Holmen to Face Ohio U. In Second Round Saturday

By Arthur I. Susswein

Aggressive Al Winograd, hitting the hoop for eighteen points, paced City College's court quintet to a 64-35 victory over the University of Virginia last night at fan-jammed Madison Square Garden Routing the Cavaliers in a first round contest of the annual national intercollegiate invitation tourney, the Beavers earned the right to meet Ohio University, surprise 55-40 conquerors of Duquesne, in the semi-finals Saturday night.

Bill Holzman, Lavender playmaker, turned in another one of his sensational playmaking and defensive performances, but was miserably off his shooting, missing fifteen shots before he connected for his first field goal with six minutes of the third quarter gone. When it comes to picking an individual hero, however, Winograd must be given the nod for his latently-developed scoring ability and his scrappy performance on the defensive.

Probably setting some new kind of record, Nat Holman used sixteen Lavender players, all but two of whom figured in the scoring. Claude Phillips, whose scoring ability slumped markedly in the last few weeks of the regular season, enjoyed a partial revival last night to score nine points and take second honors among the City men.

The defensive work of Julie Gerson, who did a nice job on Herman while the Virginian was in—holding him to ten points and scoring six himself—and Sonny Hertzberg also definitely contributed to the Beaver victory.

The forty-one point second half was all City's, Virginia's occasional scoring serving only to

Dram Soc May Lose Faculty Advisor

Professor Gustav A. Schulz (Public Speaking Dept.) yesterday declared that he would not remain as faculty advisor to the Dramatic Society. It was believed that he did not regard Dramsoc's projected satire of the Rapp-Coudert Committee as fit material for the forthcoming musical show.

Without a faculty advisor, Dramsoc would be unable to produce any show. Dean Morton Gottschall will meet with Prof. Schulz this morning in an attempt to straighten the matter out.

"I will not be connected in any way with a musical production for this spring," Professor Schulz said.

An Editorial

Last night Morris U. Schappes, a tutor in this College, was held in the Tombs, an indicted criminal, charged with perjury on four counts.

Today, as another day breaks, we, students at this institution of free higher education, have come to the sudden and shocking realization of the manner in which the attack on City College, conducted for these many months, has finally come to a head.

Last night Morris U. Schappes was in prison. On another bitter night, soon, other members of the staff of this college may be with him—men we regarded as fit and competent to teach us, to lead us in spirit and mind. And soon enough, you and I and all others who believe that men have a right to think what they feel and believe what they regard as the truth, may follow Morris U. Schappes into prison.

These are not normal times; the Grand Jury showed us that yesterday. But let us remember—Mr. Schappes was not indicted for perjury. He was indicted for the crime of holding a political opinion of his own, as a private citizen, in opposition to views around him. No longer is the mythical issue of "con-

Rapp to Call Students At Open Hearing Next Week

A number of the students who have previously testified at closed sessions of the Rapp-Coudert Committee and whose identities are unknown, will appear before an open hearing of the Committee next week, it was announced yesterday.

Also beginning next week, members of the College staff accused of being Communists, will be given an opportunity to testify at public hearings, Philip Haberman, assistant counsel to the Committee, announced.

Last Friday acting-president Harry N. Wright, testifying before the Committee declared that "if you want to rid the College of the disease of Communism, the thing to do is to build up the health of the College. We must eliminate conditions like the unsanitary lunchroom, the crowded library, the lack of social facilities."

Stressing the opposition of the students to totalitarianism, to abrogation of free speech and academic freedom Dean Morton Gottschall, who followed Dr. Wright on the stand, stated that "the sympathy of the students is not with political activities but with civil liberties and immediate economic problems."

Dr. Philip S. Foner (History Dept.), on Friday attempted to present several suitcases of evidence before the inquiry. He was prevented from testifying and was refused admittance to the hearings.

On Thursday, some 2,000 students and instructors at a Great Hall rally opposing the state probe were temporarily routed by a false fire alarm. The meeting, sponsored by the Student Council, heard Morris U. Schappes, indicted English tutor, and John K. Ackley, Registrar. Student speakers included Simon Alpert, Editor of The Campus; and Elliot Bredhoff, Vice President of the S.C.

On the same day the Faculty Council, by a 40-7 vote, passed a resolution supporting Dr. Wright's position on the legislative investigation.

Arraigned Today On Perjury Charges

By Henry Giniger and Joseph Kesselman

Morris U. Schappes was arrested at five o'clock yesterday afternoon by detectives from the District Attorney's office.

The arrest followed an indictment earlier in the afternoon by the New York County Grand Jury which charged Mr. Schappes with perjury on four counts. He was picked up at the College Teachers' Union Headquarters.

He will be arraigned today in the Court of General Sessions before Judge John J. Sullivan, after spending last night at the Tombs.

The English tutor faces a maximum of twenty years in prison, five years for each count if found guilty at his trial. In addition he can be fined $5,000.

The four counts as stated in the indictment arise out of the testimony Schappes gave before the Rapp-Coudert Committee at public hearings two weeks ago.

First the indictment maintained that Schappes had lied when he said that there were only four members of the City College unit of the Communist Party between the periods February 1938 and December 1939.

"In fact during the periods above mentioned," the Grand Jury charged, "there were more than four members of the City College Unit of the Communist Party, to wit, approximately fifty members of said Unit."

Second, according to the Grand Jury, Schappes lied when he said that prior to February, 1938 Ralph Wardlaw and Jack Friedman were the editors of "Teacher-Worker", a Communist publication, and that after February 1938 he was the sole editor until its termination.

"In fact, during the periods aforementioned," the Jury charged, "approximately ten persons known to the defendant participated in the preparation and publishing of said Teacher-Worker" and, in fact, during the periods aforementioned the de-

BHE Votes To Bar 'Reds'

No teacher who is a member of any Communist, Fascist or Nazi group or society will be retained as a member of the College staff by the Board of Higher Education, it was announced in a resolution passed unanimously at a Board meeting Monday night.

In addition, the resolution stated that no teacher would be kept on the payrolls who individually or as a member of a group, "advocates, advises, teaches or practices subversive doctrines or activities." The resolution was intended to clarify the Board's position in respect to the Rapp-Coudert investigation, chairman Orway Tead said.

The resolution indicated a shift in emphasis from conduct to the beliefs of a teacher as a criteria for judging a man's fitness to teach. By-laws of the Board prescribe that charges can be brought up for "conduct unbecoming a teacher". However, Mr. Charles H. Tuttle declared that the resolution was in accord with specific civil service provisions.

The BHE also went ahead with plans for the trial of Morris U. Schappes, tutor in English at the College who last week was presented with charges of "conduct

Misrepresentation Charged to 'USA'

Charges, accusing a new organization at the College, the Union of Students for Action (USA) of misrepresentation in its publicity, were filed with the Campus yesterday.

Stating that the USA "is concerned with nothing more than a smear campaign against Student Council members with liberal views," Ira Marienhoff '42, president of the George W. Norris Society, charged the organization with forgery in a leaflet which appeared March 11. The leaflet carried without authorization the names of Marienhoff, the Norris Society, Democratic Club, and Students for Democracy, as co-sponsors of the "Patriotism Rally", held last Thursday in Doremus Hall.

duct unbecoming a teacher" presented; the issue is clear to all of us now, finally—Mr. Schappes stands indicted for the crime of being a Communist.

And, on the charges of perjury, indicted on the basis of testimony given by a man like Canning!

This is not an indictment. This is persecution. This is crucifixion.

No, it is not for the Grand Jury to indict Mr. Schappes, and thereby to indict all of us who believe still in the right of free men in a democracy to hold their own opinions. It is for us rather to accuse and to indict.

We students, who stand firmly and united in this age-old struggle for personal freedom, for academic freedom, and for education for all—we accuse the Rapp-Coudert committee, and all those who uphold the committee and the denial of freedom which it represents, of attempting to destroy democracy, and its essence, free speech. We accuse them of attempting to destroy our school by blackening our name and dragging us through the mud without a shred of reliable and open evidence. And we ask everyone to stand together for firm, consistent and united action against the Rapp-Coudert Committee and the fascist-minded groups it represents.

Reviewers Okey 'Claudia' And 'Mr. and Mrs. North'

We went visiting the other day. We went to see a newly married couple, Mr. and Mrs. North.

Several old friends dropped in while we were there—some alive and some dead. Mr. North was a bit disturbed. Mrs. North, however, remained her good natured scatter-brained self, eventually helping the police solve the crime.

Murder is a serious business, but the Nortls take your mind off the seriousness of the matter. They're just two pleasant people with too much closet space for dead bodies to hide in. As a matter of fact, it got to the stage that we felt disappointed each time the closet door was opened and no body dropped out.

If you want to spend a pleasant and soothing afternoon or evening, we recommend you visit our friends "Mr. and Mrs. North."

R. L. S.

Claudia is a beautiful comedy, deft and liting. With a sure hand Rose Franken has mixed the elements of higher comedy, and the result is a play of high class glee and delight.

In these days escapist plays tend to become the vogue. When the world turns crazy people go in for movements which take them back to a better, softer world. Rose Franken has not cared to do so. Soft and gentle and human as they are, her stage people suffer and are hurt and are made stronger thereby.

Dorothy McGuire's Claudia is a wonder; a child-woman with a naive which transcends shrewdness, she lives and is reborn by her suffering. Donald Cook is David, and together they are the stage's most lovable couple. The other actors fit in perfectly with Rose Franken's liting lines.

Wrestlers, Boxers Entered In National Championships

(EDITOR'S NOTE: With all the hullabaloo over the basketball team being in the championship play-offs, both the wrestlers and the boxers have been overlooked. Each team is sending several members to represent the Lehigh University in national tournaments, and this is an article about the boys who are going to box at Penn State and wrestle at Lehigh University against the best competition the country has to offer.)

Thursday afternoon four varsity wrestlers will pile into the car of Coach Joseph Sapora to travel out to Bethlehem, Pennsylvania.

These boys face terrific handicaps in this bid for national ranking. Without exception, the men entering for other colleges—Oklahoma A & M, Indiana, Illinois, — have wrestled three and four years in high school. And they have undergone intensive training, have had grueling schedules, while the Beavers—

Well, it's the same old story. Excepting Jake Twersky, not one of these boys ever wrestled before coming to City. That gives Clarence Shapiro three years of collegiate competition. Marvin Applebaum, Art Goeschel and Twersky, one. Further skimpy funds cut down the team's schedule, allowing them eight matches this year. Even Columbia gets fourteen.

But don't get the idea that the Beavers haven't a chance. Here's how things shape up:

Co-captain Shapiro, who has been wrestling in the 145-pound class, although he never hit higher than 141 himself, is going down to the 128-pound class. Clarry is an experienced, polished grappler, although on the conservative side, the type that wins on points, not pins. But wins.

At 121 pounds, blind Jake Twersky has been baffling everybody but the Beavers who work out with him in practice. This gutty little powerhouse won't be stopped by anybody less than a national champ—and it may be that Jake will have a say there, too. High scorer for the team, this dynamic lightweight is proving what determination and practice will do.

Marv Applebaum is the one man who may not be out at Lehigh. The odds favor his going, however. Marv, at 136 pounds, demonstrated his chief assets to be driving power, and slick grappling when the chips are down. Label this package: Dangerous—May Explode!

Lastly comes Art Goeschel, the lad who grappled last—as heavyweight—all season. This barrel-chested ex-fullback is entered in the 175-pound class, and Coach Sapora is secretly hopeful that Art will place up among the top four. The one big "if" is the big boy's badly strained shoulder muscle.

Hang on, Lehigh—here come the Beavers!

Boxing

When Al Seskin climbs into the ring next week at Penn State College, it will mark the first time that City College has ever been represented in the National Boxing Championship tourney. And that means that the Beaver boxers will be given a national standing next year.

Coach Yustin Sirutis, who took over the team in 1934, is taking three of his boys to the bouts. Seskin, 127-pounder, is one, and the other two are Captain Jack Finger, welterweight, and heavyweight Stanley Mintz. Finger is the only veteran of the trio, the other two being first-year men. All three, however, are undefeated this season.

Although there is little chance of any winning a national crown, for they will be up against men from places like Wisconsin and Louisiana State where boxers are practically raised from the cradle, there is a possibility of one of them breaking through to the upper brackets of competition.

All three are boxers rather than sluggers. Seskin is a fine bobber and weaver, with a long, left jab. The U.S. Coast Guard coach said it was the finest he had seen in an intercollegiate ring, after Seskin had won a bout there.

Mintz is a rare specimen in intercollegiate circles, because he is a heavyweight who can box. Most men who fight in the unlimited class depend upon the strength of their punches. Mintz fights from a crouch, likes to get in close and let go with his terrific left hook.

Captain Finger is a southpaw who fights standing up. Continually on the move, he tries to catch his man off balance, tries to get his man to punch at him and then counter-punches with a hard left. He is a ring general, moves around easily and usually out-maneuvers his opponent.

Tough-luck man on the boxing squad is Lennie Traube, a 145-pounder who fought in the 155-pound class and did a nice job. But that's giving away too much weight in the Nationals.

So Lennie, the rest of his teammates, and City boxing fans will have to watch the papers to see how the Beaver entrants make out.

Mercury

Its assignments like this that make the boys long for the good old days. There was a day, not so long ago when all that was necessary in a Campus review of Mercury was several well chosen epithets, a lightly veiled slur on the ancestry of the Mercury editor, and a strong constitution. Reading Mercury was considered strictly inadvisable.

All that is over now. When we picked up a copy of the latest Mercury and started to read, it was the beginning of the end.

The main difficulty arises from the fact that Mercury has been getting progressively better and better. This is extremely embarrassing to a reporter of the old school who has never heard anything better concerning Mercury than that a garbage man had disdainfully refused to throw a copy of Mercury into his truck, claiming that it rightly fell into the province of the Street Cleaning Department and not the Garbage Collection Service.

No one seems to know the reason for this amazing turn of events. Some conjecture that Mercury has improved because now its morals are purer. Others think that the improvement is due solely to a typographical error. Still others suggest that it is all the result of the constructive criticism which appears from time to time in the Campus. Personally we find the explanation extremely simple. After much investigation we have decided that it is nothing more than an ordinary miracle. Our only hope is that next time the miracle can be stretched to include the front cover. We don't quite catch the inner significance of the current artistic effort. P.S. Sacco just walked in and took back his copy of Merc. We take back all we said. Mercury still STINKS!

Schappes, Robinson Flare-up

What's that rumor spreading around that the gentlemen who set off the fake fire-drill alarm last Thursday in an attempt to break up the Anti-Rapp rally are members of the United Students for Action, a fascist-minded "patriot" group now operating on the campus?

To the Editor:

After a heated discussion, by a vote of 3 to 2, one abstaining, and six men absent, the Governing Board of the Campus went on record as supporting the Student Council viewpoint to request abolishment of the Rapp-Coudert Committee.

I am unalterably opposed to this method of endeavoring to clear our good name. I do not deny that the Committee has done harm to our institution through a limited investigation which seems, as it indeed is, partial to the disclosure of subversive activities in this college. What we are interested in getting before the public is the relatively small per cent of students involved in such activities.

If we clamor for the abolition of the committee people will think there is something wrong here, and will urge the committee along the line of action it has chosen; if, on the other hand we support the committee, but criticize it in a manner which would cause it to alter its procedure, the public will soon become familiar with the great and loyal institution that City College really is.

After Four Years "Tiger" Changes Jeers To Cheers

By Lou Stein

"They booed when he went into the game, but they remained to sing his praises."—That, in brief, is the basketball record of Al "Tiger" Winograd, who completes his varsity career in the Garden tournament this week. The ovation given the Tiger in the last few minutes of the NYU game marked a great personal triumph for him, but more than that, it was the vindication of four years of hard, unrewarded, work.

There is no accounting for the likes and dislikes of crowds, basketball crowds in particular, but in the case of the Tiger it seemed to me that the chorus of Bronx cheers which invariably greeted his entry into a game were both unreasonable and unfounded. He played hard, driving basketball, and made no more mistakes than did the average run of players yet the spectators persisted in making him the goat whenever things went wrong. That the Tiger made his oppressors eat crow is a tribute to his determination and ability, and the cheers which greeted his endeavors last night must have acted like the traditional balm upon the traditional wound.

Al started his City College career with two strikes against him. In the first place, his brother, Sam, who had captained a former Beaver team, had become Jayvee coach and assistant to Nat Holman. Tiger had the tough job of trying to live up to a brilliant family tradition while trying to avoid charges of favoritism. In addition, he was not a "natural" athlete. His all-arms-and-legs physique and an inherent clumsiness proved a great handicap.

But Al had other basketball virtues which were eventually destined to earn a starting berth for him on the College's first tournament team. He was a terrific scrapper with plenty of what is commonly called "guts." I have seen him slam into men almost twice his bulk, and I cannot recall a single occasion when an opponent wrested the ball away from him once he got his hands on it. He had, also, the ability to learn and to follow instructions specifically, which is the chief requisite for any ball-player who wishes to make good under Holman.

For most of his three years the Tiger plugged and fought his heart out. Occasionally he would get a chance to play and then the end balcony boys would go into action. Boos, catcalls, whistles of derision—these were his accompaniment as he ran up and down the court. If, as happened infrequently, he scored a field goal, silence would greet his efforts and the audience would wait until he blundered, and then open up again with bigger and better epithets...

The tables have now, happily enough, turned. Because he kept at his task with fine determination, the Tiger has earned himself the title of "Most Improved Ball-Player of the Year." Against the Violets of NYU he performed in fine fashion, netting thirteen points and holding his man to a measly four. When he left the game with two minutes to play, the fans set up a roar—only this time the unfamiliar sounds of handclapping and cheers greeted his ears instead of the usual razzberries.

Evidently Al likes the change in his auditory diet, for his performance against Virginia last night was as good as his NYU effort. If this keeps up, he'll want to stay in school another three years—for after the planting, one likes to reap the harvest.

Matmen Top NYU Chief Miller Leads In Season's Finale Lacrosse Clinic

The College wrestlers neded their season on Saturday by pushing NYU all over the Commerce Center mats to score an 18-8 victory. Both the first and last bouts of the evening, however, left City rooters glum and inconsolate.

In the 121-pound match, blind Jake Twersky lost his first contest in seven starts. In the last match, Goeschel, heavyweight, had to default because of another wrench to his badly torn shoulder muscle, an injury which may keep him out of the national championships. (See page two for further details.)

Co-captains Bob Levin and Clarence Shapiro, grappling for the last time after three years of competition, put on the "best bouts they ever wrestled as varsity men," according to Coach Sapora.

"Chief" Leon Miller, coach of the college lacrosse team, played host to leading lacrosse figures of the East at a Clinic last Saturday afternoon in the Hygiene Building. The discussion centered mostly on how spectator interest in lacrosse could be aroused by eliminating all dull situations from the game. Two suggestions offered for enlivening the game of lacrosse were that (1) after every goal, as in basketball, the team scored upon be given the ball behind its own goal and play begin immediately. (2) That in the play off, the ball be held in the air on the players' sticks rather than on the ground.

Among those present at the meeting were Morris Touchstone, coach of Army, John H. Paige, secretary-treasurer of the United States Inter-Collegiate Lacrosse Association, and Bill Logan, coach of Princeton.

Mound Staff Strengthens Beaver Nine

(This is the first of a series discussing the possibilities of the baseball team.)

1. Pitching.

Least among the worries of Coach Sam Winograd of the Beaver nine is his pitching staff, but even this comes with a conditional 'if'. Cooped up in the confines of the Tech gym, the team hasn't been able to show what it has, and with snow flurries covering Lewisohn Stadium again it's no telling when the squad will turn outdoors.

As the situation stands, the team boasts nine pitchers, and these can very nicely be broken down into three groups (Veterans, Jayvee, Newcomers), for no better way of classifying them. Among the veterans are Frank Tosa, Bob Blenderman, and Ryburn Ross. Tosa, the only senior on the hurling staff, boasts a terrific fire ball and a tantalizing curve that has stood many a batter on his head in the past. Tosa's control is the question mark.

Blenderman and Ross are working very nicely so far this year. The latter whose forte is his knuckle ball, has gotten over the sore-arm trouble that kept him out of action for a goodly part of last season.

When Coach Winograd speaks of last year's frosh hurlers who are now with the varsity, he does so smilingly for these youngsters will offer the oldsters some very good reasons to worry about the permanence of their positions. They are Tilden High's Phil Gelfand who won four and lost none with the Jayvee and Jerry Reisel of Boys High, the only southpaw on the squad. Reisel finished with three wins against one loss last year. The last of the jayvee trio is Al Golub with a knuckle ball, a sinker, a curve and fair control. Winograd expects these boys to see a lot of action in the spring campaign.

Finally, Hal Aronson, Ralph Donan, and Joe Nathanson, the newcomer, round out the pitching question mark. Aronson, of football fame is among other things a fast ball pitcher and a curve artist. The other two have yet to prove themselves, but until outdoor work begins much the same opinion holds for the rest of the staff.

Track

The track season does not get under way until the last week in April, but even at this early stage of the game, it looks very much as if Beaver Coach Tony Orlando is going to come up with as powerful a cinder squad as has ever represented the Lavender in inter-collegiate competition.

Orlando's pride and joy is the Beaver two-mile relay team, the fastest in College history.

Fencers Bow To Seton Hall

Coach James Montague's Beaver fencers suffered their first defeat of the season when they lost to Seton Hall, 17-10, last Saturday afternoon at South Orange, New Jersey.

In a brilliant exhibition of blade wielding, Co-Captain Herb Spector trounced the Eastern Intercollegiate Saber Champion and former Olympic saber man, Dean Cetrullo, 5-4.

Tonight, the Lavender fencers wind up their current campaign against NYU on the Washington Square gym strips.

Win 64-35 As Winograd Scores 18

(Continued from Page One) sandwich several Beaver runs. The Southerners made more than two consecutive points at only one time in the second half and watched City's reserves tally five field goals after the former had scored their final points of the contest.

Leading by only four points as the second half opened, City began to move and went out to a 32-21 lead with Al Goldstein, Harvey Lozman, and Winograd scoring, before Bill Harman, lanky high-scorer for Virginia during the past season, went out on his fourth personal foul. Harman's departure gave another Orange-and-Black star, Dick Wiltshire, an opportunity to shine—and he did, scoring thirteen points to be high gun for Virginia in its unsuccessful bid.

After Phillips' pretty set shot put City out in front, 36-23, Wiltshire came through with a brace of lay-ups to give the Virginians their only four-point run of the second half, but from that point on the Holmen really applied the heat and increased their advantage from nine points to twenty-nine at the final whistle.

Sporting a fourteen-point advantage with six minutes to play, the Beaver combination of Winograd, Phillips, Goldstein, Hertzberg, and Harry Fishman put on an abbreviated exhibition of the type of basketball-moving for which Holman's teams are noted, drawing the applause of the many City fans.

In the first half, with both teams playing below par, Virginia took a 5-2 advantage at the four minute mark on five successive points by Harman. A foul by Holzman and field goals by Phillips and Gerson put the Beavers out in front, 7-5, only to have Virginia take the lead again at 9-7 on two straight field goals.

Board Votes to Fire "Communist" Teachers unbecoming a teacher" by the Board's special committee investigating various teachers, and suspended (without pay) by acting president Harry N. Wright, pending trial.

A special trial committee was set up consisting of Dr. Joseph J. Klein, Miss Mary MacGuire, and Dr. Carmyn Lombardo. However, just what this committee will do in the face of Schappes' indictment by the Grand Jury was problematical. Members of the Committee could not be reached for comment late last night.

To assist the special committee whose task it is to present charges to the Board against various teachers named in the Rapp-Coudert testimony, an advisory group of prominent educators has been set up, it was announced by Mr. Tead. They are Dr. William Allen Nielsen, former president of Smith College, Dr. Henry Wriston, president of Brown University and Dr. Herbert Schneider, professor of philosophy at Columbia University.

defendant was at no time the editor . . . and Ralph Wardlaw and Jack Friedman were never the editors . . ."

Third, it was charged that Schappes had lied when he said that he knew no Communist Party member, other than himself, who was a member of either the Teachers' Union or the College Teachers' Union, "while said defendant was a member of the Communist Party."

" . . . There were approximately fifty other Communist members of the City College Unit," the indictment said, "who were members of the Teachers' Union and of the College Teachers' Union, while said defendant was a member of the Communist Party."

The last count declared that Schappes has testified falsely

Boost Wright As President

A petition is being circulated among the faculty, urging the endorsement of Dr. Harry N. Wright for the position of President of the College, the Campus learned yesterday.

The petition is being sponsored by Professor Bird Stair (English Dept.). More than 100 signatures have already been gathered.

Since the definite refusal of the presidency by Carl Wittke of Oberlin College and Professor Nelson P. Mead (History) former Acting-President, no outstanding candidate has appeared.

when he said there was no Communist Party faction in the two unions.

The Committee for the Defense of Public Education of the teachers' unions late last night condemned the action of District Attorney Dewey and the Grand Jury but failed to indicate any plans for Schappes' release from jail, or for fighting the indictment.

NEWS
Read In fact

"In Fact not only gives news that is suppressed, but it points out a worse crime of the commercial press: the bias, distortion, coloration, in news and headlines—the unfair handling of news that makes unfair public opinion. It publishes the real inside news, the kind newspapers frequently get but dare not print."
