CITY COLLEGE

Faculty Council Considering Plan To Hike Credits

A proposal that all electives now offered by the Political Science Department be increased from three to four credits will be considered by the Faculty Council of the School of Liberal Arts and Sciences tomorrow.

Under the plan, which was approved without a dissenting vote by the Faculty Council's Committee on Curriculum and Teaching on March 27, elective courses would still meet three hours a week.

Professor Thomas Karis, (Chmn., Poli. Sci.), said Monday that the Political Science Department "is unanimous in its conviction that each one of our elective courses can be enriched in various ways." Noting that the additional work required would be determined by the instructor of each particular course, he said that enrichment might be achieved by increasing the depth of a course, or widening its scope.

"I would like to see the College generally move towards the 4 credit load," Professor Karis added.

Professor Harry Soodak (Physics), said that "part of the idea is very good . . . the idea of taking only four courses a term."

NSA Withdrawal Voted by College; Baumohl, Kaplan, Davis Victorious

The National Student Association (NSA) will lose one more student government member as a result of a referendum in last week's by-election. SG will withdraw from NSA next year.

Besides the referendum three seats on Student Council were filled. Steve Baumohl, Council '69, defeated two other council members for the position of SG Secretary. Donald Davis and David Kaplan were elected to Council as representatives of the junior and senior classes, respectively.

For the first time in three years an independent candidate has won an election. Both Kaplan and Davis ran as independents.

Kaplan admits to having had a "sarcastic attitude" toward SG during his four years at the College and said he decided to run in order to "see how SG is run" from the inside.

The victors will be officially seated at today's meeting of Council.

Withdrawal from NSA was endorsed by 302 students; 140 others voted to remain in the national organization of student governments.

Last week's was the third referendum within the last four years to determine the College's membership in NSA. Last May, with the support of both the Independent Reform Ticket (IRT) and Student Involvement (SI) the student body voted 1658-1060 to retain its affiliation. In the election the six delegates chosen to represent the College at the NSA Convention in August were from IRT, SG President Joe Korn's slate. The delegates returned last summer from the convention at University of Maryland and issued reports recommending dissociation from NSA.

Steve Schlesinger, President of the STOP NSA Committee, felt that the delegates' change of opinion over NSA was the major reason for results of the referendum. He stated that "the NSA question was the major issue" in this election, whereas the SG

Student Applicants Sought:

Quick BHE Approval Expected For Fisk Exchange This Fall

By STEVE SIMON

Applicants are now being sought for the College's first student exchange program with another school, Fisk University.

The plan, which has been endorsed by President Buell G. Gallagher, is expected to win the approval of the Board of Higher Education (BHE) at its April 22 meeting.

Two or three students will be involved from each school, according to Arthur Male, chairman of the student-faculty committee that will select the College's representatives. Each must have at least an overall C average, a C+ average in his major field, and recommendations from two faculty members.

"Obviously, they have to get along pretty well socially," Male commented. Sophomores and juniors are preferred, and the applicants must also be acceptable to Fisk, a co-ed liberal arts school in Nashville, Tennessee. Founded in 1886, it has a student body almost 95 per cent black.

The program has been developed "to expose City College students to a different educational experience" and "to promote the interchange of ideas between the participating colleges," according to the resolution that will be presented to the BHE.

It can be extended to include other schools, besides Fisk, and "could possibly develop into faculty and administration exchanges," the proposal states.

Fisk has been involved in an exchange program since 1950 with such schools as Oberlin, Dartmouth and Adelphi.

"It is almost impossible" that the BHE will veto the exchange, Male asserted. The board must approve the proposal so that the credits the students achieve at Fisk can be accepted towards a City University degree.

"No disciplinary action will be taken by either school against an exchange student without adequate consultation with the student's home school," the proposal mandates.

Edwin Fabré, president of Onyx Society, Councilman Fergus Bordewich, Dean of Students Willard W. Blaesser, Professor Leo Hamalian (English), Dr. Harry Meisel (Student Personnel Services), Dean Bernard Sohmer (Curricular Guidance), and Professor Harry Soodak (Physics), are the members of the committee which Male heads.

Applications for the exchange program, as well as Fisk catalogues, can be obtained in Dr. Meisel's office, Room 119 Finley, or at Dean Sohmer's office, Room 201 Administration. The deadline for filing the applications is April 22.

Students or teachers who are willing to provide housing for the students from Fisk can obtain applications at the same places.

Resisters to Hand Back Draft Cards Today

Approximately 100 New Yorkers will return their draft cards at a gathering in the Central Park Bandshell at 11:30 this morning.

An estimated 1,000 young men across the country will also participate in today's mass turn-in, according to Lenny Brody of the Resistance, the anti-draft organization sponsoring the rally.

The Resistance does not expect President Johnson's recent "so-called peace overture" and announcement of withdrawal from the presidential race to have an eminent effect on their plans, said Brody, a graduate of the College. "I don't see much change as it directly affects students," Brody explained. "It will cut in a little, but not much."

Brody added that many of those handing in their cards today are expected to be "young people in the reserves," seniors, and first year graduate students, who would lose their deferments in June.

Newly-married Joan Baez and Dave Harris, will begin the all-day program, which will feature music, lectures, and a picnic.

Other scheduled speakers include Dave Miller — one of the first draft card burners — whose case is now before the Supreme Court; and Elaine Synder, who will read letters from her fiancée, Dave Mitchell, now serving a five year term in Allenwood, Pa., for refusing induction.

Dave Zimmerman, a Ph.D., candidate on leave from the University of Michigan, was scheduled to chair the rally, but he is now in jail for refusing induction last Monday. "If we can get him out by Wednesday, he'll be there," Moyer said. Bail has been set at $3,000.

Thousands displayed their opposition to the draft at a December 4 rally at the Whitehall induction center.

The rally and speeches will be followed by a picnic near the bandshell. "Yeah, bring your own food," Moyer said.

At 2 PM the resisters will form workshops to discuss the role of the resister and the prospects of resistance in the United States today.

At 6:30 PM, "resisters, their girls, parents, etc.," will assemble at the Washington Square Methodist Church, at West 4th Street, for a "Potluck Dinner."

Trojan Horse

President Johnson's withdrawal from the battle for the Democratic nomination was not a victory for anti-war forces.

The jubilant cries of "Bye Bye Lyndon" were indicative of the state of desperation in the radical community. But the war still drags on, and the new presidential plans for peace hold little promise in their hollow words.

The United States is now bombing 200 miles past the DMZ in North Vietnam. So much for Johnson's peace feelers.

LBJ's withdrawal from the race has not left a vacuum for "progressive" leadership to fill. His power has not really diminished, and his effect upon the political sphere will remain important to the nation's future. The men and ideology which escalated the war and glossed over the crisis in our cities have not disappeared.

And if we rest our hopes on men like Kennedy and McCarthy, we may end the conflict in Vietnam — but face a similar disaster later. None of the political leaders vying for the presidency have seen past the dangers of bombing Hanoi to find the causes of our maladies: the disastrous nature of our foreign policy, and our unbalanced social structure, which have have given us torn cities and bloody summers.

Now is not the time to wait and see what happens. Now is the time to present a creative radical alternative to the American people.

Organize in the neighborhoods, reach the problems of America at their roots, start at the bottom. Build a movement which seeks to equalize a system which is dragging down the black people, the poor whites, the students caught up in a dehumanizing multiversity. Give radical politics a power base which a Lyndon Johnson's reversal of policy cannot render impotent.

We must constantly question and oppose, if necessary, those leaders who present simplistic answers to complex problems. We cannot simply accept McCarthy and Kennedy because they seem to present some sort of "alternative." Their assumptions, motives and actions must be scrutinized before we give them our support, not after we choose the "lesser of two evils," and wind up with a war in Thailand.

It is time our heavy reliance upon the fluctuating policies of our present leaders ceases.

Beyond The Gates

By Tom Friedman

If the radical student community is becoming more stabilized in its depression, it is because the irony of life is becoming too unbearable. Sunday night, as my clock nibbled another minute, President Johnson spit out the war in Vietnam; another-heated peace feeler and a reaffirmation of our "commitment" (something for everyone!) and that last line, made official by the eight-column headline in the Times' late city edition.

There has been much talk about the causes of Johnson's withdrawal from the race for the Democratic nomination, and the implications of his surprise statement. President Gallagher, when questioned by a WCCR reporter, allegedly mumbled something like, "It's the same ballgame, but a different ballpark." No one was quite sure what that meant, but one campus leader said, "It's the same ballgame, and the same ballpark, and the same players, but the uniforms are a little more moldy."

That is, in concise terms of political analysis, Lyndon still has his power base, and so does Bobby and Eugene and Tricky Dick, and none of them grasp the root causes of our nation's multiple crises. There are those of us in the left who are tired of explaining that desperation tactics of supporting a Kennedy over a Johnson on the war issue will merely move us sideways, not forward. (Remember 1964—Barry Goldwater was bad, but for God's sake, Lyndon Johnson? Where did that choice between "alternatives" lead us?)

But perhaps we are becoming too serious. Never for a moment can we lose our sense of humor. There is choked laughter yet in our breasts.

At the University of California in Los Angeles Jane Kochman, a sophomore art major, was having problems with the campus police last month. According to the Daily Californian, police entered Kroeber Hall and confiscated one of Miss Kochman's works, taking it off to police headquarters.

The work was a mannequin-like Christ figure with facial features that strongly resembled those of Lyndon Baines Johnson. Miss Kochman's Christ-Johnson carried the swollen breasts and belly of a pregnant woman. The sculpture, however, was neuter.

The latter fact was discovered, writes Bob Quinn, a Daily Californian staff writer, when an American flag, being used as a loin-cloth, was removed.

The work, which Miss Kochman described as a "take-off on motherhood, the country and the flag," was returned in a damaged condition by the police a week after it was taken. They refused to return the flag.

Executive Vice Chancellor Cheit of UCLA called the administrative chief of the campus police for an explanation, but discovered that the Chief was out of town, and that no one else in the Police Department knew anything about the matter.

"This," Cheit commented, "struck me as very strange."

Across the continent, at Temple University, the local chapter of Alpha Epsilon Pi (AEPi) voted to blackball President Johnson about the same time the loin-cloth was removed.

Johnson had been an honorary brother of the fraternity since 1964, when he visited the Temple campus during his presidential campaign.

The Temple University News reported that in 1964 one of the AEPi pledges became "the most popular pledge in the fraternity house when he handed his dink to President Johnson." (Is a dink something like a conch?)

The President was blackballed (thrown out of the fraternity, that is) for "conduct unbecoming a brother, and actions detrimental to the fraternity, including the drafting of seniors," said Mike Guralnick, president of AEPi.

The News added that Johnson, after wearing his dink for a while, gave it to a former University trustee, Albert M. Greenfield, who has since died.

Those astute readers among you may have wondered at the fluctuations in this column between the serious and the comic. An apology is tendered for the lack of consistency in tone, but then again, we laugh when we cry.

treatment of the inhabitants of the Portuguese territories of Angola and Mozambique.

Events during the week will include a teach-in, films, seminars, a rally entertainment, and an art exhibit. The purpose of the program is "basically informational" according to Basil Clunie of the Onyx Society. "This South Africa thing is more important than most people realize," Clunie added. "The less people know, the less they have to care."

The seminars, in an attempt to bring the situations in South Africa, Rhodesia, Angola and Mozambique "close to home" will center on such topics as US foreign policy in South Africa, the effects of apartheid on education, investment in South Africa and the proposed olympic boycott.

During the "Week of Shame" there will be an exhibition of ethnic art entitled "A Black View" on display in Lewisohn Lounge.

College Votes to Leave NSA

election overshadowed the NSA referendum last May.

Korn agreed with the results of the NSA referendum, but was disappointed by the small turnout. He blamed the lack of publicity in the student press for the small turnout.

The Campus, undergraduate newspaper at the College since 1907, mistakenly reported last month that the referendum had been postponed until May.

The STOP NSA Committee, the only organization which campaigned on the NSA referendum, asserted that NSA was costly to the College and "provides very few worthwhile services to students."

In the fall budget, Council allocated $135 for each of the College's six convention delegates and $260 for the 1967-68 annual dues — a total of $1,070. STOP

NSA literature claimed that NSA cost the College "over $1,500 in student funds."

Numerous schools, including Columbia, the Baruch School and New York University, have recently rejected NSA membership. However, its total membership has risen in the last few years.

Although it will remain a member of NSA until next year, SG will be eligible to send delegates to the NSA Convention this August, but Council "probably will not allocate the funds for delegates to the convention" according to Korn.

SG Treasurer Jeffrey Zuckerman, one of three announced SG Presidential hopefuls, was elated with the results of the referendum and Baumohl's victory. He believes that he can win the May election, but "a lot of work will be required."

Campus Affairs Vice-President Henry Frisch, also a candidate for president, said he was disappointed by his slate's (More Active Campus) lack of support at the polls. He blamed the poor showing on the lack of campaigning by his candidates and himself.

Council...

He noted that "one is always suspicious that the same amount of work will be given for more credits." He added that he would like to see the idea tried on an experimental basis, so that student reaction could be gauged.

Also to be considered by Faculty Council is a revision of the Art Department curriculum which would eliminate 24 courses, including all photography courses, and replace them with 12 credit sequences in a number of different fields. These sequences, which would be composed of three 8 hour 4 credits courses each, would, in combination with research projects and honors, allow a student to major in the following fields: painting, sculpture, ceramics, metal design, textile design, wood design, interior design and graphics.

Professor Marvin Magalaner said Monday that that changes approved by the Committee on Curriculum and Teaching "normally" would be passed by the Faculty Council, but he noted that "these days things aren't normal."

A DECLARATION OF CONSCIENCE

We, the undersigned members of the City College faculty, hereby promise to support those City College students, both graduate and undergraduate, who have decided that they must refuse to cooperate with Selective Service because they consider the war against Vietnam to be unjust, immoral, and destructive to the United States as well as to Vietnam. This support will take the form of financial, legal, or personal aid and counselling to students who feel compelled to resist the draft. We take this stand knowing full well that such action may be interpreted in ways that could subject us to indictment and prosecution.

Parriers Place Fourth in NCAA Championships

Borkowsky 4th in Foil; Messing Takes Epée 6th

By NOAH DAVID GUROCK

DETROIT, March 30 — Two of the College's fencers were named all-Americans today as the 24th annual National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA), championships ended its three-day run at Wayne State University.

Bill Borkowsky (right) scores a touch in his shut-out victory over the Air Force Academy's Russell Burnham, during the first day's competition.

The pair, Bill Borkowsky and Arnold Messing, finished in fourth and sixth places in the foil and épée competitions, respectively, and, combined with Steve Liebermann's ninth place finished in the sabre, gave the team fourth place in the meet, the College's best finish since 1948, when Olympian Albert Axelrod led the team to the title by winning the gold medal in foil.

Borkowsky was the more convincing of the two all-Americans. The 20-year-old senior won 32 of 39 bouts, and his victims included silver medalist Jeffrey Kestler of Columbia. Messing won 25 of 36 épée bouts and Liebermann slashed 24 of his 33 opponents.

Borkowsky led the field of 40 foilmen after the first day of competition, winning all 11 duels. The Beaver fencer was precision-perfect as he downed one opponent after another, rarely permitting any of them to score more than two or three touches against him.

Messing's showing the first day was almost as strong, as he won 9 of 10 bouts. Liebermann, however, ran into a combination of tough luck and rough opponents and finished the session with a 5-4 won-lost record, putting the team in third place after the round.

The second day of competition was mentally and physically taxing for all the fencers, but the Beavers came through almost completely unscathed. Four sessions were held yesterday, lasting from 9 in the morning until almost 8 that night, and the foil fencers each compete in 16 bouts.

Borkowsky added 12 victories to his first day total, but dropped to third place behind Kestler and Espanda of San Francisco State, the eventual champion. One of Borkowsky's losses came to Espanda, 5-3. Two of his other losses Friday were 5-3 margins.

The second day's épée results were similar. Messing won 11 of 15 bouts, while Liebermann ended the day with a 15-7 record.

Two of 6 bouts were all that the Beavers could manage against the tournament leaders, today. Add to that four additional losses by Messing, two defeats by Liebermann and Todd Makler's perfect day for Penn., and the Beavers fell to fourth place.

Liebermann who had little, if any, trouble disposing of Scott, lost only two during the day, but the final one was the killer. After leading Bill Hube of North Carolina State, 3-0, Liebermann, in his haste to put the southerner away, fell prey to his own over-anxiousness and was wiped out 5-3, knocking himself out of the possible all-America citation.

Borkowsky ended the tournament in a tie for third place with Mike Gaylor of NYU, but ties in fencing meets are broken on the basis of touches, and when the officials counted up the touches, the Violets parrier had 60 against him, seven less than Borkowsky had. This put Borkowsky in fourth place and on the second all-America team — but he still had a medal to bring home.

NIMRODS TOP LEAGUE; PLACE HIGH IN NATION

The College's rifle team won the Metropolitan Intercollegiate Rifle League championship on Friday night by defeating St. Peter's, 1098-1008 at Lewisohn Range. The team then ended its season with the International Sectionals at Lewisohn on Saturday.

In the St. Peter's victory, Paul Kanciruk shot a season high of 283 to greatly increase his chances of achieving the highest individual average in the league.

BEAVERS (1098)
	Prone	Kneel	Stand	Tot.
Kanciruk	100	96	87	283
Yones	96	95	84	275
Feit	98	90	86	274
Buchholz	97	88	81	266

The victory brings the Beavers record to 21-1 in a perfect 18-0 in league competition. The team also retains the trophy for the highest team average as well as placing five shooters among the top ten in the league.

Frank Progl is the fifth Beaver in the top ten, along with the four shooters of the #1 team.

The results on Saturday were not as cheerful as those of the day before. Following the typical form of this year's squad, the nimrods did well in the individual competition of the Sectionals and then not so well in team competition in the afternoon, finishing with a score of 1090. This would have placed them eleventh in country last year, and should be only a little lower this year.

There are sectionals held all over the country with the teams in the area competing. The results are sent to a central tabulating agency in Washington, D.C., where the teams are ranked.

In the individual competition, Kanciruk shot a 282 which would have tied him with ninth high score in the country last year. The other two graduating seniors, Alan Feit and Frank Yones should also rank high in the country as they finished with scores of 278 and 276, respectively.

Summing up the year, Uretzky noted that, "This is the best team we've ever had, but they did the worst. They're all a bunch of chokes."

The capacity of the team was tremendous, but they couldn't put it all together at the same time. For example in the Conventional Target Sectionals (using larger targets) held a few weeks ago, the four members of the #1 team all shot over 290 in the individual competition. The four individual scores when added up would have given the Beavers a team score that was the highest in the country last year. But in the team competition held later that afternoon, all four collapsed to a place about 15th in the country.

Sure You Need a Psycho-Social Moratorium

But WHAT YOU REALLY NEED IS THE PERFECT SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

(It should be outdoors, be challenging and exciting, contribute to your career goals, be worthwhile AND be financially rewarding).

WHAT WE REALLY NEED Are Perfect Summer Employees

We are a non-profit inter-racial co-ed summer camp located in the Poconos (near Hancock, N.Y.) and serving the Greater New York City area, supported by the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies.

We have openings for experienced general counselors, and specialists skilled in sports, nature & pioneering, arts & crafts, music, drama, photography and film making.

We have beautiful facilities on a private lake. We have very high standards for staff, but we have excellent salaries for those qualified. You must be intelligent; you must be eager to work with children; be interested in education, psychology, social relations, or planning a career involving work with people; be mature, be willing and able to work hard, and be sensitive to the needs and wants of children of all backgrounds.

The length of employment is ten weeks June 23 to August 30, which includes pre-camp training session.

SCHEDULE

Two more spring sports debut today as:

• The lacrosse team meets Maritime at Lewisohn Stadium at 3:00 PM.

• The women's softball team plays its only home game of the season on Jasper Oval against Queens at 4:00 PM.

Tennis...

The College's tennis team prepared for its league opener at Yeshiva tomorrow by whitewashing Fairleigh Dickinson, 9-0, in a non-conference encounter yesterday on the Finley Center courts.

Neal Spanier, Alan Marks, Steve Resnick, Bill Bly, Sherwin Rosen and Joe Liggett won the singles matches, while the teams of Spanier-Marks, Resnick-Steve Shaeffer and Eddie Weinstein, Wilson Wong copped the doubles.
