Holmen Face Breather in N.J. Quintet

Five Defeats Jaspers; 54-30 Rout of Terriers Keeps Met Slate Clean

By Bob Stein

This Saturday night's contest with the Montclair State Teachers in the Main Gym looms as an obstacle of major consequence in the Beaver quintet's stretch drive for the Metropolitan court title. However, a chance upset by the undermanned Indian five would puncture the Lavender's six-game winning streak and provide an embarrassing blot on the team's record.

Montclair's record falls to reveal any cause for serious concern for Nat Holman's crew. Sporting eleven wins in twenty contests, the Teachers have been given lessons in court technique by such local quintets as Brooklyn, NYU and St. Johns.

Beavers Improve

The Beavers, on the other hand, have been gaining momentum in each succeeding contest. Nat Holman's machine, after stalling slightly in last Wednesday's 38-35 win over Manhattan, moved into high gear against St. Francis Saturday night with a 50-34 victory. The St. Francis squad found it impossible to solve City's MacArthur-like defense. Bill Holman held the St. Francis ace, Tony Braginetz, to a standstill, while pouring through sixteen points himself to take scoring honors. Claude Phillips and Sonny Hertzberg each contributed ten points, while Dave Laub tallied eight.

St. Francis Starts Fast

St. Francis took the offensive a-1 the opening buzzer to gain a 4-1 lead, but then faded before the Beavers' superior set shooting to drop behind, 13-5, several minutes later. The Lavenders kept pouring it on and Bill Holman's great three-quarter court set shot with five seconds to go gave City a 24-12 lead at the half.

St. Francis pulled up within five points at the start of the second half, but was snowed under by another City rush as the Beavers went into a 36-22 lead.

The victory over St. Francis insures the College quintet of at least a tie in the local standings. A loss to NYU would place the Beavers in a deadlock with St. Johns in case of a Redmen win over St. Francis that night.

In any event, next Wednesday's double-header will decide New York's other entry in the National Invitation Intercollegiate Tournament. LIU is already in, while City, St. Johns, and NYU are in the running for the other post.

City Matmen Victors, 15-13

Triumphs by Marv Applebaum and Artie Goeschel in the last two events gave the City College wrestlers a hairline 15-13 decision over the Montclair State Teachers last Saturday in the home gym.

The Lavender matmen broke into the lead at the outset when Herb Wexler won the 121-lb. event, Jake Twersky captured the 128-lb. test, and Harold Cohen, 136 pounder took his third straight decision in varsity competition.

The 145-lb. event was then temporarily postponed since Marv Applebaum, suffering an arm injury, wished to compete only if points were needed to

Prices Are High Now? Wait 'Til Next Year

By Arnold Rosen

Many unfair charges as to the price and quality of its food have been leveled against our lunchroom. While it is true that prices have advanced it is only fair to point out that the price of arsenic and cyanide has also gone up. A recent survey, however, proved that prices in the lunchroom are still reasonable. On the average they were found to be 60% cheaper than Child's 125% cheaper than Longchamp's, and almost 500% less than the Stork Club.

The added cost of one beverage can be explained if we accept the official lunchroom explanation that there is a vital shortage of cows producing chocolate milk. Even Coca-Cola has gone up—very often it now takes two slugs to get results.

The quality and variety of the food are above question. They have a large assortment of cold cuts, vegetables, and cheeses. In fact, the only cheese they do not have is Limburger but this is not apparent as you walk through the lunchroom. It must be admitted that due to temporary conditions much is to be desired in the way of sanitation. However there is no basis to the report that the U.S. faces a paper shortage because it is all on the floor of the City College lunchroom. Our students often boast that their lunchroom has the only rye bread in the city with seeds that can walk. Of course it has been suggested that bread that old should be able to walk.

It also must be admitted that the lunchroom is slightly overcrowded at times. One student was walking through the corridor and before he got to the other side he had consumed three sandwiches, two paper cups, and a copy of Schapiro's European History.

The new lunchroom which will be with us in a few years, will undoubtedly remedy these minor difficulties. Loyal City College students will not heed those who would undermine our confidence by observing that the new lunchroom will be just as far from the medical office as the old one.

Mermen Take Final Meet

Weiner Gains Trophy As Outstanding Merman

Co-captain Le Roy Weiner, ace free-styler, and his Beaver mermen closed out a good season Friday night, beating St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, 40-35.

Murray Gartner, co-captain of the team in 1932, presented the Gartner Trophy to Weiner for being the outstanding swimmer of the year. Le Roy broke the college records for the 220- and 100-yard free-style events this season.

The 300-yard medley relay team, consisting of Tommy Pavone, backstroke; co-captain Carl Weinstock and Howie Moscovitz, free-styler, started the evening off right, and won by two and a half laps.

At no time did St. Joseph threaten, the Lavender natators taking six out of eight events. When the last race came up—the 400 yard relay which counts seven points—St. Joe was trailing by 28-40 and the Beavers had already clinched the meet. Coach Rad McCormack put in the second-stringers, and they came within two yards of winning.

The traditions attached to closing the season were faithfully carried on when Co-captains Weiner and Weinstock combined forces to toss Manager Dick Colgan into the pool. Dick swam a neat, if not gaudy, two laps to prove that his association with the team for the past three years was worth while.

SC to Analyze Electives, Publish Findings

The Student Council, last Friday, appropriated $50 for a student project analyzing present elective courses with regard to teachers, content, required readings, etc. The findings will be published in a SC Bulletin of Courses, and distributed free to students.

Four Years of Hygiene Endorsed by SC, FDC

Major Raymond Purcell (Hygiene Dept.), a member of the Faculty Defense Council, declared last Monday that it would be advantageous to extend compulsory hygiene to four years.

He stated that the new program would be entirely in accord with the "national trend manifested in colleges throughout the country." During the last year at least a dozen colleges have initiated this type of four-year hygiene program.

At the last meeting of the Student Council, the extension of the compulsory hygiene program was endorsed. The new courses would be called 5, 6, 7 and 8. All upper classmen would be required to choose one hour a week for the courses. There would be a varied selection of sports with the choice up to the student.

The proposed courses are a part of the Hygiene Department's program of cooperation with the national defense effort by increasing physical fitness.

However, there are still a few wrinkles to be ironed out. Lockers for 1500 students and many more instructors will be needed.

Phi Beta Kappa Elects 16 Seniors

The following students of the Class of February '42 were elected last week to the College chapter of Phi Beta Kappa:

Wilbur Daniels, Albert Fuhrman, David Haber, Paul Jacobs, Walter Gilbert Leight, John Lawe, Salvatore Ramondine, Jr., Burton L. Shapiro, Franklin Abbott Smith, Herman Leon Wagner, Marvin Wolfson.

The following are members of the Class of May '42 who were selected:

Albert Altman, Harvey Cohen, Abraham I. Hochberger, Julius Rutzky, Saul Scheidlinger.

SC to Hold NYA Rally Next Week

Committee Drive To Save NYA Opens With Petitions

You can set aside the time from 12:30 to 2 on Thursday, March 12, for the all-important SC-NYA rally will be held in the Great Hall then.

The original date for the rally was tomorrow but Professor Gardner Murphy (Chairman, Psychology Dept.), who was to have been the principal speaker, is ill and cannot attend.

He will be there, however, next week and with him will be Miss Helen A. Harris, NYA Administrator for New York and Long Island; Mr. George L. Glasheen, Regional Student Work Officer of NYA for New England and New York; and Mr. W. E. Annin, Jr., Director of NYA Student Work for New York and Long Island.

In addition to the rally, the SC-NYA Committee has taken other steps in its drive to ensure NYA for next term. Current appropriations will cover the needs of this term—but that is all.

Letters have been sent to various metropolitan newspapers in an effort to obtain their editorial support and coverage of the rally. Petitions have already been circulated, but, because of incorrect wording, these will be of no use. New ones are being prepared, and it is hoped that students will be as cooperative in signing them as they were in signing the old ones.

President Wright and Deans Gottschall and Turner have agreed to support the committee, and are enlisting faculty support. Mr. Lewis Jackson, College Administrator of NYA, has assisted the committee in obtaining the services of the NYA speakers.

Dramsoc Show Goes to Hunter

Dramsoc has finally changed theaters. According to an announcement by Warren Schoonmaker, president of the College Dramatic Society, the Hunter College Little Theater will be the site of this term's production of Out of the Frying Pan.

Air conditioning, clean seats and decent acoustics are features of the new theatre, which replaces the Pauline Edwards auditorium, traditional site.

Casting for the spring show has been completed. Lynn Willis, Frances Santora, Lorraine Gouerman, Esther Soler and Florabelle Houston will handle the feminine roles, with Stanley Gold, George Brager, Joel Friedman, Jack Schwartz, Alfred Goldfinger, Murray Sklaroff, and Bob Matheo acting the stronger sex.

First night is April 3, the start of Easter week-end (no vacation this year). The show runs the two following evenings. A bird's eye view of the forthcoming entertainment will be provided at the Frosh Chapel on March 31. Ruby Fisher and Lenny Scherer are handling the program.

Foilsmen Make History, Defeat Violets, 15-12

City's fencers beat NYU for the first time in history last Saturday, which may explain why they're walking around with their swords in their pockets. Despite NYU's Art Tauber, national champ, City's great epee work, backed by a fighting sabre team and adequate foils won a 15-12 victory.

Nat Holman to Address Frosh Chapel March 10

Nat Holman's basketballers will appear at freshman chapel next Tuesday, March 10, in a gala NYU hoop rally. Captains of every varsity team will also attend.

Holman will unlimber his vocal chords and deliver the main oration. He will be aided and abetted, however, by Jimmy Peace (Hygiene Dept.) and Sam Deitchman, hoop captain.

To round out the program the ROTC band will lead the gathering in songs and cheers, and you can purchase those "We Dood it Again" buttons during pauses for breath.

ROTC Plans Military Ball

Plans for the military ball to be held by the ROTC Officers' Club were being whipped into shape this week with final decisions due in the near future. The ball will be held in the drill hall about April 11 and will be open to all College students. Negotiations for a name band are still proceeding.

With an attendance of over 1000 expected, a majority to be in uniform, the affair promises to be one of the most brilliant the College has seen, according to Horace O. Kippels '42, President of the Officers' Club. Invited guests will include not only the regular army officers of the College's unit, but also military notables of the Second Corps Area.

For the occasion, the drill hall will undergo a complete transformation. The floor will be waxed and the walls brightened by decorations and multicolored spotlights. The military science offices will be turned into dressing and check rooms.

Banker Talks Here Tonight

The third in a series of four lectures on our national war effort will feature Emmett F. Connelly and Dr. Virgil Jordan in a discussion of "Investment Banking Under a War Economy" in the Great Hall tonight at 8:30.

Mr. Connelly, former President of the Investment Bankers Association, is the principal speaker while Dr. Jordan, President of the National Industrial Conference Board, will act as chairman.

The lecture tonight, a part of the John H. Finley Memorial series, is sponsored by the 1911 Class and is being conducted by the Economics Department under the chairmanship of Professor George W. Edwards '11 (Economics Dept.).

The talk given two weeks ago by Dr. William M. Leiserson, of the National Labor Relations Board, received widespread at-

Trains Students As Cooks, Bakers In Armed Forces

College students who expect to be in the armed forces soon will be given a chance to prove that book larnin' can't prevent a man from making dough.

For the College Civilian Defense Council is now registering men students from both the Main and Commerce Centers for an Army and Navy Commissary Training course which will train the future soldiers in the complicated arts of cooking, baking, and food purchasing. Those registering and successfully completing the course will not only be able to lend a hand at the stove at dinner, but will also be eligible for positions as third grade cooks at a basic pay rate of $51 per month. They will then have an opportunity to become mess sergeants without requiring any additional training.

The CDC announces that the course for the aspiring "Oscars-of-the-Waldorf" will be given only if a sufficient number of registrations are received. All interested applicants are urged to register at the CDC headquarters at 280 Convent Ave. on or before Friday, March 6.

There will be no fee charged for the course which will last until mid-June and will be held at the Food Trades Vocational High School at 207 West 13 St. The first class will be held about March 10 and will be held thereafter on every Tuesday and Friday from 4 until 7 o'clock.

Graduation Date Set

Commencement exercises will take place in Lewisohn Stadium on Tuesday, June 2, according to Dr. Frederic Woll (Hygiene Dept.), Faculty Chairman of the Commencement Committee.

The graduating class is expected to be somewhat smaller than usual, owing to the number of seniors leaving the College to enter the armed forces or war industries.

The Commencement Committee headed by George Schonberg '42 and Al Finklestein '42, is negotiating for caps and gowns, a hotel, and name band for the Farewell Dance.

"This affair," said Schonberg, "will be one of the best ever held. The cooperation displayed by both Main and Commerce Session Committees has been most gratifying."

Navy to Train College Students

The Navy will accept voluntary enlistments in the V-1, apprentice seaman class in a new plan to direct the student curriculum so as to prepare for entrance into the Navy.

In this program, men between 17 and 19 years of age inclusive will continue in college, taking this pre-induction naval training on an inactive basis for a period

Lunchroom Remains Shut - "Priorities and Stuff"

The $64 question for today is—when will the new lunchroom be opened for business?

"I don't know," says Mrs. Elsie Kamholtz, lunchroom dietician. You know, priorities and stuff.

"I don't know," says Harry N. Wright, President of the College. You know, priorities and stuff.

"I don't know," says Herman L. Weissman, chairman of the Lunchroom Alumni Investigating Committee. "Our report will be released before the lunchroom is opened."

Techmen Hear Dean's Speech

Newman Says Industries May Lose Vital Workers

Speaking before a group of 250 Tech students at their annual meeting held last week in Townsend Harris Hall, Prof. Albert B. Newman, Dean of the School of Technology, warned that "war industries are going to be robbed of vital personnel." He explained that it was America's job to keep the armies of Britain, Russia, and China supplied with the tools of war.

Explaining the relation of the engineering schools to the war program, Prof. Newman stated that "the proper support of the engineering school is the most important war effort of the City." However, this would not involve speed-up of the curriculum. According to a recent plan adopted by most colleges, the Dean revealed, there was to be no speed-up for the first three years, and the last year was to be a short one of intensive training, so as to release the engineers to take their place in the war program. "We want engineers, but we don't want any half-baked engineers," he added significantly.

Opportunities in Armed Forces

Prof. J. J. Theobald (C.E. Dept.) Naval Engineering advisor, and Prof. William G. Crane (English Dept.), College liaison officer for the Air Corps, Marine Corps, and the Navy, discussed the opportunities for college men in the armed forces. Speaking particularly of the Reserves, Prof. Crane emphasized the possibilities of the student receiving a commission, and at the same time, completing his college education.

"The Navy is particularly anxious to get engineers," stated Prof. Theobald, and explained the possibility of obtaining a provisional ensignship in the Naval Reserve branches of Aviation, Ordnance, and the Bureau of Ships. The student who must be a junior or senior and is expected to obtain a commission

Plans to Return To Dartmouth Professorship

BULLETIN

The City College Administrative Committee of the Board of Higher Education accepted last night the resignation of Dean Herman Feldman of the School of Business. The full body of the BHE does not meet until March 16.

President Harry N. Wright yesterday announced the resignation of Dr. Herman Feldman '15 as Dean of the School of Business and Civic Administration.

In a letter to Dr. Wright, dated February 10 and submitted last night to the City College Administrative Committee of the Board of Higher Education, Dean Feldman stated that he found the post "overwhelmed by administrative routine" and that it did not allow time for him to pursue his professional interests and scholarly activities. Dean Feldman suggested to Dr. Wright that the resignation go into effect as of September 1, "in order that you may have ample time to choose a successor."

Dean Feldman paid high tribute to the student body of the school who, he said, "have in the past been misrepresented by the publicity given to the actions of a misguided few. Our students have personal and professional potentialities as fine as I have found in any student body, and it is with the greatest reluctance and after many debates with myself that I leave them and my associates at City College."

Before accepting the post at the College in 1939, Dean Feldman, who is widely known for his research, books, and service in the field of labor and management, had been for fifteen years Professor of Industrial Relations at the Amos Tuck School of Administration and Finance, Dartmouth College. He plans to return to that position in the fall, he said in an interview in his office last night.

Dean Feldman has conducted extensive research in unemployment and labor problems. He was economic adviser to the United States Personnel Classification Board from 1928 to 1930, a consultant to the National Committee on Law Observance and Enforcement in 1931, chairman of the New Hampshire Committee on Unemployment Reserves in 1933, and a labor arbitrator for the NRA.

self surrounded with soliciting males angling for the coming dance. That is, every girl except one. She was tall, slender, attractive looking. But the boys shied away from her sending only furtive glances in her direction. She stood alone, watching wistfully. Finally, she put on her hat and coat and left.

We sign petitions, send telegrams, write lengthy articles against Negro discrimination. "Down with Jim Crowism. The Negro is human. He has mind, body and spirit. He has feelings. Why can't he receive the same respect and courtesy other Americans receive, in the true spirit of democracy?"

Because we believe these things, that one brown-skinned girl received no request to dance. At the time there were no members of her own race around. But others were present. There were editors of The Campus, writers of fiery editorials against Negro persecution; former alcove philosophers, from whose lips flowed many words in behalf of Negro equality; sociology students who, in the classroom, studied and denounced Jim Crowism. Not all may have seen her; but some must have; none offered to dance. She was socially ostracized. That was why she left.

We denounce, attack, condemn, decry, protest, petition, demand, request.

As things stand now, things are in a pretty mess when it comes to figuring out who's going to represent New York in the annual National Invitation Intercollegiate hoop tourney beginning March 17.

When it comes to general team standing, Long Island U. and St. Francis, like Abou Ben Adam's name, lead all the rest. CCNY leads the city series, viz.:

General Standing			Intracity Standing
LJU	22	2	CCNY	5	0
St. Francis	14	2	LJU	1	0
CCNY	12	2	St. John's	4	1
St. John's	14	4	NYU	2	1
NYU	13	5	Fordham	3	2

Thus all City has to do is beat NYU next Wednesday night. That will mean an undefeated intracity record and an automatic bid to the party. LJU, which beat only Brooklyn in the battle of the boroughs but compiled a great intersectional record, will be the other New York team to go.

And though Nat Holman's squad is seemingly in the best spot for a billet doux to the shenanigans, a defeat in the NYU game would be just about as disastrous as if St. John's or NYU, the two other contenders, dropped one. Get this Philo 12 stuff:

St. John's, still sore about losing to the Lavender and hungry for a chance at the title, can win if it beats St. Francis on the other half of the Garden twin bill next week, providing NYU loses one more game (to Fordham tonight) but beats City next week. This will give the Redmen a 5-1 record (same as the Beavers' would be), but St. John's would probably walk in through the players' entrance soon than the Lavender lay-ups because of (1) the conception in the minds of the metropolitan basketball writers—the boys who send out the invites—that Coach Joe Lapchick has a terrific bunch of players but that they've just been slow getting started and that (whenever they win a game) "they're playing the best ball in the city"; and (2) St. John's beating of Coach Cann's club last week.

NYU can manage to sneak in only if it beats both Fordham and City. The team that beats CCNY will probably be the team to cop the bid, even if St. John's beats St. Francis. Should the Terriers, who turned in a fighting but inefficient job trying to knock over the Beavers last Saturday night at the home court, be able to topple the Schermerhorn Street sharpies, the Violets would still have to beat the Beavers to be able to say "I do."

To get back to pleasanter talk, however, it's nice to say that Coach Holman's bunch turned in a bang-up job beating the pants off St. Francis last Saturday! The Brooklyn team was set for a killing, half the school was on hand to sit in, and the boys were ready to do-or-die, give-and-go, and Remember Pearl Harbor.

But Bill Holzman's great work in shackling Agoglia and Braginetz, the St. Francis threats; Dave Laub's remarkable job of covering the backboards and 6 ft. 5 in. Jerry Bussell; Mike Shinkarik's improved performance; Claude Phillips' fast break down court and Sonny Hertzberg's driving game showed the Lavender had too much class and fight and savvy for the visitors, and that they'll have to wait till next year.

This Saturday's game against the Montclair State Teachers looks easy on paper, and who am I to be an alarmist? But once there was a little guy named Dick Murphy and he played on Manhattan and the score was 38-35, remember?

The sixty-four dollar question: What if Fordham beats NYU and NYU beats City and St. Francis beats St. John's?

The answer you get with a 35-cent "Campus" subscription: City gets the bid.

JV Five Whips St. Francis

Playing on the home court and Lenny Lesser's running through the St. Francis defense combined to give the JV hoopsters a 52-42 win over the Friar frosh last Saturday night.

The game started off as a close affair, but the Baby Beavers scored 12 points in a row to move ahead. The closest the St.

Coach Winograd

Francis frosh came thereafter in a second half rally when they tallied ten consecutive points.

Everett Finestone boosted his season total to 175 as he poured 15 points through the hoop. He'll have two more games in which to try to reach the 200-mark. The jayvee faces the Queens JV Saturday night and the NYU frosh a week from today at the Garden.

Intramural Games Start Tomorrow

The intramural campaign sifted into high gear last Thursday with Max Plasner edging out Fred Butterworth in the Basketball Field Day playoffs, and the AK's, Caduceus, and Science fives taking the team basketball games.

The AK's, last term's winners, smothered the Flashes 34-9, while Caduceus trimmed the Hygers, 19-17, and the Scientists defeated the Moles, 8-3. All other games were forfeited.

Tomorrow basketball competition continues, and handball, shuffleboard, volleyball, chess and checkers, and ping-pong get under way. All entries must be in before noon tomorrow. The deadline for Badminton entries is March 12.
