CCNY ATTACKED!

Hunter Makes Desperate Surprise Move

Waylaid Men Tell of Hunter Atrocity Acts

Word reached Beaver headquarters this morning of atrocities committed by the invading Hunterites in overrunning the Hygiene Building. The attack, timed by the invaders to take place between periods, caught many of the inhabitants with their pants down. Whole groups were waylaid in the locker room and those fortunate enough to escape told of ghastly tales.

One refugee described how they had violated not only his library, but his constitution as well. Rumors that the Hunterites eat their prisoners are no doubt exaggerated, although it is possible that they occasionally nibble.

Another fugitive told how he had been getting a rubdown when the attack came. The ordeal that he was forced to undergo did not do his charley horse any good. He described the invaders as being "lumpy, dumpy and bumpy." He expressed relief at being able to get out of such a tight spot. He escaped when one of the Hunterites dropped the chain tied around his neck.

As if treachery were not enough the Hunterites were also using germ warfare to overcome resistance. A number of our soldiers have already been stricken by hydrophobia.

Feldheld Requests Unity in Crisis

Dave Feldheld, President of the Student Council, today called for "unity in the fight against Hunterism." He stated that although many of us have performed valiant action against the "amorous Amazons" we should not relax until they relinquish their hold on our possessions. "We are face to face with the enemy," he said, "and it is not a pretty sight."

Feldheld's address was brief but stirring and was given before his usual capacity audience in the second telephone booth on the main floor.

He left immediately afterward for the front and expressed the belief that we would ultimately come out on top.

Late Bulletins

An article in the Hunter Echo warned of the possibility of a long war. "Production will win this war," said the Echo. "They may have the raw materials but we have the factories."

Bernie Goltz, 300 pound student leader, was reported captured by the enemy in the first attack. Army officials consider this a blow to the war effort, pointing out that Goltz could supply the Hunterites with enough food for three weeks.

The Emergency Committee of the Student Council ordered all females interned for the duration. Tests will be given today for borderline cases. The Committee also warned against appeasers in our midst who thought they could continue "business as usual" with Hunter.

It was announced today that the Student Council intended to freeze lunchroom prices for the duration. At the same time it was pointed out that if prices went any higher they'd freeze by themselves.

House Plan leaders who have had the most contact with Hunterites during the past few years declare that there is still a high percentage of "conscientious objectors" among them. This is not taken lightly in official circles since it comes from men who were in a position to know.

Amsterdam Avenue Scene Of Enemy's First Contact

The Hunter threat to City College became a grim reality yesterday as the Park Avenue hordes stormed the College campus. The attempted Blitz on the stronghold of male supremacy was termed by City leaders as "a desperate attempt to conquer the last great bulwark against female domination."

The initial attack was not slowed until the invaders had established a line across Amsterdam Avenue. As usual the Hunterites seized the initiative and had a decided advantage when the two student bodies made contact. However, the City forces repulsed several attempts at encirclement and continued enemy pressure in several vital sectors served only to stiffen the resistance of the defenders.

At one point along the line, the Hunterites were caught from behind in a counter-attack, but managed to fight a successful rear-guard action. The retreating forces in this area abandoned vast quantities of supplies including powder, camouflage paint and a number of slightly dented sweaters. A whole consignment of girdles was also captured. This was considered an important military victory, since strategists attribute Napoleon's defeat at Waterloo to his unprotected rear.

The Hunterites used poison gas in the attempt to subdue the defenders, but to City troops, after years of training in their lunchroom, the fumes were ineffective.

Meanwhile the CCNY High Command expressed confidence in our Army while pointing out that Hunter strategy was obsolete since they were taking up positions well known to our men. Moreover, it was said that "they cannot maintain the offensive when their troops are spread out as they are." The front line commander outlined the next moves of the defending forces.

"Our strategy will be repeated thrusts and withdrawals," he said, emphasizing that this was primarily a war of movement. He added that City men were well prepared for this type of warfare, having held constant maneuvers at the House Plan and other training centers.

At the same time both military and civil leaders were cautioning against underestimating the foe. Hunterites have a reputation for wearing down resistance, and in addition are seasoned veterans when fighting with their backs to the wall after being virtually surrounded.

The attack was treacherous and vicious, coming at a time when Hunter had sent two representatives to discuss the possibilities of cooperation. City delegates had made it clear that all we wanted was peace although important differences existed. The Hunter delegates claimed that these differences should be brought out into the open and examined. All during negotiations the invasion blow was being readied.

The official organ of the Hunter government attempted to justify the dastardly attack. They charged City College with: 1. Refusal to make permanent treaties.

First War Hero Smelled Enemy

The College's first wartime hero is Private Maximilian Goldfarb, whose warning of the approach of enemy formations went unheeded. Goldfarb was practicing on the odor-detectors when he first got wind of the enemy brigades marching up Amsterdam Avenue.

"You don't even have to use the detector," Goldfarb said when interviewed in his oxygen tank. "I told the commanding officer immediately but he said I had probably pointed the detector at the Mercury office." Goldfarb then told how he insisted that it was even stronger than the Mercury office, and the officer laughed in amazement.

Private Goldfarb's bust (a Bryn Mawr student) will be placed in the Hall of Fame.

АПРЕЛЬСКАЯ ШУТКА

The treacherous attack on our College has earned us the sympathy of the entire world. The following message from the Kremlin expresses the sentiment of a deluge of encouragement.

В величайшей трагедии, переживаемой сейчас человечеством, история, словно режиссер с «социальным заказом», сопоставила две общественные системы: «героической красной армии» и дифирамбами «несравненному мужеству советского народа».

Было бы политически весьма опасным заблуждением толковать эту словесность, как отражение серьезного перелома в отношении к Советской России. Стаффорд Криппс, бывший английский посол в СССР, пытаясь мобилизовать общественное мнение Великобритании для всемерной поддержки Союза, вынужден был констатировать, что руководящие круги английской буржуазии с весьма смешанным чувством сле-

Неудовлетворенный и обеспокоенный тем, как ведет Америка войну, Ингерсолл предлагает Соединенным Штатам учиться у Советской России. И в своем анализе факторов, обусловивших исключительную стойкость и силу сопротивления Союза, этот буржуазный журналист приходит к заключению, что их нужно искать в особенностях советского социального строя.

Ингерсолл не ограничивается столь распространяемым объяснением, что советскими массами движет патриотизм, справедливо указывая, что людей, любивших свою родину, было не мало и в других странах, оказавшихся все же неспособными сопротивляться нацизму. Вопрос в том, на чем базируется советский патриотизм, давший столь поразительные результаты. Ответ он находит в общественном характере строя, в котором личные интересы сливаются с интересами всей страны. В Советской России индивидуум движет «вера в свою страну и в ее будущее». В этой стране каждый чувствует себя активным строителем нового мира и участником создаваемого общественного богатства. «Молодые люди управляют Россией. Еще невероятно бедные на западный масштаб, они сумели объединить в борьбе против фашизма капиталистические страны с страной социалистического строительства».

И чем ярче разгорается мировой пожар, чем больше сотрясается под ударами оси военная мощь Англии и Соединенных Штатов, тем с большим изумлением взирает капиталистический мир на «советское чудо», тем больше пестрят страницы буржуазных газет восхваления за успехами советских войск, и что боязнь «большевизации» Европы фактически тормозит возможную помощь Советской России. Как ни пытался доказывать Криппс, что Сталин «серьез и надолго» стоит на принципе «социализма в одной стране», и что ни один большевистский «ворон» не перелетит советской границы, — это мало убеждает людей с обостренным классовым чутьем. Подобные же настроения широко распространены и среди американской буржуазии. На конференции Рузвельта с представителями печати 17-го февраля говорилось о том, что в С.

They Stoop to Conquer:

Lowdown on the Hunter High Command

Gen. M. M. Moskowitz

Chief of Staff of Hunter's Army is M. M. Moskowitz. Moskowitz is no ordinary arm-chair general, having seen action in various fields. Formerly a cavalry officer, it is said that when she rides it is difficult to distinguish between horse and rider. Moskowitz has done her job well considering the trouble involved in getting a Hunter Army into any sort of shape.

Lt. Gen. H. MacGoldberg

Lieut. General Hortense MacGoldberg rose from the ranks to command Hunter's first gorilla warfare brigade. MacGoldberg prefers maneuverability in her forces, claiming that experience has proved that even the most heavily armored zones can be by-passed or penetrated.

Col. Von Leish

Colonel Von Leish is the liaison officer between Hunter and its Axis partners in Central Park. Von Leish was recently muzzled by the proper authorities when she voiced the opinion that, in attacking City, Hunter may have bitten off more than it can chew. According to the last report from Hunter headquarters, she seemed to be barking up the wrong tree.

Capt. M. T. Blanck

Captain M. T. Blanck is the camouflage expert and Staff cartographer. It is rumored that she may soon be replaced for failure to do anything with the maps of her superiors.

Past Actions Began Trouble

There was a time when relations between City and Hunter were more than cordial. It was at the House Plan that friction first developed. It seems that a City Man was severely injured when he insisted upon occupying the upper berth of a studio couch. Ever since then relations between the two colleges have gone from bad to worse as did most Hunter girls.

In spite of incidents of this type a good deal of friendly feeling was still present. Hunterites were invited to participate in Friday afternoon dances, parties, and various other activities. But give a Hunter girl a finger and she demand a hand, so under the cloak of co-education, she demands a share in City College. Not satisfied with sharing our health, they wanted to share our wealth too.

The opening of a new building near Central Park proved Hunter's imperialist ambitions. However, City men had long since noticed that Hunter girls expand rapidly.

Historians concur in the opinion that the decree prohibiting Hunter girls from using the Park Avenue entrance to their building, was a factor in increasing their bitterness towards mankind. It seems that Park Avenue is where the society matrons parade their dogs and evidently they didn't want competition. Finally someone protested to the ASPCA, although it is not known on whose behalf. However, it is interesting to note that Hunter was soon granted the use of Park Avenue. Rumor has it that they spitefully take turns walking one another.

Downtown Branch Sends Sympathy

The Student Council announces that it has received a telegram from sympathizers at the 23 St. Commerce Center, congratulating us on a "gallant stand."

The message expressed the hope that if the world cannot have free women, it should at least have free men.

"We pray that you will not be deprived of your freedom as we have been," the telegram read.

Infiltration of women in the Downtown Branch began in 1936 until swarms of sweaters overran the building. It is said that the girls there are all wool and a yard wide.

Westbrook Wegler Says: "Feh Enough"

Now that the Administration has finally gotten us into war it will probably go the whole hog and let every wild-haired, beard-d Bolshevik from here to Siberia run the whole shebang. These Moscow mouthpieces have all ready joined with the crooked, racketeering, money-grabbing, union bosses in trying to force a 40 hour week on the Tech school. Leave it to the CIO which stands for Crooks In Office and the AFL (All Fuller Louses) to interfere with the constitutional right of every Tech man to work himself to a patriotic death.

It's too late to say that the Administration brought on the attack by every possible insidious intrigue, subtle subterfuge, and crooked conspiracy, but we have a right to know who's running the war effort. The government is infested with assorted Communists, trade unionists, anarchists, and Alcatraz alumni. One of our representatives goes so far as to boast that even his grandfather fought for the Union. The fantastic promises that the unions hand out to the Tech School is proof enough that they are trying to hoodwink them into their racketeering clutches. A list of their "minimum demands" includes:

1. At least 3 1/2 minutes for lunch every day.
2. A 40 hour week with credit and a half for overtime.
3. A glimpse of the sun once every two weeks.

Obviously such Communist principles would sabotage the whole program. But do they care? No! They want every penny, every nickel they can, in legalized graft, to squeeze out of the Tech School. If Tech men had blood they'd want that too. If we're going to win this war we've got to get rid of every last lousy, crooked, damn racketeering Moscow modeled moron & @!@Z.X. Ed. note—Due to a bursted blood vessel Mr. Wegler could not complete today's column.

Major Joy Fieling Elliot Says:

"Hunterites Always Offensive"

Sweeping out of the wilds of Central Park with a ferocity unparalleled in history, the barbarous Hunterites found us unprepared as usual. The savagery and suddenness of the attack should have been expected, since it was obvious from the start that the Hunterites were offensive. However, whatever our past experiences with them has been, it is no use crying over spilled milk. We have a definite threat to meet and we must prove that, when we become aroused, victory is in our grasp. The primary tactics of our troops in the early stages of the struggle was a strategic retreat and a refusal to risk a decisive engagement. It is advisable to withdraw and conserve strength even if the enemy keeps coming.

It is unfortunate that we have tended to underestimate the strength of the Hunter Army. Hunterites have been preparing for such a full scale attack for years. They have trained their soldiers to be resourceful and highly individualized, realizing that some day they would have to resort to force to gain their ends.

Hunter Army is their excellent system of communication. Modern radio technique still lags behind feminine methods. An important departure from usual military tactics is seen in the enemy's eagerness to take prisoners. It is said that all prisoners are pressed for information, but so far the Hunterites have received only tidbits.

The Hunter Army consists of officers, for the most part, very little being private among them. It is also interesting to note that the Hunterites are heavily armored, sacrificing mobility for greater protection.

CONY military leaders have adopted a very cautious plan of defense. They know that if we extend our front lines we will be playing into the hands of the enemy. They point out that this war must not end in a stalemate since any kind of a mate would be a victory for the Hunterites.

College Five Captured

Hunter to Play Basketball with Captured Beavers

According to reports from escaped prisoners, the Hunterites have organized a basketball team called the Dribblers. A game has been scheduled with the Beavers and is currently being advertised as the Droolers vs. Dribblers. Proceeds of the game will go to the Hunter Emergency Fund. This fund was established for the benefit of the Hunter blind dates. The Hunterites are said to have a fairly good defense with the players managing to stick close to their men.

This unusual photo was smuggled out of the occupied Hygiene Building. Team was captured when the Hunterites got the jump on them.

See New Low In Vital School Athletic Support

It has been officially announced that the Basketball team was captured in yesterday's attack on the Hygiene Building. Outnumbered and surrounded, the team didn't even have anybody to call the personal fouls. The basketballers enjoyed the novelty of not being penalized for holding.

The team manager who escaped by submerging himself in a water pail, said that the squad had adopted a policy of passive resistance after their zone defense failed. When the attackers struck it was first thought that the LIU team had come back with additional help. On second thought it was realized that they'd had more than enough.

The loss of the entire basketball squad must be considered as a serious blow

Weakness of Tech Students Will Affect War's Outcome

City College is faced with a major crisis, the outcome of which will depend a great deal on his physical powers of strength and endurance. But the average City soldier is soft. He is run down; he is nervous. There is no more excuse for this type of unpreparedness than there is for our military laxness.

The average Tech man has only about nine hours of class work and about three or four hours of homework each day. This leaves at least two hours of sleep a night, yet he is always fatigued and barely able to lift a T-square. In fact, he is getting so run down that he resembles the T-square more and more.

The Science student presents a similar problem. He is given a clean, airy building to work in, fed excellent food in the lunchroom, and still is in poor condition.

The situation is the same in the rest of the College, and it is a sad commentary on the College. No wonder nobody has any respect for our student body. Maybe Hunter girls have an excuse for being soft; maybe they like to be run down, but we can't afford it.

'Toots' Peyser Queried On Aid She Gave Enemy

An active fifth column in City College was feared to have helped yesterday's invaders. A gigantic spy ring headed by Florence Peyser, sophisticated glamour girl of the Tech School, gathered material on the vulnerability of the College.

"Toots" Peyser has been notorious on the campus because of her unusual beauty. She has often been seen in the company of various City leaders after plying them with Pepsi-Colas. It is rumored that she has been uncovered several times before, but just what was exposed is not known.

It is charged that she was an integral part of the underground at City but "Toots" denies ever having been in the tunnels. Several members of Army intelligence have been assigned to work on "Toots" background.

According to reports from the locker room where City students dress and women are verbally undressed, "Toots" will bare looking into. The existence of a fifth column menaces the private lives of every City man.

"Toots" was reported in solitary confinement after having been granted time to study for her third degree.

Authorities are collecting further evidence of her intrigue and the story is gradually coming to light. Miss Peyser, known in the underground as "Toots," used her seductive charm to lure high people to low places.

"Toots" will soon be queried by the authorities on just how much she was able to learn from the Tech School.

Trotskyite Says Attack Was Provoked

Serge Sackowitz, leading Trotskyite, declared today that we were engaged in an "imperialist" war. He said that our constant meddling with Hunterites' "spheres of influence" provoked the attack.

"It is a well known fact that we exploited their natural resources under the guise of helping them to develop," Sackowitz blamed the war on the "upper classes" at both City and Hunter and refused to support the war effort. The sentiment was voiced on the campus that Sackowitz be allowed to join Trotsky.

What we are fighting for: "The Rights of Man"; "Not Piece But A Sword"; "A Farewell To Arms"; "Inside Hunter"; "King's Row."

What we are fighting against: "Betrayal In Central Park"; "You Can't Do Business With Hunter"; "You Have Seen Their Faces"; "The House That Hunter Built"; "Queen's Row."

Hunter Attacks!

2. Unsatisfactory economic relations.

3. Repeated invasions of private property without adequate compensation.

The last communique from headquarters described the Beaver Army as having struggled desperately in many bloody encounters during the night, only to fall back exhausted several times.

Hunter Using Propaganda To Hurt Morale

The Hunter propaganda machine has begun an intensive campaign to break the wartime morale of the Beaver Army. The accompanying picture was issued today from Hunter headquarters in an attempt to lure City men to desert. The obvious intent is to portray the best that Hunter has to offer, thereby minimizing the actual threat. The winsome lass in the picture is not by any means typical of the Hunter species we are facing, but rather an imaginative glorification.

We can expect more and frequent attempts of the same type—a propaganda attempt to appeal to our natural love of beauty, of our inherent tenderness towards delicate things.

Hunter's propaganda often has terroristic qualities, as in an earlier poster that pictured a young girl with a baby in her arms. City men have not in the past, and will not now, be influenced by propaganda based on sex.

"Toots" Peyser, Tech beauty
