THIRTY PRACTICE WITH VARSITY RIFLE SQUAD

Thirty men form the rifle squad for the coming season. All freshman candidates have been dropped from the squad because of the intercollegiate ruling forbidding yearlings to engage in meets.

Captain Hayden T. Noyes '25 has devised a system whereby the candidates will be taught the technique of the rifle by the veterans of last year's team. Each veteran will be put in charge of a group of the novices for each practice.

Practice is held every Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday afternoons from one to five. The R. O. T. C. armory has again been secured, together with the use of the guns, range and club rooms.

The record books will have it that City College lost to N. Y. U. by a score of 7 to 0 Saturday.

The way we saw it eleven fighting Lavender men outplayed their vaunted foes in almost every department of the game but found it impossible to surmount a mountain of "breaks" that went the other way.

True, it was a fine piece of work on the part of the Violet back, but here's where the "break" comes in. Cottin, casting about for a Lavender men to receive his throw, and finding none, let the ball fly from his hands.

Oh, the difference to City College if Jason had let himself be tackled where he stood or thrown the ball off to one side as an incomplete forward pass.

Well, anyway, as Luck would have it, the ball went straight into the hands of Ted Bolden, the fastest man in the Violet ranks and the only man who could have turned the trick.

This diabolical combination of factors turned what should have been, so say the least, a scoreless tie, into an N. Y. U. victory.

BOLDEN STOPPED

For the next three periods the Violet backs smashed away with all the fury they possessed. But the Lavender line was adamant. Even the highly-touted Bolden found his line flying back to meet him on more than one play.

LAVENDER'S GREAT STAND

About the finest exhibition of sheer grit we ever saw, or we guess that any of you ever saw, was the Lavender's stand on the one-half yard line in that hectic final quarter.

But the Lavender team couldn't count on any consideration at the hands of Fate on Saturday; eleven fighting maniacs, with their backs braced against the posts, met three fierce onslaughts.

And don't forget that the Lavender forwards conceded considerable poundage, withal.

CHANCES GO BY

C. C. N. Y. certainly was asleep at times. A more experienced outfit might have turned several little situations to big profit. But the green College players let the chances dribble through their fingers.

Wolf also looked like a dazed man when he picked up Bolden's fumble in the last quarter with a clear field ahead of him.

HEROES ALL

Right here we must stop and give praise where praise is due. Roy Plaut played a courageous and heady game. The brainiest and nerviest play we ever saw was Plaut's forward, from behind the College's own goal line, to Teddy Meisel.

Teddy also gave his best for the Lavender. The flashy halfback's every step was covered but he managed to measure off some yardage anyhow.

Tubridy, Wolf, Washor, Raskin, Naiman and Cottin—the last named, in streaks—played great ball on the College defense. The rest of the line played solidly. Willie Cohen, except for the fact that he failed to take a dive at Bolden as the latter passed within two feet of him in his dash to the touchdown, was conspicuous for his neat tackling.

JUST WAIT AND SEE

The game was far from discouraging. Coach Parker deserves a world of commendation for changing 26-0 (last year's score) to a very grudging 7-0. Boys, it's coming to N. Y. U. as sure as fate.

DEBATERS WORK ON VOLSTEAD QUESTION

Redmond and Schulz Judge First Two Contests to Select Varsity Team

The first contest between the two teams composing the varsity debating squad took place last Thursday at noon. The topic debated was: "Resolved, that the United States favor an amendment to the Volstead Act to permit the sale of light beer and wines." Professors Redmond and Schulz judged the debate and gave constructive criticism.

The affirmative side was composed of Irving Gladstone '27, Bernard Rosenbaum '25 and Charles Shapiro '27. They were opposed by Robert Halpern '25, Abraham Leavitt '25 and Henry Spitz '25.

Next Thursday the second of the two debates will be held after chapel. The teams will reverse sides and argue on the same topic. Immediately after the contest, the final team to represent the College in varsity debates will be selected.

N. Y. U. will be the first opponent on the varsity debating schedule. The debate will be held in the early part of November in the Great Hall of the College. The subject for debate will be the amending of the Volstead Act. The sides have not yet been decided upon.

CERCLE HEARS TALKS BY DOWNER AND WEILL

Professors Downer and Weill of the French department were the principal speakers at the re-organization meeting of Le Cercle Jusserand held last week. The important functions of the Cercle formed the topic of Professor Downer's talk. Professor Weill, in his speech, emphasized the greatness of the French tongue. The importance of the literature and diplomacy of France in present day civilization was also discussed.

A leave of absence for one year has been granted Professor Weill. He is at present devoting all of his time towards effecting a closer organization of the Federation de l'Alliance Francaise of the United States and Canada.

CLONIA WRITES NOVEL TO SATIRIZE COLLEGE

Members Collaborating on Work—Original Manuscripts Read at Meeting

Clonia will write a novel and attempt to have it published during the next few months. The book will be a satire on the members of the society, the College and all things in general.

The society is composed of upper-classmen who are interested in literature and letters. Men are initiated by invitation and all take turns in lecturing and reading papers on great lives and writings.

The meeting, held last Friday night in the English library, room 119, was devoted to the reading of prize manuscripts and other papers. Peter Bielensohn, who occasionally writes play reviews for The Campus under the nom-de-plume of Piat Abayr, read his paper on Robert Frost, which won the Kelly Critique prize for 1924. Sidney Wallach read his essay, which won the Ralph Weinberg Memorial prize. Samuel Ohrstein read a paper on the "Problem of Evil". Every meeting is closed by the reading of a choice selection from the Bible.

Mr. "Willic" Finkle, who holds a fellowship in the Public Speaking department of the College will read a paper on "American Philosophical Tendencies As Evidenced by Emerson and Whitman," at the next meeting of the Society. Albert Nennis will read a paper on "Dante from the Literary Viewpoint," and Reuben Berson will discuss "The Satyricon" by Petronius in the near future.

ITALIAN PUBLICATION READY FOR PRINTING

La Monaco Chosen Editor of C. D. A. Literary Effort—Costa Contributes

"La Studentessa", the latest literary publication to be launched in the College, will be ready for press tomorrow. The C. D. A. has received contributions for the initial issue from several members of the Romance Languages departments of Columbia University and the College.

Though sponsored by an Italian society the magazine will not be written wholly in that language. The C. D. A. intends to devote space to college news written in English.

John La Monaco, editor, has received articles from Professors Gerrig, Jachino and Wanamaker of Columbia. Professor Gerrig is head of the Romance Languages department there. Professor Wanamaker has recently arrived from Italy and will contribute his views on the problems of that country.

Professor Abib-Costa of the College Romance Languages department and Judge Freschi, an alumnus of the College, will write for the first issue.

'Substitute Discussions for Debates', Overstreet Urges Inter-College Group

Lavender Debating Policy May Be Influenced by Hunter College Conference

Professor Harry Allen Overstreet, head of the Philosophy department, took a prominent part in a discussion on the technique of intercollegiate debate held last Thursday evening at Hunter College. Other speakers included Dr. Beard, head coach of debate at Bates College, and Dr. Sheffield, head of the Rhetoric department at Wellesley College.

The merits of the debate and discussion methods in collegiate public speaking contests were considered. Professor Overstreet showed the superiority of the latter method. He pointed out that in a discussion, a philosophic, open-minded treatment of the topic is presented. The debaters come to the platform with no partiality and no definite convictions. They impart their ideas in an unbiased way for the purpose of getting at the truth. A conciliatory spirit, consequently, is maintained throughout. In the present debate system, he declared, each team attempts to destroy the arguments of the other merely for the sake of the glory of victory.

Dr. Beard related the history of intercollegiate debating since its inception. He favored the present system of debate as it is conducted at his college, rather than the discussion method. Bates College, is one of the greatest collegiate institutions in the country that specialize in debate. It was the first college to send a team to Europe for an intercollegiate debate.

According to Dr. Sheffield, the method of discussion has a greater value than debate. Experiments in public discussions among labor men at the Trades Union College of Boston proved very satisfactory.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Hunter College decided upon the new method of discussion rather than debate. Herman Tannenbaum '25, manager of debate and Henry Spitz '25 of the debating squad who were present at the meeting, decided that the success of Hunter's experiments would in a large measure determine the debating policy at the College in the future.
