CITY COLLEGE

Increased Enrollment - The Question Is Still Open

Whether or not the College will admit 1200 additional freshmen next Fall is still uncertain, Dean of Students Willard W. Blaesser said last night.

Chancellor Albert H. Bowker
College Quotas Uncertain

City University Chancellor Albert H. Bowker notified presidents of CU schools last Friday that admission quotas had not been fixed for all the colleges, Dean Blaesser told a meeting of student leaders.

President Buell G. Gallagher announced on Sept. 27 that the College's admission quota had been increased by the Board of Higher Education and that temporary huts would have to be built because of the increase.

Dean Blaesser reported that Dr. Gallagher sent a "sharp" and critical reply to the Chancellor.

Dean Blaesser said the uncertainty over admission quotas left the situation "murky."

Dialogue Planned

Dr. Gallagher will meet with students Monday afternoon for a discussion of the proposed enrollment increase, the plans for temporary facilities and the paving of the lawn in front of Mott Hall for a faculty parking lot.

Student Government executives announced after the meeting with Dean Blaesser that they will seek to establish a student-faculty committee to investigate the College's expansion program.

The College's director of public relations, I. E. Levine, told the meeting that the City University would have to go ahead with the planned enrollment increase because it is an election year and because the State Legislature has already appropriated the funds.

SG President Shelly Sachs asserted, "Students must play an active role in decision-making. We demand a shadow cabinet of students, faculty and administration to be formed now until such time as a permanent change can be made in the policy-making process."

Patience Necessary

Dean Blaesser urged the leaders to be patient, reminding them, "It took Antioch College ten years to establish student-faculty-administration government; hopefully it won't take us ten years. But it can't all happen this semester."

Michael Friedman, a graduate student who attended the meeting, recommended that the conference Monday be followed by a community for an exchange of possible programs.

Jeremy Fish, a spokesman for the Anarchist Discussion Group, suggested that as an alternative to the faculty parking on the Mott lawn, instructors here be exempted from alternate-side-of-the-street-parking regulations, as are Board of Education teachers.

Tutoring...

The East Harlem Tenants Council is seeking College students to tutor elementary and junior high school children. Volunteers are needed to work with children who have trouble reading or grasping particular subjects. The program will require volunteers to give at least one hour a week to the children. Interested students may contact Mrs. Kay at 348-5555.

Rock Brigade Halts Uprooting of Mott Lawn

By IVON SCHMUKLER

Students successfully prevented the building of a parking lot on the Mott Hall lawn Tuesday when an unplanned sit-in prevented the delivery of three truckloads of crushed rock.

One truckload — approximately 10 tons — was deposited on the lawn, but was removed by nearly 200 students using trashcans, cafeteria trays and bare hands.

President Buell G. Gallagher ordered a halt in construction plans until he returns to the campus Saturday from New Orleans.

Dean of Students Willard W. Blaesser has promised that no more work would be done for the remainder of the day.

Forming a bucket brigade, the students had finished clearing the lawn shortly before 3 P.M. The rocks were deposited on the pathway between Mott Hall and the Bookstore.

Dr. Gallagher asserted the parking lot "has nothing to do with the issue of temporary structures for classroom purposes." It is needed, he explained, to compensate for the Jasper Oval parking facilities that will be vacated by the Science and Physical Education building.

lack of facilities, he said, the demonstration could be considered a move to retain limited facilities by blocking plans for enrollment.

Students in the demonstration cited several reasons for their participation: lack of a student voice in decision-making, anger at the plan for temporary facilities, or desire to retain the lawn.

Most of the students came from the South Campus Cafeteria to join the protest. Student Government and political leaders from many organizations, were among the participants.

Students used every available receptacle to remove the truckload of crushed rock deposited on the Mott Lawn Tuesday morning.

Rally Here Demands Freedom For Three Anti-War Soldiers

By DANIEL WEISMAN

More than 250 students gathered on the South Campus Lawn yesterday to protest the imprisonment of three soldiers who have refused to go to Vietnam.

The rally in support of "The Fort Hood Three" — Dennis Mora, David Samas and James Johnson — was organized by the W.E.B. DuBois Club and Students for a Democratic Society. Mora was graduated from the College in 1964.

Manuel Magana, Mora's uncle, told the crowd his nephew was jailed because he is Puerto Rican. "Our society is divided into two groups," he said, "There's the rich privileged class and the majority — workers, farmers, teachers and students."

The President will meet with student leaders and faculty tomorrow to discuss the situation.

Director of Public Relations I. E. Levine said students were "laboring under a misunderstanding." Although much criticism has been leveled at the College's Marc Treibwasser (Physics) commented, "I hate to see students groveling before anything for better education. But if this is the only way that students can show support for quality education at City, then I guess that everybody's got to get stoned."

Council By-Elections Delayed; Grades May Bar Candidates

By JONATHAN PENZNER

The Student Government elections scheduled for yesterday and today have been tentatively put off until Oct. 26-27, following a dispute over the C-average requirement for candidates.

The Elections Agency ordered the postponement after Student Council ruled that the individual and not the College or any other body should decide academic eligibility.

The General Faculty Committee on Student Activities (GFCSA) presently determines candidates' academic eligibility. The Elections Agency charged G was not justified in its "defense" of the GFCSA regulation, and a request should be directed to the GFCSA for a change.

The faculty group is expected to convene shortly to resolve the issue of the election.

SG President Shelly Sachs said the election will "probably be held" at the end of the month regardless of the GFCSA decision.

Three at-large representatives and the vice president for educational affairs will be elected in the vote.

NO SOLDIERS TO VIETNAM

"In the end we depend entirely on the public. We have placed ourselves in the hands of the people of the United States, and all of our hopes lie with them. We win or lose depending upon how the people respond. We risk our futures and maybe our lives on the hopes of the American public.

We need your help."

The Fort Hood Three, Dennis Mora (a graduate of City College), James Johnson, and David Samas, are three G.I.'s who have been jailed for three to five years for refusing to go to fight in Vietnam. In a joint statement they declared:

"We have made our decision. We will not be a part of this unjust, immoral, and illegal war."

We the undersigned students and faculty members of City College feel especially close to this case. We wholeheartedly support the courageous and principled stand taken by these soldiers, and pledge to do all in our power to bring about their immediate release. We assert the right of all Americans to freely discuss, criticize and refuse to participate in the war in Vietnam.

Increased Enrollment, Deficits May Endanger Student Loans

Students may find it more difficult to obtain loans at the College because of increased enrollment.

Despite the expansion of student loan programs by Congress and private sources, mounting student application for loans have surpassed the available funds.

Applications for loans are accepted in Room 214 Finley.

Besides a 10 per cent increase in enrollment, cheating has been cited in shortage. Parents may be borrowing money through their children because of low interest rates granted to students.

The House of Representatives voted to grant $190 million for student loans under the National Defense Education Act (NDEA). The Senate still has the bill before it. Under the NDEA, undergraduates can borrow up to $1,000, and graduate students can receive $2,500 yearly, not to exceed $10,000 for undergraduate and graduate study combined. Students pay no interest on loans while in school, and only three per cent after graduation.

Federal grants are divided among states on the basis of school enrollment and requests. The Federal government pays the interest on a loan until the student graduates. Upon completion of his studies, the borrower pays 3 per cent interest.

President Johnson has urged the elimination of the NDEA program instead. He wants to establish government backing of banks for student loans. The bankers strongly oppose the President's proposal because they said that they could not support the government's insured loan plan and their own student loan programs at the same time. The United Student Aid Fund presently insures private loan programs.

Referendum Committee Writes Three Questions

By CARLA ASHER

The ad hoc committee on the draft referendum has decided on three of the questions that will form the draft referendum.

The committee, headed by Professor Thomas Karis (Chmn., Political Science) determined the questions Tuesday.

The three questions are:

- Shall the City College release class rankings for use by the Selective Service Administration?

- Shall the City College make its facilities available for the administration of Selective Service tests?

- Shall the City College establish a committee of students, faculty members and administrators to seek the separation of colleges and universities from the administration of Selective Service?

Prof. Karis commented that the committee had made "a lot of progress." Other members of the committee are Professor Harry Lustig (Chmn., Physics), Dean of Students Willard W. Blaesser, and three students: Mark Brody, Mike Markowitz and Joe Slater.

A second meeting will be held tomorrow to decide on the mechanics of the referendum and the date.

The decision to hold a referendum was made as a result of a faculty vote held during the summer. The faculty approved holding a referendum to determine whether to release ranking for purpose of draft deferment by a vote of 522-374.

'Vector' Articles Receive Plaudits

Vector, the College's engineering magazine, has received a first prize, for the best non-technical article written by an undergraduate engineer.

The prize, plus a third-place award for the best single issue published by an undergraduate engineering school, was presented at a recent conference of the Engineering College Magazine Association (ECMA) in Philadelphia, an association of engineering colleges.

ECMA offers a forum for ideas in the publishing of technical material and acts as a general clearing house for nationwide ideas. It represents all major undergraduate engineering publications.

The prize-winning article, by Alvin Newman, was entitled "Twentieth Century Building Art" it discussed the "poetry" involved in civil engineering and architecture. Newman asserted art and science are fused in architectural styles of today, and that the modern engineer, unlike his earlier counterpart, is able to evoke his own style.

Vector has traditionally played a prominent role in the Philadelphia conference, but this is the first occasion that the magazine placed so highly.

IFC Plans Folk-Rock Concert To Establish New Loan Fund

"The most incandescent group in folk rock today" will perform at an IFC-sponsored concert in December.

Profits will start a scholarship fund for members of underprivileged groups who could not otherwise afford to attend college.

The Blues Project, applauded above by The New York Times, will appear at Hunter College Auditorium.

The idea of a benefit concert for underprivileged students, said Gerry Jaffe, President of IFC, originated with SG President Shelly Sachs, who was last term's IFC vice-president.

In a letter to Dean Willard W. Blaesser last January, Sachs said: "In the past, the College has served minority and deprived ethnic groups, assisting significantly in elevating their social and economic status so that they become part of the mainstream of society . . . It now becomes the task of the City College community to respond to the needs of the underprivileged minority of today."

Sachs proposed a benefit concert for this spring, but it never took place.

IFC hopes that federal poverty funds will be made available under a program that would multiply by ten the available scholarship monies.

Splattered Egg

Dean Blaesser's announcement that admission quotas have not been set for all City University schools makes President Buell G. Gallagher look rather hasty in his schemes to find room — at any cost — for the proposed enrollment here.

Perhaps if Dr. Gallagher had stood by his school and fought the crowd-packing and politically motivated Board of Higher Education, instead of welcoming the increase with pronouncements on the College's duty to the community, plans for steel huts could have been avoided.

To top off his seeming disregard for the quality of education here, he has dumped crushed rock on our most attractive lawn — coincidentally, on the day he was leaving town. Students who could stomach such tactics no longer, quickly arose and flung them back with utter contempt for the Administration.

Too long has Dr. Gallagher sacrificed all to his Master Plan with a disregard for students and faculty, much as an overweight hen sits on her eggs, not realizing she is splattering them.

No matter what arguments are advanced for the need for the parking lot, bulldozers on the lawn symbolize to the student body the Administration's usurpation of their rights, and the massacre of their education.

In light of the rock-pickers' enthusiasm, it seems likely that students will meet further attempts to destroy the campus' beauty with equal courage. Dr. Gallagher, who sought to pave the lawn in secret, will find his inability to understand the student body public knowledge.

We demand that President Gallagher face the issues at hand — and face them with the students. Student Government President Shelly Sachs has proposed a student-faculty "shadow cabinet" to take part in decision-making until a more democratic participation is an integral part of the College. We strongly endorse the proposal; students and faculty must not rest until we have the right to a voice in our own fate.

Gideonse Assails Today's Colleges

Dr. Harry D. Gideonse, past President of Brooklyn College, writing in the College's "Alumnus" magazine, assailed the irrelevance of today's college education with the tradition of the liberal education. "Close to the truth" is this evaluation of Jacques Barzun's thesis that "the liberal arts tradition is dying or dead."

Dr. Gideonse recognizes the validity of a Berkeley faculty report that holds there is "a significant and growing minority of students not compelled by what we have come to regard as conventional motivation." The report comments that these youth want to be "successful men, not in an achievement-oriented society" but "moral men in a moral society."

Dr. Gideonse believes that our educational institutions should recognize the changing values of American youth. This new strain of youth should be allowed the freedom to define its identity, before being "confronted" with "the relevant citations of the old Gospel."

The recently retired head of Brooklyn College feels that it is not the purpose of our colleges and universities to accept the role of "research and development department of a modern industry."

Dr. Gideonse asserts that our learning institutions should assume the responsibility of deriving values more meaningful in creating a great society rather than in building the industrial capacities of the "Great Society."

Dave McReynolds of the War Resisters League said it is every student's responsibility not to fight in the war until he understands how the United States became involved in the war.

"The honor of the U.S.," he added, "is not its unity but in its diversion; not in dodging the draft but in fighting it." He concluded that "these three young men are the honor of the U.S."

During the rally two petitions were circulated through the crowd. One supported the actions of the Fort Hood three; the other called for increased student participation in campus affairs and urged that the draft referendum be binding.

Other speakers were Ruth Colby of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and Larry Rothfeder, president of SDS.

The Dow Chemical Company, maker of floor wax other goodies, was an aggressive bidder for a government contract to manufacture napalm, a substance that burns people alive. This company is comparable to Krupp, Bohlen, the infamous manufacturers of Hitler's ovens (used to burn people alive), and more currently, of Volkswagen. Krupp was denounced after the war as a war criminal. Dow deserves all that can be dished out to it.

Anti-war groups are now organizing a general boycott of all of innocents. It would be nice if all the progressive-minded kids read this column would, for a start, refrain from using Saran Wrap as a prophylactic. Use brand eech and strike a blow for humanity.

There is a movement afoot that started on the west coast and spreading throughout the country; girls are abandoning their bras, constraining "booby-traps" that prohibit freedom of movement. The swinging females, known collectively as the Free Teat Movement, view the brassiere as a device foisted on the public by the "establishment" as part of an unofficial program to regimentalize America.

A Washington girl I spoke to last week told me her high school teacher sent a bunch of her friends to the principal for the absence of bras. I wonder how he found out?

"We have it on the authority of such ancient wise men as Minos, Ben Schmalz the Elder and Alcibiades Schmecklebender the Younger that the difference between Judaism and Hellenism was, essentially, that while the Greeks washed their hands before masturbating, Jews washed their hands after masturbating, which explains a lot about their relative attitudes toward sex." # LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Inhuman?

To the Editor:

On Wednesday, September 28, at one o'clock, I was riding downtown on the D train from school, and heard a commotion. I got up to peer over a circle of people to get a closer look at a woman who appeared to have fainted and fallen between the seat. I rushed in to help her without a moment's hesitation when I saw that ten to fifteen people were gawking at her like animals and all of them had moved five feet away from her.

She was having an epileptic fit; I threw down my purse and books, trying to force tissues between her teeth. When I implored "help her!" a man's voice said, "leave her alone." Finally two older women moved in and helped me drag her by the arms to a lying position in the aisle. A student offered his gym shorts as a head rest, and a young lady, whose lap she had originally fallen into, came back to comfort her.

Fortunately, the seizure was very mild, and someone had summoned a Transit Authority officer, who helped her from the train.

Upon getting off the train, one stop later, a woman asked me what had happened and admitted she was a nurse and told me she had been afraid to get involved because she might be late for her appointment!

How could all of these people have even paused a second when a fellow human being was in dire need?

After it was all over, I was shaking at the knees and wondering what would have happened had I been the one crumpled between the seats.

A STUDIOUS OMISSION

To the Editor:

In the September 20th edition of OP, you presented a report on the 19th Annual National Congress of the U.S. National Student Association. The article included a report on a number of the actions taken at this convention. The article mentioned the Vietnam issue, civil rights, the draft, drugs, LSD, and the NSA elections. OP, however, studiously omitted any mention of a most serious development during the convention, something which should be viewed by all justice-minded students with satisfaction colored with a certain amount of concern.

The NSA had sent a five-man delegation to the International Student Conference in Nairobi, an organization which bars Israel from membership, which was meeting at the same time as was the NSA Congress. There, they passed an anti-Israel resolution which charged that "Zionism and British imperialism" brought about the "Palestine problem;" that Israel "acted in collusion with imperialistic interests" to threaten peace; that the Arab refugees lived under "inhuman conditions;" that Israel discriminates against her Arab citizens and students; that Israel fails to adhere to the UN resolution.

Euphemism

This resolution, offered by the Iranian students delegation, supported the struggle of the "Palestine people" and urged students "to attain their usurped and yet inalienable rights" — a euphemistic way of calling for Israel's disappearance.

Without an Israeli delegation on hand to present the true facts or to take part in the discussion or the vote, the resolution passed 15 to 10. Not only did the U.S. delegation vote in favor of it, but the leaders of the delegation, Charles Goldmark of Seattle, and Frederick Berger, lobbied actively for it.

An intense discussion at the NSA Convention met the news of this position. It resulted in a 370 to 7 vote for repudiation and consequent censure of Charles Goldmark.

This positive action by the NSA deserves the attention and unstinted praise of all students, Zionist or non-Zionist alike, who are concerned with justice.

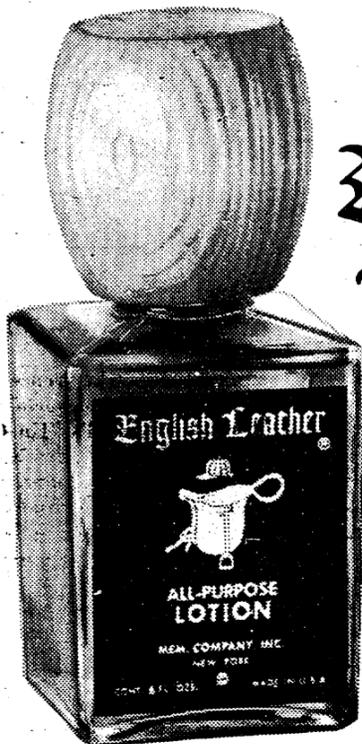

The repudiation and censure, however, fails to explain why the two American leaders played such an active role in pushing for this resolution at Nairobi. The International Student Conference is composed of student bodies from certain pro-Western nations with two Arab countries, Lebanon and Sudan, as members. A possible answer to the question might be that propaganda of the Organization of Arab Students in the U.S. has made a deep impression on the thinking of leaders of NSA.

With so many Jewish students committed to civil rights, Vietnam, and anti-draft positions because of their sense of justice, it is amazing that so few are taking an active interest also in their people in Israel. One of the main reasons for this apathy might be ignorance of the issues because of mediocre press coverage on these matters. It is to the great credit of the U.S. National Student Association that it came through the way it did with an almost unanimous repudiation on this occasion of such an outrageous resolution. The present, however, does not assure an equally bright future. For those students whose sense of moral justice and whose concern for Israel's standing in the United States compels them to develop a firmer understanding of the issues and the action to be taken, there is the Student Zionist Organization of Hillel on campus.

To the Editor:

As the photography editor of Tech News, I was photographing the demonstrations last May 14 against the tests for student deferment that were being conducted inside Townsend Harris Hall at the time of the demonstrations. I noticed 3 men in street clothes, all wearing identical lapel pins, who did not seem to be part of the College community. When I asked them if they were detectives, they merely shrugged off the question. When I tried to photograph them, I was stopped by 4 Burns Guards, including a sergeant who moved in front of me, blocking my view. When I attempted to move from behind them and take the picture from a different view, the guards followed me and they told me to move on. I showed my press pass. I wrote a letter to Dr. Gallagher's office asking for an explanation of the Burns Guards' actions and the presence of "strangers" on the campus. It seems that there was no need for detectives for policing functions since there were already uniformed police on campus. In reply I received a memorandum from Mr. I. E. Levine, Director of Public Relations, explaining that "the men in plainclothes . . . were regular city detectives. They were members of our local 26th precinct . . . sent up apparently because there had been published and telephone reports to the Police Department of attempts to interfere in the administration of the tests and of threats to harm students taking the test of the proctors. Unlike the uniformed policemen stationed on or off-campus — as indeed they were not — but to be present in case of an attempt to interfere with the examination, and to protect the individuals involved should that have proved to be necessary. I am informed that detectives are prohibited by Police Dept. regulations . . . from allowing themselves to be photographed. Apparently, it was they who requested the Burns Guards to shield them. . . . Although the reply seems plausible, I do not believe that there was any need for the plainclothesmen since there were regular uniformed policemen to do precisely what the "detectives" were supposed to do. At the time of the incident, several left-wing demonstrators told me that the "plainclothesmen" were a "Red Squad" sent to check up on students. Although I think that some of these people are a bit paranoid about Big Brother, there seems to be a valid question in this case as to the actual identity of the plainclothesmen.

FDU Tops Booters

Lechner passed to the Knights All-American halfback Danny Goldstein, who rammied a 15-yarder past Beaver goalie Benishai for the first tally.

With three minutes left in the half, Papadopoulos received a pass from sophomore Santiago Ferrari, waited to force the FDU goalie to commit himself and lofted the ball into the left corner of the goal to tie the score at 1-1.

The second half was strictly a defensive game for both teams. Late in the third period, forward George Morar of the Beavers received a pass on a fast break with only the FDU goalie guarding the net and missed. Several other opportunities missed because of bad shooting, a lack of shooting or the awful refereeing.

The Beaver defense, which shone in the three previous contests, lapsed several times, but fortunately escaped damage, aided by the fine goal-tending of Benishai.

Then with 21 seconds left to play in the last overtime period, the Beaver defense lapsed again. Goldmark, assisted by his center forward Enver Doluzolu picked up a loose ball and lifted a soft line drive toward the Lavender goal. Kronick misjudged it and the ball sailed into the upper left corner for the fatal blow.

The game proved very costly for the Beavers. In the last quarter, not only Benishai, but veteran fullback and team captain Ted Jonke had to leave because of injuries. Senior forward Mike Nigro sat out the end of the game and Ferrari, who had been doing a fine job on the Knights' Goldstein, couldn't run. Inexperienced personnel replaced these three, weakening the defense considerably.

Academy at Kings Point is being described by some members of the squad as the "lull before the storm," for after this meet the Lavender harriers will face their really rough competition. Iona and Central Connecticut State are the next opponents, on October 22, and then New York University, Manhattan College and Temple University.

The Kings Point squad should not be overlooked too soon, however, since coach Bill Omeltchenko is bringing a group of spirited runners to Van Cortlandt Park.

Omeltchenko is willing to concede first and even second place to the Beaver's Jim O'Connell and Abe Assa, but he feels that Jerry Shanley and Gene Bruschi should be able to lead the Long Island squad in a pack finish.

Omeltchenko has four boys who have done better than 30 minutes for the five-mile course and four others who might break the half-hour barrier.

Besides Shanley and Bruschi, who have done 28:47 and 28:34, respectively, the other top Kings Point runners are John Gotimer (29:45), Steve Chappelle (28:47) and Ed Carlidge (30:21).

If coach Castro's harriers look too far ahead, they may find themselves behind the boys from King's Point tomorrow.

Ho Hum... Harriers Win, O'Connell Sets Record

By NOAH GUROCK
The College's cross-country team extended its unbeaten streak to four Wednesday with a 26-30 victory over Montclair State College.

The meet, held under sunny skies over a windy Garret Park course in West Paterson, New Jersey, saw Jim O'Connell lead the harriers from both teams with a 24:59 clocking for the 4.6 miles, breaking the course record by 10 seconds.

O'Connell was followed across the finish line by Montclair's Jim Harris, at 25:28, with the College's Abe Assa third, seven seconds behind Harris.

Montclair copped the next two places and Beaver runners Andrew Ferrara and Bernard Samet scored in sixth and seventh place, with a clocking of 27:54 and 28:01, respectively. The next two Lavender tracksters to finish were Martin Brill (9th place — 28:14) and Allan Steinfeld (10th place — 28:18).

O'Connell, placing first in his fourth cross-country meet in as many attempts, had little trouble out-distancing the field. He led almost from the start, and after passing the half-way mark in front by 10 seconds, opened up his lead to win by almost 175 yards.

Although he did break the course record, O'Connell said he could have been a little faster. "We weren't too sure of the course," he explained, "and we were boxed in at the start by the large group of runners. Maybe that cost me some time." And with the lack of a real challenger, O'Connell shook free after about 200 yards and was home free.

"All we are looking for is respectability," Montclair coach George Horn said before the meet. "I told the boys it's a pleasure to run against someone good, but nevertheless, to run our own race and not to run after him (O'Connell) too much. O'Connell is one of the best in the East and we have to concede first place to him."

After the meet, the first year hill and dale mentor of the Montclair Indians seemed pleased by his charges, saying, "They're just now rounding into shape; it's only their fourth week of practice. I first met them September 19th, and the following Saturday we had our first meet. But their really tough competition.

Iona and Central Connecticut State are the next opponents, on October 22, and then New York Jersey State College kids. They're all looking forward to the New Jersey State College Conference Meet (November 5)."

The real race of the afternoon was for second place. Assa and Harris ran shoulder-to-shoulder through the first half of the race. About 800 yards into the second half, Harris took the lead and stretched it out until he held a 40 yard advantage over Assa. With about 400 yards to go, Assa tried to move on Harris, only to have the Indian runner push harder for the final burst to the finish line.

Booters Drop Second In Row, Losing To FDU In Overtime, 2-1

By JOEL DREYFUSS
Halfback Pedro Goldmark scored with 21 seconds left in the second overtime period, Wednesday, to give Fairleigh Dickinson University (FDU) a 2-1 victory over the College's soccer team.

CCNY	Shots 16	Saves 16
FDU	Shots 31	Saves 9

The goal, scored against substitute goalkeeper Arnie Kronick minutes after he replaced injured starter Dave Benishai, sent the Beavers to their second straight defeat.

The Beavers went to Teaneck expecting to meet a powerful opponent, for FDU had beaten NYU by 4-0. The same NYU team clubbed the Lavender 5-2 last Saturday.

FDU turned out to be a fair match for the booters, handicapped as the Beavers were by the slacking offense, a spotty defense and painful officiating.

The game got under way with the Beavers pressing hard at FDU's goal. With 4:35 gone in the first quarter, inside right Andre Papadopoulos took a pass, dribbled by two Fairleigh defenders and drove the ball into the net.

The referee blew his whistle after the play and signaled an offside. Lavender coach Ray Klivecka charged onto the field to protest, but to no avail.
