All-Night Vietnam 'Teach-In' Gets Underway With Speeches By Zippert And Dr. Gallagher

GRAND BALLROOM, April 13 (10:30 PM)—Hundreds of students and members of the faculty began an all night teach-in to "hear all the issues and viewpoints on the War in Vietnam" at 10 PM in the Grand Ballroom.

SG President John Zippert started the evening by pointing out that "this is a classroom, not a rally . . . education doesn't confine itself to Wagner or Mott." He welcomed the opportunity being given to "question and formulate opinions."

President Gallagher then talked about his trip to the Far East in 1956, where he found Vietnam to be "the most forward looking country . . . a very reassuring sight." He claimed that here we have the freedom to present all points of view in public, but "they don't in the countries we oppose in Vietnam." "The Viet Cong would not permit tonight's meeting," he asserted. "Our only hope is to unite behind the hope expounded by President Johnson," was President Gallagher's closing remark.

Scheduled to follow Zippert and President Gallagher are a diversity of speakers, ranging in opinion from Mr. Kieran O'Doherty, a conservative, to the

Teacher In Fast To Protest War

A teacher at the High School of Music and Art has been fasting for two weeks to protest American involvement in Vietnam. He will continue to subsist on small quantities of fruit juice until April 17, when he will join students from the College and thousands of others in a March on Washington to protest the war in Vietnam.

Irwin Natov, who has taught mathematics and social studies for five years, said that he feels fine, and has been going to work as usual. The reaction of teachers and students to his fast has been generally favorable. Natov began the fast "to make people aware of a sense of urgency about the war."

"It is not possible," he said, "to continue in one's normal activities as if nothing is occurring, when thousands of men, women, and children are being killed as a result of the United States' policy in Vietnam. I view the fast as a way of protesting against the immorality of the U.S. policy."

Natov has not decided whether he will end his fast on April 17. It will depend partly on his health and partly "on whether continued fasting would help to end the war."

SG President John Zippert Makes First Speech of 'Teach-In'

Marxist scholar Dr. Herbert Aptheker. Additional faculty participation from the College will include Professors Maurice Cohen (Philosophy) and Conrad Schirokauer (History). Pete Seeger was also expected to appear.

The teach-in is being sponsored by Student Government, the Young Democrats and the W.E.B. DuBois Club.

The purpose of the meeting, according to Matty Berkelhammer, a member of the DuBois Club, is to demonstrate the concern of students at the College about the war in Vietnam. The teach-in is being held through the night to avoid interfering with day or evening classes.

Berkeley Spirit Spreads Throughout Nation

By LAURA GODOFSKY
Collegiate Press Service
The First of Two Parts

Campuses all over the country have felt the impact of events at Berkeley this year.

With an eye toward their colleagues on the West Coast, students, faculty, and administrators have undertaken a wide range of protests—sometimes with success, sometimes without—in hopes of overturning, soothing, or re-evaluating relations and policies on their campuses.

Recent student protests at Yale, St. John's, Brooklyn, and Kansas, coinciding with the submission and withdrawal of resignations by the University of California's President Clark Kerr and Berkeley's Chancellor Martin Meyerson, are but the better known, more publicized examples of the campus reaction to Berkeley.

There have also been student protests at New Mexico State University, Florida State University, Wake Forest College, Trinity College and several Oregon campuses. New Mexico State's student protest came about a month ago, was directed against some dormitory regulations, and stemmed largely from a misunderstanding between administration and students. Florida State's protest came during student demonstrations at Berkeley and was aimed at administration action against participants in a "vulgar" homecoming review. In Oregon, the issue was modern poetry. At Wake Forest it was a question of allowing non-Baptists on the Board of Trustees; and at Trinity, alcohol regulations sparked the students.

In addition, student groups have been formed recently at the Universities of Illinois and Michigan State University, Farleigh Dickinson, and several West Virginia institutions for the purpose of effecting "university reform."

A major result of both the Berkeley demonstrations and the other evidences of unrest on American campuses is that administrators all over the country have shown new interest in improving their relations with the students.

At the University of Utah, a committee on faculty-student relations has recently been established. Its overall purpose will be "to expand and strengthen the rapport between students, faculty, and administration." At Midland College, a small institution in Nebraska, a group of seniors has been meeting with Vice President William Zimmerman in his home because of student discontent that arose last spring. The establishment of a student-faculty-administration appeals committee is a key provision of a student bill of rights that has been developed at Florida State as a result of disturbances this fall.

And, as the President of Springfield College in Massachusetts continues his efforts to get his student body president on the board of trustees at his institution, the dean of students at the State University College at Buffalo, New York, is trying to get students on the administrative and faculty councils at his college. Students already serve on health, housing, and food committee at Buffalo.

The Chancellor at Riverside has appointed a Student Committee on Undergraduate Education to recommend ways in which undergraduate programs may be enriched. He has also established a weekly office hour when any student may come to talk to him without an appointment and has written a weekly column for the student newspaper, The Highlander.

CUNY Backs Sitton

The City University Executive Council (CUNY) voted to support Dr. Robert Sitton, the teacher who was dismissed from Brooklyn College for refusing to sign a loyalty oath, in his test case of the Feinberg Law which requires the signing of the oath.

The support will come in the form of an amicus curiae brief which will be submitted by CUNY. This brief is used by outside parties who wish to present arguments in support of a plaintiff in a case. College presidents are also being asked to present briefs.

Student Government leaders John Zippert and Joel Cooper were "very excited about the brief," according to Cooper. "The American Civil Liberties Union wanted the College to become a plaintiff in the case," commented Cooper. While it hasn't been ruled out, Cooper feels that such a case would be "too complicated and expensive," and involve a publication of efforts.

While the Feinberg Law was ruled constitutional by the Supreme Court in 1962, a similar law was found unconstitutional in 1963, said Cooper. Hope for a favorable decision lies in this reversal of the Court's policy.

Students at Brooklyn demonstrate against lack of academic and political freedom and President Gideonse's tactics.

were Communists resulted in calls for proof by members of the SPM's Steering Committee. Gideonse explained in his Friday statement that when he made his original comments, on WABC-TV, he had not known who the leaders of the SPM were. He added that his charges of Communism do not apply to members of the steering committee, whom he said he considered "innocents," drawn into the movement through use of such issues as civil rights and the loyalty oath. The real leadership, he said, is off-campus Communists.

Gideonse substantiated his charges by citing an editorial in the Journal American of December 19, 1964, which alleged that Brooklyn College was to "become the focal point of the academic freedom struggle in New York."

The SPM Steering Committee issued a statement denying any communist involvement in, or direction of the movement. The statement claimed that SPM's leadership was open and public, and the four of the leaders had introduced themselves in an open meeting before Gideonse went on the air.

The statement declared that the SPM Steering Committee is the leadership of the movement and charges that Dr. Gideonse underestimates the intelligence of the students involved by referring to them as "innocents" who are unaware of the "Communist transmission belt" around them.

The SPM maintains that this is not an "outside attack" as Gideonse referred to it, but an "inside revolt" against repressive administrative policies.

Last week, this college's Student Government expressed its support of the struggle for academic and political freedom at Brooklyn College. The resolution passed also asked President Gideonse to either substantiate or retract his charges that recent student demonstrations there are Communist inspired.

Correction . . .

April 8th's issue of Observation Post incorrectly stated that Professor Dante A. Puzzo (History) and Abraham Edel (Philosophy), would speak at this morning's teach-in. Observation Post regrets the error.

OBSERVATION POST

Editor-in-Chief

OFFICE: Room 336 Finley PHONE: FO 8-7438, 9.

OBSERVATION POST is published and edited by students of the City College.

Truth Or Consequences

Two weeks ago this day, Harry Gideonse, President of Brooklyn College, charged that the leadership of a student group on his campus was Communist, or under Communist influence. From that day he was pressed for proof, he was implored to provide evidence of this cancer in his student body. He finally set last Friday as the day the documentation would be presented.

After smearing the leadership of the Student Protest Movement as Communist, after admitting he hadn't the slightest idea of who the leadership was, after Brooklyn's student Executive Council built up enough courage to consider a resolution condemning Gideonse for smear and forget tactics, President Gideonse finally decided to present his "proof."

We read his rather strange document to find where Mr. Gideonse made his factual errors, or where he had drawn incorrect conclusions from his facts. We were frustrated in this endeavor, for there were no facts. There were only hysterical ravings about "Communist transmission belt," and "innocents." President Gideonse said he was not accusing the SPM Steering Committee of being Communist. He added that they were not actually the leaders, but only "innocents," being manipulated by outside Communists.

We are sorry that limitations of space do not allow us to publish the entire statement, because the contempt President Gideonse has for his students' maturity and intelligence shines like a bright light through his murky logic and foggy arguments.

Mr. Gideonse has shown utter irresponsibility in his desperate campaign against the students of Brooklyn College. Whenever and wherever he speaks, a black, oily smoke of smear and innuendo settles on his enemies. We think that it is past time that he presented some evidence, some real evidence, of Communist involvement. His only documentation so far consists of quoting the Journal American and the circumstantial evidence (in his opinion) that some of the SPM's tactics resemble those used by the Communist Party in the 30's and the 40's.

There are two reasonable conclusions that can be drawn:

1) President Gideonse, on the word of off-campus sources or some passing angel, has been convinced that Communists are threatening his thirty year dictatorship over Brooklyn College.

2) President Gideonse knows that Communists are not involved, but is deliberately trying to smear the Student Protest Movement to maintain his thirty year dictatorship over Brooklyn College.

If the first conclusion is the correct one, President Gideonse should be told, forcefully and repeatedly, by students, faculty and administrators of the City University, that the time for an end to paternalistic repression at Brooklyn College has come and that his charges are unwarranted and should be retracted and apologized for immediately.

If the second conclusion is the correct one, then the Board of Higher Education should ask for Mr. Gideonse's immediate resignation.

A note to Student Government: Last week you approved a resolution which asked President Gideonse to either substantiate his charges, or retract them. He has done neither. The time for some sort of positive action has come. As a start, we would suggest some financial support for the SPM, or Brooklyn's Executive Council; an Academic Freedom rally at this College, in support of Brooklyn's students; or perhaps even the organization of a City University rally at or near Brooklyn College.

SATIRE?

To the Editor:

We wish to extend our congratulations to the Messrs. Hoenig and Diamond for their article "The Dangerous Left." We consider it to be one of the most brilliant satires that we have ever read in a college newspaper. The manner in which they exposed the irrationality of the rabid right was hysterical and nothing short of devastating. They clearly exposed the fact that the "Dangerous Left" is a product of 'Imbecilic Reaction.'

Their concern regarding the apathy and generally low level of consciousness of the student body was clearly presented in a seeming condemnation of concerned students. The part about the girl having to yell "This is not about Vietnam" in order to attract a crowd was particularly effective.

They ended with a prayer to be saved from "those who do not recognize our adversaries." Mr. Hoenig and Mr. Diamond obviously do, and we congratulate them.

Let's have more articles like them!

CONCLUSIONS

To the Editor:

Your "Investigation Into the Vietnamese War" cites evidence and then reaches conclusions totally unrelated. There are three points which you are able to prove: 1) That there are no foreign regular troops fighting with the Viet Cong; 2) That many of their weapons are captured from government forces; and 3) That the average Vietnamese citizen does not support the Saigon regime(s) and it is at best apathetic to the war. You do not prove that direction of the Viet Cong war effort is not in the hands of China and North Vietnam, or that a majority of the Vietnamese people actively favor the Viet Cong cause. These are conclusions you reach as your own interpretation of our failure to "win;" the only documentation you have is Prof. Edel's election forecasts, for what they are worth.

Naturally, the people of Vietnam can have no real loyalty to the fly-by-night governments in Saigon — but this does not mean they necessarily prefer the Communists, whose victory would end all future possibility of self-determination. There is a great difference between apathy and rebellion; you have only shown the existence of apathy, not the rebellion which would justify your use of the term "civil war" . . .

Sincerely yours,
Michael Engel

OTHER GROUPS

To the Editor:

I have just seen a copy of the April 6th issue of Observation Post with the special insert on Vietnam, as well as the editorial calling for support of the Washington March in Protest on Vietnam . . .

By running Hanson Baldwin's article and also running other material presenting some of the facts which Baldwin ignores, and dealing with some of the political realities which Baldwin does not even understand, the Observation Post has performed a signal service. (Those who take the opposite side from my own, and who support U.S. involvement, surely would have to agree that the presentation of both sides was a healthy thing).

You might note that in addition to groups such as DuBois Club, May 2nd, etc., which favor withdrawal of U.S. troops, a number of other groups which are in no way sympathetic to China or the Soviet Bloc take an identical position. The Socialist Party has demanded troop withdrawal, as have all of the pacifist organizations in this country . . .

Sincerely,
David McReynolds
Field Secretary
War Resisters League

NEW LOW

To the Editor:

Your recent "discussion" on the events in Vietnam seemed to have hit a new low in journalism . . . we discover that Professor Edel has read Mr. Baldwin's article . . . Because Mr. Baldwin's article is a reprint, he obviously could not criticize the Professor . . .

Second, although you are upset by the "emotional, unreasoned way" that Vietnam is discussed, you saw fit to include atrocity photos . . . which always appear to have South Vietnamese troops as villains . . .

Third, another fine touch was your editorial statement that "he (the student) must either sign up for the trip, or be identified with the forces advocating American aggression in Vietnam." Perhaps I do not feel we are the aggressors . . .

A strong case for American withdrawal can be made, but it should be labeled as such . . .

Sincerely,
Mark Lubinsky

UNFORTUNATE

As stated in the O.P. editorial, the main purpose of the Vietnam supplement was to help . . . the student to a better comprehension and understanding of the issues involved . . . It is truly unfortunate that O.P. arrangement was unable to give any solid foundation for fruitful cerebration upon the topic.

One instance of this failure of facts was the apparent contradiction between Hanson W. Baldwin's assumption that Chinese Communists are deeply involved in the war, and the theory of the four students that infiltration from outside South Vietnam is nil. There is, no doubt, a possibility of reconciling the two ideas. The Communist influence might be more subtle than can be seen by a cursory observation. This does not, however, seem very likely . . .

...O.P.'s attempt to offer analyses of the situation in Vietnam seemed to me to be useful before I read the supplement. After reading the articles, however, the issues were no more lucid than before. I cannot see how the supplement was successful.

Respectfully,
Elliot J. Trester

OMISSION

To the Editor:

Your special supplement on Vietnam was not inclusive enough . . . there was one glaring omission in your supplement that should definitely have been mentioned. Acting in accord with techniques mastered by other Communist take-over movements, the Viet Cong have conducted a terror campaign of murder, arson, robbery and coercion, not so much against the ever changing Saigon Government, but against the uninformed, and often forgotten peasants . . .

Murder, coercion, and robbery have always been frowned upon by civilized man, and the practitioners of these acts cannot be considered heroes, or even legitimate revolutionaries. On the contrary, they are criminals, with support and direction of a foreign power . . . The United States has been invited by the various governments of South Vietnam to provide aid . . . We have a moral duty to respond . . . our commitment for a free Vietnam must persist.

Sincerely yours,
Arthur Millman

LIBERAL

To the Editor:

I congratulate Messrs. Hoenig and Diamond for venturing a stand, which at the present is seemingly unpopular, as well as OP for printing it.

The fact that being an American and supporting our government's present policies is an unpopular stand is just an indication as to how liberal our liberal student movements are. If one is a liberal, he will accept a contrary opinion as being equal without any implication of sarcasm or derision. Try venturing an opinion that the U.S. should stay in Vietnam at a meeting of Youth Against War and Fascism and you'll get a pretty good idea of the modern "liberal."

onstrations always bring back to mind descriptions of fascist demonstrations, complete with its own inimitable brand of demagoguery, slogans and appeals to prejudices. Yes, prejudices, because our so-called liberals are prejudiced and narrow-minded, focusing all their attention on their goal, shouting down any dissenters.

The most disturbing fact about all these protest movements is that they are centered on United States action. These groups supposedly represent a striving for equality justice human rights. Why was there no group formed when Communist China commit-ed aggressions against India? Why were the demonstrators protesting the suppression of the Hungarian Revolution in 1956 mainly people of East European descent? Perhaps its naive to think that they know a little more about the realities of Communism.

We wonder often why Europeans always end a political discussion with an American, "You Americans have it too good." It's perfectly commendable to stand up for truth and ideals but it's much harder being consequential in your convictions and applying ideal to actual practice.

In Vietnam today we face the grave possibility of a major war. This could be the result of our present pursuance of a basically unsound policy. "Perhaps a new start can be made from an untried base — that Americans, Vietnamese, Chinese and Russians are all sensible human beings who are ready for peace in Southeast Asia, or at least willing to consider it." — (New York Times, Editorial, February 9, 1965). "There may still be a choice: talk or fight. If everybody waits too long, the chance to talk will be gone." (New York Times, Editorial, February 11, 1965). We believe that a peaceful settlement in Southeast Asia is possible. What is urgently necessary now is the cessation of the present escalation of the war, and a re-evaluation of the situation.

Baseballers To Play NYU Today; Beavers Look For Third Straight

By KEN GELLER
This afternoon when the College's baseball team meets NYU at the Violet's Ohio Field at three o'clock, the Beavers will be looking for their third straight win.

Roland Meyreles has been picked by Coach Sol Mishkin to pitch today. In Meyreles' last outing, he pitched the ninth inning in the 7-6 Beaver victory against St. John's on Saturday and was effective.

NYU boasts a 1-1 record, and, like the Beavers, is 1-0 in Conference play, having beaten Manhattan 6-5. The NYU loss was to a strong Hunter nine, 2-0. The Beavers will probably be facing the Violet's top hurler, Bob Castiglione.

A great source of happiness for Mishkin has been the steady performance of Beaver shortstop Barry Mandel. Mandel, only a sophomore, has exhibited some of the finest fielding seen in the Met Conference in recent years, and has many observers believing he is the finest fielder in the league. In addition to making spectacular fielding plays, he has been involved in many key double plays which have taken Beaver pitchers out of many ticklish situations.

Last year, the Beavers split a doubleheader with NYU, bowing 2-0 after winning 13-5. A win over the Violets is essential if the Diamondmen are to keep their hopes of a Met Championship alive.

Other Action Today

This afternoon the College's Lacrosse team will travel up to West Point to face the Army "B" team. Game time is four o'clock.

The Beavers will be looking for their first win of the season. Their record is now 0-2-1 with losses to New Hampshire and Adelphi and a tie with C. W. Post.

TENNIS
The College's tennis team will be looking for its third straight win this afternoon when they meet Yeshiva at three o'clock on the Finley Center courts. Yeshiva does not seem too much of a threat to the Beavers after the Lavender's upset victory over Adelphi and their 8-1 triumph over LIU.

TRACK
This afternoon, when the College's track and field team meets Adelphi in Lewisohn Stadium at three o'clock, the Beavers will be looking for their first victory of the season.

The Lavender lost their first two meets of the season to Montclair and Fairleigh Dickenson.

"WE BELIEVE..."

In Vietnam today we face the grave possibility of a major war. This could be the result of our present pursuance of a basically unsound policy.

"Perhaps a new start can be made from an untried base - that Americans, Vietnamese, Chinese and Russians are all sensible human beings who are ready for peace in Southeast Asia, or at least willing to consider it."

(New York Times, Editorial, Feb. 9, 1965)

"There may still be a choice: talk or fight. If everybody waits too long, the chance to talk will be gone."

(New York Times, Editorial, Feb. 11, 1965)

We believe that a peaceful settlement in Southeast Asia is possible. What is urgently necessary now is the cessation of the present escalation of the war, and a re-evaluation of the situation.

We strongly urge that negotiations be sought sincerely and entered into immediately.
