Burns Reverses Position On Free Tuition Bill In Response To District Level Campaigning

By NANCY GOULD
State Assemblyman John Burns (Rep., Staten Island) has reversed his former position against the free tuition mandate. Students from the City University conducted a free tuition campaign in his district last year. "I changed my mind about free tuition in the world today requires that we provide higher education for all qualified students, and I pledge my continued support in the battle to obtain this goal."

Mr. Burns added that he supports the concept of free education on the state level, and would vote for an acceptable Constitutional amendment to rescind tuition in the State University. Commenting on Mr. Burns' policy switch, Student Government President Carl Weitzman commented, "I consider this one of the lonely successes of our four year effort."

In another development, the State Association for Free Tuition in State Colleges will petition

The future of The Campus will be decided at a special executive session of Student Council on Monday.

The meeting has been called by Student Government President Carl Weitzman to determine whether The Campus will have to continue publishing at City-Wide Printers, or will be permitted to terminate its contract and change printers.

City-Wide has threatened a lawsuit of The Campus should it attempt to terminate its contract.

The Campus Managing Board has stated that it will suspend publication unless SG grants the paper the right to leave its current printer, which they have termed "totally unacceptable."

"We could not physically put out the paper there," asserted Frank Van Riper, Editor-in-Chief of The Campus. Three of the four issues which were published at City-Wide this term were "put out with performance less than that to which we are normally accustomed, combined with inexcusable production delays," he maintained.

A recommendation that The Campus publish three more times at City-Wide was passed unanimously yesterday by the SG Executive Committee. The recommendation was passed because "we don't have enough evidence for a court case as of now," said Weitzman. "At this point under no circumstances would I be willing for The Campus to go to an-

An OP Editorial:

'Campus' First

Student Council can lay "The Campus" to rest on Monday. If they do, it will be one of the most dastardly acts they have ever committed.

"The Campus" has been caught up in a situation which isn't of their own doing, and should they become the scapegoats of Council's failure to deal honestly and courageously with this crisis, the College and the students will have been done a great wrong.

While there are many complex issues involved in this situation, there are two questions which should stand out foremost in the minds of Councilmen when they consider what action to take: 1) what is the origin of the crisis, and 2) is "The Campus" justified in their desire to change printers.

Katzenbach Hits Coercive Protests

By NANCY EHRLICH
Special to Observation Post
WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 — United States Attorney General Nicholas — DeB. — Katzenbach, speaking at the American Council on Education criticized student demonstration efforts to coerce that are wrong in principle.

He evaluated student protests in light of civil rights demonstrations in the South. The latter, he said, are legitimate because the Negro is without access to any of the democratic forms of expression. The student on the other hand, has a "range of alternatives," according to Katzenbach. "Put simply," the Attorney General said, "The freedom to eat, to vote, to learn — indeed to live — justifies far more than the freedom to explain four-letter words."

Though he stated that the student does have a genuine grievance against the encroaching depersonalization of the university, he stressed that the complaints are so vaguely expressed and "so pallid by comparison with those of the Negro that to demonstrate over them can be to dilute and debase the moral significance of the demonstrations for civil rights."

He stressed the distinction between the demonstration as an instrument of persuasion and as an instrument of coercion. The channels of communication are open to the student, he said, and even if they are not, there is always recourse to parents or the community at large.

A Crisis In Culture:

Arts at College Face Serious Shortage of Men & Money

Orchestra Needs New Violinists

By RONA SCHWAB

The College's orchestra, short three violinists, may be forced to disband this term.

Unless more violinists and viola players volunteer, concerts will be cancelled.

The orchestra, which last term gave a concert that the chief music critic of the Herald Tribune in a lead review called "excellent," has only four violinists at present.

"The quality is good," reported Fritz Jahoda, (Chmn., Music) conductor of the orchestra, "but the quantity is bad. If we are to give a double concert by Brahms on November 20, there must be more people in the string section to emphasize the romantic quality that is so predominant in his music."
The department has optimistically scheduled six concerts for the term. This year, there will be a deviation from the performances given in the past. In previous years the choir and the orchestra have always performed together at concerts that were held on Friday and Saturday nights. This term, the orchestra and the choir will give separate concerts that will be held on Saturday night only.

The first four concerts scheduled will be held in Aronow Auditorium at 12:30 A.M. on Thursdays. The November 4 concert will be by Mozart and Stravinsky. Haydn's and Bartok's music will be played on November 18. The December 2 concert will be Prokofiev's music, and the en-

Finances Peril Spring Show

Unless money is allocated to the Speech Department's theater project, they will have to cancel their Spring production of "Dark of the Moon," which is to be done in theater-in-the-round style in Great Hall.

More Money Needed

"We will have some of the money necessary for the Spring production, but much more will be needed," reported Associate Professor Frank Davidson, head of the theater project.

Last year it cost the department $1250.94 to produce "The Glass Menagerie." This figure included lighting and trucking costs and rental costs for the seats, risers, and bases. "We

Gallagher Urges Faculty To Hear Students Out; Also Hits Board's Control Over Universities

By JOSH MILLS

"It is a wise faculty which listens to its students as judgments are being formed," President Buell G. Gallagher said in a speech at the Senate Council of Boston University on September 30.

Dr. Gallagher stressed that the faculty must "assume full responsibility for nurturing the growing intellectual and cultural life of students — not only in the classroom, but in the whole of the educational experience."

Teaching is the central function of the university, he continued, and ability to teach must be respected by the administration. "Good teaching must be restored to its rightful place as one of the bases for faculty promotion," he stated.

Dr. Gallagher urged individual departments to allow their "leading lights" to assume major responsibility for introductory courses. He also said that the administration and faculty should respect students as individual persons and "not as a number in a particular set." Students are entitled to "something not in the syllabus and not on the schedule."

Criticizes Berkeley

Dr. Gallagher also made mention of last year's demonstrations at Berkeley. "I happen to believe that the students at Berkeley, under the leadership they accepted, found neither the right spirit nor the right method for achieving their goals," he stated.

But he said, "Their claims to adult responsibilities for making University policy, and for freedom of action in civil rights areas were claims that cried out to be heard."

Dr. Gallagher stressed the importance of the heuristic approach to campus problems, stating, "the pursuit of the heuristic temperament is perhaps the most important task of those who wish to tread the pleasant walks of Academe."

President Buell G. Gallagher Speaks in Boston

Dr. Gallagher also described the legal framework of universities. While schools on the continent are government-managed, South American schools are run by the students and alumni, and British schools are faculty-governed, the universities and colleges of the United States and Canada are run by the "lay governing Board."

Board Control Of Schools

"Neither the president, nor the faculty, nor students have any rights and privileges except those which are enjoyed under decisions reached within the board," he claimed. This has two consequences: any democratic structure is but superficially imposed on an authoritarian one, and the "lay board, by virtue of its absolute powers, also has an absolute responsibility for maintaining the integrity of the institution under its governance." Dr. Gallagher stated that the primary function of this board is protective.

In outlining the power structure of the university, Dr. Gallagher said the lay governing board is "finally accountable for everything that the university is;" the faculties must assume full responsibility for the students' intellectual and cultural growth, and not only in the classroom; the administrators must try to coordinate the various elements of the university and the students must "wrest from an obstinate educational process full value in effort amply rewarded, while completing . . . the generational revolt which always characterizes student life."

Quotes Bob Dylan

In closing his speech Dr. Gallagher said,

"How many ears must one man have
Before he can hear people cry?
How many deaths will it take
'til he knows
That too many people have died?
The answer, my friend, is blowing
in the wind,
The answer is blowing in the wind."

Blood Bank Starting Drive; Registration Opens Oct. 11

By DANIEL WEISMAN

How's your pulse? Have good blood pressure? What about your hemoglobin? Body temp normal? Does your medical history reveal any traces of the feared creeping crud? If you're in fairly decent shape, you are in luck! For a limited time only, qualified students and faculty members of the College will be permitted to donate one pint of their blood to the Blood Bank.

On October 11th through the 15th, registration for donations to the College's Blood Bank will take place in Knittle Lounge (Shepard), the Cohen Library, and Finley Student Center. The Blood Bank is operated entirely by the College, and its resources are available to all students, faculty and their families. This service is maintained at no cost to its beneficiaries. Blood usually runs as high as $35 a pint.

Although this service has yet to meet its full potential, it is a valuable program and is in dire need of popular support, according to Dr. Harry Meisel (Student Life).

The list will remain confidential (so those who are dodging the draft—worry not). Students who are not yet 21 must present parental consent before they can donate blood.

All donations will be accepted on November 3rd and 4th in Knittle Lounge and the Grand Ballroom. For all the devout cowards out there, there is NO pain!! A modified pin prick does the job. For further information, contact Dr. Meisel in Room 119 Finley or call him at AD 4-2000.

HPA Pledges Its Full Support To Anti-Tuition Campaign Here

In a move towards strong political commitment, House Plan Council last Monday night pledged its full support to the Free Higher Education Campaign of the City University.

Addressing the first council meeting of the term, House Plan (HPA) President Alan Fleishman pledged personnel towards a fund-raising drive on behalf of the tuition fight. House and Dynasty delegates were requested to submit estimates of manpower and contributions from their individual groups.

Tickets to the Byrds' concert at Hunter College Auditorium, the profits of which are slated for the tuition fight, will be bought in large blocks by HPA, in proportion to the number of "pledges to buy" which their members submit. Over and above that number, Fleishman stated an additional group of tickets will be bought with the profits of several fund-raising drives, and distributed free to needy neighborhood children.

A reasonably close estimation of the total ticket purchase which HPA will make will not be available until the reports of the House representatives are delivered next Monday; Fleishman has set his tentative goal at 500 of the total 2400 seats.

Student Government President Carl Weitzman, speaking at the meeting, stressed the need for wholehearted support of the Free Tuition effort by every student, warning that "your social life, and at times — though not too frequently — your educational life, depends umbilically upon the Free Tuition policy of the City University."

As an illustration of the potential strength of the student effort, Weitzman cited the example of Assemblyman John M. Burns, (Rep., Man.) formerly opposed to mandatory free tuition, who "gave me permission to use his name and to state that he had changed his vote—which he did — because of our efforts last year."

Carl Weitzman Stresses Free Tuition

Weitzman also disclosed that City Comptroller Abraham Beame (Dem.), who has declared himself in favor of mandatory free tuition during his campaign for the mayoralty, has been challenged in the form of a letter by SG leaders to demonstrate his good faith by using his current power as Comptroller to reverse his decision of 1963, to charge Architecture students for all credits in excess of 128.

[Architecture students, who are enrolled for a five-year course, need a greater number of credits than students majoring in any other field. Under a decision made by Comptroller Beame, these students pay tuition on such credits, even though they are required.]

Kugler Asks Unionization Of Teachers Here To Strengthen Their Position In Bargaining

By ARTHUR VOLBERT

Unionization of teachers at the College was called for by Dr. Israel Kugler, president of the United Federation of College Teachers (UFCT), yesterday.

Speaking before the College's UFCT chapter, Dr. Kugler said he hoped his union, an affiliate of the AFL-CIO, would soon become strong enough to be elected collective bargaining agent at the College. The union now has about one hundred members here.

The UFCT already has enough members among the Engineering and Science assistants to petition the Board of Higher Education (BHE) for an election at this department. If the Board does not grant this election at its next meeting, October 25, the UFCT will set up pickets to "inform the public" of its position.

Dr. Israel Kugler Calls For Unionization

In advocating unionization, Dr. Kugler said that teachers were now at a disadvantage in asking the City Budget Authority and BHE for funds. "The BHE defers to the Mayor and the college presidents. At the bottom—inarticulate and weak, doing practically nothing—are the faculty councils and individual faculty members," he said.

"The Board of Estimate operates like an Oriental bazaar," he added. "Those that bargain hardest get the most."

Canadian Colleges Plan Nationwide Protest Against Rising Cost Of Higher Education

By VERNA HASKINS

College campuses across Canada will participate in a national demonstration to protest the rising costs of higher education on October 27th.

"Universal accessibility" to higher education is the slogan of the Canadian Union of Students (CUS), which is sponsoring the protest. Each local council will decide its own form of action.

The protest will be preceded and followed by an education and publicity campaign on the problem of higher education.

The main aim of the CUS is "the abolition of all social and financial barriers to post-secondary education." "University doors will be open to the student even if he hasn't a penny in his pocket," declared Sharon Sholberg, a student leader.

The resolution, proposed to the CUS by John Cleveland, President of the King's College Student Union and adopted by delegates from forty-five member institutions, declared that the abolition of tuition fees should be the first step towards these principles. There was only one dissenting vote.

Another resolution proposed by Victoria University stated that there would still be a discrepancy between annual student expenditure and education after the abolition of tuition fees. It went on to say that modification of existing student loan schemes could be a step towards initial elimination of loans. They would be refundable upon successful completion of each academic year under this plan. In addition the congress adopted a 13-point educational action program.

In opposition to the CUS decision a delegate from Waterloo University College said rich parents would rather pay directly than have sky-high income tax.

In the Canadian province of Newfoundland, free tuition was extended to second year students attending Memorial University.

Rosenberg To Seek Judgeship

Dr. Gustave G. Rosenberg, Chairman of the Board of Higher Education, (BHE) will run as the Republican-Liberal candidate for a seat on the State Supreme Court. Dr. Rosenberg vowed to carry on his duties as BHE chairman with "undiminished interest and vigor" during the campaign. Citing his reasons for staying at his position, he stated that:

Salary negotiations with the faculty of the City University would be negotiated shortly, capital budget requests for 1966-67 would be drawn up to meet the 1970 goals of the master plan, and sites for new colleges for the City University complex would have to be worked out at once.

Independent Viet Comm. Sets Student-Faculty Rally and Vigil

A rally to protest the war in Vietnam will be held Friday by the College's Independent Committee to End the War in Vietnam.

It will be held from 1:00 PM to 3:00 PM on 136 Street between Convent and Amsterdam Avenues, and will follow a morning vigil whose location in front of the Library must still be approved by Student Government.

Two student speakers, and several professors and outside speakers will be invited. The two student speakers will be Mark Brody, editor of Observation Post, and Arthur Kopecky, a member of the Committee. An acceptance to speak has already been received by the Committee from Conrad Lynn, a lawyer who defended Dave Mitchell in his refusal to be drafted on moral grounds.

Prof. Lustig (Physics) has also agreed to speak at the rally.

Congress Considering Tax Credit Measure For All Students Paying Tuition In College

A tuition tax credit measure will be studied and may pass in the current session of the 89th Congress.

The concept of granting tax credits for some expenses of higher education has had bipartisan backing in both houses of Congress for more than a decade, but has never been enacted into law.

In 1964, a bill introduced by Senator Abraham A. Ribicoff, (D.-Conn.) and Peter H. Dominick, (-Colo.), and co-sponsored by 35 senators of both parties failed passage by the narrow margin of 48 votes to 45. The bill has been re-introduced in the present Congress.

During recent weeks added support for tax credit legislation has come from such groups as the Young Republican Federation and the House Republican Conference.

Educators, too, are demonstrating strong backing for the measure. A poll shows that more than 89 per cent of college presidents and trustees favor the principles embodied in tuition tax credit.

Educational organizations voicing support for the principle include the Association of American Colleges and the Citizens for Educational Freedom.

The tuition tax credit concept stems from widespread concern over the mounting costs of tuition and fees at both private and publicly supported colleges and universities. Proponents of the measure note that costs have been rising at an increasing rate, and that all evidence indicates that they will continue to do so.

Increased enrollments, increases in faculty salaries, and general increases in expenses have forced annual operating budgets sharply upward. The increased budgets have been mirrored almost universally in alarming rises in the cost of a college education to the student and his family.

Tuition tax credit was conceived to relieve financial pressure on persons paying for college educations and to reduce the threat of students being priced off the campus.

The measure would permit a credit against the Federal income tax of persons paying for tuition, fees, and other essential expenses of college students.

The amount of credit would be

75 per cent of the first $200 spent, 25 per cent of the next $300, and 10 per cent of the next $1,000. The maximum credit allowable would be $325.

The tax credit would come to anyone—student, relative, friend, or benefactor—paying the educational costs.

In addition, scholarship-holding students from middle-income

May 2 Movement Conducts Course On Vietnam War

The May 2nd Movement (M2M) is planning to "fill a gap" in the College's curriculum with a ten-week study group covering the aspects of Vietnamese history relevant to the present conflict.

M2M feels that a full understanding of the war is impossible without reading the "words of the protagonist," the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam, and of Hanoi, "which are in ideological fraternity."

The goal will be to achieve understanding of the war, and the student's role in it, according to one spokesman for the group. To accomplish this, sources and views from all sides will be analyzed, he added. Those interested should leave their name and phone numbers in M2M's mailbox in Room 152 Finley.

Students To Appear On TV

Students from the College are asked to participate in Channel 13's TV lecture series this fall entitled "The Master Class," featuring top teachers from colleges in the area. The first program, "How Man Forgets" with Prof. Henry Gleitman head of the psychology department at the University of Pennsylvania, will be taped this Monday in Studio 55 at 55th Street and Ninth Avenue at 6:30 PM. To make the show more realistic there will be a student audience and opportunities for questions at the end of the lecture.

SG To Tutor Harlem Children; Seeks Expanded Student Aid

By Harry W. Lew

A program of neighborhood service has been launched by Student Government's Community Affairs Committee this semester. Students from the College are again being recruited to work with Harlem elementary and junior high school children by the Tutorial Subcommittee. It is hoped that last year's successful pilot program of about 50 tutors in six schools will expand to over 500 participating in more schools in the area.

Remedial reading and arithmetic were most frequently taught, but there will be opportunities to do advanced work in math, science, writing, social studies and other areas this term. Tutors begin work in the individual schools after an initial orientation sessions and usually devote about 2 hours per week either during or after the children's school time. Instruction relationships are one-to-one and program materials and expert advice are at the tutors' disposal.

Paul Biderman, Community Affairs Vice-President, characterized student apathy as the main difficulty in last year's project. An exhaustive campaign is planned to interest students in tutoring.

All interested are urged to contact Biderman at the Student Government office in Room 331 Finley.

NSA: An Explanation

By Janis Lubawsky

Janis Lubawsky is the National Student Association Coordinator from the College, and was a representative to this summer's NSA Congress.

The concept of student responsibility to the demands of the community and of student participation in molding the world in which they live is one which no individual can ignore. Because, traditionally, American students expressed their point of view through campus student government, much limitation of action resulted. In 1947, the United States National Student Association (USNSA) was formed as a means by which constituent student governments could be more effective in voicing their opinions and in bettering their individual welfare.

The National Student Congress is a representative body of delegates from the more than 300 campuses of which NSA is composed. At the annual Congress, seminars and lectures are programmed in which domestic and international issues are discussed. Out of this study come proposals for ameliorating, extending, or criticizing actions taken which affect "students in their role as students." By this phrase, NSA recognizes the broad sphere of action in which the student is or should be a determining factor; it also recognizes that its first responsibility is aiding member campuses to offer the fullest variety of educational programming and intellectual endeavor. As a result of proposals offered over the last eighteen years at the National Student Congress, NSA has embarked upon an ambitious program which City College Student Government has recognized and has taken a part in determining. This past summer six delegates, determined by school-wide election, represented the College at the National Student Congress.

NSA is a national union of students. In this capacity, it represents American students at the International Student Conference. Here it has consistently sought to develop cooperation and understanding with and among foreign students. The views expressed by the National Student Congress are the basis upon which it relates the views of member campuses on international as well as domestic issues. These views are germane to the Conference, since foreign students are naturally curious about student views on such issues as civil rights, American foreign policy in Vietnam and San Domingo, the War on Poverty, Medicare and so on.

NSA works primarily, however, as a storehouse of ideas, programming, and information of interest to students. Thus the Student Government of the College can receive aid in formulating a tutorial project, or a science sequence course, or a cultural series, or a Constitution. This aid may take the form of reports or experiments done at other campuses, with which they might not have otherwise been in communication; it may also be in the form of NSA staff members coming to the campus to work closely with the student government on the formulation of programs, and the determination of tactics by which they may be put into effect.

On a nationwide level, NSA acts as a cohesive body through which issues of national scope may be brought to the public. The movement for tuition-free higher education will be coordinated by NSA's national staff. The City University of New York will probably be in the vanguard of this movement, and, it provided, this past summer, the impetus for NSA to undertake the project.

Questions of student welfare are of great importance. Anyone who has traveled in Europe will undoubtedly remember the value of International Student I.D. Cards, which are distributed by NSA. This year the I.D. Cards will have the added advantage of offering discounts on hostels, museums, and restaurants in the United States. NSA has expressed its agreement with the principle of the 18-19-20 year old vote. This year, the organization shall attempt to add to the momentum which already surrounds this issue. The question of academic freedom for both professors and students is vitally important to the functioning of a free university community. Thus, when cases of infringement of this right occur, NSA verbally will reinforce its commitment and work towards aiding the campus retain its free atmosphere.

NSA by reaffirming the concept of the role of the student as a participant in the educational process is operating to increase student involvement in the issues which affect him as a student. By acting in the sphere of national organization, it thus works towards fulfilling its goal of integrating the university and the student into a free and democratic society.

Gallagher Criticizes Faculty Library Abuses; Finds 'Fines Much Too Small,' Not A Cure

President Buell G. Gallagher declared Monday that "anyone who keeps a book out of the library, when even one other person needs it," should be fired immediately.

Speaking on alleged abuses of library privileges by members of the faculty, he asserted that all members of the College should be treated equally regarding fines and penalties.

"A responsible person will regard the library as something other than a private source of books for private use," he asserted. When a book is not needed or requested by anybody else, he said, the possibility of extended borrowing could be considered. However when this fundamental criterion is absent, Dr. Gallagher maintained, keeping books overdue is "stealing from others."

While Dr. Gallagher feels that fines are much too small, he declared that "fines don't rectify the matter." He deplored the use of provisional probation and

Jersey Gubernatorial Hopeful Asks Rutgers Teach-In Inquiry

An investigation of alleged abuse of academic freedom at Rutgers University has been called for by State Senator Wayne Dumont, Republican candidate for Governor of New Jersey. In a letter to the University president, the candidate asked for a panel to explore what he called "outrageous, seditious, and possibly treasonable" remarks made at Vietnam teach-ins there. Rutgers is the state university.

The letter, made public last Sunday, referred to comments of Rutgers Prof. Eugene D. Genovese and Drew University Prof. James G. Mellen. Both men, speaking at different teach-ins, said they "would welcome the impending victory of the Viet Cong."

The teach-in, organized by the Committee for Free Speech as a result of the Genovese incident, was to have dealt with academic freedom but many lecturers also hit at U. S. policy in Vietnam.

Sen. Dumont has demanded that Prof. Genovese be fired for making the remark last April 23. Prof. Mellen repeated it on Thursday, September 30 at a second Rutgers teach-in.

Prof. Mellen faces a possible dismissal from Drew because of his statement. The University's president charged that Mellen's speech was "irresponsible" and said he would call for a faculty committee to reconsider Mellen's contract.

In his letter, Sen. Dumont noted that Prof. Genovese is a former Communist and asked these questions: "Was the university aware of the background of Prof. Genovese when it gave employment to him? Were any of those directly responsible for his employment also former members of the Communist party? How much longer is the state university going to provide a forum for utterances even more reprehensible than those of Prof. Genovese?"

The letter came a day after the executive committee of the New Jersey Department of the American Legion proposed that campus teach-ins on Vietnam be suspended.

State Commander William Hugard said: "We take the position that in view of the fact we are supporting the President 100 per cent in Vietnam, we are not in a position to question his policy."

other means of giving delinquents a second chance, asserting that they should be dismissed from the College at the first offense "with no chance to come back."

NSA Is Seeking Peaceful Solution For Middle East

The National Student Association (NSA) will sponsor a panel discussion on peaceful solutions to the Israel-Arab dispute, Sunday. Arab, Israeli, and American speakers representing a broad spectrum of views will discuss alternatives to war between the combatant nations.

The conference, which is open to the public, will be followed by an extensive depth analysis of Arab-Israel relations in a series of seminars. Joel Glassman, coordinator of the program, emphasized that the purpose of the study is to seek practicable solutions, not to document past hostilities. The NSA hopes to publish the findings of the seminars in a book, to fill what Glassman called an "absence of objective literature" on the subject of the war in the Middle East.

Students who are interested in participating in the seminars may apply after the conference. The eight hour meeting will be held at the Carnegie Endowment for Peace building on 46th Street and UN Plaza at 10 AM.

Honor . . .

Applications for Lock & Key and Blue Key, the Senior Honorary Leadership Societies, will be available next week for Juniors and Seniors in Room 152 Finley.

'Campus' First

Prior to this term the relationship between the newspapers and their printers had been a private one. The decision as to which printer a paper would use was made by the managing board of that newspaper. This term there was a radical departure from this relationship. For the first time Student Government stepped into this aspect of the functioning of a student newspaper. After publishing their first issue satisfactorily with CUNY Printers, bids were solicited from both CUNY and City-Wide printers by SG and Council mandated "The Campus" to go the City-Wide.

The editors who put out "The Campus" are not machines—they are students attempting to perform a service for the student body. Their relationship with their printer is of the utmost importance. The numerous mechanical difficulties which "The Campus" encountered when attempting to put out the paper, when added to the psychological and emotional tension which existed between their printer and themselves, forced them to do what no college editor would do under any but the most unbearable circumstances—cease publication. Can there be any doubt in anyone's mind that "The Campus" is sincerely dissatisfied, if they feel that they would rather cease publication than continue at their present printers?

While there have been irresponsible acts on the parts of all parties involved in this dispute, including "The Campus," the conditions which gave rise to these acts should never have existed. There remains only one course of action for Student Council—to permit "The Campus" to move. Any other course of action will signal the death-knell of one of the oldest College traditions, "The Campus" newspaper.

Free Tuition: What Goal?

Professor John A. Davis' (Chmn., Pol. Sci.) attack on the proposed strategy for the City University Free Tuition Campaign as politically unsound raises a pertinent question for students at the College to consider.

Essentially, Prof. Davis rebuts the strategy on two grounds: 1) that by asking the legislature to re-adopt the Free Tuition Mandate, we are implicitly accepting their right to impose or withdraw tuition at will, i.e., to control it, and 2) that it is not feasible to expect upstate legislators to support Free Higher Education for New York city residents while their own constituents must pay tuition.

The "Campus," in an editorial which appeared last Friday, argued that the professor had shown the campaign to have a politically unsound and therefore perhaps politically precarious foundation. "Professor Davis' evaluation of the free tuition campaign has . . . proven the present campaign to be potentially harmful . . ." they argue, and from there go on to suggest that a positive attack should be sacrificed in favor of a behind-the-scenes drive for the abolition of tuition in state universities.

In its precipitate jump backwards from the jaws of danger, the "Campus" has overlooked several quite important considerations:

The Arts At The Wayside

Two of the College's most important cultural activities are in danger of being sharply curtailed this semester. The Orchestra will not be able to give a concert unless they find three more violinists and the Speech Department has been unable to procure funds for its Spring '66 production.

The College has a tradition of providing significant intellectual contributions to the city. Last term's Orchestra concert was praised as "excellent" in the "New York Herald Tribune." The arts have provided a valuable training ground for many students to put what they have learned in class to use.

It is not enough for the College to enjoy a reputation as a top academic school — it must continue to demonstrate that its lessons are not only well-learned but can be put

Students in New York City can best be mobilized to fight for the continuation of free tuition here, to place "the fear of God in City Hall and the BHE." The students of the City University must continue, and expand, the struggle for free tuition in New York City. It must remain an issue in the city until it is politically unviable for any politician to take a stand for tuition or its imposition.

Forcing the State Legislature to pass a free tuition mandate will not necessarily result in their acquiring the power to impose tuition on the City University. The BHE and City Hall can be made to continue an unequivocal stand against tuition.

However, Prof. Davis' point that we are placing upstate politicians in a precarious position is a good one. We agree wholeheartedly that a much greater emphasis must be placed on working with upstate schools to build a statewide movement.

If we can begin to build a statewide movement, employing such tactics as a united march on Albany and sending teams of CU people to upstate schools, we will become an effective lobby in Albany and begin work on what should be the major goal of our effort—an amendment to the State Constitution mandating free tuition throughout New York State.

The Orchestra and the theater present to the city some of the best efforts of the College and its students. Their loss will be a drastic step in the crawl towards conversion from a school to a huge factory. Their loss would deny students an important means of expression. Their loss will be a black mark on the College's record.

Strong support for the programs of the Music and Speech Departments must be shown by all students and faculty members who do not want to stand by and watch the College's cultural heritage die.

President Gallagher should immediately use his influence to try to save the dwindling intellectual life of the College from further shrinkage.

Forum On Students' Problems

By Collegiate Press Service

Boulder, Colo. — A "Bitch-in on the Multiversity," a vocal referendum on the problems of student life, has been scheduled early this month at the University of Colorado.

Modeled after the teach-ins on Vietnam, the bitch-in will be aimed at attacking what the student thinks is wrong with the university, why, and what can be done about it.

Unlike the teach-ins, however, there will be no formal planned speeches. All comments and criticism will come directly from the students themselves.

As each student enters the auditorium, he will be given a numbered IBM card which he will be encouraged to bend, fold, staple, or mutilate. In numerical order, each cardholder will have five minutes to sound off. Only the ordinary rules of good taste will apply; subject matter and position will be wide open.

Sponsored by the national affairs commission of the Associated Students of the University of Colorado, the bitch-in is intended not only to allow the individual student to "get it off his chest," but to provide a set of goals and priorities for action on the problems of the student.

The committee planning the bitch-in said that the meeting would not be closed to the positive aspect and those who had praise for the university and the university system would also be welcome to speak.

Participation is open to every student and "no gripe is too small to be aired," the campus is being told. The session will begin at 8 PM and continue as long as there are speakers.

Election Re-Run Fills Six Seats

Re-run elections for six Class of 1966 and 1968 Student Council seats, voided in last term's balloting because of clerical errors, were decided Tuesday.

Paul Urbania (Campus First) lead the field with 62 votes, followed by Alan Frishman and Janis Lubawsky (Commitment) with 47 votes. Robert Winick (Campus First), 45 votes, and Sheldon Sachs, 43 votes, filled the remaining vacancies in the Class of 1966.

Karen Tischelman defeated Richard Tropp 131-76 in the Class of 1968 re-run.

Kugler Asks Unionization

Dr. Kugler cited what he termed the success of the United Federation of Teachers (UFT), the union for high school and elementary school teachers. "The UFT was willing to put their jobs on the line four times in order to bring the Board of Education kicking and screaming into the twentieth century," he stated.

He hoped that his union would not have to call for strikes but said that "if we ever reached a limit where professionals cannot perform services adequately it may come to that."

Dr. Kugler decried the imposition of large lecture classes in the City University and said that his union would work to have them abolished. He said that expansion of class size was no answer to added enrollment and called for the appointment of more teachers to solve the problem. He also called for a reduction in the number of hours per week a teacher must spend in the classroom.

Dr. Kugler asked that the Board of Higher Education be given a lump sum by the City to spend as it saw fit instead of having to have each item of its budget approved by the Board of Estimate. He said that Mayoral candidates Abraham Beame and John Lindsay both favored this approach.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FOOT BALL

To The Editor:

After reading your article on club football in the September 30 issue of Observation Post, I felt that I should write you this note. I am sure that you will be getting many letters denouncing you for your stand. This letter, I hope, will help insure your thoughts. Your article was one of the best (on sports) that I have seen in three years at City. I saw you at that game (CCNY-Fordham baseball) and in this way I know that you know what you are writing about.

The student support to the teams in this school is deplorable. Maybe a few more articles like yours will wake up these pseudo-athletes. Being a physical education major I can tell you that many of the teachers and coaches feel the same way that you do. Good luck in your journalistic endeavors here at City.

Patrick Vallance
Member of the Varsity Basketball team, Co-Captain of the Varsity Lacrosse Team.

FOOTBALL?

To The Editor:

Your Mr. Kenneth Geller is to be congratulated for saying what has been needed to be said for a long time. His column of September 30, aside from being extremely well written, is unique in its position of being against the reinstatement of football at City College.

We students at CCNY have for too long been deluged with columns pleading for football here without giving a sane reason why. It is good to see the other side receive some space. Observation Post and Mr. Geller can both be proud.

CUBA TRIP

An American citizen is not permitted to travel to Cuba, China, North Vietnam, North Korea, and Albania. What is it about these countries that distinguishes them, in the mind of the State Department, from the other nations of the world? For one thing they are all socialist states.

But more important, the present social system in all these countries, with the exception of Albania, is the result of a successful struggle for national liberation, much along the lines of the present struggle in the south of Vietnam. Americans are not allowed to witness these systems at work.

I cannot stress how harmful and dangerous the State Department's travel ban is; and in so many ways. First, by depriving the citizen of one of his basic civil liberties, the right to travel, it is unconstitutional.

Second, it is basically undemocratic. Since one of the necessary prerequisites for a functional democracy is a well-informed public; and since the travel ban directly prevents the citizen from getting knowledge on pertinent topics, it is an anti-democratic institution.

But most important, the travel ban is an integral instrument in the pursuance of our government's present foreign policy, a policy which is becoming frighteningly reactionary. Take a look at our two most recent major actions: the escalation of the war in Vietnam and the invasion of the Dominican Republic. Both of these actions were undertaken to prevent the "guerillas" and "rebels" in these countries from taking power. (Upon examination one discovers that these forces actually have the support of the majority of the people in spite of their programs to make revolutionary changes in their countries—or rather just because of these programs).

It is no accident that the countries Americans are not allowed to visit are just those which have had successful popular revolutions. How much more difficult (perhaps impossible) it would be for the State Department to convince us that it is doing the just thing in suppressing these revolutions, if we were informed about the nature of these revolutions.

I doubt that the government would have been supported in its invasion of Santo Domingo "to prevent another Cuba" if Americans had known what the first Cuba was all about.

Well, in the summers of 1963 and '64 one hundred and fifty students decided to see for themselves what Cuba was all about. They returned and started to tell people that Cuba was not as they read in the papers here.

On Thursday, October 7, four leaders and organizers of the first trip are being brought to trial in Brooklyn Federal Court. They face a maximum penalty of twenty years in prison. Their legal costs are tremendous—they need your help! They need it both financially and morally. I hope we can count on you when the time comes. I will keep in touch. Thanks.

To the Editor:

APATHETIC AMERICANS

A country with more wealth than any other country in the history of civilized man. A country where the penalty for manslaughter depends upon where you live and if the victim is black or white.

On August 20 "In the year of our Lord" 1965, Thomas Coleman murdered in cold blood Jonathan Daniels, an Episcopal seminary student. On September 30 "In the year of our Lord" 1965, this same man Thomas Coleman, was acquitted of manslaughter by, to quote the Long Island Press, "twelve friends and neighbors." This may be the year of our Lord but this is by no means the country of our Lord.

The defendant was acquitted but the jury was convicted. The jury was so bigoted that the whole of our judicial system is collapsing around us. Every man, woman and child that lives in this country bears the moral responsibility to uphold the laws of this country.

The laws of this country are designed to protect the individual, but I do not believe that we are worthy of this protection. Communism is a threat to this country, but the Apathetic American doesn't need any help. May the Lord bless and keep you, because no one else will do anything more than stand by and watch.

Students who wish to release pent up anxieties towards College personnel can now Dial-A-Complaint at 964-2247. An answering service will receive complaints and suggestions concerning relations between students and cafeteria staff, all clerical and administrative personnel, and the Bookstore.

Student Government will follow up every complaint with an investigation, promised SG President Weitzman. He said that SG will issue a White Paper later this term publicizing the conditions College students find objectionable.

Students who wish to work for SG committees may use the same telephone number to volunteer their services.

The Wind Blows, But The Leaves Have Not Yet Fallen

By P. WARFIELD

Unusual, I thought. Every year at the end of the summer when the leaves upstate were still green, the city's leaves were already turning brown. But this year, the beginning of October has come and lush green leaves remain in large quantities on much of the city's arboreal population. Why?

This week many campus trees, like the one shown, still bore most of their leaves. But . . .

To answer this question, I went to a quiet biology lab the other evening, where Professor Copeland (Bio.) was just preparing to leave for home. I followed him around as he went from display to display, talking all the while at a speed calculated to give writer's cramp to whoever didn't fall over first, dizzy from following the energetic gentleman around the lab.

Why Leaves Fall

What makes the leaves fall? Generally it happens pretty fast after the first frost of the year. "Until yesterday we haven't had any frost," said the professor, and that's why most of the leaves haven't fallen yet. Ordinarily, drought or an early frost cause premature falling and prevent leaves from developing much color. Although we've had a considerable drought this year, it's been raining rather well since mid-September. That and a late frost have let the leaves remain on the trees.

What about color? According to Professor Copeland, maximum coloration occurs if the season has been very moist and the leaves have been healthy up to the time of a delayed frost. This depends more on the end of the summer, and since the soil is now reasonably moist, and the frost has been late, there should be "reasonable coloration" this fall.

Brightness

Having weaved in and out among the biology desks in an attempt to keep up with Prof. Copeland, I was now a bit dizzy. But on he went. "Some species are inherently brighter than others," he continued. The sugar and red maples and the sourgum are among them. White oak never have much color. Around the campus, the Ginkgos turn bright yellow in almost any season. "If there's frost tonight the Ginkgo should be turning yellow in two or three days. The sugar maple, found primarily in nearby woods — Westchester and New Jersey — would be turning its yellow-red color within a week.

The red maple, more common in the city, where it can be found in Van Cortlandt, Inwood, and Prospect parks, and in Pelham Bay — will also be turning its flaming deep purplish-red color. But this brilliant tree will turn without frost. Its coloration is not affected by drought, since it grows in wet soils.

Effects of Drought

Most affected by the drought are the trees which grow in hilly or shallow soil areas. Drought affects their water supply more directly than it does the wet-soil trees. Some shallow soil trees such as the sugar maple, black and red oak, and the hickories can be found on the slopes of the Palisades or any hilly section of the woods — or next to the parkways north of the city. "There has been much more drought injury to these." The dry-soilers "have lost half their leaves already," said the professor, politely ushering us out of the now-dark lab, apologizing that I was still welcome in his office ("come on in, we don't stand on formality here.").

Soon more and more trees will lose their leaves like this one, and . . .

How about our city trees? "Very few of our native trees can take the bad air of the city. The native elm, which "turns brown without much fanfare" have been reduced in the last 20 years by Dutch elm disease. Those imports that survive the fumes, poor soil, and dust are the London plane and Ginkgo which are outstanding for their hardiness. Other successful city species are the Tree of Heaven (It's A Tree Grows In Brooklyn) and the Chinese elm.

Tree Origins

And where did these foreigners come from? Prof. Copeland gingerly closed the office door and headed with us towards the now-dark street where he hoped to catch some far-off train. The London plane, its bark a mottled brown with yellow-green spots and bearer of the "itchy ball," is a hybrid American Sycamore and Oriental plane. It was first produced in Europe and planted in London. Since any hybrid has fewer enemies and this one was especially successful in London's bad air, it was brought over to America in 1900. The Chinese Elm, a delicate tree with fairly small leaves, came here from China in 1920. An even more exotic journey took the Ginkgo from China via Japan to the U. S. in 1892, and the Tree of Heaven, an extremely hardy tree common where the soil is poor — "it is practically a weed now; it comes up on its own" — came here sometime before the others.

"The Chinese and Japanese have domesticated trees for a long time and are therefore a good source for us." If we had cultivated trees for 4,000 years like the Chinese," Prof. Copeland added quickly "we'd be doing as well too."

And with not much time remaining him, we bid Prof. Copeland good night as he dashed into a cab that would take him to a train, and out somewhere where the leaves will soon be turning.

Where they go, nobody knows.

Community College Gets Jay Street Building; Wagner Accepts Navy Yard Annex For City

New York City Community College, one of the eleven colleges of The City University of New York, has received the Jay Street Annex of the New York Naval Shipyard for the expansion of its classroom and laboratory facilities. The 8-story brick and concrete building, located at Jay and High Streets (two blocks from the main campus at 300 Pearl Street, was acquired on September 30.

In a ceremony at City Hall, Mayor Robert F. Wagner accepted the property on behalf of the City. The deed bears the signature of Mayor Wagner, Mr. Joseph B. O'Connor, regional director of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare acting on behalf of the Federal Government; and Dr. Gustave G. Rosenberg, chairman of the Board of Higher Education.

Also participating in the ceremony were the Honorable Abe Stark, Brooklyn Borough President, and Dr. Murray Block, acting president of the college.

"Demands on New York City Community College have accelerated in recent years," Mayor Wagner said. "It has distinguished itself in career programs in the engineering sciences, medical services, and business and the college is now participating in the City University College Discovery Program. Together the Jay Street building, Namm Hall, now under construction, and the Pearl Street building will enable the college to enroll 5,100 day students by 1970 as compared with 3,000 this fall. Thousands of students will benefit over the years from the building now made available to us by the Federal Government."

Dr. Rosenberg said, "We are already at work on plans for alterations costing about $2,500,000, and we hope to occupy a substantial portion of the building by September 1966. We will be able to discontinue the use of Frankling Hall as we open our new quarters, and students will soon be brought home from scattered sites to the three fine, adjacent structures which will be the permanent campus."

The Jay Street property has about 169,000 square feet of floor area and occupies about one-half acre of land. The building was used as a materiel testing laboratory for the New York Shipyard before being declared surplus.

The site was approved on June 1, 1965, by the Site Selection Board and Mayor Wagner addressed an application for the property to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare on June 4, 1965.

tion the National Student Association in November for money, manpower, clerical help and other assistance in the drive to extend free tuition to all state universities. CUNY is distributing "New York: Make Your Colleges Free" buttons upstate in a drive to get a constitutional amendment guaranteeing state-wide free tuition through the Legislature. If Assemblyman Paul Curran (Rep., Manhattan), who opposed the City University mandate on the grounds of Home Rule supports the constitutional amendment, CUNY will drop plans to campaign against him in his district. Curran recently stated that he is "seriously considering" voting for the amendment.

Telephones will be in operation tomorrow in Room 223 Finley for use in the free tuition campaign. Volunteers will make calls in crucial districts in an effort to elect candidates who are pledged to support free-tuition. The phones will also be used to defend Bronx Democrats who have been threatened by re-apportionment.

In another effort to help the free tuition drive, House Plan Association (HPA) has pledged the purchase of approximately 200 tickets to the Byrds' concert. The tickets will be distributed free of charge to neighborhood children. SG President Carl Weitzman praised the HPA: "This kills two Byrds with one stone. It is a community project and a donation to the free tuition campaign." IFC will purchase an additional bloc of 300 tickets for sale to member houses.

Tactile Stimulation Substitute For Family Life Doctor Finds In New Experiment On Babies

By JANE SMOLENS

The age-old institution of the family appears to be disintegrating. According to Dr. Lawrence Casler of the Psychology Department, child rearing remains the only vestige of the family structure. Hypothesizing that the love derived from the family is not of vital importance to the development of a child, Dr. Casler sees the family structure being dissolved.

Foremost is determination of the exact role that love plays in the developmental process of the child. Working under the premise that tactile stimulation can act as a substitute for love, Dr. Casler has hired workers to provide stimulation to one group of children in an institution for ten minutes in the morning and ten minutes in the afternoon each day.

The other group of infants remained untouched. These helpers did not provide love. Results have shown that those receiving stimulation performed better on tests than the others. Nonetheless there still exists a gap between those receiving stimulation and children raised within the confines of the family structure.

Practically, many applications flow from this hypothesis. Perceptual needs of children have not yet been entirely uncovered. Added information about the child's development can lead not only to aiding the growth of the infant in the family, but to supplying the children in institutions with staff more attuned to their needs.

The centripetal force of fantasy, though, exerts a tremendous pull upon imagination. The view that marriage and home are of utmost importance is rapidly changing. It is conceivable that under these conditions a marriageless society could exist. Although Casler does not advocate such a radical idea it still appears quite realistically. Under such circumstances children would be raised by psychologists and subsequently lessen the fears and apprehensions of parents. At present, laws exist in the United States that prohibit experimentation with such an idea. Perhaps in the future a group of volunteers could participate in such a society outside the United States, and test the feasibility of it.

Psychology majors experiment in tactile stimulation on South Campus.

Department Chairmen Elected

Ten new department chairmen have been elected for the coming term. Professor Arthur E. Tiedeman is heading the History Department succeeding Professor Joseph E. Wisan who is in retirement. Professor Miriam E. Drabkin is filling the vacancy left in the Classical Languages and Hebrew Department by the death of her husband Professor Israel E. Drabkin.

In addition the following chairmen have been elected: Professor Ming L. Pei of the Civil Engineering Department succeeding Professor Paul Hartman; Professor Maurice C. Benewitz as chairman of the Department of Economics and Finance; Professor Samuel Ranhand as chairman of the Department of Management; Professor John W. Wingate as chairman of the Department of Marketing; Professor Herbert Arkin as chairman of the Department of Statistics; Professor H. Standish Thayer of the Philosophy Department is succeeding Professor Philip P.

Wiener and Professor Harry Lustig of the Physics Department succeeding Professor Robert I. Wolff.

Associate Dean Doyle M. Bortner is serving as acting chairman of the Department of Education in place of Dean Harold H. Abelson, who is on sabbatical leave for the fall semester.

The College's chapter of the American Association of University Professors has also held elections for the coming year. The new officers are: Professor J. Bailey Harvey (Speech) president, Professor Daniel J. Brownstein (Philosophy) vice-president, Professor Bernard Sohmer (Mathematics) secretary, and Professor Vincent Deltodo (Electrical Engineering) treasurer.

Elected to the executive committee were Professor Irving Branmar (Speech), Professor Egon Brenner (Electrical Engineering), Professor William Ethin (Biology), and Professor Herbert Nechin (Education).

Revival...

The Blues are coming back. A lecture on the "History of the Blues" is being given by Natalie Lamb on Wednesday, September 29 at 3:00 PM in Lewisohn Lounge. Natalie Lamb has not only researched the topic, but she has also studied the repertoire and performed many programs professionally. She will be making her debut in Town Hall on October 30. Discount tickets will be sold for this concert in Finley 152.

Jesse Douglas, Mathematics

Professor Jesse Douglas (Math) died yesterday morning at Mt. Sinai Hospital of a heart attack. Professor Douglas was born in 1897 and graduated Phi Beta Kappa with a Bachelor of Science from the College in 1916. He received a Ph.D. from Columbia and taught there, and subsequently taught at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Brooklyn College, University of Chicago, and Yeshiva before coming to the College in 1955.

In 1936 he received the Field medal in the presence of King Haakon of Norway at the International Congress of Mathematicians for work on Plateau's Problem. In 1943 Professor Douglas received the Voucher prize from the American Mathematics Society for a paper on Inverse Problems in the Calculus of Variations. He was also acclaimed for the best work in analysis in American math journals for the period 1938 to 1943. At his death, Professor Douglas had published over 60 papers in mathematical publications.

The funeral will be held at Riverside Chapel, although a date has not yet been set.

Letters to the Editor

2:00 PM go directly to the north campus where parking is legal after 2:00 PM. Strict enforcement tends to insure a turnover in parking places twice a day. This gives the student a chance to arrive at different times of the day and find parking. By abolishing alternate side of the street parking you accomplish one thing. That is, insuring that both sides of the street totally filled by 7:15 AM.

Students may argue that they cannot move their cars between 10:00 AM and 11:00 AM. The answer to this is that if you intend to drive to school, schedule your program so that you can, or else either do not drive or if you must, drive to a public transportation facility and park away from school. This is preferable to having to arrive at school before 7:00 AM every morning. I'm sure that if you think about it you will find that the present situation is the most advantageous. I suggest that Mr. Schaffer forget about his petition and devote his efforts to looking into the possibility of some student on campus parking.

SC To Weigh Fate Of Campus After Getting Legal Advice

other printer. I am not willing to risk SG and the College in court at this point," he added.

The Campus will prepare a detailed account of their dissatisfaction with City-Wide for Council, according to Van Riper. It will be based on the advice of counsel which the newspaper has retained at the recommendation of SG.

"We honestly feel that as we present the brief a lot of minds will be changed," asserted Van Riper. "It would appear that the principals involved in this case all feel that this newspaper would be better off at another printer. We hope to convince them to put their feelings to work constructively and help this paper to move from the shop it finds so unacceptable," he concluded.

Mind Made Up

In reaction to the Executive Committee's proposal, Van Riper declared that they had made their decision without ever hearing the report of the President's Advisory Committee on The Campus, which has been set up by Weitzman. "It appears his mind was already made up without hearing what our council had to say," charged Van Riper.

While the council from the Board of Higher Education, Arthur Kahn, felt that City-Wide could sue Student Government, The Campus' council, Nathan S. Kirsch, said that he "couldn't conceive of this ever coming to a court case."

However, both agreed that if SG and The Campus concurred in the belief that there were grounds for termination of the City-Wide contract on the basis of dissatisfaction, the chances of a favorable settlement should the case reach the courts, would be enhanced greatly.

"The Campus is caught in a dilemma," asserted Mr. Jerome Gold, their faculty advisor, "between their tradition of high standards and the legal issue which isn't of their own doing. If they feel they can't function, they should be free to make any choice they feel is necessary. Legally they should do what is legal," he maintained.

Tax Credit...

families could reduce their scholarships to the extent that they received tax credits. This would permit institutions to make more generous and more selective use of increasingly inadequate scholarship funds.

Opposition to tuition tax credit has come from several quarters. Some opposition has been based on the fact that the measure would not help those with incomes too low to necessitate payment of Federal income taxes.

There has been some opposition on the grounds that benefits would be greater for students at higher-priced private colleges than at the lower-cost state universities. The percentage of relief would be higher at the publicly supported institutions, which are, in any case, increasing their own tuitions and fees dramatically, and are frequently charging out-of-state students nearly as much as private colleges.

Booters To Begin Home Season; Powerhouse LIU First Opponent

As if the College's soccer team hasn't got enough troubles, it has the dubious honor of hosting powerful Long Island University in its home opener tomorrow at Lewisohn Stadium. Game time is 2:00 PM.

The Blackbirds, champions of the Metropolitan Soccer Conference last year, are definitely stronger this season. Besides having a 3-0 record so far, LIU has rolled up two extremely impressive victories against the University of Bridgeport and Hartwick College, both of whom defeated the Blackbirds last fall.

If the Beavers, who finished second to LIU last year and currently hold a 1-1 record, are to have any chance of victory, their lackluster offense, led by Cliff Soas and Izzy Zaiderman, will have to perform to maximum ca-capacity. The LIU defense, with goalie Udo Schlemmer performing brilliantly, has thus far been almost impregnable. In three contests, only one goal has been scored against the Blackbirds.

Meanwhile, Schlemmer's counterpart, Lavender goalie Walt Kopczuk must contain high-scoring sophomore Dov Markus, an Israeli citizen, who has tallied nine times in the Blackbirds' first three outings. LIU's squad also includes All-American forward Jerry Klivecka, the only senior on the team.

The Beaver lineup will remain basically the same as the one which lost to New York University 4-0 one week ago. Although the booters were outplayed in every aspect of soccer against NYU, they did manage to leave Ohio Field with nothing injured except their won and lost record.

One plus for the Lavender has been the remarkable success which recent Beaver clubs have encountered against their Blackbird counterparts. Last season, the Beaver booters were the only team in the Met Conference not to lose to LIU, as their game ended in a 1-1 tie. In basketball last year, the College handed the Blackbirds their only league defeat.

Since the beginning of the LIU-CCNY rivalry in 1956, the Beavers have won six of the eight games played to a decision.

If any game can ever be termed a "must win" this early in the season, the Beavers-Blackbirds contest tomorrow appears to fit the description.

Harriers Meet Fairleigh Dickinson, Queens; Team Heavily Favored To Remain Unbeaten

The College's cross country team will be seeing double when it attempts to repeat last Saturday's massacre of Adelphi tomorrow at Van Cortlandt Park. Queens College and Fairleigh Dickinson will provide the opposition for coach Francisco times, though, will show little cause for optimism among Queens' partisans. The three top runners for the College last week all finished better than did Queens' top man, Jerry Pane, who was clocked at 29:49. In addition, the Beavers' fifth man had exactly the same time as the Knights' second best, Mal Stern (30:12).

Coach James Maroosen of Fairleigh Dickinson is non-committal on his chances of defeating the Beavers. Pessimism still reigns at FDU, even in the wake of the 15-40 pasting it handed hapless Adelphi last Monday.

Last year, the Beavers defeated FDU in a close contest, 24-31, but Maroosen insists that this year his squad is far stronger.

Prospects for the Beavers, though, are exceptionally bright. With Jim O'Connell running true to form and sophomores Alan Hansen and Neil Leibowitz finishing near the top last week, the harriers are definitely ready to put their best feet forward.

Beavers To Face St. John's; Pitchers Lead Redman Attack

The College's baseball team will find itself in much the same position as the Minnesota Twins when they take the field tomorrow in a doubleheader against St. John's University. Both the Redmen and Dodgers, whom the Twins are battling, are knee deep in pitching, defense, and speed.

While the Redmen cannot boast names like Koufax, Drysdale or Perranoski, they do have a large supply of fine hurlers on their squad. The best of the lot appears to be Tom Sowinski, a sophomore who currently holds a 2-0 record. Against Fordham earlier this fall, Sowinski struck out fifteen men and allowed only two hits while winning 5-0. As a freshman last year, Sowinski pitched thirty-nine innings without allowing an earned run.

The other St. John's starter will be either Wally Gross, who defeated Queens College 11-2, or Bob Smith, who hurled a one-hitter over Fairleigh Dickinson University.

The Redmen have collected their runs by use of the stolen base and the hit-and-run. Led by co-captain Joe Russo and Matt Galante, St. John's stole eighteen bases in its first six games.

To try to stop the Redmen attack coach Sol Mishkin has nominated his sophomore pitching combo of Barry Leifer and Ron Rizzi. Despite the fine hurling each has done, Leifer has a 1-1 mark and Rizzi an 0-1 record.

The only heavy hitting which the Beavers have done so far this fall has been supplied by outfielder Jim La Piano, who tripled to defeat Fordham University and homered against Iona College.

The Redmen boast a 9-1 mark while the Beavers are 1-2.

In spring baseball last term, the Beavers defeated St. John's, 7-6, but the Redmen are vastly improved.

The Twins, thanks to power, have shown thus far, that they can handle the Dodgers. It will be interesting to see if the Beavers, who lack power, can similarly subdue the high-flying Redmen.

Coach Francisco Castro Unblemished Record At Stake

Castro's Beavers, who currently hold a 1-0 record.

Judging from performances this year and last, the harriers would seem to have an excellent chance of defeating Queens, and a good chance of beating a very tough FDU team.

The Lavender defeated Queens' squad twice last year, 21-34, and 21-42 in the Municipals. Nevertheless, coach William Delfyett seems convinced that his men will be able to hold their own against two tough opponents. "Representative" is the noticeably conservative term used by Delfyett to describe his team.

A comparison of early season

Fencing...

The College's fencing team is looking for someone to serve as Assistant Manager. Those interested should leave their name, phone number, and schedule in the Athletic Office in Lewisohn Stadium.

Soccer?

By KEN GELLER

Question: What's the world's most popular spectator sport? Answer: soccer. No, not basketball, football, or baseball, but soccer. This is an extremely interesting fact which is fascinating when applied to the College. The College's soccer team has not drawn enough spectators in recent years to fill Lewisohn Lounge, much less Lewisohn Stadium.

The reason cannot be that the booters are a losing team. Since 1947, the Beavers have compiled a record of 119-38-17, with only one losing season. During that stretch, the Beavers have won the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Soccer Conference eight times and were once ranked first in the nation.

The reason also cannot be that the sport is lacking in excitement. Unlike a baseball game, which was found to be twenty minutes of action and two hours of nothingness, soccer is continuous, exciting, movement.

A sociologist could probably have a field day figuring out why the soccer team plays its game in surroundings similar to Woodlawn Cemetery. It is sufficient to say that attendance at Beaver soccer contests is disgraceful for a college whose enrollment is 33,000.

Another soccer season has begun, and tomorrow is the Beavers' first home game. The game is against Long Island University, which last year won the league championship. Game time is 2 PM. Come out this year and show the players that you care. There's a chance you might enjoy it.
