Turner Scored For Attitude As Anti-Negro

Head of Douglass Society Charges Dean Slighted Race by Comments

McDONALD DESCRIBES INTERVIEW IN OFFICE

William McDonald '38, president of the Douglass Society last Monday accused Dean John R. Turner of demonstrating an anti-Negro attitude through the use of the word "nigger" and through the description of the Negro as being "intrinsically" indifferent to his surroundings.

The dean's attitude was demonstrated, according to McDonald, in a conference between himself, Teddy Krieger '38, and the dean, held in the dean's office last Tuesday, December 15. At that time, McDonald declared, the dean, in commenting on a poem by Langston Hughes, had said to his secretary in the presence of McDonald and Krieger, "Now, Miss Brennan, can't you just get the picture down there in (he named some small town in West Virginia)—these niggers—ah, negroes—sittin' on the railroad sidin', just a-laughin', shootin' craps, and a-bettin' on the numbers on the box-cars a goin-by?"

"He read the poem (one of two rendered in chapel on the Douglass Society program) which ends describing Negroes as loud-mouthed laughers in the hands of fate. The dean seized upon this last (Continued on Page 4, Column 1)

Band to Broadcast Next Wednesday On Station WNYC

What may be the inauguration of a sustaining, twice monthly half hour program, will be revealed on Wednesday, December 30 at 10:45 a.m., when the College Band plays its first radio broadcast over Station WNYC. It was disclosed that the Band had been requested to appear by the program director of the station.

A host of new song hits have been rehearsed by the Band for the occasion, consisting of French and American marches, and popular tunes of today and yesterday.

Program Planned

The tentative program includes: Lavender, The City College Banner, The Sweetest Story Ever Told, French National Defilé March, El Capitan, Smoke Gets in Your Eyes, Marching Along Together, The Thunderer, There's Something About a Soldier, National Emblem March, Don't Give Up The Ship, Anchors Aweigh, and Conrades March.

A final "dress rehearsal" for the half-hour program will be held on Tuesday, December 29 at 10 a.m. in the Townsend Harris Hall auditorium. Band members are to appear at the Municipal Building at 10 a.m. on Wednesday.

FERNBACH, WOLGEL WIN FRAT CONTEST

Jack Fernbach '39 and Harold Wolgel '40 were the winners in an essay contest sponsored by Tau Delta Phi Fraternity, it was announced yesterday by the group. The essays, on "What a Fraternity at City College Should Mean" were chosen from many submitted. The prize was a ticket to the fraternity's Formal Dance, Friday night at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

'Mike' Announces Picture Deadline

The photography deadline for Microcosm has been extended to January 4, it was announced today by Gil Kahn '37, editor-in-chief. The Arthur Studios, where the pictures will be taken, will be open during Christmas Week, from 9 to 6. They are located at 131 West 42 Street.

Students graduating in February should fill out activity slips and make all payments on Microcosm before graduation. The activity slips may be obtained in room 11 Mezzanine and room 424. A warning was issued that the slips should be filled out "clearly and honestly." Every claim that is made will be thoroughly investigated. It was disclosed also that over 450 subscriptions have been sold to seniors.

College Faces Marshall Five

Beaver Quintet to Attempt To Regain Winning Form On Saturday Night

The most stunning form reversal of the current season has left the basketball world dazed as to the direction of the College quintet. Its amazing defeat at the hands of a diminutive St. Josephs squad has transformed an emphatic Holman exclamation-point into a disappointing question-mark. Whether the Beavers can pick themselves off the Garden floor, where they suffered their initial setback of the campaign, and come back to fulfill their early brilliant promise will be indicated to a degree Saturday night, in the Hippodrome double-header, when the College faces Marshall College of West Va.

Holman's Absence Blamed

The disappointingly miserable performance of the Lavender can be best attributed to the absence of Nat Holman from the team's practices all last week. All the mistakes and tactical errors that he eradicated in several months of intensive preparation cropped up some time or another during the evening: Passing in back-court and no cutting; no drive on offense; no fast break; no setting-up plays. "You should have your heads in a sling," Nat told them after the game. "But, perhaps it's best for the team. Where the weakness lies has been clearly exposed."

Eisner, Ten Years on Board, Passes Half-Century Mark; Comments on College Students of Today and Yesterday

By Bert Briller

"The ten years I have been on the Board of Higher Education have meant the education of Mark Eisner," the chairman of the Board began. Mark Eisner, a graduate of the College in 1905, reached the half-century mark on December 15. His ten year term as a member of the Board will expire next June, when the question of his re-appointment will be brought before Mayor LaGuardia.

Seated at his desk, forty-one stories above Exchange Place, with the ship-lined harbor of this metropolis framed by the window, Mark Eisner continued. "I went on the Board ten years ago with the idea that students today are, more or less, the same as they were when I was an under-graduate. In those ten years,

Raffles Sold To Send Men To ASU Meet

Student Union Aims to Raise $140 to Enable Four To Attend Assembly

IMPORTANT ISSUES FACE CONVENTION

In a determined effort to raise the amount of money necessary to send at least four delegates to the national convention, the College chapter of the American Student Union has been selling raffles, at five cents per ticket, during the past week on the campus. At least $140 is needed, according to Bernard Walpin '39, who is in charge of the sale of raffles.

The four delegates who are to represent the College ASU at the convention to be held in Chicago on December 28, 29 and 30 are: Herbert Robinson '37, president of the Student Council, Jack Magalecu '39 president of the local chapter of the ASU, Alfred Pick '37, and Fred Forkel '39.

Pressing Issues at Convention There are many pressing issues that will be discussed by the delegates at the convention, among which the most important are legalization of the American Student Union at colleges and universities where such legalization has not already been granted, and affiliation or endorsement by the ASU of the proposed Farmer-Labor Party, when and if it is organized by the liberal groups who are now discussing such a political party.

The College ASU will hold a meeting today at 12:30 p.m. in Doremus Hall.

House to Hold Party and Tea In Xmas Fete

Groups to Tender Parties And Tea Dances During The Noel Vacation

SINGING OF CAROLS WILL BE FEATURED

A Christmas party and candle light tea this afternoon at 4 p.m. will start a week-long celebration of the holidays by the House Plan, Mr. Mortimer Karpp, director, revealed yesterday. The remainder of the celebration, which will go on until the thirtieth of this month, will consist of daily parties and tea dances at the House Center.

A Christmas tree has been decorated and placed in the 1910 Room for the festivities. It was dressed by the members of the Newman Club, the YMCA and the Council of House Plan Delegates under the supervision of their presidents, Jim Donohue '38, Walter Meff '37 and Solomon S. Chaiken '38.

Faculty Invited

All members of the faculty and the House Plan are invited by Mr. Karpp to attend the Christmas party "and bring their friends."

There will be group singing of carols and College songs under the direction of Mr. J. Bailey Harvey of the Public Speaking Department. Refreshment will be contributed and served by Mrs. Emanuel Behrman and Mrs. Leslie Levi, members of the College Post of the American Legion.

Rose Places Many Students for Xmas But No College Man Will Play Santa

No, there isn't any Santa Claus. There are baggage men, salesmen, post office clerks, messengers, waiters, and musicians; but out of the hundreds of jobs that the College Employment Office will have filled by the end of the month, not one request has been received for a student to fill Santa's boots.

Not only has there been no call for a Santa Claus this year, there has been no such request in the past, and there is not likely to be any in the future, according to Al Rose, head of the Employment Office.

The nature of the work requires only a proper size and girth, and no special intelligence, explains Mr. Rose, who is somewhat contemptuous of the average

Santa Claus. And until the Santa Claus standards are considerably raised, it is not likely that the College will be called upon to fill the position.

Nevertheless, the Christmas season has brought a rising demand on the Employment Bureau for student workers, and the staff is keeping busy with the holiday rush. When it's all over, Mr. Rose estimates that he will have placed about four hundred and seventy-five students.

Though a firm disbeliever in Santa Claus, Mr. Rose will be hanging up his stocking tomorrow night. And he hopes to find it loaded down with more open jobs. For the supply of students who need work still outweighs the demand by far.

New Party Names Slate To Oppose SU Ticket; Hits Minority Control

Applications Due For S.C. Elections

Candidates for Student Council and class offices for next term must hand in their applications by 4:30 p.m. today, Bernard G. Walpin '39, chairman of the Elections Committee, announced. Applications plus a fee of thirty-five cents are to be brought to the Mezzanine office of the committee in room 5 or left in the Faculty Mail Room, box 22.

Union Confers With Klapper

TU Grievance Group Meets With Dean and Clinical Head on Dismissal

The Grievance Committee of the College section of the Teachers Union conferred with Paul Klapper, Dean of the School of Education, and Samuel Heckman, director of the Education Clinic, at the 23 Street building Saturday. The proposed dismissal of two members of the Clinic staff was discussed.

At the meeting were all the members of the Education staff and of the Clinic staff. Maurice Deiches, a member of the Board of Higher Education, was also present. Plans were made for similar discussions in the near future.

TU Poll Ballots Distributed

Ballots in the TU referendum on the McGoldrick resolution have been sent to the teaching staffs of the city colleges. They are to be returned today, and the results will be available after the holiday.

Science Academy Honors O'Connell

Dr. Daniel T. O'Connell, of the Department of Geology of the College was elected to Fellowship in the New York Academy of Arts and Sciences for the year 1937 at its 118 Annual meeting, held December 21 at the Hotel New Yorker.

The Academy, founded in 1817, is the oldest scientific society in New York City.

Among those admitted to honorary membership in the society were Julian S. Huxley, secretary of the Zoological Society of London; Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator, division of physical anthropology, United States Museum; and Sir Arthur William Hill, director of the Royal Botanic Gardens, England.

AVUKAH WILL HOLD CHANUKAH SEUDAH

The Avukah is holding its annual Chanukah Seudah (lothes party to the illiterates) at 3 p.m. in the Faculty Lunch-room, today. Besides the famous potato lotkes, beneficent members of the Avukah will contribute wine, cookies and nuts.

Everything is guaranteed strictly kosher—even the nuts. The cover charge will be one dime.

Axelroad Heads Progressive Student Group; Charges S.C. in Disrepute

ALL NOMINEES IN ASU

Hoffman and London Listed In Campaign for Offices In Student Council

Charging that the American Student Union and the Student Council "are dominated by minority groups," Victor Axelroad '37, yesterday announced his candidacy for president of the S.C. as head of a Progressive Students Party slate.

The tentative ticket announced by the newly formed party nominates Paul Hoffman '38 for vice-president and Jack London '38 for secretary. Bernard Walpin '39, who had been nominated for the presidency of the '39 Class, yesterday withdrew his name from the slate.

Axelroad's Statement

The complete statement issued by Axelroad states, "The time is now ripe, because of the low state of student government at the College and disrepute into which the Student Council has fallen in the eyes of many students, for the student body to elect a slate which will insure a real student government."

"The Progressive Students Party is a liberal party composed of ASU members who have pledged themselves to overthrow the minority domination of the ASU and the Student Council."

The Progressive Students Party's nominations for class officers are:

'37 Class

Pres.—Irv Nachbar
Vice Pres.—Murray Cohen
Sec'y.—Murray Blum

'38 Class

Pres.—Charles Goldzabler
Sec'y.—Irving Anderman

'39 Class

Pres.—Leon Katzen
Vice Pres.—William Tomshinsky
S.C. Rep.—Harold Roth

'40 Class

Vice Pres.—Herbert Sherman
Sec'y.—Zach Buchalter

Upper Rep.—Larry Marty
Lower Rep.—Alan Otten

David Goldman '37, yesterday announced that he was running for secretary of the '37 Class as an independent candidate.

Hutt to Address Psychology Society

Dr. Max Hutt of the Educational Clinic will address the Psychology Society today at 12:30 p.m. in room 312. He will speak on "Social Psychology and Contemporary Social Problems."

Dr. Hutt has lectured at the Psychology Society several times in the past. He has spoken to the society each term for the past few terms.

Last week Professor Harry Allen Overstreet, head of the Philosophy Department, addressed the society. The Psychology Society sponsors a series of lectures each week by men prominent in the field of psychology. Dr. Overstreet is the author of a popular work on psychology, Influencing Human Behavior.

Life Begins With The Basketball Team

By Morton Paul

(This is an account of the waking and nocturnal activities of the daffy basketballers who inhabit rooms in the Stadium tower.—ed. note).

Morning

"Eight o'clock—time to get up."

Bobby Sand, the human alarm clock, rubs about in his pajamas banging on doors and shouting to wake his teammates who fan their mattresses until the last possible moment.

"Ace" Goldstein and Bernie Fliegel, the fresh-air fiends of the first floor, rub the icicles out of their eyelids... the lack of any sort of time piece but Sand makes the boys worry about being late for their early classes... "What if Bobby should oversleep?" is their constant query... "Jake the Somnambulist" Singer walks around all night for fear of missing his nine o'clock lecture... Jerry Sobolof, the last to go to bed and the last to get up... Goldstein socking "Red" Cohen on the chin while doing setting up exercises... and the resulting scrap being broke up by Iz Katz who empties a cup of icy water over the nude bodies of both contestants... Singer being baffled in all his attempts to make a part in his hair until "Big Brother" Bernie the Fliegel comes to his rescue... Fliegel does everything around the place... he holds all the money and settles all the arguments... one word from him invariably brings forth an "O.K. Bern"... racketeers Cohen and Katz going down to the Liberty Restaurant for their breakfast (in crying need of investigation—Cohen and Katz's three meals a day instead of the prescribed two)...

Evening

Fliegel and Goldstein, as soon as they hit the stadium, are out of their clothes and into their pajamas... Bernie's wearing of a lumbar-jacket over his pajamas and "Ace" pajama-clad, seated at a table with a Stetson on may be added to your list of incongruities... as darkness falls Broadway and "Lily" Lou Daniels come into their own... Daniels is undoubtedly the best athlete entertainer that ever coined a pun... he sings, he means, he dances, he trucks and he tells jokes with a vengeance... "What's your girl friend's name?" "Cafeteria; you serve yourself..."—sample Daniels joke...

Every Monday night Daniels, Katz, and Dave Siperstein truck down to Harlem to put their "O.K." on the Apollo sepien revue... the middle room in which the boys usually gather is the nearest thing to a madhouse you ever saw... Fliegel and Manny Jarmulnick are "Westchester" in the center... off to a side is Daniels on bended knee, as with tears streaming down his face he croons a "mother" song to the four walls... Iz Katz, who loves to handle water, is leaning out of the window with a water pitcher, which he regularly tips over on some unsuspecting Evening Session student... "I absolutely show no discrimination—male or female, they're all alike to me" Katz said in a statement to the press...

In another corner of the room, Bobby Sand is seated at a table writing an English essay. Occasionally he looks up to sneer at the merry-makers... Goldstein is in bed with his hat on and reading a paper. It's a derogatory write-up of City after the St. Joseph game and every now and then "Ace" mutters "Why, the nerve of the guy"... Jerry Sobolof, the house doctor, is leaning over the wash-bowl, his face all lathered up and taking a shave... "Red" Cohen is trucking up and down the room as Daniels breaks into a hot number...

As our pride and joys prepare to go to bed the scene closes upon "Big Brother" Bernie distributing crackers with Mrs. Fliegel's best jam smeared on them.

Lavender Five Meets Strong Marshall Team In Fifth Start of Season at the Hippodrome

COLLEGE HOOPSTERS FACE TALL RIVALS

Beavers engaged in their three most crucial tests of the campaign. Marshall, Geneva and St. Johns will be faced before school's in—and thus the light of the new year will serve to indicate precisely where the College stands in the intercollegiate basketball situation.

West Virginians Tall

Marshall may provide just the opposition against which a new drive for metropolitan court prestige can be launched. The West Virginians are big—the first eight are over six feet—and aggressive; and are in town to redeem the "big-fellows" in basketball, whom the Beavers humiliated by their crushing victory over the altitudinous Providence five. In fact, Marshall is mammoth, all eight having played football for the school.

6:2 Forwards

The W. Va. outfit is led by a rugged pair of 6:2, 190-lb. forwards: Bills, Smith and Vest. They were pitted against LIU last night in a tune-up for their Hippodrome engagement.

Opposition Tough

Although Geneva and St. Johns are on the opposite extremes of the physical scale, the College will find them opposition of equally tough calibre. The Redmen are one of the outstanding quintets in the metropolitan area and one of the tallest. The court leg-dominance of the Pennsylvanians is all too familiar to College fans. If memory serves, their victory over the Beavers last season was the second consecutive defeat inflicted on the Hol-men.

Holman Reconstructing

With Holman applying himself strictly to the task of reconstruction, the boys cannot but revert to their original form. All they want now is a present of their share of the good breaks from Santa. It's been two years in the coming.

MILT SPAHN TO ADD TO FAMILY'S GLORY ON JAYVEE QUINTET

If you should chance to hear any rumors of fratricide on the campus, it will probably mean that Milty Spahn has missed a hanger, or committed some such heinous court blunder. Milty, for the benefit of the nonquintetic gentry, is one of the less active members of the College jayvees, which jayvees are coached by brother Moe.

Attended Evening Session

The younger Spahn is officially in his first semester at the College, but attended the Evening Session for a year before transferring to the day. He is a personable young man who prefers talking about "wimmen" to a discussion of the relative merits of the zone defense. However, in a more confidential moment, he did reveal that he played for Bryant High School, and is at present a member of the championship club team at the 92 Street "Y."

Hasn't Seen Much Action

So far this season, Milty hasn't seen much action, but is coming along nicely in practice. He got his first share of the family court heritage by watching Moe go through his paces with the Lavender seasons back, but as yet his resemblance to the latter is restricted to facial features. However, with a couple of more years of experience, Milty may be transformed into another Moe.

Shepard '39 I to Meet Team O In Basketball Tourney Finals

The intramural basketball tournament reaches its climax at noon today when Team O plays Shepard '39 I to decide the championship. Although the House Plan team is confident of another victory after its semi-final win against last semester's champs, Team A, general opinion has it that Shepard will have to be a much improved quintet in order to defeat Team O.

The O-Boys, who drew a semi-final round bye have been defeated only once in the past two seasons, the loss coming at the hands of Team A in the spring championship contest. A one-handed try by Hal Wolquitt, A captain, in the last two seconds of play did the trick.

Shepard's first five will consist of Jerry Schlieter, team captain, Sam Jacobs, Sid Friedman, Harry Falik, and Chick Stoller. Led by Everett Kasselov, Manny Tabachnick, Abe Schwartz, Sam Entelis, and Hal Goldenberg will start for Team O with Walt Schimenty, varsity eleven co-captain as first reserve. Irv Greece, football manager-elect, and manager of the "Greece Balls" will be on hand for the O-Boys to holler moider at "Red" Cohen and Eddie Weiss, who will referee the game.

Judging from past performances Shepard must check Manny Tabachnick to win. He has consistently proven the man to be watched whenever the O team has taken the floor. Although a member of the tournament's best team-play outfit, Tabachnick has been outstanding on both offense and defense.

Sam Jacobs and Chick Stoller who each scored twelve points against the A-men should prove the House squad's main threats. Jacobs is particularly adept in the acrobatic type of play which featured Shepard's victory last week.

F and M Conquers Beaver Grapplers

They were still talking yesterday about the strength the College wrestlers showed in their first meet against Franklin and Marshall, even though they lost 18½ to 9½. Even though the Beavers won only two matches, the potentialities they flashed more than overshadowed the defeat.

Bobby Hirschtritt, in his first contest as a regular, garnered 3 of the St. Nick's hard earned points when he won a time advantage over his 118 pound opponent "Raze" Rentz in an extra period bout. It was brawn against brawn, with Hirschtritt holding his own on the fancy stuff.

In the unlimited class, Stan Graze sprang a surprise when he pinned Carl Roeder, F. & M. strongman. Roeder appeared the stronger, but the flashier Graze turned him over with an arm lock and pinned him with a body press in 2:38 of the first period. With the five point advantage safely tucked away, Graze held his man scoreless

MERMEN TO REMAIN IDLE UNTIL MEETING WITH JASPER TEAM

The College swimming team, postponing its activity until February 5 when it meets Manhattan, has shown enough in its first two meets of the season to make its prospects look bright for the remaining five of its dual-meet encounters.

Although lacking the individual brilliance of a George Sheinberg or a Lester Kaplan, the Beaver natators are nevertheless a well balanced outfit. However, the most promising man seems to be Larry Taylor, who has come from nowhere to capture the breast-stroke event in both the Fordham and St. Francis meets.

Another promising man is Walt Kasper, also resurrected from retirement, who is rounding into diving form very quickly and has developed into the fastest dash man on the squad. The brunt of long-distance swimming will be shouldered by Captain Gori Bruno and Harry Sober, a converted breast-stroker.

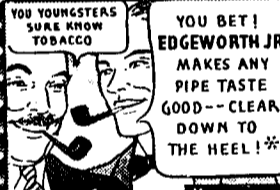

TICKETS TO BE SOLD BY AA NEXT WEEK

phrase," McDonald declared, "saying 'I find that a true picture. It takes a man of letters to see it, but you notice in the colored people a different walk and laugh. They just seem to be so happy-go-lucky, a-singin' and laughin', just a-driftin' along in the hands of fate, 'loud-mouthed laughers in the hands of fate,' not caring where they're going.' When I differed and sought to show that these qualities were not intrinsic to the Negro, as the dean charged, he laughed and ended by saying that this seeming indifference on the part of the Negroes still seemed 'intrinsic' to him."

The other poem, which described the South as "syphilitic, with blood on its mouth, searching in the dead fire's ashes for a Negro's bones," was not on the dean's desk, McDonald declared.

Protests Dean's Action

"Three things stand out saliently in the little scene in the dean's office," McDonald said. "First, the dean's subterfuge in asking in chapel for one poem because he disagreed with its description of the South, then his circulating quite a different poem. Second, his jarring use of the term 'nigger' in reference to Negroes. This might have been inadvertent, but even such inadvertencies indicate a general use of the term within intimate circles. Third, his gratuitous discourse upon the Negro as being intrinsically a 'loud mouthed laughers in the hands of fate,' utterly oblivious of what is happening around him in the world. Now, since the Dean was perfectly gentlemanly with me personally, even condescending to shake hands with me twice, I think his remarks are directed against the Negro people as a whole.

"A second conference with the dean failed to elicit any satisfactory statement from him. For, now that I have told the matter to my friends in the Douglass Society, they insist upon nothing less than a public apology from the dean."

Dean Turner refused to make a statement yesterday when interviewed by a Campus reporter.

EISNER IS 50

"And whether we agree with them in their conclusions or not," Mr. Eisner declared, "we must sympathize with students of today, in view of the fact that they anticipate the actuality of the questions they discuss.

"When we were students, and were told that we were recipients of the city's charity," Mr. Eisner revealed, "we accepted that as essentially true. Today I know that students aren't the beneficiaries of charity; the city is the ultimate beneficiary of the higher education it offers."

Burnham Writes on Negro Universities Answering Hughes' Challenge to Youth

By Louis E. Burnham

(The following is an article signalling the Southern Negro Youth Conference to be held in Richmond, February 13 and 14. Burnham, former vice-president of the Student Council has for months been active in organizing the Congress. It was his work here, he informs us, that prevented his attending Student Council meetings, thereby forcing him to remain ineligible to hold office.—Editor's Note.)

In the August 1934 issue of Crisis, organ of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Langston Hughes contributed an article, "Towards from our Colleges." Mr. Hughes contended that the Negro schools not only regimented the colored youth of a nation for an inferior education, but that they were a breeding ground for Uncle Tomism. He pointed out that trusteeship and the stewardship of the religious hierarchy which subsidized many of the Negro institutions, served to curb every gesture at real intellectual maturity, academic freedom and responsiveness to issues which confront the colored people. According to Mr. Hughes, unless a new spirit was put into the Negro schools by the students, themselves, the Negro had better look to the untutored and the unlettered for leadership and expect nothing but cowards from the colleges.

It is significant that just prior to the publication of Mr. Hughes' article, the first indications of real student protest was seen on the campus at Fisk University in Nashville, Tennessee. Under the leadership of Ishmael Flory the collegeates organized a picket-line in front of a neighborhood jim-crow theatre which was presenting the Fisk Jubilee Singers. Flory and his student cohorts couldn't understand why Negroes should be relegated to the "peanut gallery" in a theatre which featured a colored act—or any theatre at all. They were of the opinion that the administration at Fisk, which was a recognized cultural center among the Negro people in America, should also recognize the incongruity and injustice of the situation. But the eyes of the "progressive" administration were blinded to such "trivialities." Nor could the board of trustees see the students' point. Composed as it was of members of the dominant white group, it could afford to guide the destinies and contribute financially to Fisk University; however, striking out boldly against segregation, jim-crowism and oppression would be rubbing the racial fur too much in the wrong direction. The board typified that class of whites, who, in their relations to the Negro people, consistently give with the right and take with the left. And the left is much stronger than the right. It strikes at the very vitals of the colored people.

Ishmael Flory was expelled from Fisk. He returned to his home in Berkeley, California and went to work in the trade unions, organizing young workers. The administrative axe also fell on the necks of Lyonel Florant, a fellow student, and E. Franklin Frazier, a member of the Sociology Department. Florant and Frazier migrated to Howard University to continue their studies and teaching respectively.

Since the incident at Fisk, the Negro campus has been the scene of many similar occurrences. Just a month ago, the entire student body at Howard University went out on a one-day strike for better conditions for the football team. This strike was followed by similar demonstrations of student sentiment in some 11 or 12 schools throughout the nation. And so we see that Mr. Hughes' challenge is being answered, that a new spirit is being injected into the complex of ideas and attitudes which have long been characteristic of the Negro campus.

It is important to note, moreover, that this student sentiment is not being left to express itself in sporadic, occasional outbursts. It is finding articulation through progressive organizational channels. In recent months, the Junior Section of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People has organized some 16 Councils on Negro campuses. It
