President Gallagher has refused to intervene in behalf of Elinor Goldstein, a student of the College, sentenced to thirty days in jail.

Gallagher Rejects Intervention Into Grand Jury Proceedings

BY REBEK OWEN

President Gallagher has refused to attempt to intervene in behalf of four student members of the College’s Progressive Labor Club (PL) subpoenaed by the New York Venereal Disease Bureau in behalf of four student members of the College’s Progressive Labor Club (PL). Professor Nathan Susskind (Germanic and Slavic Languages), who will represent the College in the work of the Institute, said that formation of the Institute at the College will provide an academic home for the research work of the staff members. Professor Susskind explained that the Institute would raise funds more easily than the Yiddish Dictionary Committee. He said that in the past contributions had come mostly from people of foundations “who know the character and the quality of the work.” Prof. Susskind said that now that the College has taken an active interest, national foundations will have a guarantee that any funds they contribute will be used for the project.

The Institute will be under the direction of Chairman of the HHF Gustave Rosenberg, President Gallagher and Israel Steinhaus, general secretary of the

Gallagher Leaves HARYOU-ACT

President Buell G. Gallagher confirmed Friday to the present the Institute to is going to hold weekly seminars to “train future scholars.” Edith M. Scherl, director of HARYOU-ACT, joined Prof. Adam Joffe and Yudel Mark, two leading Yiddish lexicologists, who will conduct these seminars, explaining the problems of compiling a dictionary. Prof. Scherl said that the last few seminars would be “semi-public” in that both scholars and students at the College would be invited to attend. He said that later the people who exhibited interest might be organized on a scholarly level and do voluntary research.

Prof. Scherl said that at the present time the Institute has nine staff members who do research work at the Jewish Institute of Social Research in New York.

Interview With College Student From Harlem

To Be Aired On Eye On New York Tonight

This week, in a marked departure from the typical television documentary about East Harlem, “Eye on New York,” has centered its show around someone from that environment now attending the College.

José Vadi, a junior majoring in International Politics, lives on 119th Street and Park Avenue. Recently, he was contacted by a liaison man from the program and told that he had been selected as an example of someone able to emerge emotionally intact from a “dysfunctional background.” “They wanted to show the positive side of East Harlem,” said Vadi, “someone who’s not a dope addict — which implies that most of them are.”

Criticism New Teachers

“They wanted me to tell them about growing up in East Harlem, particularly about the problems and difficulties in the field of education.” José Vadi criticised the Board of Education’s policy of using East Harlem as a testing ground for new teachers. He believes that teachers working in the East Harlem schools should view their jobs in a creative light, as an interaction with developing human beings, rather than as a tough, discouraging assignment.

Education Emphasized

José attributed his relatively successful growth to those positive factors which, in his case, outweighed the detrimental ones. His father, before the family came to New York, was active in Puerto Rican politics. His father, Vadi recalls, never put overt pressure on him concerning his education. The subject was, however, always subtly emphasized at home. He fell in with a group of “fanatic Christians” in his sophomore year in High School which enabled him, for the first time, to dwell upon and discuss ideas with other people. “Incidentally,” he said, “some of those kids are now fanatic Progressive Laborists.”

José was somewhat apprehensive about coming to the College. He knew that there were a large percentage of Jews here, and he always had been told that all Jews were geniuses. His relief at finding this false belief shattered by the fact that, “in the last five years I’ve had to do what a normal middle-class child would do all along.” It also took him quite a while to adjust to white people. “The first time I had any real contacts with a whole white microcosm was at the College,” José explained.

Hope For Future

Vadi wants to continue his education, but hasn’t as yet definitely chosen a career. He thinks he might teach International Politics with a specialization in Latin America. However, he is also interested in law.

Neuroses...

Friends, are you a pre-med student who can’t cut the cord? Are you a pre-law student who can’t understand the function of briefs? Are you a pre-trade major who can’t drive a mod when you go hunting for rocks?

Now is the time to start getting ready to let your neuroses go unattended. Observation Post is going to hold a mass hypnotism session next Thursday from 12 Noon to 2 PM in Room 336 Franklin Hall.

If you decide you can’t wait that long, or if you feel a centrifugal tension on balance, then, visit the office any time you want.
ONCE MORE INTO THE BREACH

Today I begin my eleventh year of writing this column in your campus newspaper. I wasn't sure I'd be coming back this year. After a decade of doing this column, I had retreated to my country seat, tired but happy, to enjoy a long rest. But last night as I sat on my verandah, peaceful and serene, humming the largo from A Long Day's Night, I thought of the problems you face. How to deal with them?

As we filed slowly past the cluttered wooden table in Room 217 Finley, and regretfully ordered a salami sandwich for the fifth day in a row, we couldn't help but be thankful that the snack bar has maintained some semblance of existence.

We all know it would have been ridiculous to have expected the renovators to complete their work, as they faithfully promised to do, before school started. It is to the credit of the snack bar authorities that their spirit of service prompted them to establish the functional, if not exquisite, substitute which they have.
Free Tuition Okay By Rockefeller Assured
If Approved First By Legislature-Rosenberg

Governor Nelson Rockefeller will sign the free tuition mandate bill, Dr. Gustave Rosenberg, Chairman of the Board of Higher Education, predicted Sunday night on "The Direct Line" television program.

In support of his judgment that following legislative approval, the Governor would not veto the free tuition mandate, Dr. Rosenberg cited Rockefeller's belief in "home rule." The concept of free tuition in the city's tuition-free municipal college system was begun in 1847 when the people of New York voted in favor of a referendum on this question.

The free tuition bill has long been bottled up in a hostile Republican-dominated Legislature. Rosenberg feels that the shift to the Democratic side of the aisle will insure an easy passage through both houses. There has been considerable fear that the Governor would veto the bill.

The maintenance of free tuition has been a major concern of Student Government over the past few terms. To further the chances of the restoration of the free tuition mandate SG has in the past sponsored a march to Albany and door-to-door canvassing campaigns in districts of representatives who have opposed the restoration of free tuition with limited success.

Asked if there was cheating at the municipal colleges, as there had been at the Air Force Academy, Rosenberg denied any specific knowledge of cheating, but conceded that "human nature is the same everywhere."

reaction of the General Faculty, said that he would convene the General Faculty Committee on Student Activities at "an early date."

Catherine Penney, a PL member, had asked the President to "make a public statement of support and sympathy for the students" and urged him to "publicly ask that the District Attorney drop his investigation of CQNY students and drop the charges against Elinor Goldstein."

Miss Goldstein has been sentenced to 90 days in jail for refusing to answer the Grand Jury’s questions.

The subpoenaed students meet today with President Gallagher and Dean of Students Willard Blaeser to discuss the situation. If no positive statement is received or promised then, they say they will present a petition asking support to Dr. Gallagher Thursday and demonstrate in or around the Administration Building.

Another student, Joan Seklar, was subpoenaed by the Grand Jury yesterday.

The Cadet’s lowest score was higher than the Beaver’s.

Duplicate Tourney To Be Held Here

A qualifying round in the 1965 National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament will be held at the College this Thursday.

Participants will be competing against players at other colleges located within the College’s district, one of the fifteen National regions.

The top North-South and East-West teams in each region will compete for the National Intercollegiate Championship in Chicago on May 5th and 6th with all expenses paid.

The tournament will be held in Room 440 Finley at 6:15 PM. Entry fee is one dollar for each player.

The National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament Committee hopes to develop an interest in bridge while supplementing the collegiate social program.

Cagers Lose To FDU, 61-58, Ending Win Streak

By JERRY HOENIG

Snapping their five game winning streak, the College's basketball team dropped a heartbreaking 16-16 to Fairleigh Dickinson, 61-58, before a capacity crowd in Win- gate Gymnasium, Saturday night. The Beavers now have a 7-4 over-all and a 1-3 Tri-State League record.

The last time the Lavender had won five in a row was during the 1957-58 season. That streak was also broken by FDU.

The final outcome of Saturday's game may have hinged on a disputed call made by the officials with 1:24 remaining in the game. If Pearl's basket had been allowed, Zuckerman wouldn't have tried to draw a foul and the game could have been tied.

With 34 left in the game, the Knight's Robert Rennie scored on a jumper to give FDU a three point lead, 61-58.

Then, with :06 remaining, the Beavers' Alan Zuckerman got the ball after FDU's Paul Roth- bender missed a foul shot. Zuckerman drove down court and was clear for an easy shot. But since there were only two seconds to go with the Beavers leading by three, he proposed to knock himself out of the competition. However, a foul was called against Zuckerman, who was not allowed.

If Pearl's basket had been allowed, Zuckerman wouldn't have tried to draw a foul. The officials ruled that a foul had been called under FDU's basket so he moved up to the 123 lb. class so he could make sure that he would face the Knight's Dave Barker.

On A Pin In The Final Bout

Fairleigh Dickinson came in to try out for the College's wrestling team in the 123 lb. class. The night was ended by Tom Nugent to give FDU a tie.

The Beavers' Mike Pearl was fouled while driving in for a shot which he sank. However, the officials ruled that the basket did not count, and Pearl went on to convert his two foul shots.

The last time the Lavender made a basket in the final seconds of a game was during a 12-2 break.

On Saturday, the Lavender compiled a score of 1418 to Fordham's 1339 and Cooper Union's 1722.

The second and third best scores used in the competition were recorded by sophomore Larry Levy in the 500-yard freestyle, and sophomore Howard Palesky in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Riffers Take Two Wins And A Loss

Picking up victories against Fordham and Cooper Union at home on Friday, and a defeat at the hands of Army on Saturday, the College's rifle team has run its record to 6-2.

The two wins on Friday were the 80th and 81st straight win for the Beavers at their home range in Lewaska Stadium. The ninemads have not lost at home since 1958.

The Lavender compiled a score of 1140 in 1978, and Fordham's 1339 and Cooper Union's 2722.

OBSERVATION POST SPORTS

By KENNETH GELLER

Despite the fact that the swimmers from New York University defeated the College's swimming team 52-34 Friday, Coach Jack Rider has much to be glad about.

The Lavender, who won with 2:33.3, expressed some hope of bettering Jim Steepler's time of 2:26.6, a College record set in the 1962 Medical Championships, in the near future.

The Beaver foursome of Howard Mitchell, Robert Clark, Alan Shapiro, and Frishman also won the freestyle relay.

Levy, Mitchell, and Glenn Herman, who, with Coach Rider will the buzzer sounded, Eisemann again took the ball off the Lav- ender's boards and put it through the hoops to give the Lavender a 34-33 half-time lead.

That was the last time the Beavers were in front for the night. FDU took the lead with only 16 seconds gone in the sec- ond half when Dan Rosco scored three points after being fouled.
