"Whole Town's Talking" to Be Presented in Business Center Auditorium—Dance Under Auspices of Girls' Club to Follow in Gym

The dramatic season at the Downtown Center will reach its climax tomorrow evening when Anita Loos' "The Whole Town's Talking," a three act comedy, will be presented by the Pauline Edwards Society of the Theatre as the Varsity Show.

Over eight hundred students and guests are expected to be in the School of Business auditorium when the curtain rises at eight-thirty tomorrow evening. Tickets for the performance, priced at seventy-five cents and one dollar, will be on sale all day today in the Downtown Co-op store, in room 303, and in the office of the Business Administration Society, 305.

Competition is still close in the contest for the silver loving cup to be awarded to the class most represented at the show, it was stated by the business manager. A check-up of the classes of those attending will be made at the gate.

Dance to Follow Show

In addition to the three act play, holders of tickets will be entitled to admission to an informal dance to be held in the gymnasium under the combined auspices of the Dramatic Society and the Girls' Club. Music for the dancing will be furnished by a five-piece orchestra.

Rehearsals for "The Whole Town's Talking" have been under way for the last six weeks under the direction of Dr. Elliot Polinger, faculty advisor. Miss Dorothy Appelby, star of the Broadway revival, "Young Sinners," has accepted the position of honorary coach of the production. Last Thursday, after a visit to the theatre at which she is playing, the cast listened to a short talk on the presentation of humorous situations on the stage.

First Full Length Play

This production marks the first attempt of the Downtown Dramatic Society to present a full length play. Last Spring, one program of three one-act plays, "Sham," "The Man Without a Head," and "Where the Cross Is Made," was given to an audience which just fell short of filling the theatre. Later, "The Man Without a Head" was entered in the all-College one-act play contest. Among the productions prepared last term were O'Neill's "Ile" and "A Matinee at the Opera."

A complicated situation of attempted parental dominance in the love affairs of a headstrong, energetic daughter, in which the father arranges a fictitious alliance between one of her suitors and a famous movie queen provides the basis for the comedy in tomorrow evening's production.

The leading roles are played by Herbert Schrank and Esther Forer. Miss Forer took a leading part in last semester's "Ile."

Court Squad Candidates Are Requested to Apply

All candidates for next year's Varsity and Jayvee basketball squads must fill out their programs so as to be able to report for practice daily at 4 o'clock. The use of the new gymnasium will make possible this earlier practice.

TRACK TEAM MEETS TEMPLE TOMORROW

Squad Undeclared Since 1929 — Bullwinkle to Run in Mile and Half-Mile

The College track team, undefeated since 1929, will swing into action tomorrow at the Lewisohn Stadium, when it toes the marks against Temple University of Philadelphia.

The Lavender cindermen have not lost a dual meet since 1929, when Temple nosed them out by one and a third of a point. Last year the team downed the Quakers to the tune of a 72-54 score.

Bullwinkle in Feature

Saturday's encounter will give the College sport enthusiasts the first opportunity to see Coach McKenzie's ace of aces, George H. Bullwinkle, in action outdoors. Bullwinkle, who holds the outdoor Intercollegiate mile championship, will compete for the Lavender in both the mile and the half-mile runs and should win them looking over his shoulder.

The College has lost but three men from last year's aggregation and with the addition of several sophomores is a much stronger team now than it was at this time last year. Since both teams boast of excellent sprinters there is sure to be plenty of dash in the shorter runs.

Peacock Temple Star

Jimmy Peacock of Temple is one of the best broadjumpers in the country and has already leaped over 24 feet; besides the broadjump Peacock is also a centurion and a furlong sprinter par excellence, and the St. Nick aces, "Eno" Sheinberg, Bill Bloom, and Ted Klisto will be pushed to the utmost by the Philadelphian.

Sheinberg and Bloom are almost sure to run in the quarter and when they do, the local record for that distance will be seriously endangered, since Bloom has already run in practice.

ELLMAN '32 CHOSEN TO EDIT MICROCOSM

Schwartz Selected Business Manager of Yearbook—Council Determines Financial Responsibility

(Samuel S. Ellman '32 and George Schwartz '32 were elected editor-in-chief and business manager, respectively, of the 1932 Microcosm at a meeting of the junior class council yesterday.)

Ellman, who was chosen over M. S. Liben, is at present news editor of The Campus and chairman of the Student Curriculum Committee. He has served on the staff of the Campus and Microcosm for the past two years.

Schwartz, who was chosen over Abraham Tauchner, is a member of both Lock and Key and Soph Skull and has been the representative of his class in the Student Council for the past two and a half years.

Ellman, Liben, Schwartz, and Tauchner were selected by a special committee consisting of Abraham H. Raskin, Ily Miller, Morton Liftin, Sol Berland, and Harry Rosenfield.

Profit Responsibility Settled

The matter of ultimate responsibility for the profits of the sale of the 1932 Microcosm was definitely settled by the Council at the same meeting. The members of the present Council will be asked to become signatories of all the contracts to be incurred by executives of the "Mike."

No contract will become valid unless it is approved by a faculty treasurer, to be selected at a future meeting of the council.

A special committee of the present Council will be appointed to act in the capacity of advisory board to the Microcosm executives. This committee will not have any original authority, but will vote only in case of a disagreement among the editor, business manager, and faculty treasurer.

CHARTER DAY NEXT THURSDAY

Eighty-fourth Anniversary of Charter Granting Will Feature Unveiling of Picture of Late French Head and Monument of George Washington; National Colors to Be Presented

The celebration of the eighty-fourth anniversary of the granting of the charter to the College by the New York State Legislature in 1847 will be held, next Thursday, with joint exercises in the Great Hall and the Stadium. The features of the occasion will be the unveiling of a picture of the late Professor Charles A. Downer, and that of a monument of George Washington, which is to be part of the presentation of the National colors to the R.O.T.C.

Classes will be dismissed at 9:30, and students will then go to the Great Hall for the first part of the exercises. The invocation and benediction will be read by Reverend John J. Wynne. Addresses will then be made by Moses J. Stroock '86, chairman of the Board of Trustees, President Frederick B. Robinson and a member of the fiftieth anniversary class, that of '51. Student Council awards and athletic letters will also be presented.

Guard to Lead Procession

After the ceremonies in the Great Hall, a procession preceded by the color guard of the R.O.T.C. and followed by the guests of honor and professors, in turn by the students, will file into the Stadium.

Brigadier General Lucius R. Holbrook, Commanding General, 1st Division, will then review the entire R.O.T.C. unit assisted by his staff and Colonel George Chase Lewis, head of the department of Military Science and Tactics.

Following this, the medals donated by various patriotic organizations will be awarded.

LAVENDER TRAMPLED BY MANHATTAN, 16-4; TO ENGAGE COLGATE

Encounters Maroon Today, Union Tomorrow—Nau Pitches Well But Team Loses to Seton Hall, 3-0—Jaspers Pound Siegel, Raushkalb, Cohen for 17 Hits

After playing some of the better brand of baseball in a close game against the powerful Seton Hall, which the South Orange men won 3-0, the College varsity nine turned about to put up a decidedly poor exhibition of ball playing, losing to Manhattan College Wednesday afternoon by a 16-4 score in the Lewisohn Stadium. Manhattan pounded three pitchers for a total of seventeen hits, and, if that were not enough, the College fielders very obligingly contributed seven errors to the Jasper's cause.

Corrigan Yields Six Hits

Corrigan, tall right hander, limited the local batsmen to six safeties giving Manhattan the seventh win in eight starts this season. Incidentally, this only was Manhattan's second victory in the past thirteen years over a Lavender aggregation. The series, which dates back to 1883, now stands 15 to 10 in favor of the College.

Coach Parker continued to shift the line-up in an attempt to find the best combination. Mel Levy started at third in both games, while Hank Berger, who has tried his hand at the outfield, third base and at the catching post, started in right field against Seton Hall.

Green Scores Five in First

Nat Siegel started in the box against Manhattan, but from the outset, he had trouble with his control. The Green won the game in its very first turn at bat when it scored five times. Two walks and an error soon filled the bases and Leonard's double drove in three runs. Two more came in on a pass, two additional hits and an error.

The College scored once in the third frame. Kaufman walked and Siegel singled for the College's first hit. Al Oglio then hit sharply to the shortstop who put out Siegel going into second but failed to get Oglio at first. Kaufman tallied on a beautifully executed head-first slide into the plate. The Green tallied one run in each of the third, fourth, and fifth innings.

College Fails in Rally

Maloney opened the Lavender's half of the seventh with a walk and advanced to third on Tenzer's double over the fence. Goldman brought Kaufman home with a single and Tenzer scored a moment later on a wild pitch to third. The side was retired and the rally ended when pinch hitter Hank Berger was robbed of a hit by Devaney, Jasper center fielder's pretty catch of a line drive.

Raushkalb went on the mound for the College in the eighth and lasted one inning yielding one run on two hits. "Lefty" Cohen was Parker's next choice for the pitching assignment but he proved to be least effective of all. He was nicked for 5 hits and gave two base on balls to give Manhattan seven runs.

The College tallied once in the

Gibelman Declines Downtown Award

The first refusal to accept an insignium awarded by the Downtown Student Council will be recorded at today's meeting of that body. William Gibelman '31, former editor-in-chief of the Business Bulletin, has announced his declination of the minor award voted him by the Council last Friday.

In a letter to Irving Tashman '31, president of the Student Council, Gibelman decried the system of awarding insignia on a point basis. Too much credit is given to students participating in numerous activities and concentrating on none, according to Gibelman, who felt that he merited a major award.

"When a student becomes active on the Bulletin, he has no time to take part in other activities," claimed Gibelman. "It is the fellow who dabbles in many activities without concentrating on one, who receives the most points. This is absolutely unfair."

Chairman to Be Appointed On S.C. Elections Committee

Candidates for the positions of chairman and vice-chairman of the Uptown Student Council elections committee are requested to submit their applications personally to the secretary of the Council today in room 306 at three o'clock, according to an announcement by Hy Miller '31, president of the Council.

Dear Sam,
"SINCE my leg is broken in four places and it is raining vigorously outside, I am writing you a letter. I hope that you are not peevish at me for the long delay, but you know how I detest writing letters. I suppose that you are just dying to know what's new at school. Of course I could send you the last issue of The Campus, but since you are an Uptown man, I guess you'd go right on dying.

Things are really very quiet these fine dreamy spring days. The Social Problems Club is suspiciously dormant, and maybe it's the lull before the storm or something. You know that I'm the Sports Editor of The Campus, and some of the fellers have been complaining that I never give the sports teams any publicity. I guess the kick is legitimate, because the spring sports are in full bloom now, and if I don't get work, maybe Liftin'll suspend me.

Baseball may be the national sport, but I guess that the fellers at the College don't know about it yet, because nobody ever goes to the games. We have a pretty good team this year, only the boys don't hit so well, and guess we'll be pretty lucky if we wind up with the old .500 rating. Morty Goldman sits next to me in Sociology and he talks so much about baseball that I can hardly hear the feller in the front of the room bulling about eugenics or crime prevention.

GOLDMAN can hit as well as talk, but this feller Nau can pitch, believe me. He's a left hander, but he's got good control, and I guess that environment is pretty important after all. This bird Kaufman at shortstop has some wing, and he throws straight too. My friend Mel Levy is getting a chance at third base, and I hope he makes good, because he's a great guy.

I was speaking to Nat Holman the other day. You know he's suing the Daily News for $250,000 in a libel suit, and I hope he collects it, because them fellers on the News made all sorts of lying statements, and the next thing you know they'll discover that Nat is a professional or something.

The track season opens tomorrow against Temple University and I guess we'll win all the meets this season except maybe the one with Manhattan, and that's going to be a tough one. We've a good team, only we're weak in the two mile, the broad jump, and the high hurdles. Bullwinkle is in good shape. He looks stronger than ever, and he ought to run up his undefeated dual meet streak this year. He'll have a tough time in the I.C.4A's, because he's entered in the mile and half, and he'll have to do about 4:14 and 1:53 to win both events, and I think maybe he'll do it. George is a nice feller, and I hope he doesn't start discussing Plato's theory of justice with this Coan before the race, because Coan will probably get scared and run so fast that George will never catch him.

THERE are lots of philosophers floating around the school. This Lewis Feuer is one, and he recently wrote a review in The Campus on Professor's Cohen's new book, "Reason and Nature." Feuer isn't a runner, but he has long legs, and maybe he could learn if he applied himself. I bet that he and Abraham and Lash and Raskin could make up a good relay. Lash would be the anchor man, because he's got a good "kick." I think Joe would be better off if he broke relations with this feller Nelson because he (Nelson) is a bum.

The lacrosse team started off great, but things haven't been going so well, and the boys dropped games to N.Y.U. and Stevens Tech. The new coach, Jack Degen, captained the N.Y.U. team last year, and he's doing good work, only there are many fellers around here who couldn't tell the difference between a lacrosse stick and a barber pole, and what's the use of it all, anyway? Ruby Schwartz, the lacrosse captain, is a great player.

AND what do you think of the tennis team? Those dignified racketeers are beating all the teams and it's a moral victory for the other fellers if they take one set. The two big guns on the team are Weir and Morganstern. They say Weir is one of the most graceful players in the game, and Morganstern is a little fat feller and he hasn't lost a match this season.

The basketball schedule was released only the other day, and it's not as colorful as last year's, since Yale, Harvard, and Pitt are off. But the team didn't get such good support last year, and so we're playing smaller colleges, and saving money on guarantees. I saw Moe Spahn the other day and I asked him if he wouldn't accompany me to a freshman dual meet that was being run. "Sure," said Spahn, "but I thought the fencing season was over?" What are you going to do with a feller like that? The freshmen have some fine runners, by the way. Brown, Lazarus, Mandell, and Silverman make a good nucleus, and now if we can get some ectoderm or something, I guess we'll be pretty well set in track.

I ran for the editorship of the Microcosm. The election took place yesterday, but I guess that my chances weren't so good, because my opponent, Ellman, has already asked me to be the Sports Editor for next year, and what's the use?

I'm enclosing a picture of myself, and I guess they wouldn't hang it in the Louvre Gallery, though maybe the Rogues' Gallery might accept it. I look pretty tough, but I'm still the quiet, unassuming feller underneath it all. I have regards for you from Joe Davidoff, who was sick with sinus trouble.

Affectionately,
Mike

P.S. How are you?

After the Curtain

PRECEDENT—A play in three acts and epilogue by F. J. Gould. Presented by Sidney Harmon at the Provincetown Theatre. The stable-like Provincetown Theatre, whose dilapidated walls sheltered, in the good old days, the work and presence of the now-famous Paul Green, Robert Jones, Susan Glaspell and Eugene O'Neill has made a comeback. Once again theatre-goers may wander down to Greenwich Village, sit on cushioned (but hardly soft) benches, and enjoy a play whose actors have not yet been tarred with the commercialism of Broadway or Hollywood.

Some time ago, Maxwell Anderson fashioned "Gods of Lightning" which was produced at the Provincetown, out of the Sacco-Vanzetti tragedy. Another and even more obvious miscarriage of justice, (read: "frame-up") the Mooney-Billings case, provides the theme for "Precedent."

"Precedent" is propoganda . . . and good theatre. I. J. Golden has taken the authentic facts of the case excepting for a few changes in detail, such as the incorporating of Mooney and Billings into a single personage, Delaney, the labor organizer, and has woven them into a powerful and compelling drama that is doubly impressive because of its intensity and sincerity. Even to the person who is completely convinced of the innocence of Mooney and Billings, "Precedent" is more meaningful and arresting than anything on Broadway with the possible exception of "Brass Ankles."

The acting is always satisfactory and, in spots, excellent. William Donelli, as Riley, the despicable D.A. steals the honors and is rewarded at curtain call with loud and prolonged hissing . . . the cad.

The long-awaited joint dance of Lock and Key and Soph Skull, honorary soph society, will be held in the Webb room on June 6. Prominent students and alumni members of the societies have been invited to attend.

LARGE COMPANIES CUTTING QUOTA FOR COLLEGE GRADS

Seniors at the College, who—with the proverbial optimism of youth—hopefully expect to doff their caps and gowns in June and sheepskins in hand step from the campus to begin their predestined task of running the universe will find their illusions ground to dirt even sooner than in previous years, according to the results of a survey just completed by the National Student Federation of America.

Only one company of those replying to a form letter addressed to the personnel directors of fifty large productive and distributive corporations reported that it would employ the same number of college graduates in 1931 as in 1930 and 1929. R. H. Macy & Company will add eighty men to its staff this year, the same as in the two previous years. W. T. Grant Company, chain store organization, has taken on twenty-six graduates during the first three months of this year, as compared to thirty-four in the same period of 1929, and twenty in 1930.

Reductions in All Industries
One of the nation's leading employers of college and university graduates will reduce the number engaged this year by more than ninety per cent. An important industrial concern will employ fifty men, as against 450 in each of the two previous years. One of the largest chemical factories of the country reports a twenty per cent reduction, and a leading utility which employed seventy college graduates in 1929 engaged none during 1930 and will not recruit any additional material this year.

In every reply except one, where the curtailment of an expansion program was deemed necessary, the chief reason for the reduction in the number of college men taken on was not the failure of those men hired in the past to meet expectations but the depressing economic conditions. However, one employer replied to the questionnaire as follows: "Of the number (thirty-four) university graduates employed in 1930, only nine are still with us, so you see the plan of using men right from college has not worked out so successfully on our organization. Our greatest success has been with those who have been out of school for one or two years. They have had an opportunity during that time to receive a few hard knocks and to settle down to some definite life-work."

Situation is Acute
According to Al Rose, director of the College Employment Bureau, conditions are every bit as bad as they are painted by the report. For the past twenty-two months—ever since the business slump—chances for graduates of acquiring jobs have dropped almost to nothing. Since the beginning of the depression only five students have been placed with accounting firms. Many dress houses which were accustomed to use College men have closed down this year. Even part time jobs have diminished in number. Opportunities to find holiday positions in shoe, haberdashery and clothing stores have declined by at least eighty per cent.

Chem Teacher Writes Analysis Theory Book

The publication of a new text in Qualitative Analysis by Professor L. J. Curtman, of the Chemistry Department, was announced by the Macmillan Co. last week.

The book treats the subject from the standpoint of the laws of equilibrium and the ionization theory. In it are embodied a brief presentation of the laws and the theories which form the scientific foundation of analytical chemistry, with typical numerical problems for student practice; original methods in the treatment of acid analysis; and detailed descriptions of important reactions in qualitative analysis to supplement the experiment directions.

"Dr. Curtman carried out all his original investigations at the City College chemistry laboratories.
