CITY COLLEGE

President Gallagher has refused to intervene in behalf of Elinor Goldstein, a student of the College, sentenced to thirty days in jail.

Gallagher Rejects Intervention Into Grand Jury Proceedings

By REBEL OWEN

President Gallagher has refused to attempt to intervene in behalf of four student members of the College's Progressive Labor Club (PL) subpoenaed by the New York County Grand Jury. In a statement dated February 5, Dr. Gallagher declared that the request "calls for consideration of a policy which students and faculty alike have rejected up to this time."

"It has been believed," the statement continued, "that the authority of the College ought not to be extended into the civil life of students off campus."

The President, noting that under the bylaws which govern the College, all matters of student conduct are under the policy di-

New Yiddish Lexicology Institute To Compile Million $ Dictionary

The creation of an Institute of Yiddish Lexicology to be endowed with $1,275,000 for the creation of a massive Yiddish dictionary was announced Sunday by President Buell Gallagher. The dictionary, it is estimated, will take 17 years, at the rate of a volume every two years.

The Institute will continue the work of the Yiddish Dictionary Committee, Inc., which directed the production of the first volume in 1961 and planned publication of the second volume in 1966.

Professor Nathan Susskind (Germanic and Slavic Languages), who will represent the college in the work of the Institute, said that formation of the Institute at the College will provide an academic home for the research work of the staff members.

Professor Susskind explained that the Institute would raise funds more easily than the Yiddish Dictionary Committee. He said that in the past contributions had come mostly from people of foundations "who knew the character and the quality of the work." Prof. Susskind said that now that the College has taken an active interest, national foundations will have a guarantee that any funds they contribute will be used for work.

The Institute will be under the direction of Chairman of the BHE Gustave Rosenberg, President Gallagher and Israel Steinbaum, general secretary of the Dictionary Committee.

The dictionary was originally supposed to include all the lexical material accumulated in nearly one thousand years of spoken Yiddish in all countries and territories where Yiddish is spoken. Prof. Susskind noted that this would provide a means of tracing and understanding the cultural history of the Jewish people. He said that the Institute would publish no works on Jewish culture but would provide a good source for studies of the cultural implication of linguistic factors. He added that scholars working on the dictionary might publish their own articles, since a great many factors have been uncovered by research on the origin of words.

Because of the length of time involved in the project, the Institute is going to hold weekly seminars to "train future scholars." Editors-in-chief Judah Joffe and Yudel Mark, two leading Yiddish lexicologists, will probably conduct the first few seminars, explaining the problems of compiling a dictionary. Prof. Susskind said the first seminars would be "semi-public" in that both scholars and students at the College would be invited to attend. He said that later the people who exhibited interest might be organized on a scholarly level and do voluntary research for the Institute.

Prof. Susskind said that at the present time the Institute has nine staff members who do research work at the Jewish Institute of Social Research in New York.

Gallagher Leaves HARYOU-ACT

President Buell G. Gallagher confirmed Friday that he had ended his membership in the Board of Directors and Personnel Committee of HARYOU-ACT.

In his resignation, Dr. Gallagher made it clear that his only reason was lack of time. He said he had worked late many nights a week, and that others before him have also resigned for similar reasons. "I have to keep awake on the job," he said.

Prof. Kenneth Clark (Psychology), who originated the social agency, resigned last summer because he felt it was being used for political purposes by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell at that time, expressing the fear that the anti-poverty program would lose its effectiveness if it became politically dominated. President Gallagher, however, emphasized that his resignation was entirely due to lack of time and that this was clearly understood.

Under Attack:

College's 'Lily-White' Admissions Policy

By DON WEINGARTEN

"City College has so few Negro students that its campus closely resembles the University of Mississippi."

In these words, an editorial in the Amsterdam News attacked the racial admissions policy of the college, and the attitude of the administration towards the racial problem.

The edit was spurred by an impending study which the college will be carrying on over the next 2½ years.

"We have before us," the News charged, "a press release from the City College of the City University of New York which says in the first paragraph:

"City College is undertaking a study of academically successful Negro children from deprived backgrounds to determine what factors may be related to their high achievement records."

Characterizing the study, which is to cost $92,000, as a "waste of public funds," the News went on to charge that "at a time when Negroes are shouting and demanding that the school open its doors to and admit more qualified Negro students, the school sets out to waste $92,000 on determining why some fifth grade Negro children make passing grades..."

Said the editorial, "We hope Congressman Adam Clayton Powell's Committee on Education will find time to look into this new waster of public funds and either put a stop to it or see to it that no more money is provided City College or any other college to waste on studying the Negro."

Interview With College Student From Harlem To Be Aired On 'Eye On New York' Tonight

This week, in a marked departure from the typical television documentary about East Harlem, "Eye on New York," has centered its show around someone from that environment now attending the College.

José Vadi, a junior majoring in International Politics, lives on 116th Street and Park Avenue. Recently, he was contacted by a liaison man from the program and told that he had been selected as an example of someone able to emerge emotionally intact from a "disadvantaged background." "They wanted to show the positive side of East Harlem," said Vadi, "someone who's not a dope addict — which implies that most of them are."

Criticizes New Teachers

"They wanted me to tell them about growing up in East Harlem, particularly about the problems and difficulties in the field of education." José Vadi criticized the Board of Education's policy of using East Harlem as a testing ground for new teachers. He believes that teachers working in the East Harlem schools should view their jobs in a creative light, as an interaction with developing human beings, rather than as a tough, discouraging assignment.

Education Emphasized

José attributed his relatively successful growth to those positive factors which, in his case, outweighed the detrimental ones. His father, before the family came to New York, was active in Puerto Rican politics. His father, Vadi recalls, never put overt pressure on him concerning his education. The subject was, however, always subtly emphasized at home. He fell in with a group of "fanatic Christians" in his sophomore year in High School which enabled him, for the first time, to dwell upon and discuss ideas with other people. "Incidentally," he said, "some of those kids are now fanatic Progressive Laborites."

José was somewhat apprehensive about coming to the College. He knew that there were a large percentage of Jews here, and he always had been told that all Jews were geniuses. His relief at finding this false was tempered by the fact that, "in the last five years I've had to do what a normal middle-class child would have been doing all along." It also took him quite a while to adjust to white society. "The first time I had any real contacts with a whole white microcosm was at the College," José explained.

Hopes For Future

Vadi wants to continue his education, but hasn't as yet definitely chosen a career. He thinks he might teach International Politics with a specialization in Latin America. However, he is also interested in law.

No longer is it necessary to let your neuroses go untended. Observation Post is going to hold a mass hypnosis session next Thursday from 12 Noon to 2 PM in Room 336 Finley.

LETTERS

CHIVALRY?

To the Editor:

In your last issue you published a letter from a female student who deplored her male colleagues' refusal to prostrate themselves before those of her sex. What do such women want? Chivalry is inextricably bound to the concept of female inferiority — we brave males have to help the poor dears. But with the advent of equality, women suffrage, women's ownership of most property in the U.S., etc., chivalry became incompatible with the times. Women who demand chivalry and equality are asking for all the advantages they have enjoyed at any time throughout the course of history. Men who give in to such demands are utterly contemptible fools.

Perhaps the young lady would like the type of female advancement that was reputed to have occurred in one Middle-Eastern country after the First World War. Before the war, the men would ride in front and the women would walk behind them, carrying the burdens. After the war, things changed and manners of a sort developed. To be sure, the men still rode and the women walked with the burdens, but now the women walked in front. An observed from the West rejoiced at this progress and asked the sheikh what had led him to make such a concession. "Unexploded land mines," he boomed. Maybe the young lady will now think twice before hoping that doors will be opened for her.

HIRSCH DEFENDED

To the Editor:

I take exception to your recent article "Paul Hirsch, SG Bottleneck." As chairman of a Campus Affairs Commission Committee, I know of Mr. Hirsch's earnest attempts to run programs, (many of them successful though unpublicized) often in the face of an uncooperative press. Apparently, OP is becoming more and more like the proverbial Daily News photographers who manage to get the darndest close-up pictures of people jumping from bridges, but never lift a finger to help prevent the imminent debacle. Seems a corpse makes more exciting copy.

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH

Today I begin my eleventh year of writing this column in your campus newspaper.

I wasn't sure I'd be coming back this year. After a decade of doing this column, I had retreated to my country seat, tired but happy, to enjoy a nice long rest. But last night as I sat on my verandah, peaceful and serene, humming the largo from A Long Day's Night and worming my dog, a stranger suddenly appeared before me.

He was a tall, clean-limbed man, crinkly-eyed and crooked-grinned, stalwart and virile. "How do you do," he said. "My name is Stalwart Virile and I am with the Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blade people."

"Enchanted," I said. "Take off your homburg and sit down." I clapped my hands sharply. "Norman!" I called. "Another chair for Mr. Virile!"

"Another chair for Mr. Virile!"

Obediently my dog trotted away and returned directly with a fanback chair of Malayan rattan. He is the smartest dog in our block.

"I suppose you're wondering why I am here," said Mr. Virile, seating himself.

"Well, sir," I replied, my old eyes twinkling roguishly, "I'll wager you didn't come to read my meter."

You can imagine how we howled at that one!

"That's a doozy!" cried Mr. Virile, finally catching his breath. "I must remember to tell it to Alice when I get home."

"Your wife?" I said.

"My father," he said.

"Oh," I said.

"But enough of wit and humor," he said. "Let us get down to business. How would you like to write a campus column for Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades?"

"For money?" I said.

"Yes," he said.

"My hand, sir," I said and clasped his. Warmly he returned the pressure, and soft smiles played upon our lips, and our eyes were moist with the hint of tears, and we were silent, not trusting ourselves to speak.

"What will you write about in your campus column?" asked Mr. Virile when he was able to talk again.

"I will take up the burning issues that vex the American undergraduate!" I cried, bounding to my feet. "I will explore, without fear or favor, such explosive questions as 'Are roommates sanitary?' and 'Should proctors be given a saliva test?' and 'Should capital punishment for pledges be abolished?' and 'Can a student of 19 find happiness with an economics professor of 80?'"

"And will you also say a pleasant word from time to time about Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades?" asked Mr. Virile.

"Sir," I said simply, "what other kind of word except pleasant could I possibly say about Personna Blades, which give me more luxury shaves than Beep-Beep or any other blade I might name?"

"Another of my products is Burma Shave," said Mr. Virile.

"Can you find it in your heart to mention Burma Shave occasionally?"

"But of course!" I declared. "For is not Burma Shave the whisker-wiltingest lather in the land?"

"Yes," he admitted.

And then he shook my hand again and smiled bravely and was gone—a tall silhouette moving erectly into the setting sun.

"Farewell, good tonsorialist!" I cried after him. "Aloha!"

And turned with a will to my typewriter.

'Lily White'

The recent Amsterdam News editorial which labeled the College a "lily white" institution little better than the University of Mississippi is partially true. Despite the absence of any sort of statistics, it is generally agreed that Negro enrollment in the College is very low; it also is generally recognized that this is not the result of a specific pattern of discrimination against Negroes, but rather of a policy of discrimination based on high school average and College Boards.

We feel that the planned expansion of the College's facilities, which will allow 4000 extra high school graduates to enter the College will go a long way towards solving the problem.

Improvements in, and integration of the City's system of elementary and secondary education will also have effect on the problem. In any case, allowing academically unqualified students into the College only to have them drop out in their freshman term is not a solution.

Finals Flop

Setting aside the term's last week for in-class finals is a step in the right direction, but it hardly provides adequate time for review of a full semester's work. Upperclassmen taking electives are still confronted with three to five in-class finals without time to review. The Department of Physical Education's insistence on continuing its classes through in-class finals week serves only to waste time that could be used for study. Students should have as much time to prepare for an elective course as the administration believes they should have for most introductory courses.

Bread Line

As we filed slowly past the cluttered wooden table in Room 217 Finley, and regretfully ordered a salami sandwich for the fifth day in a row, we could not help but be thankful that the snack bar has maintained some semblance of existence.

As we all know, it would have been ridiculous to have expected the renovators to complete their work, as they faithfully promised to do, before school started. It is to the credit of the snack bar authorities that their spirit of service prompted them to establish the functional, if not exquisite, substitute which they have.

Free Tuition Okay By Rockefeller Assured If Approved First By Legislature-Rosenberg

Governor Nelson Rockefeller will sign the free tuition mandate bill, Dr. Gustave Rosenberg, Chairman of the Board of Higher Education, predicted Sunday night on "The Direct Line" television program.

In support of his judgment that following legislative approval, the Governor would not veto the free tuition mandate, Dr. Rosenberg cited Rockefeller's belief in "home rule." The concept of free tuition in the city's tuition-free municipal college system was begun in 1847 when the people of New York voted in favor of a referendum on this question.

The free tuition bill has long been bottled up in a hostile Republican-dominated Legislature. Rosenberg feels that the shift to the Democratic side of the aisle will insure an easy passage through both houses. There has been considerable fear that the Governor would veto the bill.

The maintenance of free tuition has been a major concern of Student Government over the last few terms. To further the chances of the restoration of the free tuition mandate SG has in the past sponsored a march to Albany and door-to-door canvassing campaigns in districts of representatives who have opposed the restoration of free tuition with limited success.

Asked if there was cheating at the municipal colleges, as there had been at the Air Force Academy, Rosenberg denied any specific knowledge of cheating, but conceded that "human nature is the same everywhere."

Catherine Prenskey, a PL member, had asked the President to "make a public statement of support and sympathy for the four students" and urged him to "publicly ask that the District Attorney stop his investigation of CCNY students and drop the charges against Elinor Goldstein."

Miss Goldstein has been sentenced to 30 days in jail for refusing to answer the Grand Jury's questions.

The subpoenaed students meet today with President Gallagher and Dean of Students Willard Blaesser to discuss the situation. If no positive statement is received or promised then, they say they will present a petition asking support to Dr. Gallagher Thursday and demonstrate in or around the Administration Building. Miss Prenskey said the petition had already been signed by 300 students at the College.

The top North-South and East-West teams in each region will compete for the National Intercollegiate Championship in Chicago on May 7th and 8th with all expenses paid.

The tournament will be held in Room 440 Finley at 6:15 PM. Entry fee is one dollar for each player.

The National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament Committee hopes to develop an interest in bridge while supplementing the collegiate social program.

Cagers Lose To FDU, 61-58, Ending Win Streak

By JERRY HOENIG

Snapping their five game winning streak, the College's basketball team dropped a heartbreaker to Fairleigh Dickinson, 61-58, before a capacity crowd in Wingate Gymnasium, Saturday night.

The Beavers now have a 7-4 over-all and a 1-3 Tri-State League record.

The last time the Lavender had won five in a row was during the 1957-1958 season. That streak was also broken up by FDU.

The final outcome of Saturday's game may have hinged on a disputed call made by the officials with 1:24 remaining in the game.

At that point, with the Lavender losing 59-56, the Beaver's Mike Pearl was fouled while driving in for a shot which he sank. However, the officials ruled that the basket did not count, and Pearl went on to convert his two foul shots. If the basket had been allowed, the game could have been tied.

With :54 left in the game, the Knight's Robert Rennie scored on a jumper to give FDU a three point lead, 61-58.

Then with :08 remaining, the Beavers Alan Zuckerman got the ball after FDU's Paul Rothenbiller missed a foul shot. Zuckerman drove down court and was clear for an easy shot. But since there were only two seconds to go with the Beavers losing by three, he purposely knocked himself against an FDU player while he shot, hoping that an official would call a foul against the Knights. However, a foul was called against Zuckerman, and his basket was not allowed.

If Pearl's basket had been allowed, Zuckerman wouldn't have tried to draw a foul, and the game could have been tied.

In the early parts of the game, the Lavender looked as if they might run away with it. With 14:41 to go in the first half the Beavers were leading by eight points, 14-6, and they looked as if they were going to increase their lead. The Lavender were being paced by Zuckerman who had scored 10 of the Beaver's 14 points.

But then, the Beavers cooled off for a while, and the Knight's caught up and took over the lead, 16-15, when Rothenbiller scored a field goal with 10:53 left in the first half. Spearheading the FDU attack was Walter Berwick. He had scored eight of the Knight's 16 points.

FDU didn't keep their slim lead for long. Zuckerman sank two long jumpers in a row, Mike Pearl made one from the corner, and the Beavers were out in front by five, 21-16, with 7:58 remaining in the first half.

The Knights then scored seven straight point to take the lead, 23-21. FDU added two more points to their lead and were leading 33-29 with 43 second to go until half-time.

At that point, Pearl converted a foul shot to make the score 33-30. Twelve seconds later, Barry Eisemann gave the Beavers two more points after grabbing a rebound. Just before the buzzer sounded, Eisemann again took the ball off the Lavender's boards and put it through the hoops to give the Lavenders a 34-33 half-time lead.

That was the last time the Beavers were in front for the night. FDU took the lead with only 18 seconds gone in the second half when Dan Rosen scored three points after being fouled in the act of shooting, making the score 36-34.

FDU never led by more than eight points, and the Beavers twice came within one point.

FDU Ties Grapplers, 16-16, On A Pin In The Final Bout

Fairleigh Dickinson came from behind to tie the College's wrestling team in the last bout, 16-16, last Saturday at the Knight's Rutherford campus.

With the Beavers winning 16-11 going into the heavyweight match, the Lavender's Jack Stein was pinned by Tom Nugent to give FDU a tie.

The Beavers gained ten of their points on forfeits in the 123 lb. and 177 lb. classes. The other six points were won by Paul Biederman (137 lb.) and Urmas Naeris (167 lb.) who both won decisions.

It was by accident that captain Ron Taylor won by forfeit. Taylor who usually wrestles in the 130 lb. class, moved down to the 123 lb. class so he could face the Knight's Dave Barker. However, Barker also wanted to make sure that he would face Taylor so he moved up to the 130 lb. and missed Taylor in the exchange.

Taylor wound up winning by a forfeit and by pinning his opponent in an exhibition match. Barker gained a decision over Shipor Mothushami.

The tie brought the Lavender season mark to 2 wins, three losses with Saturday's tie against Fairleigh Dickinson being the only deadlock on the Lavender slate.

Tryouts . . .

All male students are welcome to try out for the College's wrestling team from 4-6 PM everyday except Thursday in Goethals Gymnasium. On Thursdays, practice is held during the 12-2 break.

There is also an opening for the position of manager of the freshman wrestling team.

The College's choice for the symbol of supremacy in basketball among the Municipal Colleges is a gold basketball with a map of New York City engraved on the surface.

The selection was made by representatives of the College's newspapers and Public Relations department.

Riflers Take Two Wins And A Loss

Picking up victories against Fordham and Cooper Union at home on Friday and taking a defeat at the hands of Army at West Point on Saturday, the College's rifle team has run its record to 8-2.

The two wins on Friday were the 80th and 81st straight wins for the Beavers at their home range in Lewisohn Stadium. The nimrods have not lost at home since 1958.

The Lavender compiled a score of 1418 to Fordham's 1339 and Cooper Union's 1282.

Co-captain Jerry Uretsky led the Beavers with a score of 286. The lowest of the Lavender's scores used in the competition topped the high scores of the other two teams.

Mermen Are Beaten By NYU Oppose St. John's Tomorrow

By KENNETH GELLER

Despite the fact that the swimmers from New York University defeated the College's swimming team 52-34 Friday, Coach Jack Rider has much to be glad about.

For one, the contest was much closer than last year's 68-25 romp by NYU. Observers generally agreed that the tighter score was a result of an improved Beaver team rather than a weaker Violet squad.

Another bright spot was the first place finish of diver Henry Budka. Before this season began, Coach Rider admitted that diving was one of the team's problems.

Other first place finishes were recorded by sophomore Larry Levy in the 500-yard freestyle, sophomore Howard Palefsky in the 200-yard breaststroke, and co-captain, junior Alan Frishman in the 200-yard backstroke.

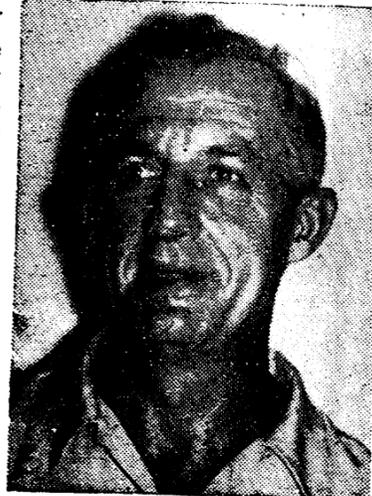

Frishman, who won with 2:53.0, expressed some hope of bettering Jim Steehler's time of 2:26.0, a College record set in the 1963 Municipal Championships, in the near future.

The Beaver foursome of Howard Mozeico, Steve Gluck, Alan Shapiro, and Frishman also won the freestaly relay.

Levy, Mozeico, and Glenn Herman, to whom Coach Rider will be looking next year, finished second in the 200-yard freestyle, 50-yard freestyle, and 200-yard Butterfly, respectively.

The immediate outlook for the Mermen is grim, however, as they will be facing St. John's tomorrow in the Wingate Pool at 4 PM.
