have learned from experience the necessity of State University support.

The less tactical objection to the CUNY decision goes beyond the issue at hand. Of the delegates present at Saturday's meeting only four out of ten had been legally elected.

The vote taken at Saturday's meeting was not representative. The outcome cannot be binding.

Beyond The Gates

By DON WEINGARTEN

Colorado Governor John Love has received petitions totaling about 12,000 names from the student body presidents of three Colorado State Universities. The documents ask the Governor to debate his proposed tuition increase for Colorado colleges and universities on a televised panel discussion. The governor has instituted proposals for increased tuition fees at the University of Colorado, Colorado State College, and Colorado State University.

A voluntary ban on smoking has been imposed by the residents of a men's living unit on the Iowa State campus in Ames, Iowa. The required two-thirds majority of the residents of Stevenson House voted into effect a ruling which reads:

"The smoking of cigarettes, cigars, pipes, or any other form of tobacco shall be prohibited within the halls of Stevenson."

Iowa's administration has adopted no official stand on the matter; an official of the Men's Residence Halls Association stated that the question would be left to the discretion of each individual House.

Upper Volta may soon have more friends than inhabitants. The formation of a Hunter College chapter of "The Friends of Upper Volta" has given the club a foothold in seven colleges thus far.

The organization, founded here by Lewis Mandell, charges but 15¢ per year membership fee (subway tokens are acceptable).

Upper Volta is a tiny, land-locked, neutral African country with little industrial development. Its greatest claim to fame is that its delegate sits next to the United States' in the UN General Assembly. To date, there are chapters of Friends at Barnard, Columbia, Jersey City State Teachers College, George Washington University, Berkeley University and Hunter.

Proposed expansion of Columbia University's campus is encountering serious opposition from residents of the Morningside Heights area. In a meeting at Corpus Christi Church, a group of almost one hundred tenants unanimously voted to create an organization of "Morningsiders United."

The members have been aroused by the recent demolition of two apartment buildings and the proposed elimination of three more to accommodate Columbia's expanding facilities.

The counterpart of Finley Hall at the University of California was, until a short time ago, referred to as the Student Office Building. Unfortunately, students there habitually refer to the halls by their initials.

Accordingly, a motion was made to redesignate the building as Eshleman Hall, after one John Morton Eshleman.

Of course, the college already had a building named after John Morton Eshleman . . . and promptly redesignated that building Moses Hall after Bernard Moses.

"So unsuspecting students," reports UC paper The Daily Californian, "are now faced with an incompleting building named Eshleman with no identifying sign, and an old building named Moses which has a plaque on its side stating that the building is Eshleman."

How nice.

Columbia and Delaware Universities may be starting a trend. The past few weeks have seen the establishment of considerably more lenient coed visiting hours in campus dorms.

At Columbia, women will be permitted in the rooms from 7 PM until midnight. A second couple will be allowed to join a resident and his visitor under the new ruling; visitors must, however, sign in and out, and doors are to remain open during visiting time.

The University of Delaware permits coed visits on Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays, over a slightly more complex schedule of hours.

Protesting "lack of privacy, regimented meals, and lockout," girls at the University of California are boycotting dormitories there. For the first time in the University's history, there are fewer applicants than available rooms.

Housing Supervisor Ruth Donnelly, in response to the situation, conceded that "we don't know the reasons at this point. We are going to be talking to quite a few students . . . We are very interested in finding the reasons for the increased vacancies."

Virtually every student interviewed, however, decried either the lack of privacy within the dorms (there is only one lounge) or the three meals per week which are served "regimentally." (Others are cafeteria style).

"The served meals (everyone must enter the dining room at the same time) are outrageous," was one girl's protestation.

Arrest Student In Housing Strike; Tried To Block A Harlem Eviction

By MARC BRODY

A student from the College's Congress of Racial Equality (CORE) was arrested with ten other persons February 7th for allegedly interfering with a police officer in the performance of his duty. This arrest came at the end of a year-long effort by the College's CORE to improve the housing conditions of Harlem tenants.

The student, Raul Landau, is a member of CORE's Housing Committee, under the leadership of George Knowles, an engineering student, which has organized seven buildings on West 122nd Street, between Lenox Avenue and Seventh Avenue. "Organizing" consists of inspecting an apartment from cellar to roof, talking to the tenants, and setting up a tenant's council if a majority of the tenants are interested. This council is an autonomous self-governing body composed solely of tenants.

Many problems must be overcome before a building can be organized. There is apathy on the part of the tenants after repeated individual efforts at improvement have failed; there is widespread fear of eviction if they complain, largely born of ignorance of the New York housing laws; and there is the difficulty of arranging meeting times convenient to most of the participating tenants.

Many of the conditions in the CORE organized houses have been rectified since their organization and the threat of a rent strike. Most active in organizing have been Raul Landau, Joyce Knowles, Cathy Beckman, and P. Berger. CORE is sponsoring a clothing and blanket drive this Thursday and Friday in front of Knittle Lounge on North Campus, opposite Room 152 Finley on South 152 Finley on South Campus. Clothing, even if it is not in the best condition, and blankets of any shape or size will be accepted.

Cars will be needed to transport the donations to the tenants on Friday night. Those who are interested should leave their names and phone numbers in the CORE mailbox, Room 152 Finley.

State U. Support For Free Tuition Sought By Katkin

An attempt to rally upstate support for a state-wide anti-tuition convention in Albany will be made by Student Government Vice-President Daniel Katkin at a New Paltz State Teachers College leadership conference training seminar this weekend.

The Albany convention would be designed to influence upstate Republican legislators to vote for a discharge of the bill mandating free tuition in the City University on March 3.

Accompanying him will be SG Treasurer John Zippert, SG Secretary Joel Cooper, and Richard Coe, Associate Editor of Observation Post. They also will go to Albany later that weekend to make arrangements for the convention.

Among those invited to the convention are Mayor Robert F. Wagner and Republican Assemblyman John Lindsay.

ner Education, Gustave G. Rosenberg, said that implementation of the plans would cost $1.2 million. They were run up under the direction of Chancellor Albert H. Students participating in both programs would be selected on a discriminatory basis by high school principals using criteria and at by representatives of the Superintendent of Schools and the Chancellor.

JUDGES CAN'T ADD:

Match Stolen From Debaters

The College's debating team ran into disaster in the form of a clerical error last weekend at Columbia University.

After compiling a record sufficient to place them in the final round between the top two teams in the tournament, Carl Weitzman '65 and Joel Glassman '66 were deprived of their rightful positions when the tournament officials incorrectly tabulated their total points. As a result, the team finished third, behind Marymount College and St. Joseph's College (Brooklyn).

The error came about when these teams all finished the four preliminary rounds with 4-0 records. The top two units were to be selected on the basis of individual speaker points, and in this area Marymount had 171 points, the Lavender 151, and St. Joseph's 148.

However, in a previous debate against the Newark College of Engineering in which Glassman and Weitzman had scored 36 points to their opponents' 17, the College had been mistakenly credited with the 17 points, thus reducing their cumulative total by 19 points.

By the time the mistake was noticed, the final round had been held, Marymount had been declared the winner, and Columbia had denied responsibility. The College has requested a rematch with Marymount.

Terriers Defeat Beavers, 61-54; Lose In Shattering Second Half

By HARVEY WEINBERG and STEVE ABEL

Playing good ball through the first half, the College's basketball team collapsed in the second half to lose to St. Francis last night, 61-54. The Beavers took a 32-29 half-time lead into the 69th Regiment Amory locker room, but couldn't hold onto it against a driving Terrier team.

Al Zuckerman led the scoring for the Lavender squad hitting on 6 field goals and 2 fouls for 14 points. Alex Blatt was second with 12, Ira Smolev third with 10.

The big man for the Terriers was Jack Crispi with 18 points, followed by Paul DeLoca with 10 markers.

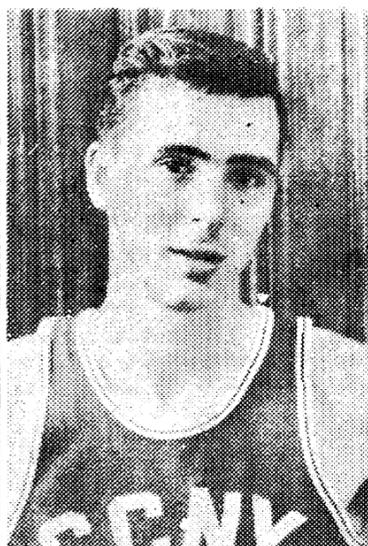

The Terriers jumped off to a 3-0 lead before Steve Golden could hit the first Beaver points. Crispi hit a couple of jump shots before the Beavers attack got off the ground again.

This time they exploded for 14 points. Alex Blatt led the way with 6 while Ira Smolev pumped in 5 points on two beautiful lay ups and a foul, while Al Zuckerman broke the ice with a jump and foul.

The Terriers' Jay Riedell soon got the muzzle off hitting a lay-up with 9 minutes to go in the half. The Terriers then went on to score 9 straight points to put them ahead 18-16.

Zuckerman once more got the Beavers going, popping a jump shot with 6 minutes left.

From there to the end of the half it was nip-and-tuck all the way. Paul DeLoca hit a jump,

Al Zuckerman
Leading With 14 Points

Blatt hit a foul, Smolev missed a foul, Terriers' George Steinman hit one of two fouls, Dave Schweid swished a jump, Crispi put in a jump and Smolev took a pass from Steve Golden to make the score a 23-23 tie.

Once more it was close, but Schweid and Zuckerman put 3 and 4 points, respectively, on the scoreboard in the closing minutes while the Terriers scored another 6 points and the half-time score was 32-29.

In the second half what might be called the "Lavender Syndrome" hit again. The other team came out with a full-court press and were able to take the ball game away.

The key operator here was Paul DeLoca who hit all of his ten points in the first 7 minutes of the half. In the meantime the Lavender squad lost the ball about five times.

By the time that was over the score was 48-40 and the game was, to all intents and purposes, clinched for the now 9-8 Terriers.

The Beavers tried to make a come-back but missed a number of key foul shots while most of the referees calls went against them.

The Beavers are now 7-7.

The Baby Beavers lost 71-65, although John Clifton hit 34 points.

ECONOMICS CAN BE CHUCKLES

Many of you have been avoiding economics because it is so widely known as "the dismal science." Oh, good friends, stop cheating yourselves of many a laugh and cheer, because economics is a positive riot! True, it is called the dismal science, but that is only because it was invented in 1681 by Walter C. Dismal.

It is easy to understand why Mr. Dismal's discovery of economics is today almost forgotten, for the fact is that he himself only stayed with the subject for two or three days. After that he took up embonpoint, which means fatness. It is said that at his apogee, Mr. Dismal reached 1200 pounds. This later became known as Guy Fawkes Day.

It was not until 1776 when Adam Smith published his Wealth of Nations (or Ozymandias, as it is usually known as) that the world came to realize what a rosy, twinkly, fun subject economics is. As Mr. Smith showed in his jocular little treatise, there is nothing complicated about economics.

This later became known as the Louisiana Purchase

When there is a great demand for a product, a great supply is placed on the market. When there is a small demand, there is a small supply. Take, for example, castanets. You walk into any average American town today and I'll wager you won't see more than eighty or ninety castanet shops. That is because the demand is small.

For Marlboro Cigarettes, on the other hand, the demand is great. Thus, you will find Marlboros—with all their yummy rich tobacco flavor and pure white Selectrate filter and pliable soft pack and unpliable Flip-Top box—at any counter where cigarettes are sold in every one of our fifty great States and Duluth.

To Adam Smith, I say, belongs the distinction of popularizing economics. Mr. Smith was followed by David Ricardo. In fact, everywhere he went he was followed by David Ricardo. Mr. Smith finally got so annoyed that he summoned a bobby, as British policemen are called, and had Mr. Ricardo arrested. This later became known as the Louisiana Purchase.

Upon his release from gaol, as a British jail is called, Mr. Ricardo reported to his parole officer, Thomas Robert Malthus. They soon became fast friends, and one night over a game of whist they invented the stock exchange, or chutney, as it is called in England.

Well sir, with the British having, you might say, a corner on economics, the French decided that they wanted some economics too. Being, however, a proud nation, they refused simply to borrow British economics, but insisted on inventing their own. At first they tried using the truffle hound as a medium of exchange. When this proved less than satisfactory, they switched to pomade. Discouraged by this second disappointment, they finally shrugged and said, "Oh, who cares about economics anyhow?" and returned to the guillotine and Maurice Chevalier.

America, I am pleased to report, had much better success with economics. Our early merchants quickly broke down economics into its two major categories—coins and folding money—and today, as a result of their wisdom, we can all enjoy the automatic toll station.

Well sir, I could go on and on about this fascinating subject, but I know you're all in a tearing hurry to rush out and sign up for Econ I. So I will leave you now with two kindly words of farewell: Gresham's Law.

We, the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, are tobacconists, not economists. But this much we know about supply and demand: you demand full flavor in a filter cigarette; we supply it—Marlboro!
