Revealing the Location
Of Witold Klimauskas,
Disappearing Halfback

By Herbert G. Richek

The name of Witold Klimauskas probably doesn't mean very much to you, but if you'll think back some two and a half months to the beginning of the football season you may recall there was quite an ado about his mysterious disappearance one night. Klimauskas was a back who suddenly vanished from the scene just as he was on the verge of reporting to football training camp.

The mystery of his disappearance gave all indications of remaining permanently unsolved. No one had the slightest idea where he had gone to. Many inventive souls produced quite logical theories. "Cherchez la femme" some said, giving the phrase horrible mispronunciations. Some said he had gone back to his first love—driving a truck up in some New England city.

Ay Tank Ay Go Home

"Beef" Steiner, who blew into town for a visit last Friday afternoon, provided the answer to what had threatened to become a perennial mystery. "Swede" Klimauskas went the way of all flesh. He succumbed to a very tempting offer, tendered to him by those who run the football destinies of North Carolina University. He spent the past three months in the very cultured atmosphere of Chapel Hill, North Carolina, playing freshman football.

Klimauskas, when he was here, was highly regarded as a gridiron performer of prominence. The glory was his, but there was not very much in the way of material reward. It is indeed a sorry state of affairs when a football player of Swede's capabilities couldn't eat regularly, not to even mention dress properly. There were weekends, many of them, too, when Klimauskas went hungry. He didn't usually go hungry the rest of the week, but his diet was anything but balanced—it included too many starchy foods.

Down in Carolina now, Klimauskas lives in fine style. He is put up in one of the many houses in which only athletes live. Each house has its own chef and, they say, the meals provided for the athletes are the acme of culinary perfection. Athletes eat also on Saturdays and Sundays. All this doesn't cost Klimauskas one cent. His tuition fees are all taken care of, every semester he is given a present of all the textbooks he needs for the particular courses he has elected. He is given an N.Y.A. job and many opportunities are offered him of picking up extra money such as tutoring slow students in the intricacies of archaic Greek.

Klimauskas, Steiner informed us, didn't make the first string freshman team at Carolina this season. It should be remembered that he was all ready to step into a first team varsity berth here at the College. However, he did show enough promise to indicate that after a few more years of football he may manage to play in a few games for the Tarheels. On the basis of this promise alone it is very likely that he will be at North Carolina for another year, at the least.

North Carolina, this year, had one of the strongest teams in the country and seemed headed for the Rose Bowl nomination until in a startling upset it was defeated 25-0 by Duke, its traditional rival.

Lavender Five Points Toward Fourth Victory

Beavers to Face Dartmouth,
Geneva College Teams
During Vacation

SQUAD LACKS FEEDER

Goldstein Is Back in Uniform;
Fleigal, Sophomore Guard,
Leads Team in Scoring

Unbeaten and untested in three games against mediocre competition, Nat Holman's court machine will attempt to free itself from the doldrums it has been in since the season started when it meets Dartmouth and Geneva during the Christmas recess.

The Beavers will be at full strength for the first time since the Brooklyn College game, since "Ace" Goldstein, scrappy third year forward, who did not play against Dickinson because of severe blisters on his feet, is back in uniform. He will probably be in the starting lineup Saturday night against the big Green team.

Most serious of the many faults shown by the quintet in the three games thus far has been the lack of a good feeder. Ruby Nabatoff, a senior playing his third year of varsity ball, is the best feeder on the squad, but he hasn't the stamina to play more than a few minutes of each game. A feeder like Abe Weisbrodt, of the '33 team, would add fifty per cent to the Beavers' attack.

Fleigal Outstanding Thus Far

Bernie Fleigal, lanky sophomore, has been the best man on the squad in the games played. His height enables him to recover the ball off the backboard, and he is one of the leading scorers of the team, tallying twenty-two points.

Sy Schneidman, another sophomore regular, has not shown up as well as Fleigal. Schneidman is a spectacular player, brilliant on the offense, but his defensive play is not all it could be. However, if he continues to improve as he has been, he should remain in the starting lineup.

Sol "Count" Kopitko, captain of the squad, although the best floor man on the team, has had his troubles. Kopitko, the worst shot on the team, has shown a disinclination to shoot, and as a result, the Beaver scoring total has been held down all year. His responsibility as captain does not help his play in any way.

Phil Levine and Sid Katz, both of who have played varsity ball before, are being used only as substitutes. The reason for this is that both are very erratic.

Levine was high scorer against Dickinson, and Katz led the team against Brooklyn, but otherwise their play has not been good.

Against Dartmouth this Saturday night, Nat Holman's charges will use the fast, hard cutting type of play that has characterized Beaver teams of the past. The change from this season's tactics will be necessary in order to score on the close guarding team that Dartmouth always puts on the floor.

Geneva College will be met on December 28 at Madison Square Garden in the second of the collegiate basketball double-headers. Geneva handed the Beavers their worst defeat last season, trouncing the College 50-27 on the Pennsylvania home floor.

J.V. Courtmen To Face L.I.U.

Unbeaten Lavender Quintet
Seeks Fourth Victory
Against L.I.U. Cubs

Fresh from an impressive 18-14 victory over a highly touted Textile quintet, Coach Moe Spahn's Junior Varsity basketball team will face the Long Island University freshmen in the College gym this Saturday night.

The win over Textile kept the Beaver's undefeated record intact and they will take the floor Saturday night favored to cop their fourth straight contest.

The personnel of the first Jayvee team seemed to be settled by the outstanding play of five Beavers against Textile. The five consists of "Sonny" Fishman, tall center, Bobby Sand, the mighty mite, at guard, "Lefty" Adelson, veteran guard, "Phineas" Jarmulnik, high scorer of the Textile game, and Artie Rosenberg, who by dint of his fine play has replaced Lefkowitz on the first five.

Critics of the Jayvee, who derided the Beavers' lack of offensive strength, were effectually silenced by the flashy play against a team which won the P.S.A.L. championship last year and which has four veterans on the present five. When the Beavers were on the defensive, a tight zone defense proved too much for the bewildered high school players. However, the low score tallied by Textile was not due entirely to the zone defense employed by the Beavers.

Mermen to Train For Manhattan

Although the Beaver swimming team will be inactive during the Christmas vacation, Coach Radford J. McCormick will hold practice sessions in order to get the squad in shape for the Manhattan meet, scheduled for Jan. 3.

The Beavers, who defeated Manhattan last season, have declined considerably this year, losing to a poor Fordham squad. A victory over the Jaspers will probably be the sole triumph for the natators this year.

The major reason for the downfall of the Beavers is the lack of good free style swimmers. George Sheinberg, captain of the '34-'35 team, a free style swimmer capable of winning three events each meet, is no longer in school. Against Fordham, the Beavers gained only ten points of a possible forty-four in the free style races. The only strength shown by the Beavers was in the diving and breast stroke events.

St. Nick Leatherlungs Take Trophy In Long Island Cross-Country Run

The Beaver gridders may get the glory but the leatherlungs bring home the bacon. Running a highly touted Millrose A.C. team into the ground, the College cross-country team won its third A.A.U. meet last Sunday at Forest Park, Long Island.

Although Eugene Tait of N.Y.U., competing unattached, took the individual honors, the St. Nicks won the team trophy with the low score of 25 points, five fewer than their favored opponents. Running in faultless style, five out of the six competing Lavenders finished within thirty seconds of each other, which is of itself a remarkable achievement. Frank Devlin, captain of the Beavers, finished in tenth place out of a field of fifty-one, while Aldo Scandurra, Carlos Bermeo, Konstantine Kollar and Rudolph Schlectiger all of the College finished directly behind him in that order.

According to Coach Tony Orlando, this year's team is the best balanced cross-country squad in the history of the College. The team started its season by winning the first two meets against Lafayette and Fordham. Against N.Y.U., however, the team's inexperience proved a serious handicap and the Lavender bowed to the Violet.

After the regular season was over the squad continued to practice and entered three open A.A.U. meets. In the first two, they won two team trophies, while in Sunday's competition, they won the Junior Metropolitan championship.

Krowl Leaves $10,000 Estate To Aid Library

An estate valued at $10,000 has been bequeathed to the College by the will of Professor Harry C. Krowl, according to probate papers filed in Surrogate's Court last Saturday. The bequest is to be held in trust and the income used for library purposes.

Professor Krowl was the acting head of the English Department until his sudden death from a heart attack on December 1. He was appointed head of the Department of English in February, 1934, upon the retirement of Professor Lewis Freeman Mott.

The New York Public Library is bequeathed a collection of postcards and photographs. The sum of fifty dollars has also been willed to two of Professor Krowl's acquaintances.

At the time of Professor Krowl's death President Frederick B. Robinson appointed a committee of six professors to make funeral arrangements. The committee consisted of Professors Nelson P. Mead, Charles F. Horne, Edmund Burke, Bird Stair, Earl F. Palmer and Paul Klapper.

Professor Krowl was born May 29, 1875, in New York City. He received his education at the College and at New York University, where he was awarded A.B. and Ph.D. degrees, respectively. Professor Krowl taught in both the day and evening sessions despite the fact that his health had been declining for five months previous to his death on December 1.

Services were held at Campbell's Funeral Parlor and interment took place on Wednesday, December 4 at Kensico Cemetery in Westchester. Reverend Dr. J. Frampton, a friend of the late professor, officiated at the funeral ceremonies.

Attempt to Delay Elections Fails

Because of the S.L.I.D.'s refusal to change the I.S.R. ticket, The Campus has announced that it is backing a split ticket to be headed by Julian Lavitt, '36, independent candidate for the presidency of the Student Council, and Simon Slavin '37 I.S.R. nominee for the secretaryship of the Council.

The I.S.R. is now the only party presenting a full slate for council and class officers. Originally the Lavender party, consisting for the most part of Tech students had intended to run a full slate. The Lavender Party withdrew after a caucus at which it was discovered that the party would be unable to run a sufficient number of candidates to meet, with the requirements of the Elections Committee.

The I.S.P., organized by Victor Axelroad '37, also withdrew early in the race after Julian Lavitt '36 and Robert Rubin '37 the party's candidates for president and vice-president of the council, left the Progressive slate.

The I.S.R. slate for student council offices is as follows: Judah Drob, '36, president; Herbert Robinson, '37, vice-president, and Simon Slavin, '37, secretary. Victor Axelroad '37, is running as an independent for S.C. secretary.

Dram. Soc. to Sponsor Play Contest at 92 St. "Y"

The definite selection of the 92nd Street Y.M.H.A. auditorium as the site for the inter-College one-act play contest was announced yesterday by E. Lawrence Goodman, '36, president of the College Dramatic Society. The contest, sponsored by the College group, will include Columbia, N.Y.U., and Hunter, and will take place at the end of February.

Attempts are being made at present to secure the co-operation of the Dramatic Critics Circle, headed by Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times, as judges for the tournament.

Correspondence

To the Editor of The Campus:

Now, towards the close of a semester, peaceful as compared with previous ones, students will be called upon to determine their new representatives. The majority of students, unfortunately, are apathetic to problems which directly concern them. The large minority which has made student self-government practicable represents the liberal and radical elements of The College.

Next semester will witness the greatest forward step of the American student movement. It will result from the union of the two active, militant groups in colleges throughout the country, the N.S.L. and the S.L.I.D. The nature of this amalgamation, which has so frequently been mentioned as the American Student Union, is the point yet to be decided.

Shall this Union, which will attempt to represent, mould and lead student opinion, consist merely of an amalgamation of the N.S.L. and the S.L.I.D., with the consequent accretion of students heretofore unable to choose between the two organizations, and opposed to joining either because of their petty squabbles concerning underlying political philosophy and tactics? Or shall this be a new Union, coordinating all radical and liberal opinion at colleges throughout the country, on a basis which, quoting Dean Gottschall "shall be sufficiently broad to appeal to the majority of college students and yet shall not be devoid of specific content?"

Such a broad basis would result in the encouragement of student unity against war and fascism, which united effort should be the chief aim of the American Student Union. Wherein lies the reason for radicals divorcing themselves from the overwhelmingly greater liberal element in colleges in their common fight against war and fascism?

In conclusion, I would like to point out that I welcome the encouragement of social activities, participated in by faculty members as well as students, at the College. I heartily congratulate the House Plan for its attempt in this direction. My membership in one of the houses indicates my active approval of the program. Along this line I would recommend a change in the athletic system at the College, permitting more students to support and enjoy their teams' activities, by a substantial reduction in the price of tickets for students.

Sincerely,
Julian Lavitt '36

To the Editor of The Campus:

The last issue of The Campus contained a letter in which four of the independent candidates for S. C. offices charged the I.S.R. Party with neglecting College activities. This seems to be their only charge against the I.S.R. Its other activities, once the bone of contention, have now become "respectable" and the independents even support the A.S.U., after we in the N.S.L. and S.L.I.D. have done all the work to make it possible.

What truth is there in this one charge? This past term, during which the I.S.R. was in office, was one of the most successful in respect to College social activities, we have known in a long time. This is in part due to the existence and program of the House plan. "Chick" Chaikin, an I.S.R. candidate is president of the Inter-House Council.

Julian Utevesky, a candidate on the I.S.R. ticket, is a member of the curriculum committee which will conduct a curriculum questionnaire. Is this neglect of College activities?

Milton Zaslow '38 and Jack Freeman '39, principles in last week's Frosh-Soph outburst are both I.S.R. candidates.

Others on the I.S.R. slate are prominent in College athletics. Examples of this are Welford Wilson '36, Emanuel Meier '37, Solomon Hofstein '37, and Morton Bernstein '36.

Thus we see that the single charge which has been made against us and on the basis of which the opposition is running, is baseless.

Independent Student Rights Party
Judah Drob for President
Herbert Robinson for Vice-President
Simon Slavin for Secretary

Tickets for Frosh Affair May Be Purchased in T.H.H.

Tickets for "Frosh Feed" may be bought today at Chapel or in Townsend Harris Hall at 1 p.m., according to an announcement by Murray Vidocler '39. Tickets are priced at fifty cents.

The Frosh Festival will take place this Friday evening at the Hamilton Hotel, 138 Street and Hamilton Place.

Much pie-throwing is expected to take place at the affair inasmuch as the sophomores are still smarting under the drubbing administered to them last week by the freshmen.

Dean Too Radical for West Virginia; Let Co-eds Smoke, Taught Evolution

Way down West Virginia-way, they frown on women smokers, and such ideas as evolution theories are positively taboo. But Dean John R. Turner of the College, former president of West Virginia University, neglected to outlaw these things, and so brought down on his shoulders the righteous wrath of the House of Delegates of that great state.

So great was the indignation of the West Virginia legislators that they called for the immediate resignation of Dr. Turner, in a lengthy resolution adopted in 1932. However, although the delegates did not relent in their indignation, something must have gone wrong, for Dr. Turner kept his position until he came to the College as Dean of Men this year.

Mr. Sycamore, a strangely obscure personage in the House of Delegates, had the signal honor of introducing the resolution, which reads as follows:

Whereas, The House of Delegates has information that John R. Turner, president of the West Virginia University, has allowed, and is allowing, the young girls attending said university to smoke cigarettes without any rules or regulations against the same, and

Whereas, The said president has instituted, since his term of office, a policy detrimental to the religious welfare of the students attending said school, in that he has permitted to be taught in said institution evolution and the origin of species. That is to say, he has suffered at the said institution the theory that the origin of man as set forth in the first chapter of the Bible is incorrect, and

Whereas, He has shown his inability to cope with the difficult and intricate problems of said office and has shown his incapacity to enforce rules and regulations governing said school in such manner as to develop the moral and religious life of the students, and

Whereas, Said John R. Turner has neglected the work of his office by entering into partisan politics, therefore,

Resolved by the House of Delegates: That the State Board of Governors be instructed to call for the resignation of John R. Turner, president of West Virginia University, without delay.

Nancy Jones to Address Politics Club Tomorrow

Nancy Bedford-Jones, prominent leader in the student movement, will address the Politics Club tomorrow at 1 p.m. in room 204. She will speak on problems facing college students today.

Miss Jones is the author of the article "My Father is a Liar," which recently appeared in the New Masses. It was an answer to one published in Liberty, attacking the college radical movement.
