Alternative Construction Sites
Suggested by Shadow Cabinet

By ERICA RAPPORT

Counterproposals to President Buell G. Gallagher's blue-prints for ad­ facilities have been formulated by the recently established shadow cabinet.

Student Government President
Shelly Sachs emphasized that a meet­ing with President Gallagher the day after tomorrow night will determine their "feasibility." The goal of the shadow cabinet is to facilities for use by students including the South Campus and Mott Hall Lawns, Sachs

A total of 75 additional offices to accommodate 150 faculty members should be erected, Sachs con­ tioned, to "ease the burden" of office space. Although it will be more costly, the cabinet has suggested a two story structure of offices between Wagner Hall and St. Nicholas Terrace.

In addition, it has proposed a complex of 14 offices east of Mott Hall for use by the English department; this area is used less frequently than the other two lawns involved, he maintained.

This would eliminate the area of a considerable number of offices, he added.

The shadow cabinet also suggested an alternative to paving Mott Hall Lawn for faculty parking. It proposed that two parking lots be created to hold a total of 66 cars, the number now using Jasper Oval.

President Buell G. Gallagher attended a Student Council meeting several weeks ago to discuss expansion plans.

The classrooms were designed to accommodate between 45 and 125 students each, and could house over 4,500 additional students if all 80 were constructed. The purpose of the studies, Yermack said, was to ascertain the maximum number of structures that could be built at the College.

President Buell G. Gallagher revealed yesterday that the original plan to admit 1,200 extra students had been shelved after other City University schools refused to assume an equitable share of the increased quotas.

CU Chancellor Albert H. Bowkard announced on Sept. 27 that 2,000 additional freshmen would be admitted next fall, and Dr.
Gallagher agreed to accept 1,200 in the College.

When Queens set its quota at 1360, and Brooklyn and Hunter, 500, Dr. Gallagher announced the College would change its plans unless the other schools accepted enough freshmen to meet/the Chancellor's goal.

Feasibility studies on the construction of 80 pre-fabricated classrooms and 134 faculty officers were reviewed by Student Government Treasurer Larry Yermack.

The studies were not "plans or tenta­tive plans for construction," be­ heated, but merely surveys of space available to accommodate prefabricated structures.

Prepared two weeks ago by the College's Planning and Design, the studies were made public by Dr. Gallagher, Monday, at the shadow cabinet meeting.

The President told the shadow cabinet that he wants to sign contracts for construction of facilities near Shepard and Elmer Halls "as soon as possible."

President Gallagher said, "I have tried for weeks to get discussions" of the studies with students and faculty, but students were "unprepared" to discuss them with him.

The President explained that he was willing to meet with students and faculty leaders to discuss the decision for facilities near Shepard and Elmer Halls.

An open meeting in Great Hall is also a possibility, he said.

In addition to the six structures behind Shepard Hall, plans now call for 14 lots on the Convent Avenue side of the hold­ ning, and four classrooms on the Administration Building lawn.

The study also includes plans for the construction of four blocks of temporary classrooms on the South Campus Lawn.

Three of the four would contain 10-24x25 foot classrooms housing 42 students each. The fourth block will contain eight classrooms and two laboratories.

A block of 33.12x15 foot facul­ ity offices and two laboratories was mapped on the west part of the lawn near Park Gym, along with 10 classrooms.

Other huts between the gym and Mott Hall would contain 44 faculty offices. The lawn north of Park Gym will be used as a plan as a faculty parking lot.

The tennis courts and lawn next to Wagner Hall will be replaced by two blocks of 26 offices each under the plan.

The tennis courts and lawn near the College Library could accommodate a block of eight classrooms, according to the plans, and five faculty offices could fit between the tennis courts and Steiglitz Hall.
American Negroes and Jews:
"Love-Hate Feeling" Explored

By NANCY LINDE

The "love-hate" relationship at the root of the American Negro's anti-Semitic feelings was explored by a representative of the British Anti-Defamation League at a meeting of the Christian Association last Thursday.

Robert Frankel, an evening student at the College, said the purpose of his talk was to give Christians some idea of what this phenomenon is about. He said it is usually Jews who are interest ed in it since they are more per sonally concerned with its consequences.

The most significant factor in the Negro-Jew relationship, he said, is the question of a "love hate" feeling. Both are part of minority groups and are tied together by the same problems and the same struggles, he continued.

He cited a five-year statistical study by the University of California, saying that anti-Semitism is not a major force in the Negro community. The major force, according to the report, is an over present Negro hostility to whites.

Negroes, he continued, tend to have a more favorable opinion of Jews than of other whites. Most of the vocal Negro anti-Semitism is coming from such prominent Negro groes as Civil Rights leader, Reverend Jesse Jackson, and the leaders of the Black Nationalist Movement, he added. However, "This is only a louder manifestation of the actually minor anti-Semitic feeling in the Negro community."

Frankel said some Negro anti-Semitism could stem from the fact that Negroes regard the Jew ish businessman, with whom they have a great deal of contact, as a representative of the "affluent white establishment."

Clark's Awarded Columbia Honors

Dr. Kenneth B. Clark (Psychology) and his wife, Masie, have been awarded Columbia University's Butler Silver Medal for their "penetrating studies of the psychological and pedagogical problems confronting Negro children."

The couple, both Columbia alumni, founded the Northside Center for Child Development, a guidance clinic for children between three and 10 years of age. Dr. Clark is the author of "The Negro in the Ghetto," a study for the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

The others are "Jammie the Blues," a visual interpretation of the blues, and winner of a 1964 Cannes Film Festival award, Edgar Allen Poe's "Tell-Tale Heart," James Thurber's "Unicorns in the Garden," "The Critic" and "The Adventures of an Aristocrat" (the life story of a human being), and "The Brotherhood of Man," an animated film, winner of a 1964 Cannes Film Festival award.

Tickets for PUFF are on sale Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 11 to 2 in the Student Government Office. No tickets will be sold at the door.

Franz Lee To Lecture Here On South African Civil Rights

By STU GREEN
Franz J. T. Lee, a South African fighter for civil rights, will speak at the College tomorrow, on apartheid policies in South Af­ rica, the recent assassination of Prime Minister Verwoerd, and the nature of the Alexander De­ fense Committee.

The Alexander Defense Com­ mittee, formed in February 1965, protests the imprisonment of Dr. Martin Luther King and 10 of his associates for advocating that "colored people stand up for their rights and that armed struggle to liberate the non-whites should be contemplated."

Student Government Campus Affairs Vice-President Shirley Appel cited her concern with the reaction of the student body to an issue, that one short year ago would have elicted througths of students. "If Civil Rights has died as an issue on this campus, then the student's involvement with the world around them has died also," she said.

The purpose of Lee's talk here, according to Miss Appel, is "to activate people to work for the Committee and help raise funds." But he is also here, she said, to "tell us all" the University campuses over Thanks­ giving. "We should speak, she added, "that the student's involvement with the world around them has died also."

Lee is the author of the book, "South Africa Before the Revolu­tion" and has written for a num­ ber of German newspapers and periodicals before going on his present lecture tour.

Civil Rights Leader

"A student's involvement with the world around him doesn't end when he's finished surveying his immediate surroundings," and Miss Appel, "The Civil Rights issues are still here. Perhaps Lee's talk will help make students realize that."

"I invited him here," she con­ cluded, "because for me, and for many other students, this will be a chance to listen, and to learn."

Lee's lecture is sponsored by the Omega Society.

HOUSE PLAN CORRIDOR
The girl is dressed in white; the girl is always dressed in white. She is tall, slender, well-dressed, virginal and very white.

She is walking home to safety from the lurking shadows of New York City's white night. But her route takes her through "the jungle." In our living rooms we empathize with this girl. "She is your sister, your mother, your girl friend, a loved one," the voice tells us. "She is in danger, one moment's hesitation may mean her life. You can save this girl! STOP THE CIVILIAN REVIEW BOARD."

The hate campaign plays on our fear of those shadows, those blue shadows. The black darkness is walking, hiding, leering, watching over the girl, that epitome of American morality; to rape her; mongrelize her, is an attack on us, Robert Shelton, Imperial Wizard of the United Klans of America (KKK), has said so.

"I am a schoolteacher and I have a teenage daughter. If the police don't protect her, who will?" This is a direct attack upon the integrity of the Police Force, unless the police have carte blanche to act, they will not do their job.

To most of us, the issues are crystal clear; black and white. The colored people want the Review Board, the Commissar wants the Review Board, Lindsay and Kennedy want the Review Board. They don't know anything about police work. The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association has said so. Now can civilians pass judgment over police? It only will make him less heretic in the line of duty.

The Civilian Review Board must be stopped! Her life, your life... may depend on it.

Throughout history civil supervision over military groups has led to totalitarian governments. The editor of "El Tiempo," Juan Ibarra, has said so. He cites as examples Hitler's Brown Shirts and Castro's Cuban tribunals.

STOP THE CIVILIAN REVIEW BOARD, a student advocate from his latest; STOP the advancing army; STOP the threat... STOP IT... FEAR IT... HATE IT... KILL IT.

To dialogue continues. The mayor, the senator, the New York Times, the New York Civil Liberties Union cantely point out that a civilian-dominated police review board is in the best interests of the police and the citizens of the city. Even the Police Commissioner, Howard R. Leary, has stated publicly that the Civilian Review Board has in no way affected the performance of the City's cops. "It has certainly strengthened the spirit of cooperation between the police and the public," he said.

But the demagogues, the hate-mongers, and the sensationalists capture the timeliness. That girl, the poor white girl, have that fragile pinnacle of parity from the black chaos of commerized power.

A society whose values are based on the precepts of democracy cannot afford to have its military and para-military bodies irregular and unsupervised. We cannot exist as a democratic society when we close off use of our most important avenues of communication between the military and the citizenry in this time of strained relations.

We, as citizens, don't wish to fight our police or make their jobs more difficult; we want them to protect us. It's very reassuring to see a patrolman walking through the subway at midnight.

However, we are suspicious of our police when we read of Jane Book, or of a woman beaten to death, or when we hear of his emoration by an internal review board 1 month months later, after the air has cleared.

If the police are guilty or innocent on this point it is irrelevent; we don't help but doubt the acquittal as a whitewash; and our relations with the police remain strained.

On Nov. 4, the Civilian Review Board will be decisively defeated by New York's voters. The PBA, the conservative Party, the John Birch Society, the Parents and Taxpayers and all the other patriotic groups that we that need the result as a tremendous blow against totalitarianism.

Call To Action

A handful of students began yesterday to circulate petitions that open, "We believe that College decisions are too often arbitrarily made by the Administration without the consultation and consent of students and faculty members."

Among the initial sponsors are Student Government leaders, editors from several student newspapers and former presidents of Interfraternity Council and House Plan Association. We believe this may well be the first step toward a unified and activist student protest against the present situation at the College.

At best, the situation is unfortunate and multi-faceted; at worst, it is a deliberate confusion created by administrators to cover their true intent.

In any case, when the President of the College is forced from habit and pressure, to speak in "double-think" that can be interpreted however he chooses later on, the situation is grave.

Confusions and rallies led to the formation of the shadow cabinet, to be fed information at Dr. Gallagher's discretion. Until students realize that the time for these empty and meaningless discussions is past, no solution is possible.

Students and faculty must unite on the problems of expansion, and in a broader cause, the questions of who will run the College - draft policy, admissions, building, and curriculum. The Administration must not be allowed to run the College - draft policy, admissions, building, and park doors.

This proposal for a committee is particularly important, for it would bypass the committee to be elected - undemocratically, in several weeks. Dr. Gallagher has sought to control the election of this faculty committee by promising the committee by decreeing that each school - Liberal Arts and Sciences utilizes approximately 80 per cent of the classroom hours here.

Once and for all, the President and his cabinet must be made to understand that any attempt to distort the democratic process or back-room decisions to change our education without a voice in them. Perhaps we have the momentum now; students must press forward and seize their legitimate power, and after all the deceit with which they have been treated, no action would be unreasonable.
Perpetuation Of The Cult
By Elaine Schwager

Listening to Timothy Leary’s silky voice sliding over images of azure blue, through entangling gossamers and glimpses of the universe of body and soul, hardly allows you to doubt his sincerity.

In 30 years, according to his master plan, the world should be turned over to LSD; each man revolving around his own axis, exploring the rhythms of breathing, cellular reactions and nervous responses. Within each man is the evolution of his race to be relived, and the joy of living. “Once you learn how to die, living comes easy,” Leary said.

He paints how easy it all is with intriguing poetry, and somehow succeeds in making you believe in a utopian society afoot. In half an hour, Christ is resurrected through Patrick Murphy, a Christian boy from Brooklyn. Under a real cloud the resurrection could occur in one second, Leary emphasized.

What Will We Save?

In 50 years we may all be Christ, all saviors, but who will we save how will we save them? Will we be able to return from our journeys of realization and then communicate to others this enlightenment?

LSD is not inherently good or evil. It has both potentials. Unity in one’s life and throughout the world is feasible by making each person part of himself and also reality. It could fragment the human race, the human mind—create a billion minds each with its own moon adhering to its own light, each light able to penetrate only its own body. Leary fails to present problems such as how the LSD experience can be properly communicated. Our present language is obviously inadequate. What will we communicate in a whole new vocabulary of symbols? What type of societal structure can encompass both the individual’s need to establish himself and provide the necessary channels of communication for unified working society? Can such a system possibly evolve from today’s establishment?

If man can’t relate experiences, create using others creations, he can’t, in essence, resign from the human race.

Harnessed Potential Good

Tim Leary may know how to harness the potential good contained in LSD. He’s negating his sincerity by standing on a stage in some Seventh Street theater in front of an audience of thousands, each paying a dollar to hear, and then he is not there to make a profit, but rather as a prophet of some artificially induced education, into which the majority of the people in the theater go out, without a care.

Such a psychedelic celebration as this only serves to perpetuate the LSD cult—making it a part of mass culture. Leary is thus allowing this chemical religion to become part of the game in this mechanized world, rather than directing it against the lack of spiritual satisfaction such a world creates.

If he wants to turn people on to spiritual discovery, he should select those capable of spiritually discovering, not spread thinly some vague beginner’s plan.

LSD is not an alternative to this world, not an escape or a thrill for the high. It can become an integral part of the world and of man only if it is used exclusively by those who want to come back after their trips as better people ready to make a better world.

TRUE COLORS
To the Editor:
The College’s chapter of the Young Americans for Freedom has finally revealed the true feelings behind its grandiose name. It prefers to hide behind a facade of students, when, in reality, it is an outgrowth of the anti-communist vigilance of the John Birch Society. After a year’s of vigilance against communism, the College chapter has sent a letter to the administration stating: “It is our firm belief that the political philosophy of the faculty of this college is not consonant with the basic principles of this country!”

Maybe we will gain these rights, maybe we won’t. But the future in the college administration will grant us a binding referendum to determine which rock ’n’ roll band should be hired to accompany our dance. Referendums are the steps of Cohen Library.

Yours truly,
Edward T. Rosenbaun

DEMOCRACY
To the Editor:
I find it astonishing to hear the constant demands for referendums of the faculty for democracy on campus and at the same time their demands for referendums to determine the college’s political position is?

Whatever the intentions of the minority of the minority it has defended. One which can try to destroy the liberties of the majority and which is to be produced.

The referendums will be held to be the “official will of the people.” In order to satisfy the demands for democracy, shouldn’t’s we have a referendum every term so that the votes of new students can be counted, or perhaps we can be even more democratic and have a new referendum on the same day so that at any specific time in the term we can be certain what the majority’s official democratically arrived at position is?

Not Surprising

It is not surprising that those who today ask for a referendum in the name of democracy offer us referendums. A referendum might effectively destroy one of those enemies of democracy whose freedom of expression. Referendums are initiated by those who wish to destroy individual liberties. The advocates of the referendum are sympathetic to those individuals who favor the proposition that “no class standings will be sent to the draft boards,” whether or not individual students wish their sent. No more blatantly anti-democratic and anti-liber­

As or three days' practice due injury, the team's only bright player by choice and missing he still managed to continue his improvement towards conquering his own record. O'Connell commented, "I wasn't pushing very hard at the end. I was just going through the motions."

The consensus is that Jim does not have enough speed to win in a stretch run, but as long as he remains so far ahead of the field, he will not have a chance to prove or disprove this theory.

In any case, continued improvement, cool weather, and a great race by Manhattan's blockchain Kivlan might produce the record as early as next Saturday.

Before the varsity meet, the freshmen were troubled, 16-47. Violet Frosh Alan Mulvey ran the three-mile course in 15:57 (compared to the College's record of 16:44 set by Balabian last year). The Harriser's best this time was Gladstone Nicholas's 17:05. This all goes to prove once more that the College cannot compete on an even basis with schools that offer scholarships in order to attract runners. That is, except for one Harrier.

This is Russ Kennedy of Balboa Island, California, on an in-port field trip as a student aboard Chapman College's floating campus.

Russ transferred the 12 units earned during the study-travel semester at sea to his record at the University of California at Irvine where he continues studies toward a teaching career in life sciences.

As you read this, 450 other students have begun the fall semester voyage of discovery with Chapman College. (Continued on Page 4)
The College Rifle team won a close decision Friday in a triangular meet with Brooklyn College and New York University. The Nimrods, who have enough varsity strength to cause problems over who should start, won with 1058 points to Brooklyn's 958 and New York University's 980.

The excellent shooting of Paul Kahrulak, 289, and Alton Pott, 288, was put to good use by an average score of 289. The three shooters were fired on Saturday. The second team lost, finishing 31:27.5. The team faces a strong opponent — St. Peter's. Despite their victories, the Nimrods are not in first place — as a matter of fact they aren't in any place at all! Rilley is probably the only sport, outside of basketball, that this team has in three years. The last game was played at least three years ago.

The status quo was retained for another week. The team has won two consecutive games and is ready to face the rest of the season. The team's next game is against Princeton on Jan. 23.
