Wahrhafting Winner in Oration Contest

FRIEDMAN WINS DRUMMOND, AND NEWMAN ROEMER PRIZE

Jacob Wahrhafting was declared winner of the Trustee's Prize at the Prize Speaking Contest held last Friday evening in the Great Hall. George Friedman was awarded the second prize, the Drummond; and Leo Neuman received the Roemer prize in poetry declamation.

Professor Baldwin opened the proceedings with a few numbers on the organ. Professor Hatch, the chairman, addressed a few words to the audience, welcoming them on behalf of the Public Speaking Department, and then introduced the first speaker.

Jacob Wahrhafting spoke on "The Launching of the Third Commonwealth." In fervent words he expressed the hopes and aspirations of the Jewish people, and advocated the establishment of a center of culture whence should radiate all the inspiring rays of a spiritual as well as intellectual light. "The Broader Outlook" was the oration of Louis Silverman. The second speaker pleaded for a rejuvenation of the spirit of art and beauty even in the crudest form of work; addressing himself to all employers, he urged them to give the workman greater opportunities for self-development along artistic lines, and presaged that such a course would result in a consequent love of work.

Henry Miller made on "A Plea for Tolerance." He showed how all bias and prejudice, whether religious, racial, or economic, could not but be a detriment to the liberty which all men cherish.

An entirely different subject was that of the last speaker, George Friedman. His topic was "A Scientific Basis for Religion." The speaker carefully explained how science, instead of working for the ruin of religion, as commonly thought, was on the contrary co-operating with it. Science, he claimed, did not destroy faith. Instead, it attempted to dispel all doubt as to the truth of miracles by explaining them logically.

Sidney Hartman, with Burnet's "The Forge of God," Leo Neuman with Amy Lowell's "Pattern," and Israel Needleman, with "Saint Pierre to Paradise," by Knowl's, were the participants in the declamation contests.

During the deliberation of the judges, Prof. Baldwin rendered a few selections on the organ.

The decision of the judges was announced by Prof. Otis.

The judges for the contest were Professors Livingston B. Morse, William Fox and William B. Otis.

COLUMBIA PROFESSOR ADDRESSES CHEM. SOC.

Old Lavender Will Hold Smoker Before Big Princeton Game

BIO COLLEGE RALLY IN GYM ON DECEMBER 12—MICROCOSM
OUT NEXT WEEK

The first big All-College event of the year will be the Student Council Smoker to be held in the "gym" on Friday evening, December 12th.

It is planned to make this smoker a grand pep rally to work up spirit and enthusiasm, in particular for the Princeton and other big basketball games that follow in close succession. There will be speeches by coaches, "Mac" and "Nat," the basketball captain and other members of the team, the presidents of the Student Council and the Athletic Association, and other men prominent in student activities. Songs and cheers interspersed now and then will make the gathering smoker, eats, drinks, and smokes, will a lively one. The essentials of a good be dispensed in plenty. In addition entertainment is promised by the Variety Players, a new society in the College, who will present bits of vaudeville.

In addition to planning the All-College Pep Rally and Smoker, the Student Council also passed on many other matters.

The plan to learn the student opinion concerning changes in the curriculum was again brought up. After much discussion, the council decided to appropriate $20 for the carrying out of the scheme and left the details in the hands of the Students' Affairs Committee.

SURPRISES PLANNED FOR JUNIOR HOP

Next Wednesday night, Thanksgiving eve, the notables of the College, students, faculty, alumni, and their ladies will assemble in our highly decorated, well camouflaged gymnasium for that event of events, the Junior Hop.

The experience of the class, the resourcefulness of the committee, and the finest ability of the officers have all combined to make the best that money can afford, better still.

The class has provided for a piano, so that those members of the class who are not well pointed in the art of Terpsichore, may meet during off hours and acquire proficiency.

The band for the hop promises to excel any aggregation ever introduced within these college walls. The committee is sparing no expense to make the decorations beautifully artistic. The programs will maintain the high standard set in our last affair.

Novelties in the dance order will be aplenty. And what is more, '21 promises us several surprises. To those of you who attended last year's dance and remember the promised surprises no more need be said.

With the hall gaily bedecked, canopied with vari-colored streamers, the band gushing enticing melodies, hearts singing, feet swirling merrily, and "her" beside you—what could be sweeter!

Rumor has it that several tickets are still for sale, at $1.00 per couple, so if you haven't obtained yours yet hurry to the '21 alcove and purchase the card that admits you to an evening in Paradise.

The Y. M. C. A. held its biggest dinner of all time on Thursday, November 13, in the faculty lunch room. So many men attended that the room could not hold them and some had to sit in the hall.

Americanization

Exhibit Planned

BEST POSTERS TO BE BOUGHT

The State Department of Education will have an exhibition of Americanization posters at the state convention of teachers in Albany, November 24-26. In order to arouse interest in Americanization work among the pupils in high schools and normal schools and among students in universities and colleges of the state, and in order to secure, through them, the most striking and stimulating posters possible, it is offering to buy the best two at $25 and $15 respectively and the next two at five dollars each. The local directors of art in the respective institutions will be the judges and will forward the first ten posters selected from all those presented to them to W. C. Smith, Supervisor of Immigrant Education, State Education Building, Albany, who with a competent committee, will make the final decision.

The posters should embody the following ideas.

- 1—Learning better English, the language of America.
- 2—Better citizenship, the aim of Americanization.
- 3—Reduction of illiteracy.
- 4—The advantages of the evening school.
- 5—The necessity and advantages of factory classes.
- 6—The necessity and advantages of home classes for foreign-born women.
- 7—The contributions of the foreign-born to America.
- 8—Americanization for the native-born means living up to the ideals of our democracy.
- 9—Americanization for the foreign-born means learning the language of America and becoming a worthy citizen.
- 10—A "square deal" for foreign-born as well as native-born.
- 11—All working together for a better America.
- 12—The State Department of Education is carrying on this campaign to reduce illiteracy and to develop better citizenship.

Each poster may embody one or more of these ideas. Each poster should be 16 x 21 inches.

Posters to be in the hands of W. C. Smith, supervisor of immigrant education, not later than Friday, Nov. 21st. Posters will be judged according to the ideas presented and the manner of presentation.

Students of City College desiring further information may consult Prof. Hunt or Mr. Schuman, who will be in charge of the work at this institution.

As usual, a very fine dinner was served. This fact, together with the excellent quality of the speaking, and the cheers and songs led by the inimitable Harry Hallberg, varsity cheer leader from 1916 to 1918, combined to make the evening so enjoyable that the dinner did not break up until after 10 o'clock.

Before introducing the speakers of the evening, Mr. Burchard gave a short account of the men whose portraits hang in the Webb Room—Webb, Werner, Doremus, Herberman, Compton, Tisdall, and the others. His account was replete with personal reminiscences of these famous sons of the college.

He then introduced the Rev. Dr. Jiles, '71, who spoke on "The Character of the Man Who Gets Ahead." Dr. Jiles in a speech brimful of humor and "pep" declared that a man's position in life depends on his personality. The proper combination for success, as defined by the speaker, is intelligence, affection, and will.

By well-chosen examples he showed that the lacking of any one of these qualities would destroy the possibility of possessing personality. His ready wit and everlasting good humor never failed to produce the desired result upon his attentive endeavor; and it was to everyone's heartfelt disappointment that Dr. Jiles was obliged to leave at 8 p. m. Professor Robinson compared Mr. Burchard to General Pershing and referred to the latter as General Pershing the second. In between courses the entire assembly made the walls ring with cheers and songs.

The assembly was then addressed by Dr. Lagnani who gave a very vivid discourse on the Golden Rule. He explained the difference between the positive side, "Do Unto Others As You Have Others Do Unto You," and the negative aspect, "Do Not Do Unto Others That Which You Would Not Have Others Do Unto You." He explained that the negative rule was superior; that it was easier to cease to do evil, as this depends entirely upon the individual. To do good, however, was a more difficult matter which depended upon a community. Dr. Lagnani urged every one to set aside one day in the week, outside of Sunday, during which we should make up our mind not to do evil.

The New York press was very well represented in the person of Mr. James Luby, editor of the Evening Sun and a graduate of '77. He outlined the difficulties which one would inevitably find if one planned life too far ahead. Rather plan each day and plan it well, for life is not such a simple problem that it can be figured and planned out

SUPPORT YOUR EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

The all-college smoker is an experimental measure intended to discover to what extent the student body will support and participate in all college activities. If the experiment is successful, it will, in all likelihood, lead to social activities of even more ambitious proportions.

In this case, as in the case of all extra-curricular activities, success or failure rests ultimately with the individual students making up what we are pleased to call the student body. If they want the college atmosphere to be more chummy, if they want to make college life something more than a continuous grind, if they want to store up memories which will lend a charm to their college years long after graduation, they must support and participate in all extra-curricular activities—not with a spirit of grudging concession, as if by their all-important support they were bestowing a peculiar favor upon the few conscientious men who at present shoulder a disproportionate share of responsibility, but with a degree of spontaneity and enthusiasm that will inspire the active men of the College to greater and greater efforts in their behalf.

SIGNS OF PROGRESS

One of the encouraging signs about extra-curricular activities is the amount of constructive work that is being carried on of late, both by the Student Council and by individual students.

A serious charge against the Student Council last term was that most of its time was consumed in debating, and nothing of constructive value was done. When issues came up for decision, the Council was often divided along class lines, seniors voting with sophomores and juniors with freshmen.

Even more impressive than the absence of petty partisanship was the evident increase in student initiative shown at the last two meetings of the Student Council. Not content with merely founding new societies and clubs, a number of men undertook to devise schemes intended to benefit the College as a whole. The inter-varsity debating team and the proposed investigation of student opinion on possible changes in the curriculum both originated in the student body at large.

Whatever opinion may be entertained with regard to these projects, they show an initiative and a keen desire for constant improvement through constructive measures. As such, they deserve all praise and encouragement. All extra-curricular activities will profit if made flexible enough to readily absorb and assimilate whatever good may be contained in proposals coming up from the student body.

See America thirst!
Talking about seeing America, we told the doctor in the Gym that that was our ambition. After he examined us we were advised to get a pair of glasses and see New York first. What? Which reminds us of what happened down at the exemption board in our neighborhood. The doctor was examining one fellow's eyes. He held the card up and said to the subject, "Read that?" "Well, I can't do it," was the reply. The doctor brought the card closer and repeated the command. "I can't read it, meester." Then the doctor brought it within a few feet of the fellow and yelled, "Now, can you read it?" "No," answered this bird, "I never learned how to read."

The Varsity Players, a new organization, was added to the list of C. C. N. Y. organizations proposed by the Student Council. This society will bring together all local talent in the musical and vaudeville line. There will be no friction or competition between the Dramatic Society and the Varsity Players, as each organization will have its own sphere of activity.

Microcosm Out Next Week
The 1919 Microcosm will be out before Thanksgiving, according to a communication received by the council from Goldberg, its editor. Work on the '20 Mike will not be started until the previous year book appears.

The Lunch Room Committee, through Cotton '20, its chairman, reported that upon investigation it found that it had absolutely no jurisdiction at all in matters concerning the lunch room. This committee was then declared to be disbanded. The Students' Affairs Committee will look into the matter.

The Employment Bureau requested the men who obtain work through this medium to report back their success and earnings. Those who do not comply with these rules will be dropped from the bureau's list.

The "V" Executive Committee will meet Friday, when a final report will be given. Each organization included in the Union was asked to appoint a second man to represent it on the committee, which will make plans for the next term. Cottin was appointed the second "V" representative of the Student Council.

Red Cross Drive Carried Successfully

PROF. LINEHAN REPORTS SUBSCRIPTIONS STILL COMING IN

The Red Cross Drive at the College has come through with honors. The committee which is composed of Profs. Linehan, Stair and Meade, reports that though, at the present writing, the records are not yet complete, and though the subscriptions are still coming, over a thousand students have already contributed to the fund. And this, in spite of the fact that many instructors and students had already affiliated themselves with the movement on the outside.

The spirit of co-operation was so great that there was no need for competition amongst the various classes. Especial activity was exhibited on the part of the instructors, amongst whom Prof. Hubert, Hatch, Thompson, and Paneroni distinguished themselves through the amounts collected in their various classes. The treasurer feels confident that when all records are finally examined the College will stand out as one of the institutions that has contributed more than its share to the Red Cross movement.

Contributions will still be accepted until 3 p. m. today. All students who have not yet donated their bit will have the opportunity to do so. It is to be hoped that every man will come through.

COLLEGE PLANS SCHOLARSHIPS

The trustees of the Students' Aid Association held their annual meeting on Monday, November 10. Dr. Sigmund Pollitzer was elected trustee for five years. Prof. Sim, for many years president of the association, was re-elected. While Profs. Burke and Compton were re-elected treasurer and secretary respectively.

The association is planning to expand the scope of its work. To this end various plans were discussed whereby students could be helped while in college. Among other plans, it was decided to establish ten or more scholarships to the College. These are in general to be modeled on those now existing in other colleges. Whether they will be awarded by competitive examination or on the basis of general ability has not yet been determined. The plans that were formulated at the meeting held on Monday are to be presented to the trustees with whom the decision rests.

mathematically. The story of the fisherman's fifth brother, in the Arabian Nights, who planned a brilliant career for himself after having bought bottles which he intended to sell, but finally smashed, furnished a very concrete illustration. Mr. Luby also talked on the college spirit of C. C. N. Y. during the time that he was a student.

The re-union was the occasion for Mr. Burchard to again boost the Roosevelt Club. It turned out, however, that upon calling upon those who were members to rise, practically everyone, outside the alumni, rose.

Finally after Sidney Unger had explained the new proposition of getting up a football team, and after having been entertained by the Menorah in the form of a comical dialogue, the assembly broke up after singing "My Country 'tis of Thee," imbued with a renewed college spirit and patriotism.

SUPPORT YOUR EXTRA-CURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

The all-college smoker is an experimental measure intended to discover to what extent the student body will support and participate in all-college activities. If the experiment is successful, it will, in all likelihood, lead to social activities of even more ambitious proportions.

In this case, as in the case of all extra-curricular activities, success or failure rests ultimately with the individual students making up what we are pleased to call the student body. If they want the college atmosphere to be more chummy, if they want to make college life something more than a continuous grind, if they want to store up memories which will lend a charm to their college years long after graduation, they must support and participate in all extra-curricular activities—not with a spirit of grudging concession, as if by their all-important support they were bestowing a peculiar favor upon the few conscientious men who at present shoulder a disproportionate share of responsibility, but with a degree of spontaneity and enthusiasm that will inspire the active men of the College to greater and greater efforts in their behalf.

SIGNS OF PROGRESS

One of the encouraging signs about extra-curricular activities is the amount of constructive work that is being carried on of late, both by the Student Council and by individual students.

A serious charge against the Student Council last term was that most of its time was consumed in debating, and nothing of constructive value was done. When issues came up for decision, the Council was often divided along class lines, seniors voting with sophomores and juniors with freshmen.

Even more impressive than the absence of petty partisanship was the evident increase in student initiative shown at the last two meetings of the Student Council. Not content with merely founding new societies and clubs, a number of men undertook to devise schemes intended to benefit the College as a whole. The inter-varsity debating team and the proposed investigation of student opinion on possible changes in the curriculum both originated in the student body at large.

Whatever opinion may be entertained with regard to these projects, they show an initiative and a keen desire for constant improvement through constructive measures. As such, they deserve all praise and encouragement. All extra-curricular activities will profit if made flexible enough to readily absorb and assimilate whatever good may be contained in proposals coming up from the student body.

GARGOYLE GARGLES

Some of Our Own Epitaphs

This fellow flunked Math three times straight, Folks turned off the gas, but too late.

Just six feet below this cross Lies Cohen—his wife was the boss.

Here lies Isaac McGinnis; He met a mad bull—and his finis.

Sayings of the Sage

Some fellows like to attend lectures; others would rather sleep at home.

See America thirst! Talking about seeing America, we told the doctor in the Gym that that was our ambition. After he examined us we were advised to get a pair of glasses and see New York first. What? Which reminds us of what happened down at the exemption board in our neighborhood. The doctor was examining one fellow's eyes. He held the card up and said to the subject, "Read that?" "Well, I can't do it," was the reply. The doctor brought the card closer and repeated the command. "I can't read it, meester."

Then the doctor brought it within a few feet of the fellow and yelled, "Now, can you read it?" "No," answered this bird, "I never learned how to read."

Maxims

Rather mate than sever. A summer goes before a fall. Rolling bones gather no moss. (They cause many a loss.) Two beds are better than one. Or, as my friend Al puts it. "I'm not superstitious, but I don't believe in sleeping with thirteen in a bed."

Foolishment

A stuttering student was meek, And his talks on the floor were all week, Prof.—"Do you always stutter?" Student—"No," with a sputter, "I only do that when I speak."

The Varsity Players, a new organization, was added to the list of C. C. N. Y. student organizations by the Student Council. This society will bring together all local talent in the musical and vaudeville line. There will be no friction or competition between the Dramatic Society and the Varsity Players, as each organization will have its own sphere of activity.

Microcosm Out Next Week

The 1919 Microcosm will be out before Thanksgiving, according to a communication received by the council from Goldberg, its editor. Work on the '20 Mike will not be started until the previous year book appears.

The Lunch Room Committee, through Cotton '20, its chairman, reported that upon investigation it found that it had absolutely no jurisdiction at all in matters concerning the lunch room. This committee was then declared to be disbanded. The Students' Affairs Committee will look into the matter.

The Employment Bureau requested the men who obtain work through this medium to report back their success and earnings. Those who do not comply with these rules will be dropped from the bureau's list.

The "V" Executive Committee will meet Friday, when a final report will be given. Each organization included in the Union was asked to appoint a second man to represent it on the committee, which will make plans for the next term. Coffin was appointed the second "V" representative of the Student Council.

Red Cross Drive Carried Successfully

PROF. LINEHAN REPORTS SUBSCRIPTIONS STILL COMING IN

The Red Cross Drive at the College has come through with honors. The committee which is composed of Profs. Linehan, Stair and Meade, reports that though, at the present writing, the records are not yet complete, and though the subscriptions are still coming, over a thousand students have already contributed to the fund. And this, in spite of the fact that many instructors and students had already affiliated themselves with the movement on the outside.

The spirit of co-operation was so great that there was no need for competition amongst the various classes. Especial activity was exhibited on the part of the instructors, amongst whom Prof. Hubert, Hatch, Thompson, and Paneroni distinguished themselves through the amounts collected in their various classes.

The treasurer feels confident that when all records are finally examined the College will stand out as one of the institutions that has contributed more than its share to the Red Cross movement.

Contributions will still be accepted until 3 p. m. today. All students who have not yet donated their bit will have the opportunity to do so. It is to be hoped that every man will come through.

COLLEGE PLANS SCHOLARSHIPS

The trustees of the Students' Aid Association held their annual meeting on Monday, November 10. Dr. Sigmond Pollitzer was elected trustee for five years. Prof. Sim, for many years president of the association, was re-elected, while Profs. Burke and Compton were re-elected treasurer and secretary respectively.

The association is planning to expand the scope of its work. To this end various plans were discussed whereby students could be helped while in college. Among other plans, it was decided to establish ten or more scholarships to the College. These are in general to be modeled on those now existing in other colleges. Whether they will be awarded by competitive examination or on the basis of general ability has not yet been determined. The plans that were formulated at the meeting held on Monday are to be presented to the trustees with whom the decision rests.

mathematically. The story of the fisherman's fifth brother, in the Arabian Nights, who planned a brilliant career for himself after having bought bottles which he intended to sell, but finally smashed, furnished a very concrete illustration. Mr. Luby also talked on the college spirit of C. C. N. Y. during the time that he was a student.

The re-union was the occasion for Mr. Burchard to again boost the Roosevelt Club. It turned out, however, that upon calling upon those who were members to rise, practically everyone, outside the alumni, rose.

Finally after Sidney Unger had explained the new proposition of getting up a football team, and after having been entertained by the Menorah in the form of a comical dialogue, the assembly broke up after singing "My Country 'tis of Thee," imbued with a renewed college spirit and patriotism.

VAUDEVILLE CLUB IS ACTIVE

Hip! Hip! The vaudeville club is come to C. C. N. Y.! Morris Leibson '20, our famous song writer and entertainer, has interested a number of talented fellows in his enterprise. Last Thursday the Vaudeville Club elected the following officers:

General Director, M. Liebson; Property and Stage Manager, I. Dublin; Treasurer, A. Cohen; Publicity Manager, J. Bloch; Business Manager, E. Fisher.

A spirit of hilarity predominated the Y. M. C. A. room when the club met last Thursday at 12. After the business was transacted, piano playing, dancing and singing was in order.

Liebson told the members that he was contemplating a performance to be held late this term. He urged the members to write playlets (farces), monologues, dialogues and anything else that lends itself to vaudeville performance.

Singers, dancers, jiggers, instrument players, comedians and others who possess ability as entertainers are urged to come to the next meeting in the "Y" room tomorrow at 12.

SCIENTIFIC POSITIONS OPENED TO STUDENTS

The Employment Bureau announces that it has many positions open for men with scientific training, especially post-graduates. There is a constant demand for electrical, chemical and mechanical engineers, the Bureau has not been able to meet. Since the publication of the latest figures, the manager announces 70 more placements in remunerative positions.

PHRENO HOLDS INTERESTING MEETING

Phrenocosmia devoted its last meeting to a lively discussion on the social phase of Women's Night Courts. The topic was introduced by Perlmutter, who spoke at some length.

Phreno has already admitted many new members this term and has numerous applications on hand. Meetings are held every Friday evening in Room 221. Juniors and seniors are eligible for membership.

Oh, How She Could Dance, or "Everybody Enjoyed a Good Time"

BEING A COMEDY IN TWENTY ODD JAZZES AT THE SENIOR DANCE

REVIEWED BY BERNARD A. GROSSMAN

As yet we have no formula to determine the ratio of the amount of energy expended in a jazz and the product of pleasure obtained. Some of the faculty attended the senior dance last Saturday night to secure data on relations and reactions, but could settle on no definite point of view in that assemblage of blond heads and cute feet.

And then there were the professors' wives. (Note: Do not misconstrue the syntax. No professor can have more than one wife—I mean legally.) In the enthusiasm of their departure, some had forgotten to bring wives; and I see no reason for doubting the relationships claimed by the others.

I heard several daring plans to kidnap a certain professor's wife, some seniors having decided to demand credit for courses as ransom. I strongly advised against it: there was no definite assurance that said professor would ever notice the absence of his wife (there probably being no roll call at home); second, that if he did, he might have her "dropped" permanently for excessive absence without the sanction of the Dean; third and last, he may possibly need a vacation and be willing to flunk any student if it would relieve him of matrimonial worries.

Somehow, my most important worry was the girls. Everybody I spoke to claimed that he had brought the classiest chicken that ever sweetened man's lips. And the funniest thing about it was they were all wrong. And at heart they knew it. That's why they all wanted an intro. to my gal.

I danced and danced. And then I danced some more. The arm of a fellow about the waist of a girl seems to release some magic fount of imagination; and nohow could I adjust the definitions of the function of a college as expounded by Webster up through Professor Klapper. I watched the expressions on the dancers as they passed me. They betrayed everything from vacancy up. And in these days of superlatives, the sky's the limit.

Training in the S. A. T. C. has developed a great spirit of promptness. No sooner did Lorenzo Calduel and his famous Creole Jazz Kings strike the first strains of a number than everybody answered the "Call to Arms." I learned that you put your arm around the waist of a girl for more reasons than to prevent her escape or facilitate your stepping on her toes. I know all about that soothing combination in the punch-bowl and how to bring a certain blush of pleasure. I only mention this, however, as a sort of tip to the Junior Hop Committee, because I know they'll be glad to offer a comp. for information that has made the '20 dance the best that the college has yet presented. I need not call upon President Mezes, Dean Brownson, Profs. Guthrie or Otis as references. But they were present, and they know. And so do any one of fifty other couples know who managed to beg their way past the guards at the gate; for know ye all, that a new era has come, and 'tis only those who subscribe in advance who are assured entrance into a terpsichorean ebysium.

Bio Hears Lecture "On Fish"

ANNUAL DRIVE AIMS TO REPRESENT COLLEGE AT EXPERIMENTAL STATION

The Bio Club held its most interesting meeting on Thursday when Prof. Brown spoke. He first traced the fish from the ocean to the barrel, describing in detail the various processes of catching, slitting, pickling, drying, and boning. As a side issue he pictured the living conditions of Gloucester and the rough, unlearned, and superstitious yet lovable characters of the fishermen.

Then the professor briefly described the peculiar reconditioning of the fish cured with sea salt, when exposed to heat. And it was to investigate the cause of this that Prof. Brown undertook his work.

On hearing that Prof. Goldfarb, its faculty representative, was to be operated on, the club empowered Feuerstein, its vice-president, to buy him some suitable token of remembrance.

The Bio Club is now conducting its annual drive and hopes to collect more money than ever before. At present the fund amounts to $600, and if this can be increased to $1,000 before June the club will send two students to represent the College to a summer experimental station this summer. At present the college is the only big college that does not send at least one representative. The club hopes to remedy this sad state.
