Finley Art Exhibition Opens

Nine art students at the College are currently exhibiting their work in the Lewisohn Lounge. The exhibit, sponsored by the Finley Planning Board Art Committee, will continue until December 17. Student exhibitors include: William Eichhuse, Barbara Bluza, Ronald Cowen, Mark Greenberg, Ray Daniel Greenberg, Ruby Coedray Harkins, Conrad Inecke, Gerson Rapoport and Edward Ross.

Sachs' Motion Passed by Student Council

In the meeting of Council Friday that coincided with the Student Aides' request for a pay raise, the Student Council passed an amendment to the State Minimum Wage Law. It was proposed by Yermack, but Schlesinger, who seconded Yermack's motion, was the only one to vote with him. Sachs' motion, which was passed unanimously, would give the aides a base pay of $1.50 and all its rights and privileges as a student organization until June 30, 1967, established by Councilman Steve Schlesinger. The motion was tabled Friday.

The Council may seek pass-fail marks, vote on campus democracy march

By STEVE SIMON

Student Council will debate tomorrow a proposal calling for "every tenured faculty member" to submit only pass-fail grades at the end of this term.

By asking teachers to refuse to submit letter grades, Student Government President Shelley Simons said he hopes to reverse the effect of the recent vote for pass/fail grades of the Faculty Council. As a proposal (of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences). A "federal process for campus democracy" was also reviewed.

The meeting was called to consider students for a Democratic Society (SDS) demonstration and the vote of the Faculty Council on the college of Liberal Arts and Sciences for retention of class ranking.

A resolution to suspend students for a Democratic Society and all its rights and privileges as a student organization until June 30, 1967, proposed by Councilman Steve Schlesinger, is also on the agenda. The motion was tabled Friday.

Schlesinger, vice-chairman of the Publicity-Regulations Subcommittee, is objecting to the SDS demonstration last Thursday in the Placement Office. The Student Council by-laws direct the sub-committee "in cases of excessive publicity violations to recommend suspension of public rights to the Executive Committee."

The "funeral procession" would begin on South Campus and proceed to the Quad where the participants will plan further activities "to mourn the passing of campus democracy," Sachs said.

"I don't know whether campus democracy ever lived," SG Treasurer Larry Yermack remarked, "but last Thursday the faculty buried it.

The absence of a quorum precluded a vote on Sachs' motion. A boycott of classes had also been proposed by Yermack, but Schlesinger, former SG President Carl Weitzman, and SDS President Gregory Coleman predicted its failure.

Tech Faculty to Compile Standings; Endorse Use of Campus for Exams

The faculty of the school of Engineering and Architecture decided yesterday to follow the lead of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences by voting to compile and release class standings. Dean of the School of Engineering (Engineering and Architecture) and said the school had computed standings since 1963, and was voted, by voice vote, to continue the policy.

The faculty also approved by secret ballot a resolution of the use of the College's facilities for Selective Service testing and the creation of a committee of students, faculty and administrators to "seek the separation of colleges and universities from the administration of Selective Service."

The voting members of the engineering faculty included assistant, associate and full professors, plus two representatives from the physical, chemical, and mathematics departments and one representative from the department offering courses for engineering students.

The Faculty Council of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences voted yesterday to disregard the student referendum and continue compiling and releasing class rankings. 72-29, while the faculty of the School of Education voted, 38-30 not to compile or release class standings.

Referendum at Baruch School Approves Separation Decision

Day session students at the Baruch School voted to support a faculty decision to separate from the Uptown branch of the College.

The first question in the referendum, asking if the Baruch School had the faculty to become an independent, four-year college in the City University, was approved by 49 per cent of the students responding.

Approximately 1,000 students out of 2,000 voted. Other alternatives on the referendum were: that the status quo be maintained (39 per cent), that the Baruch School be moved to the uptown campus (28 per cent), and that it be changed to a junior college (13 per cent).

Baruch Student Government President Marc Berman said the School's lack of power to appoint its own faculty as one of the main sources of difficulty.

He explained that President Buell G. Gallagher's suggestion to move the School uptown was rejected because it would destroy the Graduate and Evening programs.

The Baruch Faculty Council, in a vote last month, decided in favor of a "split with the College.

The concert will be emceed by Paula Kramer editor of The Realist, a political alternative magazine.

Kahl, a former student of Dave Van Ronk's, leads the group through the blues and folk music of the sixties. The group draws its roots from the Chicago Blues movement of the first half of the century.

A FREE PRESS — AN INFORMED STUDENT BODY

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 13, 1966

VOLUME XL — No. 16 184

By DANIEL WEISSMAN

Students called before the student-faculty Committee on Disciplinary Action last night, charged a "kangaroo court" was trying "to crush us on misdemeanors."

The committee failed to reach a decision on what action to take after hearing various allegations and arguments shortly after 1 AM until 3 PM today, Committee members declined to comment.

The students sat in at the Placement Office Thursday to protest the presence on campus of recruiters from the United States Army Materiel Command.

Merrit Fish, an attorney and father of one of the demonstrators, castigating the committee as "improper," and said the students had an inadequate opportunity to defend themselves. (Continued on Page 2)
The Rubber Stamp

Nearly 3,000 students voted against the class composition of campus rankings by the Administration for use by the Selective Service last month; 40 percent of the student body voted in that referendum: the largest turnout in the College's history.

Thirty-seven members of Faculty Council voted last week, in effect, to disregard the result of the student referendum and to compile class rankings for Selective Service use, despite the indisputable fact that the turn out in the student poll was the most representative segment of the College community ever to participate in any election.

There are far more than 500 instructors in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences who teach and have direct classroom contact with students; there are 80 people on Faculty Council. More than a quarter of its members have no classroom contact with students. And this august body, hardly representative of the faculty, had 14 of its 80 members absent from the discussion of draft policy. Should Faculty Council have been delegated the authority to make this decision?

When President Buell G. Gallagher was faced with a virtual mandate from the student body calling for decisive action on the part of the Administration, he chose the most expedient course. The President, rather than take a moral stand on the issue of College cooperation with the Selective Service, passed the buck to Faculty Council.

And Faculty Council, hungry for any power, also refused to act morally and return the issue to the students. Faculty Council seized the opportunity to make a decision, rather than stopping to consider whether they should have had jurisdiction over the issue. The council's decision is irrelevant to the issue at hand — the act of making the decision made Faculty Council a rubber stamp for the Administration.

Now, whenever the President is confronted by a problem, he may turn the matter over to the faculty's "representative" body for action, and evade fulfilling his responsibilities. And now Faculty Council can stand outside the center of decision-making and wait to be tossed crumbs by the President.

The decision that should have been made was to abide by the student referendum. Faculty Council, which, by its endowment of power contrary to student demands, has rendered itself impotent, could have joined with students to gain decision making powers.

At the same time students of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences were being betrayed, the faculty of the School of Education was left to compile college rankings. Perhaps this is indicative of the more enlightened nature of a general faculty, compared to a small and unrepresentative body purporting to represent them.

The decision of the two groups will now be placed before the Board of Higher Education. We can only hope that it will abide by the expressed demands of the students.
Students Extend 'Freedom Easter', Work For Civil Rights In Virginia

By ELAINE SCHWAGER

With the aid of several students from the College, a group of Negro and white Virginians are working on problems of school desegregation, poverty, and voter registration in Southern Virginia.

Last spring vacation, six students here went South to aid the Virginia Student Civil Rights Committee (VSCRC), as part of the National Student Association's (NSA) "Freedom Easter" campaign.

Fencing . . .

The VSCRC, formed in April, 1965, is "one of the first community organizing projects in the South that has been initiated, organized, and run by a group of black and white Southern students working together in their own state," its first-year report stated.

Yvette Mintzer, one of the students who went both Easter and last summer in Virginia, has taken a leave from school to work in Mecklenburg County on the border of North Carolina. The greatest 'problem, Mintzer has encountered, she said, is the "apathy and fear among Negroes in the Southern countryside." She explained, "Negroes really struggling to make it in society are afraid that by getting involved in Civil Rights problems they will jeopardize their chances."

Nevertheless, definite progress has been made in these areas since the initiation of the Virginia project, according to Miss Mintzer.

Negro registration has risen sharply, ranging from 20% to 25% in Lunsburg County and from 3% to 12% in Mecklenburg County. Miss Mintzer said, "In the first summer 100 people were registered."

The VSCRC develops programs only at the request of local people.

Mostel to Receive Dramatics Award

Zero Mostel, the former star of "Fiddler on the Roof" will receive the College's James K. Polansky Dramatic Medal for "distinguished alumni achievement" in drama for 1966.

Mostel was graduated from the College in 1935.

The Medal will be presented at a ceremony and reception in the Grand Ballroom on December 22. The medal is awarded annually to an alumnus for "excellence in oratory or drama." ### Crimson Parriers Defeat Beavers, Sweep Epee Bouts to Win, 17-10

By REID ASHINOFF

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 10 — Facing the first major challenge of the new season, the College’s fencing team was defeated today, 17-10, by a strong Harvard team. Even though three parri ers were able to win all their bouts, the beavers were unable to beat the Crimson who captured all nine epee bouts.

Going into the match, the College’s fencing team was facing the fall fobots, the top epee-squad in the nation as well as the fall epee-squad at Harvard University. The strategy worked well during the fall bouts but failed during the last two rounds of the tournament. The Crimson swept all six of their bouts. They were not undefeated.

The semifinals didn’t perform as efficiently as they had in the past, but nevertheless contributed four wins. Sophomore Steve Lieberman had a strong showing as he defeated two of his opponents, took his three bouts, and Keifer came off the bench to win his own bout. Keifer’s opponent was Harvard’s number one sabreman.

Unfortunately, the pre-match strategy bogged down with the epee team. Harvard won all those, marking the first time in many years that the College has lost all nine epee-suits in a single match. The lights were much brighter for the other side of the Harvard gym, as the College’s freshmen won their first meet of the year, 15-12.

The freshmen parried hard for the squad, as well as for the Harvard team. The freshmen were defeated by the Harvard team in the fall epee-squad. The lights were much brighter for the other side of the Harvard gym, as the College’s freshmen won their first meet of the year, 15-12.

College's Rifle Team

The College’s Rifle team scored an impressive double victory Friday in Lewisham Stadium to rebound from two consecutive defeats. Captain Alan Feit led the Riprods to a score of 1048, topping Columbia (1014) and Hofstra (1003). Feit scored a 256, two more than Jim Maynard and four more than Dave Keller. Nick Buchholz was fourth for the Beavers with a 256.

The Sharpshooters had dropped matches to two of the toughest teams on the schedule — St. Peter’s and Navy.
