Lavender Upset By Second Half Sooner Surge

By Mark Maged

They said no team could go through a season undefeated! And when 16,000 Madison Square Garden fans watched the Oklahoma Sooners pull the upset of the young season last night, and vanquish a hitherto undefeated Beaver five, 67-63, all the things they said came true.

With seven veterans back from last year's quintet, the Westerners displayed a brand of shooting and poise unlike any the Lavender had seen this year. Led by Paul Merchant, six feet of greatness, the Sooners staged a tremendous second half rally after trailing in the first two periods, and then held on to thwart a desperate Beaver comeback.

Merchant Stars

Merchant, who tallied twenty points, was Oklahoma's field general from start to finish. He set up its plays from close to mid-court, drove through for under-banded lay-ups, and steadied the Sooners in the waning seconds when the Lavender was on the verge of knotting the score.

For the Beavers, it was a tough one to lose, but one that was bound to come eventually. Playing throughout the contest with at least three sophomores on the court at all times, the Lavender found the pressure too great. When, at the three-minute mark of the second half, the Sooners went ahead for the first time, the young Saint Nick five showed signs of nervousness. Time and again they mishandled or misdirected passes, and took wild shots.

Oklahoma Cool

Oklahoma, on the other hand, played a cool, calculated game, and did not appear fazed by the much-publicized Beaver platoon system, and though a little short on reserve strength, matched fast breaks with the Lavender five.

Play after play, the Sooners raced down court with three or four men against one or two Beaver defenders.

Blood Bank Used

The first person to take advantage of the College's Blood Bank program was Mrs. Claire Lev, mother of a College graduate student, Shirley Lev, early this month.

Any member of the College community or his family who is registered in the program and enters a hospital will receive a free supply of blood.

Scheffler New Prexy; Coeds in Arts Wins

By Arnold Workman

Polling 1,133 votes out of a total of 2,936 cast for Council's highest office, Phillip Scheffler '50, managing editor of Observation Post, was elected President of the Student Council for the Spring term of 1950.

Running on the same platform with him for the Vice-presidency, Beverly Rubin '50, established a signal precedent as she became the first woman to successfully compete with a man for a major Council office other than the position of Secretary.

Kagen Treasurer

Stanley Queler '50, news editor of The Campus, ran 198 votes behind Scheffler, while President Leroy Galperin received 868 votes. The three way race for Treasurer was won by Paul David Kagen '51, leading by the comfortable majority of 193 votes. Iris Agard '52, strolled into the position of Secretary unopposed.

Procuring the highest accumulation of votes of any item, 2,336, the Liberal arts referendum was emphatically endorsed by the voting electorate. This figure, however, only represents approximately one-third of the Main, day-session registration. Student apathy was also evidenced by the small presidential vote.

Although Scheffler's party, SOS, captured the two highest major offices, only one of the remaining eight candidates seeking election under the political aegis of SOS was successful, the majority of winners being classified as Independents.

Kaufman Senior Prexy

The heaviest vote recorded for an individual in the major office group was 2,050, going to NSA candidate Ira Goldstein '52 the present director of the NSA Purchase Card System instituted last Wednesday. In the balloting for class representatives, Bernard Lodinsky '53, Independent, polled the largest number with 323. Irving Kaufman captured the Senior Class presidency by a 400 vote margin.

Following the relatively lackadaisical campaign week, the results were announced by the co-chairmen of the Elections Committee, Jules Peisachowitz '51, President of Alpha Phi Omega, which conducted the elections, and Ernest MacIn '51, at 11:50 P. M. Friday, during a turbulent Student Council meeting.

Pool Closes to Save Water; Install Lights

"How dry I am" has become the most popular song in the College's Hygiene classes since the water shortage forced the closing of the pools at both the Main and Commerce centers—a step designed to save 7000 gallons daily. Use of the showers has been limited to ten minute periods after varsity practice and Hygiene classes.

IPA to Hear Prof. Murphy

Prof. Gardner Murphy (Chairman, Psychology) will speak at a reception celebrating the tenth anniversary of the College's Psychology Department on December 30, 7:30 P.M. at Army Hall.

He will discuss the history of his department and the experimental work carried on there during the war.

Professor Murphy teaches the popular Psychology 59 and 60, Developmental Personality, and is author of the text, "Personality," among other works.

Students from thirty Colleges and Universities and many members of the Intercollegiate Psychology Association will attend the reception at which Professor Murphy will speak. The celebration will be sponsored by Psi Chi, national honorary psychology fraternity. All psychology students and members of the faculty are invited to attend. Admission is free.

ments in the uptown pool will begin after the holidays and continue through most of the Spring term. These improvements, part of the million dollar college renovation program now in progress, include installation of a new filtration system designed to keep the water clean and clear at all times. Fluorescent lights, additional lockers, showers, drinking fountains, and toilets also will be installed. The wooden bridge across the pool will be replaced by a masonry structure.

The new-lighting system will provide nine times the light of the present one. Most of the fluorescent tubes will be installed at the ends of the pool to provide both beginners and divers with the necessary lighting.

The purpose of the extra candle-power is twofold. First it will be safer for the swimmers, and second, it will make it easier for instructors to detect students loafing at the bottom of the pool.

Senior Class Makes Plans For Wild Ride

The senior class will hold a "Mystery Bus Ride" and barn dance on Friday, Dec. 23. Buses will leave the Consolidated Bus Terminal, 7th Ave. and 41st St., at 7:45 P.M. Where they're going no one knows, but everyone is promised a good time.

Headed for 'Sticks'

Tickets are $1.50 per person and may be purchased in the senior office, Room 109 Army. Country style dress (dungarees and woolen shirts) is suggested.

A meeting of the class will be held in the Great Hall tomorrow, Dec. 21, from 1 to 2. The Alumni Association, graduation details, and other items of interest to seniors will be discussed. All seniors will be excused from classes to attend this meeting.

Open House

At 2, after the meeting, an open house Christmas party will be held in the office. All seniors are invited to attend and to bring their favorite faculty member.

The deadline for the purchase of tickets for the Senior Prom, which will be held on Jan. 28 in the Essex House, is Friday, Dec. 23. Tickets may be purchased for $13.50 in the Senior office.

Graduation rings are still available and may be purchased from Marty Fishman, chairman of the Ring Committee, on Wednesday from 2 to 4 and on Thursdays from 12 to 2 in 109 Army.

X-mas Hop Initiates Holiday 'Study' Grind

A Christmas dance, the final entertainment of students at the College before the annual holiday study grind begins, "will be held in the Main Gym, Friday, December 23, from 3 to 5.

Co-sponsored by the Hygiene Department and the class, Hygiene 31, the Noel affair represents the initial dance of what is hoped to become a traditional annual event on a par with the famous House Plan Carnival. Alpha Phi Omega, Student Council, and Sigma Alpha will also be sponsors of future dances.

Along with the dancing and Christmas singing, there will be refreshments, of the X-mas varety, and a brightly decorated Christmas tree.

Pres. Harry N. Wright will join the Yuletide festivities as one of the many merry carolers at the dance, singing under the direction of Prof. J. Bailey Harvey (Public Speaking.)

Also available to warm the spirits of the male side of the College, will be the Beaverettes, distaff version of the Allagarooters. The gals, who usually enhance the scenery of the basketball arena, will add charm and good cheer to the event.

All students, both male and female, are invited to partake of the pre-holiday cheer. There is no admission charge.

June Graduates To Take Exams For Tech Jobs

Examinations for Engineer, Civil Engineer (Trainee), and Junior Scientist (Chemist, Physicist, Metallurgist) were announced last week by the US Civil Service Commission.

College students who expect to complete their courses of study by June 30, 1950 are eligible to apply, some of the trainee positions are open to qualified sophomore and junior students.

The jobs for engineers pay $3100 and $3825 a year with a requirement of 5 years education or experience for the higher paying position. The Civil engineering jobs pay $2650-$2875 a year. Junior Scientists jobs pay from $2650 to $3825 per year with a premium placed on extensive education.

The jobs for engineers are in the midwestern states, while the other available positions are located in Atlantic seaboard states.

Applicants must pass a written examination for all the above positions. Further information and application forms for the examinations may be obtained at most first and second-class post offices, from Civil Service regional offices or from the US Civil Service Commission, Washington D.C.

Cohen Fund Elect Officers

Sandor Halebsky '52 was elected president of the Morris Raphael Cohen Student Memorial Fund at an election meeting held last week. Halebsky will succeed Shepard Sheinkman '50 who graduates next month. Other newly-elected officers include Manny Moskowitz '51, vice-president, Ed Cohen '51 secretary, and Bernard Fridovich '52, treasurer.

Plans for next semester include a continuation of the scholarship fund drive which was begun last term and the formation of a graduate board.

It would also act as liaison between the alumni and student members of the Fund and enable it to become a self-perpetuating unit, with both graduate and undergraduate members.

Xmas Trees

A gift to the students now adorns the Lincoln Corridor in the form of bright red and green Christmas wreaths and trees. The decorations were paid for completely from voluntary contributions by members of the faculty. The money collected was used not only to purchase the supplies but to pay the workman for hanging the wreaths. The display was arranged by Agnes T. Condon, Evening Session Registrar, and Laura L. Cleverdon, History librarian. The two first decorated the Corridor in 1938 and have continued to do it since.

Tickets are now available offering reductions to such films as "Devil in the Flesh," "Germany, Year Zero," "Birth of a Ballet," "Fame Is the Spur," "Hamlet" and "Henry V." Similar discounts may also be obtained for the concerts and operas presented at the City Center (except Saturday night performances).

Students may also obtain similar tickets to plays like "The Closing Door," which is now at the Empire Theatre; and such productions by the University Repertory Theatre as "The Taming of the Shrew" and "Bloomer Girl." Also included on the discount list are the famous "Y" concerts which will feature stars like Burl Ives and the Budapest String Quartet.

Shy Youths Prefer Group 'Blind' Dates

Misery likes company, according to a study recently released by House Plan. Finding that individuals are reluctant to go on blind dates, the investigators experimented with group blind dates and found them by far more successful than the single variety.

Wholesome fresh couple all set to make whoopee en masse.

The group blind date plan is suggested by House Plan as a successful method of filling empty address books with new faces.

"Most males and females have a suspicious attitude toward individual blind dates," the report observes. They feel it is like "taking a crack at a grab-bag" and are fearful of coming up with the "booby prize." In addition, it continues, many young people feel that individual blind dating has a "lonely hearts" stigma attached. Pride bars them from seeking blind dates for fear that fellow students will sneer at them and consider them incapable of obtaining dates on their own.

Lose Inhibitions
 The report concludes that group blind dates offer a much better solution. Under this method, a number of boys and girls are matched up with each other. Then the entire group goes out together on picnics to dances, or to the theatre.

This way, the report says, reluctant students find they are not inhibited or self-conscious because they know that their friends are "dating blind," too. At the same time, a boy and girl, feeling that they are part of a larger company, find it easier to "break the ice" and get to know each other more quickly.

Only Compatible Students
 However, even under the group system, only students who are compatible should be matched up, the report warns. The rules: dates should live reasonably near one another; a male student should be approximately one or two years older than the girl; men must be at least three inches taller than their dates.

The report was based on the findings of two sociology students, Jack Monderer and Boris Cohen.

Organized in 1947
 The bureau was organized in the fall of 1947. At first, the conventional "individual-blind-date" approach was used. However, it was soon apparent that this method was doomed to failure. Students seemed to balk at the blind date idea, and during the first six months of operation, only seven couples were matched up.

Perplexed House Plan officials sent out Monderer and Cohen to investigate why students shied away from the date bureau. After questioning dozens of students, the two sociology students recommended that group-blind-dating be substituted for the individual date approach. The suggestion was taken and met with immediate success. In its first six months of operation, 105 couples were matched up and went out together on a group basis.

'Sing' to Feature Songs of All Faiths

By Richard Landau

Alpha Phi Omega will stage a "Holiday Sing," replacing the Christmas sings of previous years, and featuring festival songs of all religions Thursday from 12 to 2 in Lincoln Corridor.

The celebration will begin with singing of Christmas carols but will also include a menorah lighting ceremony and songs in connection with the Chanukah holiday. Those attending will receive copies of the song lyrics in brochure form by APO.

Prof. J. Bailey Harvey (Public Speaking) will lead the singing with the aid of a chorus composed of APO brothers and members of the Cohen Memorial Fund.

The Corridor will also be the scene of another service activity of APO, the Purple Heart Drive. While in the past, money was collected to purchase a variety of items, this year the Drive is for books (not text books) and magazines. All the gifts will be sent to the veterans' hospitals in the metropolitan area. The collection booth in the Lincoln Corridor, as well as one placed in the rear of the cafeteria, will be manned from 10 till 2, tomorrow through Friday.

An Apology

In the story about the student trial last week, The Campus referred to four undergraduates as "convicted students." Actually, the Judiciary Committee of Student Council had merely found them "implicated" in the disappearance of the program cards.—nothing more.

We wish to apologize to Tom Andrews '51, Florence Goodstein '51, Martin Klein '51 and Leonard Dauer '52.

Faculty Four Give Concert

The Department of Music, in conjunction with the Department of English is presenting a program of contemporary music, Thursday, December 22, at 12, in the Faculty Room (200 Main).

The concert will consist of a performance by the College Faculty String Quartet, playing the first movement from the String Quartet, Opus 10 by Debussy, and works by Hindemith, Schoenberg, Stravinsky, and Milhaud. Admission is free.

On the following Thursday, December 29, at 8:30 the music department will broadcast the Largo and Allegro from Sonata in C major by Marcello, and the Sonata, Opus 12, No. 2, in D Major by Beethoven over station WFUV (90.7 meg.)

Otto Deri (music) will play cello and Fritz Jahoda (music) piano for the broadcast.

The department is in need of musicians for the College band and orchestra. Those interested who play string or brass instruments, may obtain information in 306 Harris.

Newman Club Drive Yields Needed Gifts

In the true Yuletide spirit of peace and good-will, the College Newman Club collected more than a carload of canned-food and clothing in its annual Christmas Basket Drive to help needy Harlem families last Thursday, and Friday.

The drive, which became school-wide for the first time since its inception several years ago, yielded assorted packages of non-perishable foods and wearing apparel for distribution as Christmas gifts. The entire collection was donated to Friends' House,

Beavers Bow to Sooners After 5 Wins; To Encounter Golden Bears Thursday

Nine For Indians As Cats Falter In First, 67-44

Freiberger, the Westerners dominated both backboards in the wild second stanza. They were also aided by the new rule which permits a team to take possession of the ball at mid-court, after a foul in the last two minutes of a game.

Lavender Stars

For the Beavers, Ed Roman, Ed Warner, and Irwin Dambrot all played a fine, but futile, game. Roman put on an excellent showing, fighting under the boards, passing off, and leading the City scorers with twenty points. Warner followed Roman in the scoring, netting fifteen markers, while Al Roth scored twelve points.

The game was but eight seconds old when the Sooners grabbed a quick 2-0 lead on six-eleven Marcus Frieburger's jump shot. The Lavender stormed back quickly, though, and in the next two minutes counted five quick tallies on a foul by Roman, a basket by Ed Warner, and a tap-in by Warner. The Sooners' Wayne Glasgow knotted the score with a hook shot a few seconds later and from then on it was nip and tuck until 8:55 of the game when a Beaver rally gave them a commanding lead of 18-12. The two teams then matched baskets until, when with but three and a half minutes left in the half, the Lavender substituted an entire team.

Beaver Lapses Hurt

The Okies took quick advantage of several Beaver passing lapses and came up to within one point of tying the score at the half, as they left the floor trailing 36-35.

In the opener, the Redmen of St. John's ran their winning streak to nine as they trounced Washington State, 67-44. The Brooklynites led throughout the entire game, dominating the boards and outthrusting the Huskies in floor play. Jack McMahon of St. John's lead the scorers with 27 points.

McMahon Redmen's Hero

McMahon's sets were sensational. Everything he heaved at the basket went in. His defensive work also shone as he and his teammates forced the Cougars to shoot from outside during most of the contest. In the second half, however, only 10 per cent of their outside shots went in.

Washington had trouble stopping the drive of the Redmen, who clicked with their fast passes into the keyhole, and driving layups.

Lacrosse

Getting an early start on it's season four months away, the lacrosse team went into its fifth week of practice at the Stadium yesterday. It works out five days a week weather permitting. Coach Leon Miller invites all interested candidates, regardless of previous experience, to come out for the team.

Athletic Roundup

SWIMMERS DISPOSSESSED

The College swimming team is temporarily out of action due to the lack of water. Because of the shortage, the City of New York has requested the use of all swimming pools to cease. The meets with Manhattan and Fordham have been transferred to their respective pools. The repairing of the swimming pool, scheduled to start January 1, has already begun.

INTRAS SEMI-FINALS

At the end of the quarter final round of the basketball tourney, Triboros, Madison, Knights and Nippers stand in the lead with the following results of last Thursday: Crotona "5", 16, Madison, 37; Crotona 22, Triboros, 31; Trash A. C., 24, Knights, 37, and Hillel, 22, Nippers, 25.

The winning teams will play in the semi finals Thursday in the Gym.

Fencers Win 4

Of the seven metropolitan individual fencing competitions held by the A.F.L.A. thus far this year, College fencers have won four first places. Gene Natanblut won the Met Junior Saber champs Sunday, Al Goldsten won the Met Novice Epee last week, Clarence Roher took the Met Junior Epee Saturday, and Hal Goldsmith captured the Met Novice Foil three weeks ago.

Riflers Lose Tie On Offhand Score

For the first time in history, the College rifle team earned a tie in a match but lost it, due to a ruling which requires that offhand scores then decide the victor. It happened against Rutgers Saturday, when the College tied, 1378 all. The squad also lost to St. John's Friday, 1386-1377.

Allagarooter—'Campus' Contest:

Outguess California

These contests are administered by the Allagarooters.

Charles Smith '50, one of the five entrants in the Campus-Allagarooters contest to pick Oklahoma to win, came closest to the exact score with his prediction of 69-63, just one basket away from the actual score of 67-63 in favor of the Sooners.

In the Brooklyn prognostication contest, Al Braun '53 picked the Beavers by 69-46, four points away from the 71-44 actual tally. Bernard Ginter '52 was also only four points away, but Braun correctly named Ed Warner as high scorer, whereas Ginter thought that Ed Roman would shine against the Kingsmen.

UCLA Tickets

Tickets for the City-U.C.L.A. basketball game, to be played Tuesday, Dec. 27, will be sold Thursday from 12-4 in the Army Hall basement. The other game presents unbeaten St. John's against Utah. A.A. cards will be sold for the last time this term on Thursday. They cost $2.00 each. Tickets for the City-St. John's game will be sold Friday.

Next, pick the California score for Thursday night's game and take the Basketball King honors for next week. Remember that more than one meter invalidates a contestant.

Campus Sports . . Among the Vets

By Marv Kalb

With the same consistency and resonance as the stubborn blacksmith's hammer on his anvil, Nat Holman's many sophomore stars have been hustled to the foreground by extremely favorable publicity. Marty Glicksman, WMGM basketball broadcaster, observed recently, "City College sophs are really something. This Roman and Layne, and the rest of them -- boy they're really something to watch."

Lou Effrat of The New York Times and Milton Gross of The New York Post, to mention just a few of the sports reporters, have joined Glicksman in praising the Beaver sophs. The veterans, however, on four of whom so much depended last year, have been treated in the press like "wayward girls." Norm Mager, the 6'5" lanky set shot artist, is an excellent example of this "forgotten" few.

Norm, who is sometimes referred to as the "snake" or the "gazelle" because of his graceful, fluid motions, is now starting his third and last season under the tutelage of Nat Holman. Always the best man but never quite the groom, Norm has been the sixth man on the squad for the past season and one-half.

With the acquisition of Warner, Roth, et al, Norm's sixth-man status has been relegated to the second platoon. There he has been experimenting with a hook shot to supplement his superb set and one-hand push shot.

Norm is the type of ball player who can bust a game wide open. Two years ago, for example, in the Lavender conquest of its traditional NYU foe, it was Mager who rifled three sets through the hoop to put the Beavers ahead for good. His shooting accuracy in that game, though, was no fluke. Last season, his spot play notwithstanding, Norm was the fourth highest scorer on the squad with 186 points. Though he had been a bench warmer for the first half of the previous season, Norm still managed to corral close to 100 markers.

In the opinion of many observers, including this writer, Norm is perhaps the likeliest veteran -- with the possible exception of Irwin (now The Man) Dambrot—who would make good as a pro. He's tall; he's strong off the boards; he's a great shot; and he's a good ball handler. He looks, in fact, a good deal like the New York Knick's Carl Braun when Carl came up two years ago. At that time, it was said that Braun was too fragile and thin to play professional basketball. Shuffle through the record books some cold night for Carl's feats, though, and you'll find this criticism to be as senseless as that of dropping Ed Roman from the starting five.

An accountancy business student attending the downtown center, Norm is, to use a colloquialism, Brooklyn-born and Brooklyn-bred. He's a veteran and twenty-three years old, and that means "that I've lived in Brooklyn for twenty-three years."

"Single?" he was asked.
"Yup!"
A second later, his face turned white, and, as though he had given his last answer a bit too rapidly, he added appealingly, "Say, don't write that, huh? My girl friend is liable to get angry."
