College To Be Closed On Election Day In Reversal Of Administration Decision

In a reversal of an Administration ruling made last term, the College will be closed on Election Day, November 3rd, and all classes previously scheduled for that date will be held on Veterans' Day, November 11th.

The action came following a recommendation made by the Executive Committee of SG to President Buell G. Gallagher that classes be rescheduled to enable the students from the College to give direct support to the free tuition campaign and to allow students "regardless of their view to both exercise their franchise and participate politically in the election process."

The reduction of holidays had been made, according to Registrar Robert Taylor, in order to more closely approximate the seventy-day term required by the Board of Higher Education.
"This decision," Weitzman declared, "augurs well for the relationship between Student Government and the Administration during the coming year."

SG Considers Nationwide Free Tuition Fight; New Tactics Planned For Campaign In City

Concentrated Effort Envisioned Here

Mayoral candidates Abraham D. Beame (Democrat) and John V. Lindsay (Liberal-Republican), have been invited to speak at a "kick-off" rally on October 21st which will highlight this term's free tuition drive.
"We expect Lindsay to draw a clear line between him and other segments of the Republican party, including Governor Rockefeller, who favor the imposition of tuition," asserted SG President Carl Weitzman.

A number of other measures including the soliciting of the city's 525 labor union locals for support and funds, the establishment of a free tuition advisory board composed of the officers of large campus organizations to help determine free tuition policy, and a positive district level.

Out-of-State Schools To Receive Aid

Proceeding on the impetus of a resolution passed this summer by the National Student Association, Student Government will embark this term on a campaign to help establish nationwide free higher education.

While SG's major concentration between now and November 3rd will be the City University's free tuition effort, steps are already being planned to help expand the free tuition movement to other parts of the country.

Pending acceptance of the program by Student Council this evening, liaison will be established with free tuition movements

Library To Be Air-Conditioned; Installation Plans In Progress

Sultry summer breezes may no longer blow through Cohen Library if plans of the Board of Higher Education are approved. Its budget request for 1966-67 lists $637,000 to install air-conditioning in the library.

$55,000 has already been spent in 1964-65, and $10,000 in 1965-66. Librarian Bernard Kreissman's office has stated that the unit will be installed by the end of the school year.

Kenneth Fleming of the Buildings and Grounds Department was shown the preliminary architectural and engineering plans last week and made several modifications and recommendations.

"No final plans have been completed to date," Fleming said, "it's all in the planning stage."

According to Fleming, the library, erected in 1958, was not built to accommodate air-conditioning. A large part of the expenses will be allocated for modifications on the existing air-circulating system.

Fleming recommended the absorption system as most practical.

Free Tuition: Mayoralty Candidates Speak Out

By ABRAHAM D. BEAME
Excerpts from a speech

I want to accomplish some of the things that are important to you as a student, and also very important to me, as an alumnus, and as Comptroller of the City of New York. At the top of the list is the battle to protect our 118-year-old tradition of free tuition in the city colleges.

One of the most important educational problems facing our city for the future is opening our colleges to more qualified young people from poor families. In order to do that, we must not only preserve our tradition of free tuition, but we must go even further. We must remove some of the other economic handicaps.

I urge a basic change in our concept of higher education. A plan to make it possible for young men and women to stretch out their college courses so that they can attend regular classes, without the stigma of "night school," yet carry lighter academic loads, is needed.

We must have more flexible programming so that any student can take a pre-planned five year course or even a six or seven year course for a bachelor's degree. Students must also be able to attend classes at times most convenient for their own job needs.

Comprehensive Guidance

We must also offer broader, and more comprehensive guidance services for the boys and girls who are prevented from going to school by day because of their economic circumstances.

We must establish an intense and active job placing program to help day and night students find jobs to fit in best with their academic programs. In this way, programming would become much more closely related to students' income-producing needs.

For students whose jobs require college attendance at night, this new approach would mean more guidance counseling and more intensive program planning.

By JOHN V. LINDSAY
Exclusive to OBSERVATION POST

I am in favor of mandated free tuition.

Since 1847 when the people of New York City overwhelmingly approved creation of a free academy for higher education free tuition has been a part of higher education in the city colleges. It must remain a part of our system. Scholastic aptitude, performance and motivation, not economic status, should determine who has the advantage of study at the City University. I am, therefore, in favor of mandated free tuition.

There is a serious shortage of college seats in the City University—in both the senior colleges and community colleges. This shortage has resulted in serious overcrowding and artificially high admission standards for the senior colleges.

Expansion Necessary

We must dramatically expand our City University. Our goal is to provide at least two years of free post-high school education for every student and a full four year college curriculum for all who will benefit from it.

While we must rapidly expand both community and senior colleges, we must be very careful not to undermine their high quality of scholarship, or lower their standards.

Several steps to achieve these goals are necessary. The senior colleges must be expanded so that their entrance requirements are realistic.

Bright Future

The establishment of liason with free tuition campaigns in Connecticut, Minnesota and New Jersey will be considered tonight by Student Council.

This should be but the first step in a concerted effort to mobilize students across the nation to fight for free tuition for all. City University, as the largest university in the country and the most experienced in fighting for free higher education, should rightfully assume leadership of this drive. The College must set a good example by throwing its full support behind this measure.

Council will also consider a plan to open Finley Center to neighborhood children on Saturdays in the near future. These children would not only become familiar with the geography of the College, but might be made aware of the advantages of higher education. Tutoring programs could be expanded to help them eventually gain admittance to the College.

SG President Carl Weitzman hopes to gain the support of foundations and labor unions to run this program. It is an important first step; it should serve to draw the College and the community more closely together. Both will benefit greatly.

Observation Post hopes that Student Council will not waste time with profuse debate on the programs and will get right down to implementing them. If these programs are brought to fruition, this year's Council may be one of the most productive in recent SG history.

Lindsay On Free Tuition

The state must give greater support to the City University to make this possible.

We must improve the high school preparation our system offers. Comprehensive high schools replacing our discredited vocational schools offer a chance to many who were once shunted aside. We must support the development of these schools and demand that they meet their potential.

Further we must recognize and develop the great resource of our community colleges. Both for students who will start to work after completing its course, as well as for those who will continue their education in the senior college, these colleges can pay great dividends to the city and our students. We have not yet capitalized on the potential of our community colleges, and they must be of a high quality.

campaign in one or possibly two districts, have also been proposed to involve more students in the campaign and to help insure its success.

By setting up a telephone battery in Finley and an ad hoc committee for the election of the opponent of Republican Assemblyman Green or Curran, in addition to the methods which have been used in the past in the free tuition campaigns, Weitzman is "convinced we can win in one or the other districts."

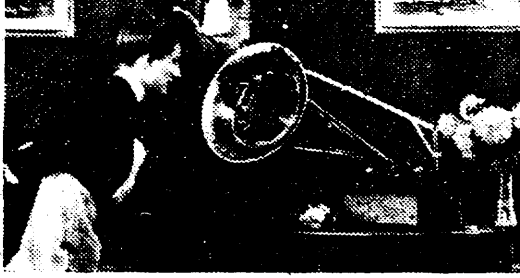

Among Weitzman's other plans for the semester are: the opening of Finley Center to neighborhood children on Saturdays, expanding the leadership training program toward the goal of offering it to every incoming freshman, and a freshman program on Sunday, October 3rd, at which skill and orientation sessions will be held.

NSA Plans

in New Jersey, Minnesota and Connecticut in an effort to coordinate the drives.

The Committee for Undergraduate Education in New Jersey is campaigning for a statewide sales tax to pay for the university education in that state.

In Minnesota a drive to keep tuition down has begun. They are using the slogan "Our Position, Lower Tuition," borrowed from a similar slogan used in the CU's free tuition campaign.

A fight for lower tuition and expanded higher education has also been started in the state of Connecticut.

The College's Technology Council will be communicating with companies and parents' groups throughout the country to urge them to support free tuition.

"If we can focus national interest on the issue we can succeed," declared SG President Carl Weitzman in explaining the campaign.

Weitzman added that he would like to see last year's SG President John Zippert coordinate the drive when he returns from Louisiana in January.

Beame...

It would mean fewer economic sacrifices for many students and a better opportunity to achieve more in class.

Above all, it would go a long way toward opening our colleges to young men and women of all economic conditions.

It is time for the state to meet its obligation to our young men and women. Albany must be made to see that the entire state is responsible for making higher education more available for all of our qualified young people.

Library...

The machinery would be located in the boiler room, with a cooling stack installed on the roof of the library. The system would operate on recirculating water; a fan in the cooling stack would blow air over the water to cool it. Water loss would be kept to a maximum of 2.5%.

Lavender Topples Fordham, 2-1; And Gains Split In Doubleheader

By KEN GELLER

Brilliant four-hit pitching by sophomore Barry Leifer and a clutch triple by junior Jim LaPiano gave the College's baseball team an exciting 2-1 win over Fordham in the second game of a doubleheader played at the Rams' Jack Coffey Field Saturday. The doubleheader marked the beginning of the fall exhibition season for the Lavender. Both games lasted seven innings.

The win enabled the Beavers to gain a split in the twin-bill, as Fordham won the first game 5-2.

Coach Sol Mishkin Sees Beavers Split

Though Beaver hurlers Leifer and Ron Rizzi, who was the losing pitcher in the first game, both pitched four-hitters, the Lavender could only split because of Rizzi's wildness. Rizzi walked fourteen men, two intentionally, in his six innings of work. The bases on balls were especially costly in the Fordham half of the sixth, when, with the score tied at two, four consecutive walks and a single gave the Rams three runs and the victory. Rizzi struck out seven men and allowed five runs, three of them earned.

In the second game the Rams drew first blood, pushing across an unearned run in the third inning. A single, followed by an error by Beaver second baseman Barry Edelstein, put men on second and third base with none out. Leifer struck out the next batter, but the following Ram hitter singled to left. One run scored, but a beautiful throw from leftfield by LaPiano nipped Fordham's other runner at the plate.

In the bottom of the fourth, after Lou Gatti had grounded out, Dave Minkoff took first on a Fordham error. LaPiano followed with his booming three-bagger, which carried well over the head of the Ram's right-fielder. Shortstop Barry Mandel then lined a sharp single to left, scoring LaPiano with what proved to be the winning run.

Meanwhile, pitcher Barry Leifer was growing stronger with each inning. The stylish southpaw was changing speeds beautifully and making use of his moving fastball. Leifer didn't allow a hit after the third inning, and retired eleven in a row during one stretch. In sharp contrast to the first game, which was honeycombed with walks, Leifer walked only two while striking out seven.

Fordham's Dan Beale, a hard-throwing right-hander, was the loser in the second game although he surrendered only two runs, only one of which was earned.

Sophomores Rizzi and Leifer were forced into service because

Booters Vanquish Alumni, 3-1 Team Shows Improved Attack

Each year, the College's soccer team must face the soccer leviathans of yesterday, in its final pre-season scrimmage. And each year, although a little flabbier, the alumni always give a good account of themselves. Saturday's match at Lewisohn Stadium was no exception to the rule, as the varsity battled for a 3-1 victory in this year's edition of the annual alumni-varsity soccer game.

This game is never treated as just an "exhibition" by the players. Each team had "come to play." And play they did—to a scoreless first period. It took until 5:40 of the second period before Bruno Nagler put one in the nets for a 1-0 alumni lead.

Fortunately for the sensitive tempocentrism of the younger generation, the varsity did not stay stunned very long. Just three minutes later, at 8:40, Cliff Soas scored the first goal for the varsity, squaring the tally at 1-1. Then Everard Rhoden, a junior, tallied just two minutes later, at 10:40, to give the varsity a lead they never relinquished. However, it was not until the fourth period that the varsity clinched its victory. Izzy Zaiderman's fine effort put the game out of the reach of the stubborn alumni.

Another happy by-product of the contest was the further development of the search for a replacement for the injured Ahron Davidovitch. The decision is not yet definite, but Emilio Courtes would seem to have the job.

The Booters' regular season begins Saturday against C. W. Post.
